CULLMAN – It's an exercise place, and it's next door to the Duchess Bakery, where the great donuts are. It even sells a shirt that says "Donut ever give up." Talk about ambitious. Say hello to Elevate Cullman.

As Cullman's newest women's fitness studio gets ready to welcome its first public class this week, The Tribune sat down with owner Rachel Eidson to find out more.

"Elevate is a premiere barre and yoga studio," said Eidson, "so it's a little different from your typical gym where you might expect a lot of equipment and a big crowd of people. It's intended to be smaller, more intentional, more personal.

"Our classes are geared toward things that women are interested in; what we're offering here are barre classes. It's all very dance and Pilates inspired. I worked for a big franchise that does barre fitness in Huntsville for about five years, and then we moved here. My husband is from Cullman, and he moved me here almost two years ago. I'm very involved in fitness; I do a lot of running and other things. I didn't think I'd miss it all that much; but we were here about six months when I thought, 'Whoa. I look different, I feel different, I need to find a way to keep doing this.'

"We've been doing a small class at The Factory Dance Studio. People seemed to like it, and it's been growing; so this is the spot we hope we grow into."

Elevate Cullman will officially host its first public class this Saturday, then will offer 15 barre classes per week, along with three yoga classes. Also on the schedule will be "Piloxing" a hybrid high-intensity cardio/barre program that combines the grace of dance and Pilates with the power training of boxing. Classes will run about 50 minutes each, allowing students to get in and out in about an hour. Eidson set up a website, at which clients can sign up and pay for classes online. New clients can attend their first class free of charge.

Most classes are physically low to no impact, making them a good choice for women with chronic back or joint problems, who are recovering from injuries or who are looking to cross train from a high-impact activity like running. And for something important to many, they're easier on folks who might have to get to work after an early morning or lunchtime class.

Eidson said, "You don't sweat a lot, so it is completely reasonable to come do this class and then change back into your work clothes and go to work."

Eidson, along with Rachel McPhillips, Morgan Moore and April Dooley, will lead barre classes; Debbie Leopard will head up the yoga classes.

"If you've only got an hour to work out, this is a smart way to spend it," Eidson stated. "It's a good combination of cardio work and toning work. If your time's important to you and fitness is important to you, this is a good way to accomplish both of those things."

Elevate Cullman is located at 220 First Ave. SE, next to Duchess Bakery. For more information, including a schedule of classes, visit www.elevatecullman.com.

State back-to-school sales tax holiday moves up to July

W.C. Mann
craig@cullmansense.com

CULLMAN – To make sure that everyone can do their shopping before the start of the school year, which for many will fall in early August, the State of Alabama has moved its back-to-school sales tax holiday from the first weekend in August to the third weekend in July.

The state will, from 12:01 a.m. on Friday, July 21 until 11:59 p.m. on Sunday, July 23, forego its four percent sales tax on items commonly purchased for students. Cullman County will also set aside its 4.5 percent sales tax. Four municipalities in the county collect a .5 percent tax: Cullman, Hanceville, Fairview and Dodge City; all four have also agreed to waive their taxes.

Shopping anywhere in Cullman County should be tax-free on permitted items, including:

- Clothing $100 or less per article. This does not include clothing accessories or wearable safety gear or sports uniform items.
- School supplies $50 or less per article.
- Books $30 or less per item.
- Computers, tablets, and printers $750 or less per item.

For more information on the sales tax holiday, including a link to a more detailed item list, visit alabamaretail.org/resources/salestaxholidays/back-to-school.

Parker-Adams resigns as Holly Pond girls' basketball coach

Wendy Sack
wendy@cullmantribune.com

HOLLY POND – Holly Pond girls' basketball coach Paige Parker-Adams abruptly submitted her resignation Tuesday, following just one season.

According to Holly Pond High School Principal Kim Butler, "She didn't give much of a reason. She just needs to step away from coaching for a while."

Parker-Adams took over coaching duties after her father-in-law Scott Adams retired from Holly Pond.

Parker-Adams is known for her career under Tammy West at Cold Springs and ran the Holly Pond JV girls' program prior to being named varsity coach. Her husband Drew Adams is the varsity boys' basketball coach at Good Hope.

"I don't know any of the direct details, but Mrs. Adams did a great job coaching this year for Holly Pond High School and she has been and will continue to be a great role model for the young people of Cullman County," said Cullman County Schools Superintendent Shane Barnette.

"If she feels that she needs to take a step back from coaching I fully support her. I further believe that she will continue to be a great teacher and when the time is right she will be welcome to coach again."

GOOD HOPE – Local authorities made a substantial drug bust recently, netting two trafficking charges. Cullman Police Department Sgt. Chris Thomason led the investigation.

The CPD and Cullman County Sheriff's Office on June 7 executed a search warrant at 82 Williams Road in Good Hope.

During the search, officers allegedly recovered 7 ounces of methamphetamine, 17 suboxone strips, oxycodone 10 mg pills and various pieces of drug paraphernalia.

Rachel Ann Reeves, 33, of Cullman was arrested and charged with trafficking in methamphetamine, trafficking in illegal drugs, unlawful possession of a controlled substance and unlawful possession of drug paraphernalia.

She is currently being held in the Cullman County Detention Center on a $1 million bond.

Charles Cameron Simmons, 26, of Cullman and Steven Andrew Waters, 38, of Stevenson were arrested and charged with unlawful possession of a controlled substance and unlawful possession of drug paraphernalia.

Both have since made bond.

According to Thomason, "This was a significant amount of illegal drugs removed from our community. Probable cause for the search warrant was developed from the hard work of patrol officers performing their regular duties."

Citizens with information on illegal drug activity are asked to contact the Cullman Police Department at 256-775-7170 or 256-734-1434.

Man being investigated for involvement in fatal wreck arrested on unrelated charges

Wendy Sack
wendy@cullmansense.com

CULLMAN – Brad Meeks, 27, the man at the center of the investigation into the crash that killed Cullman High School student Curtis Wilson, 15, on May 7, was arrested Friday on unrelated charges.

Meeks, who was hospitalized for several days following the car wreck, was picked up on June 9 by the Cullman Police Department. Meeks had a warrant, issued April 24, stemming from an incident on April 11 in which he allegedly walked into The Spot Beverages, a liquor store located at 1943 Second Ave. SW in Cullman, and left with two bottles of vodka, without paying.

Video surveillance footage of the incident at The Spot given to The Tribune shows a man enter the store, then leave directly out the front door several seconds later with two bottles of liquor. The woman working the cash register immediately runs outside, and the video shows her throw open the passenger-side door of the man's truck and return to the store with one of the bottles.

Meeks was arrested and charged with fourth-degree theft of property, a misdemeanor. Meeks bonded out the same day.

The Cullman Police Department says Meeks was not arrested for the misdemeanor warrant sooner because he was hospitalized.

Background

A preliminary report from the Alabama Law Enforcement Agency (ALEA) on the fatal May 7 wreck stated, "Although the circumstances surrounding the crash are still under investigation, preliminary investigation indicates alcohol may have been a factor in the crash."

ALEA has not officially confirmed which driver is suspected to have been under the influence of alcohol and no charges have been filed as of Thursday, June 15; however, The Cullman Tribune learned from several sources that Meeks, the driver of the truck that hit Wilson and his mother, was allegedly driving erratically prior to the crash and that he allegedly made statements on the scene that led law enforcement to believe he was not sober.

Additionally, Meeks has an extensive criminal history with at least two DUI charges.

On May 18, Ashley Wilson, mother of Curtis Wilson, filed a wrongful death suit against Meeks. The document filed with the court alleged that, at the time of the incident, Meeks was driving "negligently, wantonly, recklessly and/or otherwise unreasonably;" and that he was "unfit to drive and/or failed to maintain control of his vehicle."

She also filed against her own insurance providers Allstate and Alfa, demanding payment on underinsured motorist claims.

Last week, all three defendants responded to the suit in documents submitted to the court.

Meeks, through his attorney Gaynor St. John, made a "general denial" of Wilson's allegations, pleading that Meeks's actions behind the wheel were not negligent, but instead were the result of a "sudden emergency."

Allstate Insurance, through its attorney Cornelius Warren, denied Wilson's claim.

Included in its response were allegations that Wilson failed to state claims that could be paid, and also that her claims failed to meet the statute of limitations.

Furthermore, Allstate charged Wilson with "contributory negligence," a legal term alleging that her actions during the incident contributed to her own injuries and her son's death.

The Tribune reached out to an attorney for more on what exactly the "contributory negligence" claim means.

According to Birmingham-based attorney Tracy Miller, who is not associated with the case, "Contributory negligence is a standard affirmative defense that is deemed waived if not pled in a defendant's answer. The mother's complaint and the answers filed by the defendants in response thereto are called pleadings, and both have formal, legal requirements that may not make much sense to someone not engaged in the practice of law. It does not mean the facts and evidence obtained during the discovery process will show the mother was negligent or that any of the defendants actually believe she was negligent. The defendants must assert all affirmative defenses now and determine through discovery if any defenses actually apply to the case."

Alfa Insurance, through its attorney Michael Haggard, denied Wilson's claim on constitutional grounds, arguing that the punitive damages she seeks violate due process and equal protection clauses in the U.S. and Alabama constitutions. It also denied that the accident was caused by an underinsured motorist.

Both Insurance companies admitted that Wilson had underinsured motorist coverage with them, and both requested set-off: the right to withhold payment until they find out how much the other defendants will be required to pay, and to determine their required amounts accordingly.

Ashley Wilson is being represented by Birmingham attorney Gregory Martin Zarzaur.

Curtis Wilson died at Children's of Alabama after being transported by helicopter from the scene of the wreck, which occurred just after 6 p.m. on Sunday, May 7 in the 2000 block of County Road 222 in front of Van's Sporting Goods.

Curtis Wilson, who was a sophomore at Cullman High School, was the second area student to be killed by a suspected drunk driver this year. In March, Tonya J. Busbee, 34, of Bremen and her daughter, Rhianna Busbee, 13, a student at Cold Springs, died after being hit head on by another driver on County Road 813. That wreck also remains under investigation.

A new scientific statement from the American Heart Association warns that statins could interact with other heart disease medications. The types of cardiovascular medications the writing committee examined included antiarrhythmic drugs, used to treat abnormal heart rhythms; medications used in treating congestive heart failure; antiplatelet agents and anticoagulants that are used to thin the blood; immunosuppressive agents, for patients who have undergone a heart transplantation; non-statin cholesterol lowering agents and calcium channel blockers, commonly used to treat high blood pressure.

The statement identifies specific doses at which certain heart disease medications can be used safely with statins, as well as the combinations of statins and certain cardiac medications that may be potentially harmful.

Recently postmenopausal women who were highly symptomatic with hot flashes and night sweats had a significant improvement in frequency and intensity of hot flashes when using lower doses of either oral conjugated estrogen or transdermal estradiol, with sustained improvement over four years, according to a study published in the journal of The North American Menopause Society, Menopause.

Impulsive behavior is a factor in leading to food addiction. A drug called Modafinil, usually used for narcolepsy, shift work disorder and excessive daytime sleepiness, can reduce impulsivity and thus food addiction, according to a study published in Personality and Individual Differences.

Vinemont receives favorable audit; roads being resurfaced

Heather Mann
Tribune Correspondent

VINEMONT – The Vinemont Town Council kicked off this month's meeting by reviewing the results of the recent town audit, which showed no problems detected. A comparison sheet of previous years' audits showed an incredible increase in the Town's funds. With everyone happy with the results, the council went to work on ordinances and resolutions.

First up was the amending of the Town's ordinance regarding building permits to comply with the state's terms. The amendment simply included a flat fee for residential buildings. The council also amended the Town's ordinance on yard sales. Previously the ordinance included a $5 fee for anyone holding a yard sale, but the council voted to do away with the fee entirely. The council also passed two resolutions: one to declare their John Deere Gator as surplus, and the other to authorize mayor Radginal Dodson to enter a contract with Musco Lighting for the lights in the town's park.

Dodson was pleased to hear that the paving company would set up their equipment and start resurfacing roads this week, weather permitting. Unfortunately, Goodwin Road turned out to be in too poor condition for the company to resurface, so the Town would will need to seal the large cracks in the asphalt before repaving can start. The parks will be busy over the weekend, from Thursday to Monday, because 17 teams will be competing in a district tournament.

There were a few other matters brought up before adjourning. There will be a training session for the council members in Priceville on September 15, and there needs to be a bit of work done around the park to clean up tree branches and stick piles. The Town also considered putting up additional flags in town; the council decided to contact the power company to see which power poles might work best for flag placement.

Construction contract awarded for Crane Hill substation, senior center

Andrew Cryer
Tribune Correspondent

CULLMAN – The Cullman County Commission on Tuesday awarded Triple J Construction the bid for construction of the new senior center and sheriff's office substation in the community of Crane Hill. The bid was for $320,225.

Earlier this year, the Cullman County Community Development Commission awarded a $50,000 grant for the building and the commission appropriated $25,000 for the project. The sheriff's office will foot the bill for the rest of the cost. The substation/senior center will be located across from the Crane Hill Volunteer Fire Department.

In new business, the commission voted against closing a portion of County Road 1615 in the community of Berlin, and will keep the road open for use.

A public hearing on the closure was held at the commission's May 23 meeting, after the request for the closure was made by AGCOR Steel. Many residents attended the hearing to voice their opposition to the proposal, presenting the commission with petition signed by more than 300 people.

The commission then ratified the payment of $8,615 to Kroll Ontrack for recovery of hard drive data for the revenue department, and approved the renewal of a one-year hardware and software maintenance contract with HiComp for $5,488.55.

The commission heard one request from Drew Green, Cullman County chair of the Alabama 200 Bicentennial celebration. Green asked for $5,000 to promote tourism in connection with the bicentennial.

The request was approved unanimously.

The commission considered entering a two-year agreement with the Cullman Area Chamber of Commerce to promote Cullman County for the purpose of creating quality job growth, building the tax base and increasing sales tax revenue; however, Commissioner Kerry Watson and the commission decided to table the vote to further look into the agreement.

ANDREW CRYER/THE CULLMAN TRIBUNE

The commission rejected bid proposals to renovate the Commission on Aging building due to bids being well over budget.

A 2010 Dodge Charger and 2010 Chevy Tahoe were surplussed following a request from Sheriff Matt Gentry. The state probation and parole agency will use the vehicles in the Cullman area.

In a split bid award for its advertising, the commission awarded a bid for legal advertisements to The Cullman Times and display advertisements to The Cullman Tribune.

A bid for retreading tires was awarded to McGriff Tires.

The commission will hold its next work session on Tuesday, June 27 at 8:30 a.m., followed by a meeting at 10 a.m.

Good Hope council talks road repairs, plans back-to-school bash

Heather Mann
Tribune Correspondent

GOOD HOPE – Good Hope's latest city council meeting started off on a positive note with the financial report showing that excise taxes have finally been received, and the meeting stayed simple and efficient. Councilman John Harris reported that the audit of the council had started and that all the members would need to fill out the forms before they left the meeting.

Councilman Maxie Jones said that he was pleased with the repairs to Lindsey Road and Doc Clemmons Road, but there were some complaints about Reid Road being rather sloppy and uneven.

Jones also brought up possible projects for the future. The first was an old, unused water tower in Smith Lake Park.

The owner of the property asked for a donation from the city to have the tower sandblasted and painted with the names and logos of sponsors, with Pepsi being one of the first.

Jones also mentioned a type of veterans' memorial that he saw in Arley, and he suggested doing the same thing to honor Good Hope's local veterans.

The memorial would be a series of banners on the sides of power poles, each bearing a veteran's name, picture and where he or she served. The council saved both ideas for later consideration.

Councilwoman Susan Eller had nothing to report.

Councilman Greg Brown reported on the City's annual back-to-school bash. After going back and forth on possible dates and overlapping events, the council tentatively set the date for Thursday, July 27, and stated they will consider food and entertainment choices later.

Councilman Taft Dillashaw alerted the council that the city will be hosting the youth softball state tournament this weekend, which he says promises a very busy ballfield area.

After all the topics on the agenda were addressed, Mayor Jerry Bartlett opened the floor to public comments again before adjourning.

One attendee mentioned that Rock the South had brought a huge surge in business for several of the local shops. Many of the concert attendees came to Cullman by way of the Good Hope interstate exit, and many business owners benefited greatly from the extra traffic.

City school board approves contract for CMS storm damage repairs

craig@cullmansense.com

CULLMAN – At a special called meeting early Wednesday morning, the Cullman City School Board approved a bid from Creative Aluminum Products of Jasper for repairs to awnings at Cullman Middle School that were damaged by high winds during a storm on March 30, 2017.

According to Superintendent Dr. Susan Patterson, the special meeting had to be called in order to expedite the project.

All necessary paperwork from bidders and the insurance company arrived within the last week, and the board was concerned that putting off bid approval until the next regular meeting on June 26 could prevent repairs from being completed before the start of school in August.

Damage at CMS from the March 30 storm included the awnings, roof shingles and intercom wiring. Replacement of the awnings will complete repairs to the school.

Colony summer kids' program going strong; efforts to fill empty council seat stall

W.C. Mann
craig@cullmansense.com

PATRICIA PONDER

Last week, students got to construct an electronic circuit to power a light.

COLONY – This week's Colony Town Council meeting included exciting news about the Town's summer feeding and activity program. Meanwhile, the council reached its deadline for filling the seat vacated by Myra Twitty without a decision, so that the appointment may now be out of the Town's hands.

Councilman Curtis Johnson reported that the summer feeding program has had more than 20 participants per day since it started two Mondays ago (the first site in the County to begin feeding for the summer). Town Clerk Patricia Ponder addressed the summer reading program that accompanies the feeding program, pointing out that 46 students attended last Wednesday, when "Build A Better World" kicked off with designing, constructing and testing obstacle courses and building electronic circuits to light a bulb and power a fan. On Wednesday, June 14, staff from the McWane Science Center in Birmingham provided the program.

When the council's agenda came to the empty seat, two local residents presented themselves as candidates: Ethel Alexander and Melvin Hammond.

Alexander, a former Boeing employee and retired teacher, has lived in Colony for 14 years. She has been active in the area as a volunteer, planning and hosting events like the recent Black History and Senior Fashion programs.

Hammond, a retired postal worker and military veteran, has lived in Colony since last July. He has been active in several civic and social organizations, holding various leadership positions.

The council seemed clearly divided in members' support for the two. Mayor Donnis Leeth stated that current policy requires at least one year of residency to serve on the council, and that Hammond could not be considered for that reason.

Councilwoman Margaret Dimbo briefly appealed with an opinion that the residency requirement was only six months, but the mayor held to his position.

Johnson nominated Alexander to fill the seat. Leeth, as mayor, can vote but does not bring motions or seconds. With Councilman Julian Fields absent, Alexander's nomination required a second by Dimbo or Councilwoman Tammy Malcom. Neither offered a second, and the motion ended with no action.

As the council will pass the 30-day deadline for filling the seat, the appointment question could possibly go to Gov. Kay Ivey's office in Montgomery for resolution.

The Colony Town Council meets on the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month, at 6 p.m. in the town hall, with work session at 5:30. The public is invited to attend.

Wallace State anglers Josh Butts, Reid Conner win 2017 Carhartt Bassmaster College Series Wild Card championship

Russell Moore
WSCC

HANCEVILLE – Wallace State anglers Josh Butts and Reid Conner won the 2017 Carhartt Bassmaster College World Series Wild Card championship at Lay Lake over the weekend.

It's the second Wild Card championship (presented by Bass Pro Shops) for Wallace State's BASS fishing club over the past three summers, and the second time Butts has been a part of the winning duo for the college. He previously won in June 2015 with teammate Justin Rivers.

"It's another huge step for Wallace State fishing to know we have won two Wild Card events. It's great publicity for the college, and I'm so glad Reid (Conner) is able to experience the excitement behind it. I definitely wanted to win this one for Reid. This was his tournament," said Butts, a St. Clair County High graduate, who wasn't fishing too far from home during the tournament.

"We found a great spot on the river, and I knew we had a great shot to win after that. This shows that Wallace State is a great place to pursue your love of fishing, while also earning a great degree."

Butts and Conner finished the three-day event by hauling in fish weighing 40 pounds, 11 ounces. Both were already atop the leaderboard heading into Saturday's final round and closed the tournament by catching five fish weighing 10 pounds and 13 ounces from Lay Lake, which borders St. Clair, Talladega, Shelby, Coosa and Chilton Counties.

Butts and Conner launched each day at 5:30 a.m., from Beeswax Landing in Columbiana, and quickly found a spot off the Coosa River that proved to be prosperous.

"A lot of this tournament was river fishing and something I was used to. I had a good feeling as to where they would be feeding in the morning, and we used crankbait to catch some of our top fish at a spot about 20 minutes from the launch," said Butts, who's majoring in business management.

"We had to adjust on the last day because they weren't feeding as well, but we recovered and Reid found us a huge catch late in the day."

Before the weekend, Butts and Conner had been on the brink of a championship since January, finishing in the top 10 in three different tournaments, including as high as seventh in the Cabela's Collegiate Bass Fishing Championship at Pickwick Lake in May.

They ultimately won it all at Lay Lake and punched their ticket to the 2017 Carhartt Bassmaster College Series National Championship scheduled for August 10-12 at Bemidji Lake in Bemidji, Minn.

"It's only been a couple of days since we won, and I'm still getting used to winning my first collegiate tournament.

"It's everyone's goal to win a tournament, so it's a huge accomplishment for me," said Conner, 18.

BASSMASTER/RONNIE MOORE

Butts, left, and Conner reeled in fish weighing 40 pounds, 11 ounces over the three-day event.

"Josh is a great partner to have on the water and honestly the best angler I've ever fished with. He's taught me a lot things, and we've become such good friends on and off the water. You have to be good friends to be successful."

Conner, a Gardendale High graduate, is a general studies student at Wallace State.

Bemidji State University's Luke Gillund and Robby Troje finished tournament runner-up with fish weighing 38 pounds, 6 ounces. Parker Davis and Austin Mize of UNA finished third.

Wallace State's duo also finished first among teams from Auburn, West Virginia, Indiana, Texas A&M, Oklahoma State and North Carolina.

Miller Spivey and Larry Partain also competed for Wallace State, hauling in a three-day total of 20 pounds, 8 ounces.

Ryan Shields and Chayse Freeman finished 17th for Wallace State last year at the Carhartt Bassmaster College Series National Championship.

In 2013, Ethan Flack and Logan Shaddix made Wallace State's debut at the national championship in the college's inaugural BASS club season.

Butts and Conner thanked all of the club's sponsors, including Freedom Marine Center in Albertville.

Any current or incoming Wallace State student who is interested in joining the club, can contact Cindy Maddox at 256-352-8031 or at cindy.maddox@wallacestate.edu.

Club membership is open to all Wallace State students, but tournament participants must be full-time Wallace State students in order to compete.

Heatherly pitching in the 2016 AHSAA 6A state championship series

Cullman's Heatherly drafted by Cincinnati Reds

Former Bearcat Thompson going to Cubs

Johnny Thornton
johnny@cullmansense.com

CULLMAN – Jacob Heatherly didn't have to wait long Tuesday to hear his name called in the Major League Baseball player draft.

The recent Cullman High graduate was taken in the third round by the Cincinnati Reds. He was the second pick Tuesday, following pitcher Blayne Enlow of St. Armant High School, who was chosen by the Minnesota Twins.

The approximate pick value, according to MLB.com for Heatherly, is $743,900.

Heatherly is coming off a solid senior season for the Bearcats, posting a 10-1 record with a 1.11 earned run average. Heatherly struck out 166 batters on the season and dominated the opposition all season, especially the playoffs, going 5-0, winning the first game of the 6A state championship series over Helena.

Heatherly's draft pick comes just two days after he was selected the Class 6A pitcher of the year by the Alabama Sportswriters Association.

Heatherly is the third player from the Alabama High School Athletic Association to be drafted.

Outfielder Bubba Thompson from McGill-Toolen in Mobile went 26th to the Texas Rangers, a first-round selection.

Pitcher Caden Lemons of Vestavia Hills High School was chosen 46th overall.

Lemons was a second-round selection for the Milwaukee Brewers.

A former Cullman pitcher, now in the SEC, was taken in the third round too. Right hander Keegan Thompson of the Auburn Tigers was selected as the 105th overall pick.

The former Cullman hurler was taken by the world champion Chicago Cubs. Thompson was the final pick of the third round.

Thompson was 7-4 for the Tigers, getting a win in the NCAA Regional at Tallahassee on June 2 against Central Florida.

Thompson threw a four-hitter and had a game-high nine strikeouts.

Through five rounds, the top prep player in Alabama remained undrafted. Pitcher/infielder Tanner Burns from Decatur, who was voted Mr. Baseball by the state sportswriters Sunday, was waiting to have his name called.

Burns and Heatherly faced each other on the mound in the quarterfinal round of the 6A playoffs May 15, with Heatherly and Cullman claiming a 2-1 victory.

Burns has reported he will head to Auburn University if not a high pick in the MLB draft. Heatherly was committed to play at the University of Alabama.

Heatherly was part of a program that finished second in Class 6A his junior and senior seasons. Cullman posted 89 wins between 2016 and 2017 against only 23 losses.
