After 66 years, Korean War POW to be laid to rest in Cullman

Wendy Sack

CULLMAN – Cpl. Larry M. Dunn's long journey home will finally be complete on Sept. 17, when the soldier's remains will be laid to rest here in Cullman County.

Dunn, who was born on Dec. 20, 1931, was sent to Korea as a young man and was captured and declared Missing in Action in Dec.1950. He was officially declared dead in 1953.

In 1954, many unidentified soldiers were interred in the National Memorial Cemetery of the Pacific in Honolulu, Hawaii. Some of these previously-unidentified remains were recently exhumed. Dunn was one of several such soldiers who were exhumed and positively identified through DNA.

Dunn's official date of death is now listed as Dec. 1, 1950, when he was just 18.

CULLMAN – Were you that child who learned tactically? You might have wanted to feel the texture of tree bark, or the smoothness of a stone, or maybe you loved to hold wiggly worms in your hands, not caring one bit if you got dirty. If you were that child and you never had the opportunity to learn all you wanted by touching, tasting or hearing things outdoors, or smelling the flowers along life's pathways, now you have the opportunity to change all that!

The new Outdoor Classroom at West Elementary offers opportunities for everyone, both young and young at heart. By transforming the outdoor space into a learning environment, children can enjoy a full range of activities as they spend quality time experiencing nature.

"This is going to be great for our students," said West Elementary Principal, Dr. Jay Page. "We've had a shift in P16

McCutcheon: "We have a long way to go with the general fund"

Wendy Sack
wendy@cullmansense.com

CULLMAN – It was a packed house at the VFW on Tuesday evening. Around 60 people, including many elected officials, turned out to hear the special guest speaker at this month's Cullman County Republican Women meeting. Newly-elected Alabama Speaker of the House Mac McCutcheon, R-Monrovia was the man of the hour.

McCutcheon, mild-mannered and, some might say, more soft-spoken than your "typical" politician, blended right in with the crowd until he took to the podium to deliver his remarks.

His main message? Republicans gained a majority in the Alabama Legislature in 2010 and a super majority in 2014, but they have a long way to go, particularly with the general fund.

"We have done some good things over the past several years. When we started in 2010, then in 2014 when we had the super majority, those four years, between 2010 and 2014, we started addressing some real issues. We started looking at things like budgets, we started looking at the education budget. We passed the appropriation prevention bill, the act which actually kept education out of proration. And we started looking at a 15-year average to average that education budget."

But there was one budget that we did not fix, McCutcheon says. The general fund.

"We have very little growth revenues in that general fund," he said.

"We've got a lot of work we need to do to get us where we need to be on the general fund."

McCutcheon acknowledged that if the Legislature starts to take money from the education budget, there will surely be resistance, but that "in reality, the education budget is moving in a good direction. We've got to maintain that, but we have got to focus on the general fund."

As part of shoring up the general fund budget, there have been cuts in some of the State's agencies, including Public Safety and the Alabama Law Enforcement Agency (ALEA).

Many driver's license offices have been closed and the State has a shortfall of manpower at ALEA. McCutcheon says he believes that the State needs as many as 350 more state troopers and that, right now, the P4

Drone used in speed experiment at St. Bernard

Joyce Nix
St. Bernard Prep

CULLMAN – A remote control drone was recently used as part of a speed experiment in physical science class at St. Bernard Prep. While the drone itself was just plain cool, the temperature outside was a balmy 95 degrees. However, that did not hamper the efforts of student, Conor Berry and instructor, John Burks as they escorted the class to the football field, where students were armed with cell phones, stop watches, pens and paper.

Each eighth-grade student was assigned to a group of four members. Using the field markings students took their assigned positions and performed three trial runs which gave each group four measurements. Burks stood at the north end of the field under the hovering drone; while Berry operated the remote from the south end.

Three trial runs were performed. When the signal was made to begin by the wave of the arms, the drone traveled full throttle from one end of the field with students calculating travel on the 40, 60, 80 and 100 yard lines.

Students returned to their classroom in Founders Hall to begin analyzing their data. Calculating the numbers presented its own set of problems as students worked in group to complete the actual speed of the drone. With formulas written on the smartboard, students' eyes begin to sort of glaze over at the overwhelming feeling of multiplying and dividing in science class.

Burks further started assisting with the breakdown of numbers by demonstrating a quick math lesson.

Students eagerly grasped the information at hand and came to a conclusion that their drone experiment calculated a speed of 21 mph. Burks then asked each student to graph their calculation.

The class thanked Berry for the use of his drone. Burks said this demonstration is fun for students and it brings to life a better understanding how math and science are connected.

At least half of Parkinson's disease patients experience psychosis at some point during the course of their illness and physicians commonly prescribe antipsychotic drugs, such as quetiapine, to treat the condition. However, a new study in JAMA Neurology suggests that these drugs may do significantly more harm in a subset of patients. The researchers analysis of about 15,000 patient records in a VA database found that Parkinson's patients who began using antipsychotic drugs were more than twice as likely to die during the following six months, compared to a matched set of Parkinson's patients who did not use such drugs.

average response time for a state trooper is more than an hour.

To address the issue of driver's license office closures, McCutcheon announced the formation of special task force, an interim House committee, which will be headed up by Rep. Randall Shedd, R-Fairview, to review procedures for issuing licenses, look into reducing wait times and investigate the areas where offices were closed to see what can be done.

McCutcheon then turned to the topic of budget reform and the $500 million tax package that Gov. Bentley presented to the Legislature in 2014.

He says that most of the Legislature was taken aback by the governor's proposal, but that when they really sat back and looked at the debt that the state owed and the services that needed to be provided, the $500 million was a justified number, but there was a lot of debate over whether or not taxes needed to be raised.

"As Republicans, raising taxes is really not a part of our platform," he said.

It was a very difficult time, he said, almost nine months spent trying to figure out the general fund budget, and during that time, the subject of earmarks came about.

"We carry close to 90 percent earmarks," he said, emphasizing that Alabama is the highest in the nation when it comes to earmarked funds coming in.

Another subject? Waste. How much waste do we have in Alabama?

Looking at different state agencies, McCutcheon called out the Department of Mental Health, whose operating administrative costs only account for two percent of the general fund.

"But," he said, "there are some other agencies that are not running that lean."

McCutcheon says that the two biggest revenue draws on the general fund are the Department of Corrections and Medicaid, and he says, because of that, all of the other agencies suffer.

He made reference to the "Star Chamber" bill (HB257) that he was involved with back in March of last year that he says he got a considerable amount of flak for in the media, which would have created a joint-legislative committee to investigate agencies and how they spend their dollars.

That bill did not pass, but McCutcheon stressed on Tuesday evening the need for having a committee to "really dig down deep and ask questions about the fraud we have and the fraud investigation that we do not have in Medicaid."

The BP Bill, which passed the Legislature and was signed by Bentley this month, provides funding for Medicaid for the next two years, in part because of Regional Care Organization (RCO) Centers that "will take care of Medicaid issues for a lump sum payment."

That means that instead of the Legislature having a floating figure every year, there will be a flat amount per region per year.

"The Feds said they would match it, but we had to come up with the money to get the program off the ground," he said.

McCutcheon says the $85 million from the BP Bill this year will get the RCO program off the ground, and the more than $100 million for the next budget year will continue it, "but going into the third year, we've got to find answers."

Part of those answers, according to McCutcheon, is Joint Resolution 62, which will create a Joint Legislative Task Force on Budget Reform to examine the structure and design of the state budgeting process and make recommendations for long-term budget and tax system reforms.

The committee would be composed of seven members of the House and seven members of the Senate.

"They're going to start finding out exactly where all of these dollars are going in all of these agencies," he said. A big part of that is forensic audits.

"We're going to find out exactly how much money are we spending," he said, "in terms of people using emergency rooms instead of RCOs, how much fraud do we have, how many people do we have on Medicaid that are there illegally?"

He continued, "The message that we have to get over to these departments is that we're not here to hurt you, but we're just here to get good answers to the questions that we have so that we'll all understand a little better what's going on."

McCutcheon says there's different numbers out there as to how much is being "wasted," but that the State needs to find out for sure so that when or if it comes time to present a tax package to the taxpayers, the State will have all of those answers to give.

He also addressed tax credits, to the tune of a reported $4 billion in the State of Alabama.

"What's our return on that?" he asked. "Some of these tax credits have been on the books for over 20 years."

Going back to JR62, he said, "Really pay attention." He says he has had a lot of interest from people wanting to work on it, but that this committee is not going to be very popular with anyone, as they are going to be "un-earmarking" dollars.

McCutcheon says that the general fund brings in more than $20 billion a year, but that the Legislature only appropriates about $1.6-1.7 billion.

A big chunk of the remainder of that money is already earmarked.

"When you start taking a department head's money away from them, and you put it back into the Legislature's hands, you have got a real battle on your hands. Can we pass it? I don't know. Honest answer."

A point that garnered much applause was that through the BP Bill, the State is going to be able to pay back 80 percent of its debt.

"The bottom line," he said, "is that we can be better with taxpayer dollars, and we can be more efficient."

When the floor was opened up for questions, McCutcheon was put on the spot about whether or not he would support legislation making Alabama a closed primary state.

He did not go so far as to say he'd definitely support it, but said he wouldn't do anything to oppose it.

Other elected officials present at the meeting were Shedd, Rep. Corey Harbison, R-Good Hope, Probate Judge Tammy Brown, Circuit Clerk Lisa McSwain, District Judge Rusty Turner, District Judge Kim Chaney, Circuit Judge Martha Williams, Circuit Judge Greg Nicholas. Educators Shane Barnette, superintendent of Cullman County Schools, and Dr. Vicki Karolewics, president of Wallace State Community College were also in attendance.

arrived at the Huntsville International Airport this week, followed by a ceremony at the airport.

Cpl. Dunn was escorted by the Patriot Guard Riders as well as State Troopers and local law enforcement from I-565 to I-65 South and down I-65 to Good Hope Exit 304, Hwy 69 to Hwy 31 and Hwy 31 North through downtown, then to Hwy 157 and to Cullman Heritage Funeral Home where Dunn will lie-in-state until Sept. 16 to give the community an opportunity to pay their respects and sign the memorial register.

The family will receive friends on Saturday, Sept. 17 from 10-11 a.m. Funeral services will follow at 11 a.m.

Following the funeral, Dunn and his family will be escorted by the Patriot Guard Riders to Mt. Carmel Cemetery, where he will be laid to rest with full military honors.

Dunn has several surviving nieces and nephews.

Organizations participating in Dunn's honor service and burial include: the Cullman County Sheriff's Office, Cullman Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 2214, National War Museum, local high school ROTC units and local fire departments.

"The Cullman VFW will march in and do a slow salute at his casket and present the family a Bible on behalf of a grateful nation. The VFW will also provide a POW/MIA flag behind the casket and a POW/MIA display in the funeral home lobby," said retired U.S. Air Force Col. Ken Brown.

"Finally, one of our Korean War veterans, who himself spent 33 months in a North Korean POW camp, will meet with family members before the service."

Brown says a U.S. Army detail will be at the cemetery to fire the rounds, fold the flag and play taps.

Clucknbrew community tailgate party to take place Saturday

Hannah Ward

CULLMAN – Football season has officially arrived. Time for kickoffs and tailgate parties. Time to throw back some beers with friends while cheering on your favorite sports team. With this season comes something to make it even more spectacular: Cullman City Parks and Recreation Department's yearly Clucknbrew.

The Clucknbrew event is every football fan's (or even non-football fan's) dream. Wings, locally-brewed beer and multiple TV screens featuring every SEC college football game will be the lineup for Saturday, Sept. 17. The community event will be held at Depot Park and start around 3 p.m. and go to about 10 p.m. or when the last game finishes up. The Alabama v. Ole Miss game will kick off the games at 2:30, but the wings and other activities will start at 3. The Auburn v. Texas A&M game will begin at 6 p.m.

Waid Harbison, marketing, programs, & events coordinator at CP&R said, "It (Clucknbrew) started a few years ago. We do a lot of events, the Strawberry Festival, Midnight Run, but this is just something that is a little bit different than our other events. I think of it as a big community tailgate party; we'll have the different brewed beers, and lots of different businesses will be cooking up wings. This way you can get out of the house and the bar and join the community in watching the games."

The good news is you will not have to cook! Different businesses from all around Cullman County will be offering up their very best wings for you to buy on 'Wing Street.' The even better news is if you do love to cook you can enter to prepare your 'special ingredient' wings in the annual Wings Street Cook-Off. All wings will be $1 per wing. If you would like to join the other wing vendors on Wing Street, call the Cullman Civic Center at 256-734-9157, but hurry, there are only a few spots left!

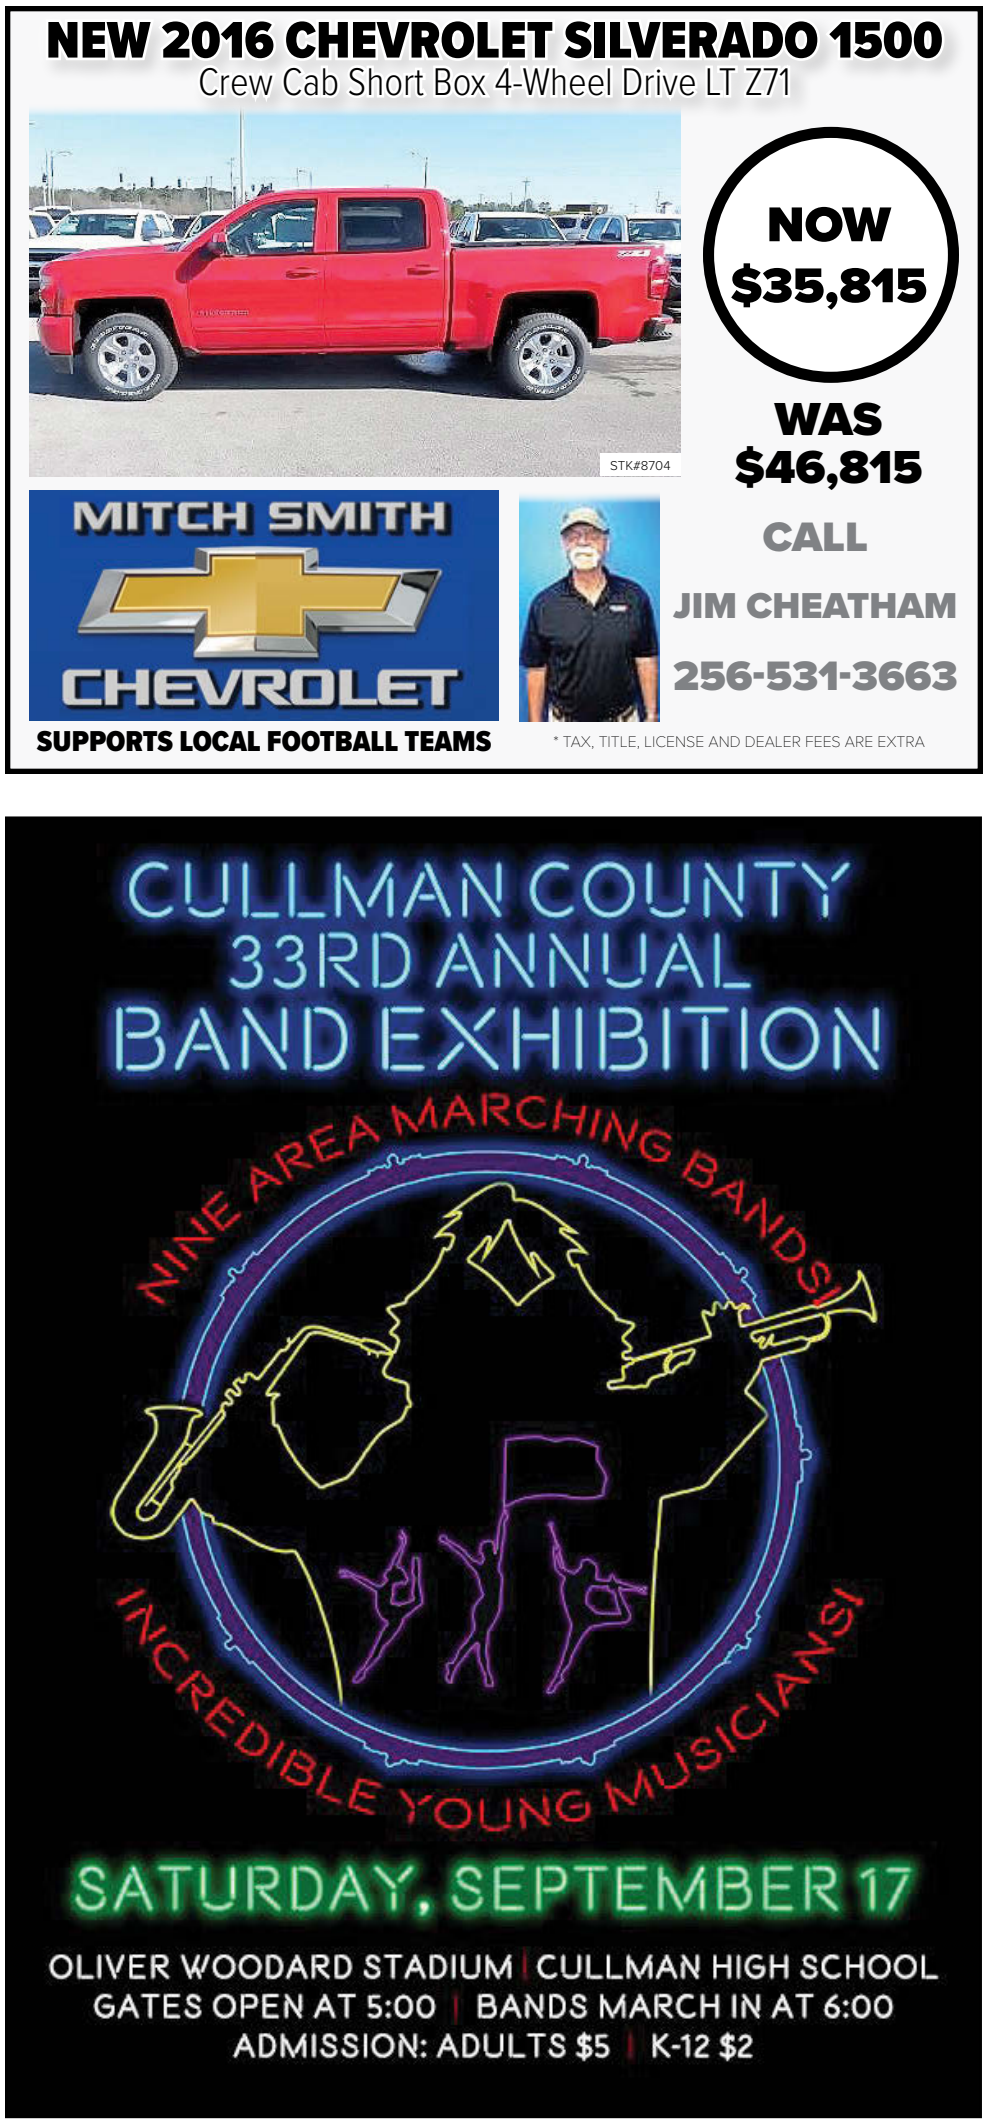

CP&R is partnering with Cabin Fever Beverages to offer a variety of beers and specialty drinks to go along with your wings. There will be a bar under the Game Day Tent and several places around Depot Park where you will be able to buy drinks.

This will not be an adult-only occasion. Clucknbrew will have a 'kids' zone' area so the little people of Cullman County will have as much fun as the big people. The parks department will have inflatables, slides, a sand pit, sidewalk chalk, hula hoops and bubble fun! They will also have games like corn hole, mega-size jenga and mega-size checkers. The department will also have their video gaming truck onsite.

There will be many different contests and activities throughout the entire afternoon. The Wing Street Cook-Off will have two separate contests, one for businesses and one for individuals. All proceeds from the wings and beer sales will go to CP&R's Connected Park project. According to CP&R, the Connected Park will be a park for people of all abilities, including children with special needs or limited physical abilities.

Find the event on Facebook at http://qrne.ws/clucknbrew.

the Alabama Course of Study for Science, which focuses more on engineering, investigation and technology. This offers our students more hands-on experience. Sponsored in part by a grant from the Alabama Wildlife Federation, the Outdoor Classroom will even feature a weather station. We are all excited."

According to Rachel Dawsey, director of the North Alabama Agriplex, West Elementary is enrolled in the Alabama Outdoor Classroom (AOC) Program—a partnership between the Alabama Wildlife Federation (AWF), Alabama Department of Conservation and Natural Resources and Alabama Cooperative Extension System that provides technical assistance for schools who want to develop sustainable outdoor classroom sites that can be utilized as effective teaching tools. West Elementary's Outdoor Classroom site is the vision of their Outdoor Classroom planning committee, which includes West Elementary teachers, the Cullman County Master Gardeners, North Alabama Agriplex staff and AmeriCorps VISTAS. April Lupardus Waltz, AWF conservation education specialist, is providing assistance to help design their Outdoor Classroom site and also assisted with their Outdoor Classroom Days on Sept. 13-14.

But it takes a lot of time and effort to make this vision a reality.

According to Educational Outreach Coordinator for the Agriplex, Mandy-Shea Riggins, your help couldn't come at a better time. "We need all kinds of things," said an enthusiastic Riggins. "We can use materials and equipment, volunteers and donations (through PayPal) for the things we need to complete the new outdoor classroom. "

Riggins gave several examples of what is needed and what those things might be used for. "For instance, we could use someone's leftover building materials like wood or a piece of tin for building a rabbit hutch, and we would be delighted if someone has a bunny to donate," she laughed.

Ground breaking for the outdoor classroom was Sunday, Sept. 11. Riggins estimates that about 50 parents and children participated in the afternoon's work session.

Not all students have the opportunity to have a garden, but in the Outdoor Classroom, there is a new and wonderful world awaiting them, opening them up to experiences they might not otherwise have.

"The Outdoor Classroom concept gives kids a chance to get outside, interact with nature, such as birds, butterflies, dragonflies, turtles and frogs," Riggins explained. "We accomplished a lot in just two hours yesterday, like digging up sod and making a 130' crush and run pathway for the kids, building a turtle habitat and a learning pavilion," said Riggins. "This sort of activity gives them a way to study animal behavior, do science experiments with soil and caring for plants - feeding and watering what they plant," said Riggins.

She went on to explain how the kids have to work differently outside, as opposed to inside. "They learn to be quiet and listen," she said. "They are learning a lifelong lesson here, about sustainable gardening, and many other valuable lessons. Cullman County is the biggest farming county in the state, so they need to know everything we can teach them about growing things."

For one parent it was a true family affair. Adrian Scott went to help with the classroom and got hooked by seeing his children work, digging, building places for toads and frogs to hide, and learning as they went.

"We accomplished a lot in a short time," said Scott, whose daughter, Payton, 11, is a student at West Elementary. Scott is very proud of what the group did to transform the spot into a natural habitat.

"It was good experience for my son to do that kind of work," Scott said of his 15-year-old son, Blayne. Blayne is a Cullman High 10th grader. "We also met other parents and students who were there working on the project and we accomplished a great deal as a community and as a group in a very short amount of time," Scott concluded.

Riggins says that future plans for the area include the rabbit hutch, an animal /nature section, eventually a frog pond, raised vegetable and flower beds and a habitat for songbirds, butterflies, herbs and other sensory plants.

The funds and materials for West Elementary's new Outdoor Classroom learning stations came from a Whole Kids Foundation Grant along with donations from parents and Cullman Regional Medical Center, First South Farm Credit, West Elementary PTA, Cullman Power Board, Littrell Brothers, Buettner Brothers, Lowe's and Eidson and Associates.

Learn how you can help with this project by visiting the West Elementary outdoor classroom or the Agriplex, or contact the Agriplex at cullmanagriplex@gmail.com.
