Alcohol at the Lake

More on SB 322: Smith Lake alcohol sales

THE GRILLE AT TRIDENT MARINA

W.C. Mann
craig@cullmansense.com

MONTGOMERY – The Alabama Senate and House of Representatives recently passed Senate Bill 322, which will allow alcoholic beverages to be served at marinas on Smith Lake within Cullman, Walker and Winston counties, even though those counties are dry. The bill amends existing sections 35-8B-1, 2 and 3 of the 1975 Code of Alabama specifically to create districts on the popular waterway for on-premises consumption of alcohol seven days a week.

The synopsis included in the bill reads as follows:
"Under existing law, there is a process for establishing community development districts that meet certain requirements. Once established, the sale of alcoholic beverages is authorized within the district by certain entities otherwise licensed by the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board. This bill would provide for an additional type of community development district which would be required to border on a lake which is formed by an impounded reservoir of a river whose source is in a federal wilderness area and to have a marina and restaurant. The restaurant would be subject to additional regulation by the local governing body where located. Upon incorporation and approval of the board, the sale of alcoholic beverages would be authorized in the district."

In the bill, the additional "community development district" is defined as:
"a commercial district which borders on a lake which is formed by an impounded reservoir of a river whose source is in a federal wilderness area and has a marina with not less than 30 boat slips and a restaurant with seating capacity of not less than 100 seats of which not less than 50 seats must be inside seating and is located on property where the marina and restaurant are under common ownership. In addition to any other requirements by law, the restaurant shall obtain a business license from the local governing body having primary jurisdiction of the property where the restaurant is located and shall be subject to additional regulation as determined necessary by the local governing body. Only one restaurant license per community development district shall be allowed."

Restaurants will still have to go through the regular license application process, which will be subject to approval by local authorities. The bill allows Sunday sales of alcohol, even if they are prohibited in the surrounding area; that's good only for on-premises consumption. That means restaurants at marinas are covered, but carry-out sales at liquor or convenience stores are not. Legislators say the bill is intended to avoid increasing danger for boaters on the lake.

Rep. Corey Harbison, R-Good Hope told The Tribune, "This will allow for on-premise sales at restaurants. It's still illegal to consume alcohol or have alcohol while operating a watercraft. The ABC board has strict guidelines. Owners of marinas will have to follow the guidelines or lose their license and possibly face civil liability if they don't follow the laws. Each vendor will be required to take training classes to learn the guidelines.

"Going to a restaurant within these entertainment districts will be like going to Outback, Augusta's, Logan's, etc.

"I understand that some people are upset, and I know people have seen some terrible accidents recently involving alcohol. When I was in law enforcement, I stopped people for DUI; they were not people who had gotten drunk at a restaurant, but people who had bought stuff at a liquor store or someplace where they could take it with them. If a restaurant serves someone alcohol until they get drunk, then lets them drive away, they can be held liable for an accident.

"I've been hosting town hall meetings all over the area; and when I asked about this at a meeting on the lake, nobody objected. The Cullman County Republican Party passed a resolution supporting it before we voted on it in Montgomery. ABC and the County Commission have the authority to regulate this, and I think it's going to be well-regulated."

Harbison also stated that he intends for the change to benefit entities in the local area. "I plan, next session, to bring a local bill to put a liquor tax on these alcohol sales. The bill will divide the tax money between county roads, schools and law enforcement."

Sen. Paul Bussman, R-Cullman, Harbison and Rep. Ed Henry, R-Hartselle voted in favor of SB 322. Rep. Randall Shedd, R-Fairview voted against it.

News from the Pond

Jimmie Dean Carnell
Tribune Contributor

Good morning Tribune readers and families. Welcome to the beginning of the summer months. It is really the month of June. For those people who are high school graduates, the feeling is probably great. For the teachers and students on summer vacation, the same. A friend just came back from Gulf Shores and said traffic was backed up for miles with the large number of people on the highway to spend the long weekend and start of summer on Alabama's most beautiful beaches. We have had a few severe thunderstorms, which always seem to happen on the weekends, but are thankful that there is little damage.

Holly Pond High School held their 28th Anniversary Alumni Association Banquet this past weekend at the school cafeteria.

As of the beginning of the month of May there were 210 dues-paying members in the Alumni Association. Each year the alumni association awards scholarships to deserving seniors.

This year four such scholarships were awarded of $2,000 each to Jacob Harbison, Michael Lambert, Shelby Lynn and Zachary Naler. Jacob, Shelby and Zachary have all committed to begin their studies at Wallace State College. Jacob's field of study will be Criminal Justice; Shelby's course will be in the field of engineering technology; and Zachary will be in the field of physical therapy/sports medicine.

Jacob is the son of Alison Wood and Nolan Harbison. Shelby is the daughter of Mark and Becky Jean Lynn; Zachary is the son of Jeff and Penny Barnett Naler.

Michael Lambert has been accepted at Huntingdon College to play football and pursue a field of study in business/marketing. Michael is the son of Tony and Jennifer Lambert.

Congratulations to each of these fine seniors and their families. In addition, at the banquet, the retirement of Mrs. Janna Henderson was recognized.

The new president of the Holly Pond High School Alumni Association for 2017-2018 is Zack Henderson.

I must brag a little about my niece, Mrs. Gennifer Baker. We are all so very proud of her accomplishments. Gennifer was awarded as one out of 22 nurses in the United States for the Nursing Circle of Excellence.

The award was presented at the recent meeting of the American Association of Critical Care Nurses in Huston, Texas. Gennifer is the daughter of Lane and Nancy Horton, of Hanceville. She is married to Shannon Baker and they have one daughter, Maeve Grace Baker. They reside in Madison. Gennifer is a Doctor of Nursing Practice, a Registered Nurse and Critical Care Nursing supervisor at Decatur-Morgan Hospital in Decatur.

As a leader, Gennifer has worked hard to establish relationships in order to build trust as she identifies gaps in workflow, safety, quality, patient care and the relationship between the healthcare team and our critically ill patients and their families.

She thinks of new ways and recycles and modernizes old ways of doing things, so that all levels of professions and all generations can be included. She encourages nurses toward certification, organizational involvement and practicing at the top of their scope. Gennifer is known for her writing skills, never hesitating to help her fellow nurses and advanced practice nurses prepare to publish and present.

When you talk to Gennifer and ask about her everyday role, she will reply, "I am the nurses nurse." Accompanying her to receive her award recently in Houston, Texas, were her husband, Shannon Baker, her mother, Nancy Horton and her daughter, Mavanea Baker.

Until next week, enjoy the warm weather and be safe.

BILLY BOB'S STORIES AND STUFF

School's out for summer

Bill King
Tribune Contributor

Once upon a time, someone asked a student what his favorite holidays were. With little thought, he answered, "Christmas and the last day of school." Well, the last day of school is not actually a holiday, but to most students, and probably all teachers, it feels like one – perhaps Independence Day!

Charlie Brown once said, during his summer break, that he would be glad when school started back so he could look forward to getting out for the summer.

Not every day do you hear a minister quote Alice Cooper, but then, ole A.C. is actually Vincent Furnier, who these days, attends Camelback Bible Church, in Arizona, where he teaches Sunday-School.

About the time I was wrapping up my junior year in high school, Cooper had a hit song that said, "No more pencils, no more books, no more teacher's dirty looks – school's out for summer."

Last week school let out for summer, once again. From the time I was six years old until age twenty-four, I was in school every year, and no, I never repeated a grade.

After a twelve year break, I even went back again for a couple of years. Obviously, I liked school, but I always looked forward to that long summer break, even as a college and seminary student.

By the time I reached seminary, we were a little more subdued on the last of day of school.

Back at dear ole Plainview High School, we took guns to school on the last day.

No, no, not real guns, not even back in then. We took water guns.

Right before we left for home and summer, we had water battles.

There was no such thing as "The Super-Soaker" back then, but Charles Johnson brought a large squirt bottle one year that did a pretty super job of soaking everybody.

It has been a long time now since my school days. I do still enjoy the summer break though, especially since Jean is a teacher, and Drew is a student.

As I reflect on all my years in school, I must pause to give thanks.

My parents were children during the great depression.

Neither of them was fortunate enough to finish high school.

I am grateful that they, especially my mother, encouraged me to get the education they didn't have the opportunity to get.

I am also grateful for all the teachers I had.

I don't have space to list them all, but if you taught me – THANK YOU!

It all started with my first grade teacher, Mrs. Slaughter.

She gave me my very first paddling because I hit Alan Buckley in the eye with a ball of sweeping compound.

She also taught me how to spell, read, and write. I saw Dick and Jane run. Those skills have served me well, as recently as writing this column.

As I type this column, I remain grateful to Mr. Ables, who taught me to type. My, how much I have used that skill.

I appreciate Miss Tommie for "trying" to "learn me English."

I know, I know, as she often said, she couldn't "learn" us anything.

Thank you to Mrs. Ayers for teaching my first, of many to come, speech classes. I've given more than a few of those through the years.

Thank you to Miss Tullis for helping me to love the books I shelved in the library, but especially for sponsoring our devotional club.

Thank you to her, Mrs. Ables, and others who believed in me, even when I wasn't so sure about myself.

For some, school is out for summer, and for some, forever.

Thank you God, and educators, for the opportunities to learn. Enjoy your summer.

Touching Trees

by Randy C. Hale

At the bank, my grandsons are elated about a round piece of candy on a stick or a piece of bubble gum at the gas station.
A stop for ice cream or free time at the park is a major adventure.

Seesaws, monkey bars, slides with tunnels and "Paw Paw swing us so high that we can touch the trees!"

I remember trips to the store with my grandfather, still hunting squirrels with my dad, our old boat in the twisted creek and the smell of mother's fried fish.

My grandmother kept wooden spools and other empty things in what she called the pretty drawer located in her old push pedal sewing machine.

There I could go for make believe,
for things that help me touch the trees.

As I enjoy these little boys who's trikes go with rocket speed, pushed by muscles and inventive minds, I long to return to my childhood to pretty places in frozen time.

Extending the number of pregnant women given the common drug levothyroxine to boost thyroid hormone levels may lead to a reduced number of stillbirths, early caesarean sections and low-weight babies, according to a new study presented at the Society for Endocrinology annual conference. The thyroid gland is an organ found in the base of the neck. It produces essential hormones that control the body's metabolism-the way we use energy. Thyroid hormones are also critical for fetal brain development, but babies cannot make any of their own until the second trimester and have to source all of it from their mothers.

Chronic kidney disease patients who take urate-lowering therapy and achieve urate levels show improvement in kidney function, according to new research findings presented at the 2016 ACR-ARHP Annual Meeting in Washington. Chronic kidney disease (CKD) is a gradual loss of kidney function that can lead to fluid, electrolyte and waste build-up in its advanced stages. Gout, a condition marked by high levels of uric acid that can crystallize through the body, can lead to CKD in some patients. First-line therapies for lowering urate levels are allopurinol and fabuxostat.

Area schools trying to fill football coaching staff vacancies

Johnny Thornton
johnny@cullmansense.com

CULLMAN COUNTY – Vinemont is not the only school in and around The Tribune coverage area that is looking to replace a head football coach.

It has been a week since the school decided not to renew the contract of Matt Norris.

Norris had been head coach for the Eagles since 2015, but Vinemont managed just three victories and decided to change the program.

As of Tuesday, 14 schools in the Alabama High School Athletic Association need a head football coach.

In the neighboring town of Arley, Meek High School is looking to fill a vacancy after Lance Archer recently resigned.

When Berry High School comes to Cold Springs Sept. 1, the Wildcats will have a new leader.

At this time, the process to replace Danny Raines is still ongoing.

Brindlee Mountain will have a new leader on the sidelines when the Lions meet rival Holly Pond on the first Friday in September. Keith Garner was recently hired. Garner is a former coach at Arab High School and J.B. Pennington in Blountsville.

Over in Marshall County, Douglas is looking at candidates to replace the vacancy left by former coach Brad Pounds.

Elkmont in Limestone County has a new coach. The Red Devils have hired Duane Wales. His first task will be facing a very strong Addison Bulldog team at Elkmont on Aug. 25.

Section High School in Jackson County was the latest to have a football team without a head coach. Drew Davis submitted his resignation Tuesday.

Schools like Vinemont and Meek are accepting applications and going through the process to fill the vacancies. Vinemont Principal Ferrell Runge told The Tribune last week, they want to possibly have a replacement in two weeks.

Getting a new coach in ample time will allow everyone to get organized, especially a new coach and his or her new staff, not to mention the players, with fall practice two months from beginning.

Hanceville High School experienced a similar situation last year when Danny Miller resigned in June; his position was filled by Craig Flanigan three weeks before the season began.

Flanigan was able to overcome the issues of late preparation and got his team ready for the season opener, in which Hanceville went to Cold Springs and upset the Eagles 20-8 on Aug. 19.

Vinemont's regular season doesn't officially begin until Sept. 1 when the Eagles play Good Hope at Mark Smothers Stadium. Meek kicks off the new schedule at home Aug. 25 vs. Phillips from Bear Creek. Both schools are approaching the situation with the confidence that the transitions will be smooth.

pulled into the passenger compartment over the passenger side rear seat, so an EMT on the driver's rear can attend to the victim while remaining safely belted into the seat.

The Gator is also equipped as a stand-alone firefighting platform, with onboard tanks holding 85 gallons of water and 2.5 gallons of fire suppression foam.

Atop the water tank sits a hose reel and pump capable of moving 74 gallons of water per minute.

When the tank runs out, a valve on the pump allows an extra onboard hose to draw water directly from ponds or creeks.

LED lights on the sides, and light bars on front and back, switch from red flashers to bright white flood lights with the push of a button.

The Gator is also equipped with a radio and siren.

As it has an open compartment, all equipment including instruments, lights and electronics is water-resistant.

Absher said, "It's been a long process, all the way back into the fall; but with the droughts we had and tremendous amount of wildfires we ran, not only here locally but throughout the county, we were able to secure a grant through the Alabama Forestry Service and through the Cullman County CCCDC (Cullman County Community Development Commission). We were able to secure approximately $15,000 worth of grant money towards this firefighting apparatus, and the council helped with some of the purchase and some of the extra equipment that was needed for it, to get it up and in service.

"As of tonight, it will be in service."

Exclusive preview: Inside Escape Cullman

W.C. Mann
craig@cullmansense.com

CULLMAN – Escape Cullman, the area's first escape game venue, will open its doors Thursday evening, June 1. See our earlier story at http://cullmansense.com/articles/2017/04/04/going-out-get-locked-escape-cullman-coming-soon.

Ahead of the grand opening, the staff graciously offered The Tribune the opportunity to take their first finished escape room on a shakedown cruise as they work out the final details.

Team Tribune consisted of correspondent W.C. Mann, wife Lana, kids Heather and Hunter, and friends Marissa Swimelar and Emily Bradford. We were kids and adults from middle school to middle aged, band geeks, gamers and honor students, a high school salutatorian, two with graduate degrees. Four of us have done escape rooms before. We felt confident, but we would be pushed hard and luck would prove to be a powerful ally.

Escape Cullman's first escape room is a tribute to Cullman County high school sports, a locker room in which the all-star team has been locked in only an hour before the big game. We promised not to reveal too much, but folks who follow area sports will see some familiar things. If you've been to the escape rooms in Birmingham or Huntsville, this room will seem simplistic at first glance, without some the complicated gadgetry of other places. Its appearance is intended to be more straightforward and uncluttered; it doesn't instantly overwhelm players.

That appearance is deceptive, though. With an intentional minimum of up-front instructions from the staff, the team was locked in (Don't worry, claustrophobes, there's a big red panic button that opens the door.) and had to go to it. The clues were there, but they came in bits and pieces that required a good bit of deductive reasoning and on-your-feet thinking. There were opportunities for everyone to get busy, with multiple things that could be done at the same time; teamwork and delegation of responsibilities were keys to speed.

Along the way, Team Tribune got some help from occasional notes that popped up on the monitor on the wall. A big stroke of luck came our way when, purely by chance, we were able to bypass a step in the process. The staff assured us during the debriefing later that the loophole we discovered (Remember: this was, in part, a test run.) would be closed by opening night. We beat our heads against dead end walls several times, and cheered each other on when pieces fell into place.

W.C. MANN/THE CULLMAN TRIBUNE

The team: Marissa, Heather, Hunter, Emily and Lana accompanied correspondent W.C. Mann.

With a lot of teamwork, a lot of talking through things, a fair bit of trial and error, and just enough luck, we got the door open and made it to the big game ahead of the deadline. It was definitely a challenge: not impossible, but far from a pushover. And, most importantly, a good time was had by all.

Student reactions

Heather - "It was challenging, but it was a lot of fun!"

Marissa - "I liked it a lot. That's something I've never done; I thought it was really neat."

Hunter - "It was a lot more impressive than I was expecting. It doesn't have the gadgets of the big (escape game) chains, but it was still challenging and thought-provoking."

Emily - "Very creative. I've never done anything like that before. I thought it was interesting."

Local law enforcement officers: how I got here and what it means to me

W.C. Mann
craig@cullmansense.com

CULLMAN – In marking the passing of this year's National Police Week, The Tribune asked a few area law enforcement officers to talk about how they got into the field, and what it means for them to serve the people of Cullman County. We spoke with longtime veteran officers, Sheriff Matt Gentry and Cullman Police Chief Kenny Culpepper; we also talked to two officers who are relatively new to the field, Cullman City patrol officers Trey Higginbotham and Dustin Colburn.

Cullman County Sheriff Matt Gentry

"When I was in the Marine Corps Reserves, I met a lot of guys who were law enforcement officers. When they talked about what they did, it laid something on my heart. I found that, at the sheriff's department, we can make a great impact by helping somebody or taking a drug dealer out of the community. One of the greatest needs we have today is a need for leadership, and law enforcement is a good way to lead.

"I want to see our community grow, and be a safe place for us to raise our families. I have children, and I want it to be a safe place for them. Law enforcement is more than a badge and a gun; it's being part of a community."

Cullman Police Department Chief Kenny Culpepper

"I was a sophomore at Auburn, and my advisor called me into the office and said, 'You need to declare a major.' I had been taking different courses, just because they sounded interesting. I looked at the courses I had taken, and I had a lot of history and criminal justice courses. I made good grades in those, and not so good in some others. I went with criminal justice, though I did go back to Athens and get my degree in history and political science.

"I was born and raised here (in Cullman); it's my hometown. I went to Cullman High School; my parents live here, I go to church here, so I'm just a hometown kid. It's just been a blessing to serve the city of Cullman. It's one of those jobs where you enjoy getting up and going to work. There's difficult things you have to do, and sometimes it's a tough job, but it's very rewarding."

Cullman Police Department Officer Trey Higginbotham

"Growing up, law enforcement never struck me as something I wanted to do. Well into my college years, I discovered that I found great joy and satisfaction in helping others and began to seek out a career that would give me an opportunity to positively impact others. My parents and grandparents always encouraged me to leave all situations better than you found them. In law enforcement, I get to do that each and every day. As law enforcement officers, we see people usually on their worst of days. Simply knowing that each day I have an opportunity to make someone's bad day just slightly better is one of the reasons I come to work each day.

"Another reason is that Cullman is home to not only my family, but nearly every officer in our department. Our lives are rooted here. We buy groceries at the same places as everyone else. Our kids go to school with your kids. It's our responsibility to ensure the safety of this community, after all it's home to us as well."

Cullman Police Department Officer Dustin Colburn

"At the police academy, we were asked why we wanted to be in law enforcement during this day and age. They asked this shortly after the shootings that happened in Texas and while it seemed law enforcement wasn't liked very much. They asked us why we would be willing to give so much for people that didn't like us and some even wanted to cause harm to us, take time away from family and friends, work holidays, long hours; and no police officer is going to make the money we would like to. My answer has always been that I grew up around drugs and broken households.

"There are days that it doesn't seem like we make a difference because yes there are always drugs out there, but there are those few times where we get to help those that actually want the help they need. There are times we get to go into situations where the kid has to be like I was sometimes when I was younger, where they have to be the adult and we help them get somewhere they can be the kid again. Those are the moments that make it worth it to me. There are always going to be people that hate the police, but we are here for a reason. I believe in that reason. It's to do our best to help people and to try to help keep this city as great as it is now for the generations to come."

For young people considering a career in law enforcement

Culpepper said, "I go and talk to school groups on career day. I ask, 'How many of you kids want to be millionaires?' and a bunch of them raise their hands. I say, 'Then you can't be a police officer, because you won't make a million dollars doing government work. If you do, they'll investigate you!' I say, 'How many of you want a job where everybody's going to love you and hug on you, and pat you on the back?' Some of them raise their hands, and I say, 'Well, you can't be a police officer, because you've got to do things that people aren't going to like.' Then I say, 'How many of y'all like helping people? Do you care about people when they're in trouble?' Those are the reasons you need to be in law enforcement.

"If you can't get as much satisfaction out of stopping and helping the little old lady change her tire as you get in chasing a bad guy and catching him, then you don't need to be in law enforcement, because 90 percent of what you do is going to be helping people. When somebody's got a problem, they're going to call you and you're going to go try to help them solve that problem. A very small portion of what we do is what you see on TV or in the newspaper. You need to be able to get your satisfaction from helping people."
