What is Farm to Fork and why you should be excited about it!

Loretta Gillespie
Tribune Contributor

CULLMAN – Each year about this time you start seeing articles or signs about the Farm to Fork Dinner and the Farm Y'All Festival logo. You might have attended one or the other, or maybe this is all new to you. If so, this is why you should be excited about it...

But first, a little history lesson.

There was a day and time when everyone knew where cheese, butter, milk and eggs came from. The same could be said for the ingredients in bread, pancakes and a myriad of vegetables like squash, corn and tomatoes. That's because most people in the 50s and 60s either lived or grew up on farms, or had extended family living on farms. Any school child knew that milk and butter comes from cows.

Not so these days. Even in an agricultural society such as ours, there are children who think eggs and milk originate in the dairy case of the neighborhood grocery store, and that bread comes from a factory, start to finish.

One way that farmers, including fruit growers, dairy, poultry and cattle farmers, wine makers, row crop farmers and others who put food on America's tables have devised to inform the public about how their food is grown are Farm to Fork, or Farm to Table, dinners. These dinners have an interesting origin. It began when a restaurant owner by the name of Alice Waters started listing the names of farms on the menu of her Berkeley, California, restaurant, Chez Panisse, as a reminder that food really did grow on farms. Waters wanted P15

Weekend tax forum addresses equitability of Cullman's tax distribution

wendy@cullmansense.com

FAIRVIEW – "A lot of people aren't here today because it's not a good political move to be here." That boldly honest statement from Cullman County Commissioner Garry Marchman came around the middle of this weekend's tax discussion, sometimes debate, at Fairview High School.

Organizer and community activist Ron Stone has been making the rounds all summer at municipal city and town hall meetings, spreading the word about the discussion, the topic of which was Stone's proposed overhaul of the current tax distribution structure in Cullman.

As the city of Cullman continues to see explosive retail growth and millions in industrial investments and expansion, enjoying the benefits of a robust and thriving economy, and one of the best school systems in Alabama, the disparity between the city and the county is growing starker by the day, according to some, with the county residents paying the price.

color stations strategically placed along the course where neon color powder will be thrown at runners as they pass. The neon colors will glow under the black lights. Pre-race and post-race parties will take place at the finish line where runners will receive free glow-in-the-dark goodies.

"We have had a few hundred signed up right now, we normally have anywhere from 700-800 runners every year," said Waid Harbison, marketing, programs & events director at Cullman City Parks and Recreation. "This will be the 24th year for the race."

For those runners who want to race, but don't want to take part in the shenanigans, there will be the option to bypass the color stations on the course.

The race will be professionally timed, and the top three individuals in each category will receive medals. Overall winners will receive cash prizes.

"We are working right now to fine-tune all the details. The event is going to feature a very cool pre-race and post-race party where we will have a very hoppin' DJ. We will also be throwing color powder, glow necklaces and other goodies during the parties before and after the race," said Harbison.

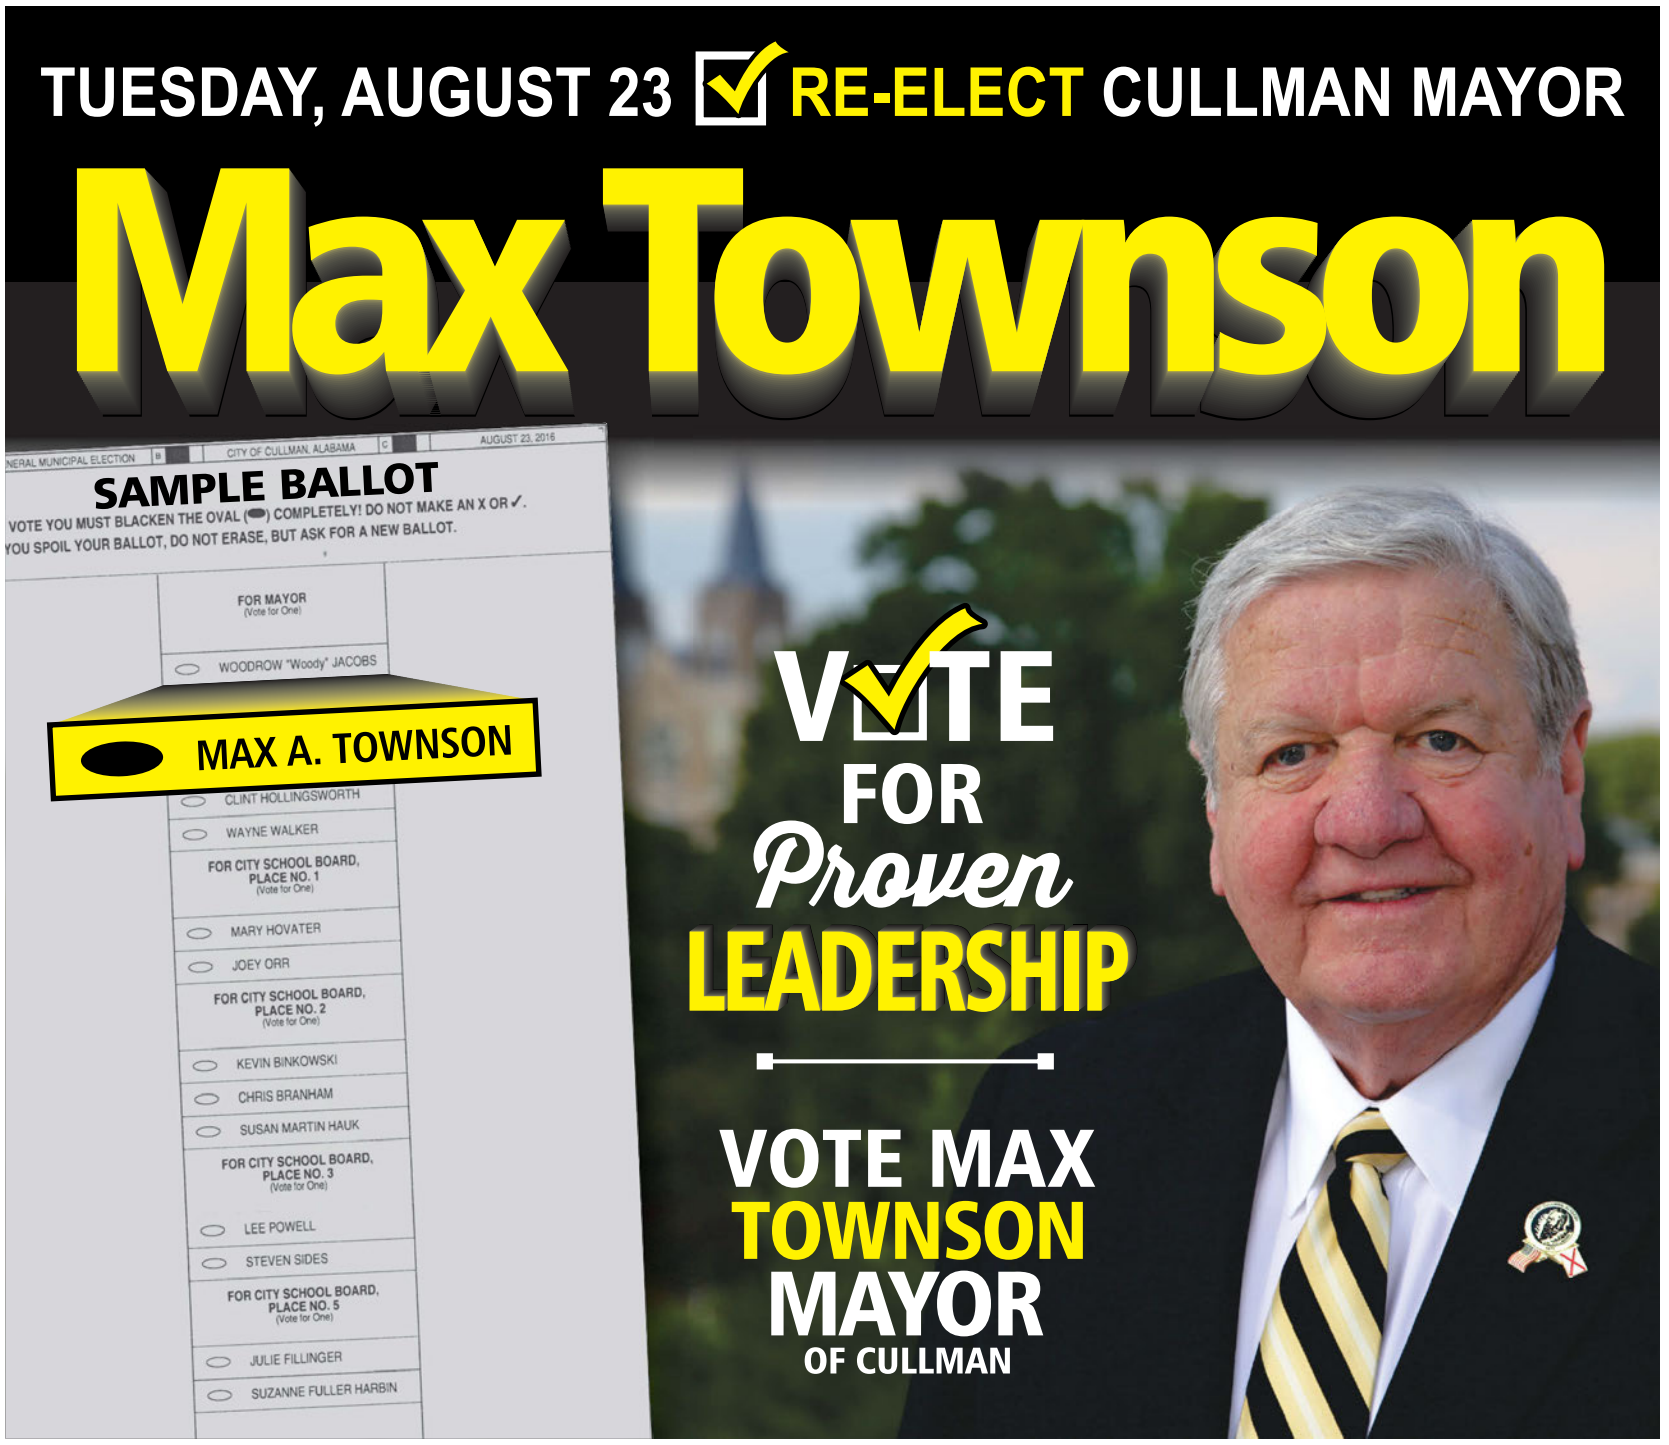

"We want people to know this is a fun race for anyone to enjoy and there will be several color/black light stations on the course like the color run, but they are neon colors that glow under our black lights. Our serious runners will also have the 'inside lane' to run around the color stations and focus on their times. All runners will be chipped time, and we will be giving prizes to top three in each age category, as well as $250 to overall winners and $200 to master's winners."

Registration is open now through Aug. 19 at the Cullman Civic Center, any EvaBank location or online at http://qrne.ws/midnightrun.

"We will have fruit and pizza after the race and all runners will also receive goodie bags and T-shirts, continued Harbison.

"I want to say thanks to our sponsor EvaBank who has made this possible for over 20 years now. Megan Smith is the marketing director at EvaBank, and she does a wonderful job making this event possible for the community, along with all of the folks at EvaBank."

Veterans Day celebration expanding to include bigger flight experiences and a Rosie the Riveter competition

will@cullmansene.com

CULLMAN – It was a celebratory atmosphere at the Cullman VFW post on Saturday, as Col. Ken Brown announced the continued growth of Cullman's annual Veterans Day celebration, with Mayor Max A. Townson and others on-hand to hear the news.

The Veterans Day Celebration will follow in the previous few years' footsteps and will provide those in the north Alabama region an opportunity to fly and tour a decommissioned war aircraft.

According to Brown, there will be eight 20-minute rides offered on Friday and Saturday, Nov. 4 and 5, at the Cullman Regional Airport.

The North American P-51 Mustang is flown by the Commemorative Air Force Dixie Wing, based in Peachtree City, Georgia.

The rides are $1,595 per-ticket and may be purchased online at http://www.dixiewing.org/rides.htm.

"It is very important we give our local veterans and citizens an opportunity to purchase these rides, because once everyone in this area finds out about them, they will go quickly," said Brown.

The P-51 aircraft will also be on display at Cullman Regional Airport on the afternoon of Saturday, Nov. 5.

It will be parked next to a visiting B-17 bomber, the aircraft it escorted over Nazi-controlled Europe during World War II.

Rides in the B-17 will take place Friday-Sunday, Nov. 4-6. Tickets can be purchased online at http://www.eaa.org/en/eaa-shop/flight-experience/b17. A B-17 flight will set you back $449.

There will also be a room at the airport that will be set up as a WWII Air Force mission briefing room for visitors to tour.

"We are going fully immersive this year," said Brown.

"Participants will have the opportunity to watch a 40-minute film about a mission, and then ride in the plane and 'conduct' that mission."

Townson stressed the importance of emphasizing patriotism with kids.

"We need to teach patriotism," he said. "I think we need to continue to teach patriotism and respect."

The mayor attributed a large proportion of his success and accomplishments to the experience he gained in the military.

This year's event will once again be held in two locations- the Cullman Regional Airport and Sportsman Lake Park. Brown thanked Townson for assisting him in expanding the event.

"I've had people from all over come to our veterans' park and say 'I've never seen a park as nice as this one,'" said Townson.

The event will debut a new competition, a Rosie the Riveter competition, as well as a Rosie the Riveter Forum, which will feature any female residents of Cullman County who worked in some capacity to support the war effort during World War II.

Fran Carter, the founder of the National Rosie the Riveter Association, has been invited to attend the forum.

The competition will be held after the forum, and the winner will receive a $100 prize.

Those who are qualified and wish to participate in the forum or competition call Frances Cooper at 256-734-1532.

Operation Lifesaver makes Cullman a stop on tour

Will Hogue
will@cullmansense.com

CULLMAN – At Cullman City Hall on Friday morning, Nancy Hudson, executive director of Alabama Operation Lifesaver, addressed members of the press and department heads of the City of Cullman.

According to the organization, Operation Lifesaver is a nonprofit international public education program that was started in 1972 to end collisions, deaths and injuries at highway-rail grade crossings and on railroad rights-of-way.

"We are really excited to be running this tour, and I am so proud to be able to include Cullman on the tour," said Hudson.

"This is the 15th city on the tour." The 40-city tour is part of an initiative by Operation Lifesaver to reconnect with local mayors and city leaders.

In the last nine years, partially through the work of Operation Lifesaver, Alabama is sixth nationally in railway safety.

Hudson spoke to a crowd in the City Hall auditorium including Cullman City Police Chief Kenny Culpepper and Mayor Max A. Townson.

Hudson gave a brief press conference preceding a 15-20-minute presentation aimed at local leaders, in order to give them an idea of the kind of safety that should be emphasized around the city's railroad crossings.

She also spoke strongly against the use of railroad tracks as a backdrop for photo shoots.

"For some reason, we have high school photographers wanting to take their seniors out to railroad tracks and take pictures on them," Hudson said.

"I do not care that it is illegal. I care because it is deadly. I know you all have seen what happens to cars and vehicles when they get hit by trains from movies and TV shows. You do not want to see what happens when that train hits a person."

Culpepper asked if she knew of any towns where kids were wandering onto the tracks due to Pokémon Go, to which Hudson replied, "Not yet, but I am sure there will be kids doing that soon."

Hudson and Culpepper announced a new collaborative project that Operation Lifesaver and the Cullman City Police Department will engage in, that has, according to Hudson, worked in other counties.

"We are going to have a date set when we have Operation Lifesaver volunteers at the railroad crossings in town and they will be handing out information and explaining the laws of obeying red lights at train tracks," she said.

The police will the crack down on those disobeying the laws around train tracks in the following days.

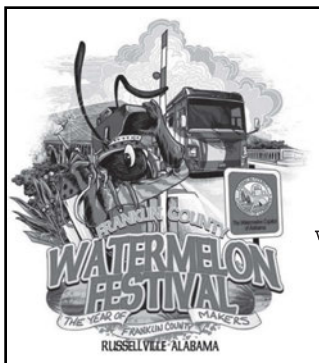

"And then those who get a ticket will go to court and have an option- listen to a presentation by me for about an hour, or pay the ticket," she said.

"We've found that most people choose to listen to me."

MUNICIPAL ELECTION 2016

Johnny Dyar seeking 3rd term as mayor of Baileyton

Sharon Schuler Kreps
sharon@cullmansense.com

BAILEYTON – Baileyton Mayor Johnny Dyar is seeking his third term in the upcoming municipal election. Dyar served on the Baileyton Town Council from 2004-2008 and was elected mayor in 2008. He has been Baileyton's mayor ever since.

"I want to thank my council and the people of Baileyton for supporting me over the last eight years as mayor," said Dyar. "We have accomplished a lot of good things for our town and with their support, we will continue the good work."

Dyar has lived in Baileyton for most of his life.

He's married, has one son and one grandson. He is retired from General Motors and served his country in the United States Marines.

"Baileyton is so special because our residents are so special," Dyar tells everyone he meets.

"The community support for our senior citizens and our youth is second to none."

While serving as mayor, Dyar says he has done many things to improve the community.

A brand new senior center was built which was paid for free and clear. Dyar received a grant to build a new storm shelter with help from Cherrie Haney, director of Cullman County Economic Development.

The mayor and council make a sizeable donation to the Baileyton Volunteer Fire Department each year as well.

Dyar and the council also support Parkside School teachers by giving each of them $300 per year to buy whatever they want/need for their classrooms.

Although this started years before Dyar took over (when interest was high on CDs) he says that he and the council continue to budget this money out of the general fund because they believe it is important.

The mayor and council also do a big project to raise money for the school during the year.

The mayoral race will be the only one on the ticket in the Aug. 23 municipal election in Baileyton. Dyar faces challenger Bill McElroy.

Baileyton Mayor Johnny Dyar is running for re-election in the upcoming municipal election.

MUNICIPAL ELECTION 2016

Bill McElroy seeking mayoral seat in Baileyton

Sharon Schuler Kreps
sharon@cullmansense.com

BAILEYTON – Baileyton's Bill McElroy has announced he will seek the position of mayor of Baileyton in the upcoming municipal election. McElroy served on the Baileyton Town Council from 2008-2012. He ran for mayor in 2012 but lost the election to current mayor, Johnny Dyar.

"I am running again this time because people want a change," said McElroy.

"I would like to see some businesses come into the community so more people can have a local job. I am retired now, so I have plenty of time to spend doing the work of mayor."

McElroy has lived in Baileyton for more than 60 years and is well-known in the community.

He is married and has two grown children and several grandchildren. He is a disabled veteran and once owned McElroy Towing in Baileyton.

While serving on the council, McElroy was responsible for getting the lights installed in the parking lot of Parkside School.

He also made efforts to attract fast food restaurants to Baileyton, but without a sewer system, they all declined.

The mayoral race will be the only one on the ticket for the Aug. 23 municipal election in Baileyton.

Bill McElroy has announced he will run for mayor of Baileyton in the upcoming municipal election.

MUNICIPAL ELECTION 2016

No election for West Point

Amy Hasenbein Leonard
amy@cullmansense.com

WEST POINT – The Town of West Point will not hold a municipal election on Tuesday, Aug. 23 like much of the rest of Cullman County, but there will be some changes on the town's council.

While Mayor Kenneth Kilgo and council members Darion Daniel, Frankie Jones and Gerald Schaefer are running unopposed for their positions and will remain in place for the next four years, the remaining two council positions will be seeing new faces, albeit without the hassle of campaigning and the stressors related to an election.

Council members Alton Bailey and Michael Barnett did not seek reelection for their respective seats.

However, Michael Hall and Timmy Smith filed their paperwork to run for Bailey and Barnett's seats.

As the incumbents are not in the race, Hall and Smith will fill the vacated positions on West Point's council.

Town Clerk Joann Jones joked that she was relieved that the town wouldn't be involved in this year's municipal elections laughing, "We won't be having an election in West Point and I'm so glad for that!"

The beginning of the month of August saw the repaving on County Road 1196 in the town limits, with 1142 and 1127 on schedule to be repaved as well.

The West Point Town Council meets at 6 p.m. on the third Monday of each month. Meetings are held at West Point Town Hall, located at 3990 County Road 1141.

CULLMAN – Groups like Ghostbusters: Werewolf Division travel around the state of Alabama, attending charity events and raising money for various causes while also sharing their love of Ghostbusters, the popular film franchise.

Ghostbusters has its own special subculture of organizations and groups. Ghostbusters: Werewolf Division is one of those groups.

"Our division got its start back in late May 2013; we were with another Ghostbusters group at the time," said Kyle Stevens, a member of Ghostbusters: Werewolf Division. "One of our members mentioned that we were like a wolf pack, and one of our members suggested that we should form our own group. So, late in September back in 2015 we did just that. We were finally recognized as an official group by GhostCorps this year."

Stevens says that being able to meld together both his love of Ghostbusters and community outreach is a dream come true.

"I, like most of our members, have been a lifelong Ghostbusters fan. This was always something that I wanted to be most of my life," he said. "Now that we actually got a group and are going out and doing events which give back to the community, in a way, I, like the others, am living the dream."

The Werewolf Division has 20 active members, and is looking to expand. Most of the events that the group attends are for charity, although there is another motivation as well. "For the most part we only attend charity events. That is why we are doing it, to give back to the community and help others out in the process," Stevens said. "But we also attend social events, like conventions and parades, to help promote awareness of the Ghostbusters fandom."

Stevens says that the group's main goal is to give back to the community through the costumed group, thus promoting the positive energy of costumed-fan groups. Ghostbusters: Werewolf Division travels across the state, doing many events in the Birmingham, Tuscaloosa and the Gadsden area. However, the group has attended the annual Fairview Band Car and Tractor Show the last two years.

If you want the crew, which dresses in full Ghostbusters regalia, to attend a charity event, conference or social event, visit them online at http://qrne.ws/ghostbusters.

BILLY BOB'S STORIES AND STUFF

Back to School Haircuts

Bill King
Tribune Contributor

This is the season of back to school sales and back to school haircuts. I had the privilege of taking Drew for his back to school hair cut last Friday. He is a big second grader this year. He has spent Thursdays and Fridays with Gigi and me most of the summer. Fridays have been mine and his play/work day. We've painted much of the house, cut grass, ate ice cream, fished a little, played racquetball, ate ice cream, built a stone wall around a flower bed, gone swimming, played guitars and our watermelon ukulele, and rode and wrestled the dogs. Oh, did I mention that we ate ice cream? Drew and I believe strongly in ice cream. We even visited Ben and Jerry's ice cream factory in Vermont this summer. They gave us free samples! We bought some bigger samples too. No, we didn't drive all the way to Vermont just to get ice cream but since we were in the neighborhood... Last Friday we added a haircut to our list.

I remembered going to get a back to school haircut with my dad when I was about the age Drew is now. We went to Ted Posey's Barber Shop in Rainsville. I usually went all summer without a haircut; partly because the scalping at the beginning of summer lasted all summer. The Beatles were all the rage about that time and every boy wanted a Beatles haircut, including me. Not many of my friends had one because not many of their dads, mine included, believed in "long hair."

Back then haircuts were inexpensive and lasted a long time. I still remember the sign on Mr. Posey's wall that read: Regular Haircuts – 50 cents; Flat Tops – 75 cents.

I didn't get a flat top many times because they cost more, plus you had to buy a stick of butch wax to keep your hair standing up. I told Mr. Posey to cut the sides and leave the top. I wanted to grow bangs like the Beatles. Dad motioned for Mr. Posey to whack it all off. He said, "Ain't no boy of mine gonna have no 'beagle' hairdo."

On the way to get Drew's haircut we passed right by Wendy's. Okay, we had planned to pass right by Wendy's. We did not go out of our way but we had not had ice cream all day long. As we sat in the parking lot eating a chocolate Frosty, Drew asked, "Who is going to cut my hair?" His mom had been cutting his hair for quite a while.

I answered, "Ms. Karessa, who cuts my hair is." His mom normally gave him a buzz cut but over the summer it had grown out. It wasn't quite a Beatles hair style but it had some length. He wanted to know what kind of haircut she was going to give him.

I said, "You'll have a haircut like mine." Our sweet Drew rolled his eyes and said, "You mean Bald?" I said, "Buddy, I'm not bald." He laughed and said, "No, but you do have holes in your hair!" For the record, age gave me those bald spots, not Ms. Karessa.

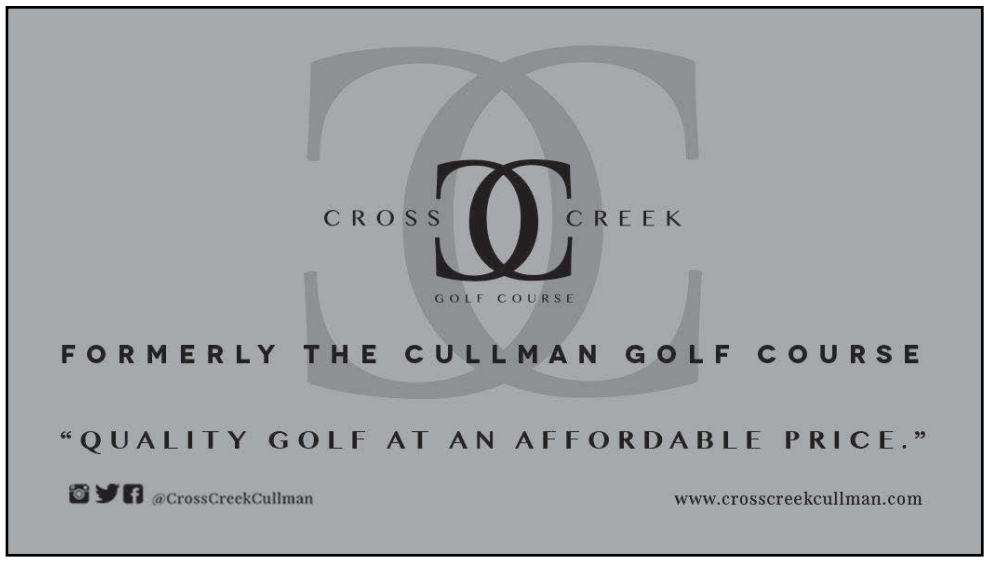

God does not give haircuts but He does know how much hair we have; whether that's much or little.

The Bible tells us that even the very hairs on your head are numbered. Mine are easier to count these days but that is still awfully impressive.

Not even the one who cuts our hair knows that, nor do we. God actually knows us better than we know ourselves.

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration has approved a new indication for the Integra Omnigraft Dermal Regeneration Matrix (Omnigraft) to treat certain diabetic foot ulcers. The matrix device, which is made of silicone, cow collagen and shark cartilage, is placed over the ulcer and provides an environment for new skin and tissue to regenerate and heal the wound. An estimated 29 million people in the United States have been diagnosed with diabetes, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and about 25 percent of them will experience a foot ulcer during their lifetime. Chronic diabetic foot ulcers are associated with tissue and bone infections and result in 50,000 amputations each year.

Advanced age is a powerful risk factor for thromboembolic stroke in patients with atrial fibrillation (AF). Oral anticoagulation reduces this risk by almost two-thirds in patients at risk. Traumatic intracranial bleeding, which is most commonly attributable to falls, is a common concern among health care professionals, who are hesitant to prescribe oral anticoagulants to older adults with AF. In a study published by JAMA Cardiology, researchers found that the rate of traumatic intracranial bleeding among older adults with AF initiating warfarin therapy was higher than previously reported in clinical trials.

PREP FOOTBALL

Some challenging road games for local teams this season

Johnny Thornton
Sports Editor

CULLMAN – Prep football teams know that to have very successful seasons, victories must be earned on the road.

The road can be a challenge. Half of the 10-game schedule for each Cullman County school is a road assignment with at least three of the games being regional contests.

Here is a look at the road games for each county team covered by The Cullman Tribune/Cullman Sense.

COLD SPRINGS: @ Berry Aug. 26, @ West End Sept. 30, @ Tanner Oct. 14, @ Cleveland Oct. 21, @ Danville Oct. 27.

The Eagles have a first ever trip to Berry High in Fayette, a very solid 1A school.

The stretch run is in October with the game at Tanner on the 14th to be a solid challenge in which the Rattlers are one of the top 2A programs in North Alabama and in the same region with the Eagles.

Cleveland is a program on the upswing with the finale at Danville an opportunity to even the score after the Hawks won at Cold Springs 21-20 last season.

CULLMAN: @ Hartselle Aug. 19, @ Albertville Sept. 2, @ Fort Payne Sept. 16, @ Fayette County Sept. 23, @ Brewer Oct. 21.

Cullman's most popular rival, Hartselle, is the first the Bearcats deal with, on opening night. Albertville improved steadily last season.

Fort Payne will be a long trip for the Bearcats in 6A, Region 7 followed by a battle at Fayette County, last year's state runner-up from Class 4A.

FAIRVIEW: @ North Sand Mountain Aug. 19, @ Corner Sept. 2, @ West Point Sept. 30, @ Hayden Oct. 14, @ Holly Pond Oct. 28.

Visiting North Sand Mountain in week one will be a new encounter for the Aggies. Fairview plays at Corner for the first time in 10 years, the Aggies are at West Point for the first time in three seasons with the trip to Holly Pond to end the regular season a chance for the Aggies to extend a 9-game winning streak vs. the Broncos.

GOOD HOPE: @ Fayette County Sept. 2, @ Cordova Sept. 16, @ Cold Springs Sept. 23, @ Haleyville Oct. 7, @ West Point Oct. 14.

Good Hope's first two road games are 4A, Region 6 assignments and against the two schools that reached the north regional final of this classification last season.

Going to Cold Springs will be the Raiders' first journey to Cranford Stricklin Stadium since 2005; the Raiders seek their first ever victory against Haleyville. Good Hope returns to West Point for the first time since the 2010 season.

HANCEVILLE: @ Cold Springs Aug. 19, @ Fultondale Sept. 2, @ Susan Moore Sept. 30, @ Holly Pond Oct. 7, @ Good Hope Oct. 28.

New coach Craig Flanigan will have three short trips with his Bulldogs in county games at Cold Springs, Holly Pond and Good Hope.

Hanceville has not played in Fultondale in 30 years and the Bulldogs look forward to a journey into Susan Moore at midseason. Hanceville has lost two straight to the Bulldogs by a margin of eight points.

HOLLY POND: @ Coosa Christian Aug. 19, @ Brindlee Mountain Aug. 26, @ Susan Moore Sept. 9, @ Locust Fork Sept. 30, @ Fultondale Oct. 13.

A 29-game losing streak ended last fall in a road game. The Broncos get their fourth season under Mike Bates on the road with a visit into Gadsden for a first-ever clash with Coosa Christian. The following week is on to Brindlee Mountain, a school that is becoming a good rival with the Broncos. Holly Pond has two trips into Blount County for 3A, Region 6 games with Susan Moore and Locust Fork and a Thursday night visit at Fultondale for the first time in mid-October.

VINEMONT: @ Good Hope Aug. 25, @ Hanceville Sept. 9, @ Fultondale Sept. 16, @ Addison Sept. 23, @ Holly Pond Oct. 21.

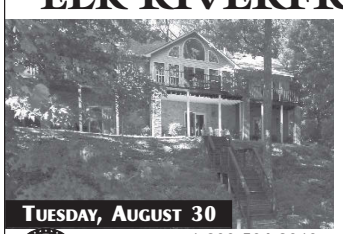

Eighty percent of the first half of the schedule is away from Mark Smothers Stadium for Vinemont. The Eagles will get three consecutive weeks of being tested by road games with Hanceville, Fultondale and Addison.

The game at Holly Pond in late October will be the only time Vinemont plays on the road in the second half of the schedule.

WEST POINT: @ Wilson Aug. 26, @ Hayden Sept. 2, @ Corner Sept. 16, @ Mortimer Jordan Oct. 7, @ Lawrence County Oct. 28.

Going into the Florence area for the first road game with Wilson will be a new task for the Warriors. West Point kindly awaits to visit Hayden and Corner in September, which will determine the Warriors' fate in 5A, Region 6. Mortimer Jordan was the state runner-up in 5A last season and plays with confidence when teams come for a visit to Morris in Jefferson County.

Farm (from Front)

to connect the link between the seasons of the year and the food she served, and she wanted to give credit to those who produced every item on a customer's plate.

The farm-to-table movement has arisen concurrently with changes in attitudes about the safety, freshness and flavor of our food.

Small-farm economics also play a part in the overall concept, with more and more people visiting farmer's markets to purchase their food.

Knowing your farmer makes a big difference; you can ask about his/her growing practices and you know that they often picked their fruits and vegetables that very day.

Farmer's markets, Farm to Fork Dinners and restaurants which offer 'farm fresh, locally grown' entrees and side dishes, as well as the whole "Know Thy Farmer" and "Eat Fresh, Buy Local" movements have become popular ways to educate the public about the way food is grown and the people who devote their lives to supplying the world with fruits, vegetables, herbs, dairy and meat products, as well as soybeans, cotton and grains.

Modern agriculture produces enough food for the world's 6.3 billion people.

Today's commercial agricultural statistics point out that one U.S. farmer produces enough food to feed 155 people. In 1960, that number was 25.8.

The world's population is predicted to increase by more than 2 billion people in by the year 2050.

Ever expanding nutritional needs will require all farmers, worldwide, to rise to the challenge of producing more food while dealing with increasing impacts of water scarcity, a changing climate and constraints on available productive farm land.

The bulk of the burden of feeding these people will rest on American farmers, some of whom are your friends and neighbors.

Agriculture employs more than 24 million American workers (17 percent of the total U.S. work force). It is Cullman County's largest industry, as well as the largest industry in Alabama. It is important to all of us – not only the farmers, but the consumers – because without the farmers, no one eats.

Thus, the importance of educating the general public about how food is grown and the importance of sustainable agriculture in our society.

This also means that all of us play a part in keeping waterways clean, proper use of insecticides, pesticides and lawn and garden chemicals which can infiltrate the ground water, and other practices that will ensure clean water and safe food.

The 2010 Gulf oil spill and other disasters illustrate what happens when companies as well as individuals take our natural resources for granted. Without each of us doing our part, the world will change in ways that we have yet to imagine.

Educating the public through dinners, festivals and putting farmers out in public at farmer's markets are vitally important, both as educational tools, and as a way for local farmers to continue to earn a living by growing food for others.

Developing a trusting relationship with the men and women, the farm families, who grow our food allows us to make conscious, informed choices about the quality and safety of our food.

The Farm to Fork Dinner is a way to celebrate and promote agricultural awareness, farming and the men and women who grow our food.

Since the early 2000s, the number of farm-to-table operations has grown rapidly, and the idea of having local celebrations in honor of the farmers who devote their lives to feeding the world has caught on and spread across the country.

The agricultural community has come together to provide foods grown locally, right here in Cullman County by farmers who are often third and fourth generation stewards of family farms. The importance of these farm families cannot be stressed often enough. The dinner is a way of sharing information about how foods are grown, and the challenges faced by farmers which affect everyone – after all, no matter where you live, in a high-rise in the city, a house in the suburbs or on a country road, we all have one thing in common – we must eat to survive.

In Cullman County, agriculture is not only our largest employer, but a huge part of our heritage.

This year's Farm to Fork Dinner, which kicks off the Farm Y'All Festival, sponsored by Alabama Farm Credit with support from the Cullman Area Chamber of Commerce and Visitor's Center, will be held at Camp Meadowbrook on Saturday, Aug. 20, from 5:30- 8 p.m.

The evening begins with a meet and greet which includes state and county dignitaries, local farmers, cattlemen, poultry growers and private citizens coming together to celebrate our local agricultural community.

The meal, prepared from local ingredients, will be a wonderful culinary experience.

Executive Chef Randall Baldwin of Dyron's Lowcountry will provide a four-course meal with a rich Southern flavor.

Come on out, y'all, and find out what all the commotion is about!

A limited number of tickets are still available, at a cost of $65 per person.

For ticket information and availability, contact the Cullman Area Chamber of Commerce at 256-734-0454.

however, they were a small but vocal bunch. In addition to Marchman, Rep. Randall Shedd, R-Fairview, West Point Mayor Kenneth Kilgo, Holly Pond Mayor Herman Nail and Cullman City Clerk Wesley Moore were there to listen and to offer their ideas.

"We're not here to bash anybody," said Kilgo. "These are complicated issues."

Currently, Cullman's tax distribution is 40 percent to the City of Cullman, 40 percent to the County (Commission, unincorporated towns) and 20 percent to county municipalities, while according to 2010 census numbers provided by Stone, Cullman County's population is 80,406, with 55,729 of these people living outside of any municipality and 24,677 living in municipalities (including Cullman). The total population of all other municipalities, excluding Cullman, is 9,902.

Stone's proposed new tax plan, serving as the talking points for the weekend's meeting, is as follows:

1. No new County-wide sales tax. Instead, change the current tax distribution structure to a more equitable 50/50 plan, with 50 percent going to the County (Commission, unincorporated towns) and 50 percent going to Cities/Towns (all incorporated cities and towns, including the City of Cullman)
2. No taxes going to Cullman Regional Medical Center (CRMC), a private corporation. Instead, redistribute the $400,000 that goes to CRMC each year to all Cullman County and City classrooms
3. Beer and wine taxes- 1 cent per can of beer and 5 cents per bottle of wine or whiskey should go the Cullman County Sheriff's Office (CCSO), Cullman City Police Department and Hanceville Police Department
4. Hard liquor tax of 5 cents to go directly to the CCSO
5. Two cent per gallon of gasoline/diesel fuel tax to go to roads in Cullman County. The tax should be split based on miles of roads in County and Cities/Towns, who are responsible for the road miles in their areas.
6. Check on Blue Line Water Tax going into Smith lake. Alabama Power, a private corporation, sells Cullman water and pays Cullman County nothing for it
7. All changes would be put on a ballot to be voted on by Cullman voters.

Saturday's meeting was run like a forum. Stone spoke first, and then each of the panelists took his turn, followed by a question and answer session with the audience.

A common sentiment among all of the participants was how well the City and County governments work together in Cullman County.

"We are really blessed in Cullman County," said Kilgo, mentioning how much better off Cullman is than some of the surrounding counties.

"These are complicated issues," he continued. "But the biggest need, right now, in increasing tax revenue, is the Cullman County Commission."

About Cullman's current 40/40/20 tax distribution scale, Kilgo remarked, "It is the most unique tax structure in the state."

Shedd agreed, but also carefully pointed out that "I came to listen." One part of Stone's plan that Shedd was pointed about was the hospital. "I don't see us taking that money away from Cullman Regional Medical Center," he said.

"The county is the only one who loses from this system," said Marchman. "I think this system has outgrown itself and needs to be looked at.

"People need to educate themselves," he continued. "Where do your taxes go?"

What about having a 2 cent tax across the county, and then having each municipality set their own tax rate, he mused, but "some towns can't support themselves."

Marchman went so far as to suggest that an outside agency should be brought in to evaluate the tax distribution scale in place. Someone, he said, that would have a "neutral opinion."

"A lot of people aren't here today because it's not a good political move to be here," he said honestly. "I don't care about that. The only person I have to look at in the mirror is Garry Marchman."

The relatively low turnout for the meeting was something brought up numerous times.

The heart of Nail's remarks was that people should care enough to be involved and show up.

Perhaps the most contentious part of the afternoon was when Jones Chapel resident Mike Eddy took to the podium and delivered a fiery talk about how he thinks the City is taking advantage of the County. He also took issue with the "politicians" he said could fix the system, but they didn't show up.

"If you owned the golden goose, would you sell it? The City has everything. It's known through the state and country for having the best schools, new industries. They have $10 million to build a new high school, $55 million to pay for the Duck River Dam, money to build a new fire department. Money. Money. Money. Everywhere, Cullman has money. Meanwhile, you could take anything that has Cullman County on it and add broke to the end, and that's us. The Cullman County Road Department is broke. The Cullman County Board of Education is broke. The reason we're broke is because the whole county has been taken advantage of, maybe not intentionally. But it's because of the way things have happened over time. Let's change the tax system. Look at the whole thing."

Stone, who was acting as moderator, repeatedly gave Eddy the 'time-out' signal when he felt Eddy was crossing the line.

Moore followed, reminding everyone that "75 percent of Cullman's total countywide tax revenue is generated in the City of Cullman." He reasoned that the City has to pay for the upkeep of all of that infrastructure that everyone in Cullman County enjoys, meaning roads, parking, etc. for all of the businesses that draw people to the city.

In the audience, a couple of county residents said that a lot of that 75 percent came from county residents spending money in the city, with one asking Moore to tell her what percentage of that 75 percent was generated by folks living outside the city limits. Moore said he did not have that specific number and that it would be very hard to calculate.

"Well, what if everyone in Holly Pond boycotted and shopped somewhere else?" she asked.

In the hot seat, Moore was interrupted by Eddy, who asked why Cullman Mayor Max Townson was not at the forum. Stone quickly pointed out that Townson had another meeting at the same time. "Under the 40-40-20 split, everyone does prosper. Some may prosper more than others. We can debate how fair and equitable it is, but the system we have works well," Moore contended. "If we went to a 'what you generate' distribution system, that would be much more detrimental to those small municipalities. I'm afraid they would shut down, and I would hate to see that."

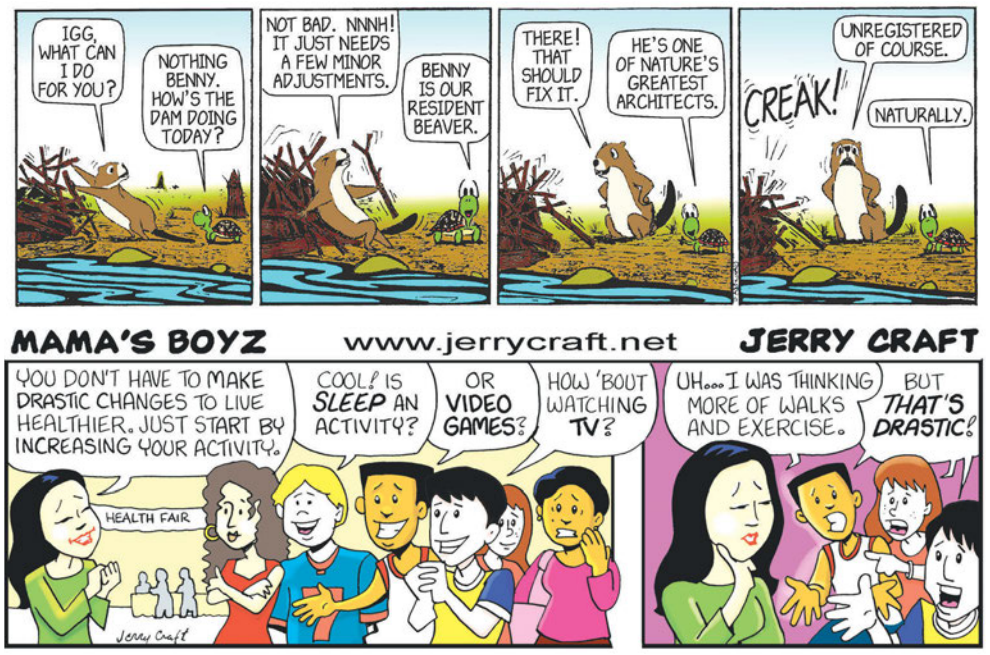

A county resident who spoke said that an increase in property taxes should also be considered, not just the redistribution of sales tax.

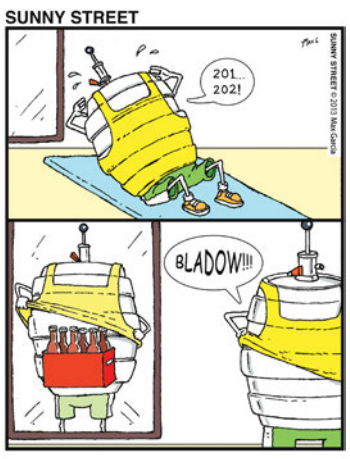

In the end, the only two parts of Stone's plan that all of the attendees seemed to think were fair were the alcohol taxes and two cent gasoline tax. But "only if it stays in the County," Kilgo said of the latter.

Wrapping up, Shedd said, "There were a lot of things talked about today that would require state changes (referring to the particulars of liquor taxation)." Likening the event to being in Montgomery, he reminded the audience that "legislation takes consensus. I'd like to ask the Cullman County Commission to vote and give us a proposal."

Residents who would like to know more should check with their local town or city hall. Stone has said that more meetings will take place.
