Delivery mix-up leaves Cullman Caring for Kids scrambling for summer resources

W.C. MANN/THE CULLMAN TRIBUNE

Empty and nearly empty shelves in the Cullman Caring for Kids pantry could spell disaster for needy families in the Cullman area.

W.C. Mann
craig@cullmansense.com

CULLMAN – Summer can be a busy time at Cullman Caring for Kids (CCK), and the early days of each month always see large numbers of people coming in for help. At maybe the worst possible time, the agency suffered the loss of more than 95 percent of its seasonal reserves. Now, CCK is scrambling to stock its shelves, and is asking for the community's help.

CCK Director Javon Daniel explained, "We were expecting a pretty good bit of food from the postal workers' canned food drive, but the food was picked up by the wrong truck and was taken to the Birmingham Post Office.

"The post office here tried, but they were unable to locate enough to get it back; it had already been dispersed to the food banks in Birmingham.

"We got a little over 300 pounds total from Cullman County, because it was late stuff that came in.

"Last year, we got 12,900 pounds. We consider this our backup for the whole summer, because donations are so low. What this did was to cut our backup, our plan A and B, right out from under us."

CCK will go to the North Alabama Food Bank in Huntsville on Monday, and will work with local grocery stores to find the best possible prices for its common staple items.

The agency is accepting monetary donations to help with these purchases, and is also accepting donations of goods, including:

- Cereal
- Popular kids' meal items like mac and cheese, canned spaghetti, ravioli, etc.
- Dry food items such as crackers, rice, and beans
- Canned goods

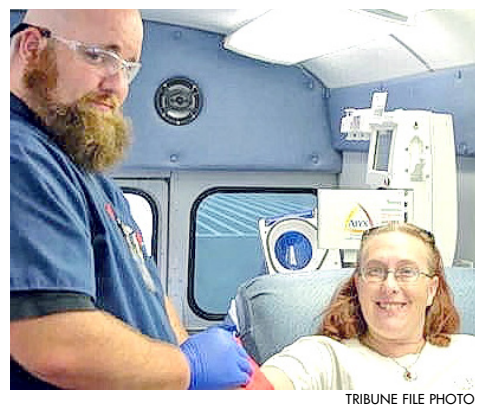

CCK has seen signs that the community is already stepping up to help.

In addition to their regular "Christmas in July" food drive next month, Nathan Anderson and Cullman Parks and Recreation will be asking kids in their Camp Cullman summer program to help collect food; CP&R will also publicize the need through its social media channels.

Developer and Rock the South founder Shane Quick made a substantial monetary donation after learning about CCK and its plight, saying, "I had no idea they made such a massive impact. We were glad to do it. It seems like this city is full of people helping people."

For more information or to become involved, visit www.cullmancaringforkids.com. Monetary or food donations can be made at the CCK office at 402 Arnold St. NE, Suite W-1.

City vs. County blood drive set for Friday

CULLMAN – This year's City vs. County blood drive will take place on Friday, June 9. LifeSouth will have their famous blood mobiles stationed at four locations around Cullman from 8 a.m.-5 p.m.

Head of Donor Recruiting with LifeSouth, Melanie Moore, along with her partner at LifeSouth, Kimberly Roberson, are excited for the potential for more donors this year.

"Last year we had 53 eligible donors in the city, and 78 eligible donors in the county," Moore said. "That makes 131 good units of blood. And since every unit has the potential to save up to three lives, we had a hand in saving around 393 lives last year."

LifeSouth is such a massive contributor to the blood supply of Cullman Regional and emergency medical services, that, according to Moore, the chance of receiving blood in an emergency situation in Cullman and it coming from a source other than LifeSouth is less than one percent.

To donate blood for the City team, donors can visit Wal-Mart on Highway-157 or Dick's Sporting Goods. County sites are the Wal-Mart on Olive Street and the Cullman County Courthouse. »PAGE 4

'Street Outlaws' fans: the Reaper is coming to Baileyton this Saturday

W.C. Mann
craig@cullmansense.com

BAILEYTON – The Discovery Channel show "Street Outlaws" centers on a group of "underground" street racers based in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma. Fans of the show follow the efforts of drivers to get on and top "the List."

The show's website says, "Oklahoma City boasts they have the fastest underground street racers in America. Those cars and those drivers holding that title can all be found on Street Outlaws' 'The List.' Competition is tight and ruthless on The List. So strap-in and put the pedal to the floor cause there's only enough room for 10 drivers and there's always someone striving to break in or move up . . . They compete habitually to move up The List, but are always eager to team-up and take on any challenge thrown their way. They've mercilessly proven time and time again, from California to Texas to Michigan, that Oklahoma City holds the fastest cars in the country. The stakes are high and the risks are greater, but it's all worth it to reach #1."

This Saturday, fans of "Street Outlaws" and drag racing alike will have the opportunity to enjoy a memorable evening at the Goodtime Drag Strip as James Goad, currently no. 10 on The List, brings his heavily modified 1968 Camaro SS "Reaper" to Baileyton. He'll be meeting and greeting fans before he takes to the strip to put on demonstrations of OKC outlaw power. Outlaw merchandise will also be available. The track's regular Saturday activities continue as well, with 70-80 cars (pro and street legal) expected to come out for pro and footbrake runs.

Goad's travels between other events will bring him through the area, and he struck a last-minute deal with drag strip manager Russ Easterwood to stop off in Baileyton on his way. A large portion of the proceeds from Reaper's visit will help the drag strip staff continue a series »PAGE 8

BILLY BOB'S STORIES AND STUFF

Pool season has arrived in full splash

Bill King
Tribune
Contributor

I had not seen either one of them until they jumped into our pool, one right after the other, and began swimming like pros. Neither of them had been invited or had permission, but neither had any of the other dozen or so that they joined in the water. I could have ordered them to get out, but it would not have done any good. They simply ignore my commands and keep right on swimming as if I had said nothing at all. They are expert swimmers. I watch as they "frog-kick" their long, slender legs, and gracefully glide with great ease and speed through the water. The problem is, even though they swim so well, I know they will drown if I let them stay in the water. They are frogs.

They trespass each year, about this same time, and each year dozens of them die in my back yard. I try to save them, but I can't give a frog mouth to mouth resuscitation. Most are green tree-frogs, but occasionally they invite their cousins; the rough and rowdy croaking bull-frogs, and mild mannered toads with their squatty-bodies. They flock to my pool like college kids to Daytona Beach during spring break.

Maybe the frogs take their spring break in Alabama; in my back yard. There are so many of them that they cause me to feel like Pharaoh must have when Moses called down that plague of croakers on Egypt. One day last week, I rescued eighteen of those rascals, but also buried several at sea in my little creek behind the house.

They were not the first ones in our pool this year, even though summer hasn't even officially arrived. Drew broke the water a couple of weeks ago and has been in twice already. He begged me to get in with him, but I declined. Memorial Day marked the unofficial beginning of summer, which officially begins around the middle of June. I told Drew when it warmed up a little more, say around the middle of July, I might get in then.

I dove off head first into the back waters of the Tennessee River once, from a pier in Jackson County Park, in the middle of February. I was sixteen and my stupidity was for the benefit of my peers. That was a highly educational experience. That's when I learned to wait until July. I'm still not sure how much my friends were impressed, but I am certain, no matter how much, that it was not worth it. I think I've been able to sing an entire octave higher ever since. No matter how great I may have looked in their eyes, or perhaps how foolish, as an older, and hopefully more mature adult, I have decided to wait until God heats the water before I get in. I am thankful my limbs didn't freeze and fall off and that I didn't drown.

Back to my frog friends, they are more foolish than I was as a teenager. They do not realize that their swim will be their last, unless someone comes to their rescue. They dive off head long into something from which they will never be able to get out. Sometimes when I rescue them, they turn right around and jump back in. This reminds me of how we are sometimes. We may also jump into things from which we can't get out. It often ends up costing us more than we can afford to pay – sometimes our lives. Poor choices still pays the same wages as always, whether we believe it or not.

Those yelling for the Bearcats on Friday night included: Helen Hamilton and Kenneth Speegle, Doris Lessman and Kermit Robinson, Gwen Hart and Elwin Robinson, Jeanette and Bobby Joe Blalock. The game was at Scottsboro.

Dwight McSwain leaves the Bearcat football team to enter the Army on October 19th.

Cullman defeated Scottsboro, 14 to 6. Coach Tilrow Morrison attributed the upset to the blocking of Asa Blalock, Dahlke and Cook.

DOES that lamp still burn in my Father's house,
Which he kindled the night I went away?
I turned once beneath the cedar boughs,
And marked it gleam with a golden ray;
Did he think to light me home some day?
Hungry here with the crunching swine,
Hungry harvest have I to reap;
In a dream I count my Father's kine, I hear the tinkling bells of his sheep
I watch his lambs that browse and leap.

There is plenty of bread at home,
His servants have bread enough and to spare; The purple wine-fat froths with foam,
Oil and spices make sweet the air,
While I perish hungry and bare.

Rich and blessed those servants, rather Than I who see not my Father's face! I will arise and go to my Father,—
"Fallen from sonship, beggared of grace,
Grant me Father, a servant's place."

Cholesterol-lowering drugs help prevent heart attacks and strokes in adults with cardiovascular risk factors such as high cholesterol, high blood pressure, diabetes and smoking, but have not yet had a heart attack or stroke, according to a large-scale analysis of clinical trial data published in JAMA. Drugs that lower fat levels in the blood, called statins, were effective in reducing risk of death, heart attacks and strokes, across a broad range of patient groups. The benefits were largest in people at highest risk for heart attacks and strokes. The benefits were largest in people at highest risk for heart attacks and strokes. But, those at lower risk also realized some preventive benefits. In addition, the drugs did not prove to have significant harmful effects. Compared with a placebo, statins were not associated with increased risk of muscle pain or myopathy, cognitive decline or liver damage. Overall, there was no increased risk of diabetes with statins, though one trial that used a high dose of statins found an increased risk. One trial found an increased risk of cataract surgery.

A ten-year trial involving osteoarthritis and rheumatoid arthritis patients in 13 countries reveals new insights on the cardiovascular safety of widely used nonsteroidal anti-inflammatory drugs and COX-2 specific inhibitors, The Study, published in the New England Journal of Medicine, finds that Celebrex poses no greater risk of heart attack, stroke, other cardiovascular problems or death than naproxen or ibuprofen. More surprisingly there is evidence that Celebrex is less likely that the other two to cause kidney and gastrointestinal problems associated with NSAIDS. Osteoarthritis, or OA, is the most common joint disease affecting middle-age and older people. It is characterized by progressive damage to the joint cartilage-the cushioning material at the end of long bones-and causes changes in the structures around the joint. Rheumatoid arthritis (RA) is a chronic disease that causes pain, stiffness, swelling and limitation in the motion and function of multiple joints. Through joints are the principal body parts affected by RA. Inflammation can develop in other organs as well.

Cullman welcomes Champion Sports Medicine with official ribbon cutting

W.C. Mann

W.C. MANN/THE CULLMAN TRIBUNE

Cullman Center Manager Lisa Armstrong and property owner/developer Roy Drinkard

CULLMAN – On Wednesday morning the Cullman Chamber of Commerce, along with Mayor Woody Jacobs and developer Roy Drinkard, held a ribbon cutting to welcome statewide healthcare provider Champion Sports Medicine to its new franchise office in the Wilkommen Center at 1837 Patriot Way SW, near the southside Wal-Mart. The company, which has provided athletic trainers to local schools, opened its office here in January.

Before the ceremony, The Tribune sat down with Manager Lisa Armstrong to find out more.

"We're an outpatient physical therapy clinic," explained Armstrong. "We do sports medicine, but we also do orthopedic physical therapy; we treat patients who've had strokes or head injuries. I do pediatric physical therapy for dizziness or vertigo. We just offer any kind of outpatient physical therapy service."

Since the clinic has been open for several months prior the official ribbon cutting, Armstrong had an opportunity to reflect on the center's experience since January.

"We have a pretty solid referral source that's sending us a lot of patients. We're trying to get more referrals from a variety of doctors. We have four athletic trainers that cover the schools in the area, and so we get a lot of referrals from those athletes. Dr. David Dueland (of Cullman Regional Orthopedics and Sports Medicine) is sending us a lot of patients; he's really helped us out to get started. We're getting busier; we've progressively increased since January."

Cullman Sports Medicine takes all brands of insurance, and Medicaid for patients under 18. Walk-ins can receive an initial evaluation on-site, but must have a physician's referral for treatment.

Staff

- Lisa Armstrong - Center Manager
- Matt Page - Physical Therapy Assistant
- Amy Tucker - Patient Services Specialist
- Scott Lochridge - Athletic Trainer, Cullman High School
- Kimberlin Johnson - Athletic Trainer, Cullman High School
- Lindsay Walker - Athletic Trainer, Fairview High School
- Donna Chamblee - Athletic Trainer, West Point High School

"We're new in town," said Armstrong, "but we're all part of this community. We would love to be part of the schools, and just really have a community type feel. We like to spend a lot of one-on-one time with our patients. We have a lot of fun in here; we don't just come in here and do business. Our patients get better and have fun, too!"

For more information about Cullman's office of Champion Sports Medicine, visit www.facebook.com/championsportsmedicine cullman.

Expect a 30-45-minute process for donations, not including the potential for lines at the different locations.

"Eat a good meal before you come, a meal that sticks to your ribs you know," Moore said. "And be well-hydrated." Moore said most of the complications come with people who haven't had water or food before they visit a blood mobile.
