Cullman EMA keeping an eye on Tropical Storm Cindy

NOAA NATIONAL HURRICANE CENTER

CULLMAN – The current weather situation in the Gulf with Tropical Storm Cindy has warranted concerns from weather and emergency services in Cullman.

According to the National Weather Service in Huntsville (as of press time), "The National Hurricane Center is tracking Tropical Storm Cindy over the northern Gulf of Mexico. The center of Cindy is forecast to make landfall early Thursday morning along the Texas and Louisiana border, then curve northward over Arkansas early Friday. This system will draw very moist air across the Tennessee Valley, resulting in numerous showers and thunderstorms from Thursday into early Saturday."

Phyllis Little, director of the Cullman Emergency Management Agency, says her office is on top of the storm.

"We are keeping an eye on the changing forecasts," Little said. "Both with the hurricane and the flash flooding in south Alabama."

Little said that, at this point, there is no anticipation of extremely dangerous weather hitting the Cullman area.

"I just came from the quarterly meeting with the North Alabama Mutual Aid, with all the other emergency services, and other than just heavy rain, we don't expect anything affecting Cullman," Little said. "It is not looking like there will be any tornadic activity, although you can't ever fully rule anything like that out."

Little also emphasizes that Cullman is better positioned to avoid flash flooding than surrounding counties.

"While we do have some flash flooding, that is usually because of drainage. Once the rain slows down, the water goes away," she said.

The cities of Cullman and Hanceville are taking no chances, though. Both cities have picked up empty sandbags to prepare for flooding situations should they arise.

Little said people can be prepared by staying aware of the changing weather situations, and not taking unnecessary chances.

"Don't drive into flooded areas," she said. "There are a couple new campaigns, 'Turn around, don't drown,' and 'When thunder roars, go indoors.'"

Little said the storm shelters around the Cullman area will only be opened in the case of a tornado watch being issued.

From NWS Huntsville

If it remains on the track of current models, Cindy is expected to come ashore as a tropical storm, then weaken to a tropical depression as it curves eastward over Arkansas early Friday morning. Later that day, the storm will pass through northwest Mississippi and Tennessee, arriving round Knoxville around 1 a.m. Saturday morning.

Rain showers are predicted throughout the day through Friday. From Thursday night through Friday night, the chance of bad weather increases, with a 70 percent chance of thunderstorms Friday evening. Gusting winds are expected to reach 30 miles per hour. Chances of precipitation will drop off sharply Saturday and Sunday.

Hanceville mayor talks Confederate monuments and potential costs

Hanceville Mayor Kenneth Nail wants New Orleans' Confederate monuments.

HANCEVILLE – White supremacist Dylann Roof's 2015 murder of nine members of the Emmanuel African Methodist Episcopal Church in Charleston, South Carolina, and the subsequent publication of photos of Roof posing with Confederate flags, touched off another in a series of national debates on the display of Confederate symbols. Possibly the most visible portion of that debate was the December 2015 vote of the New Orleans City Council to remove from public display three statues of Confederate leaders (Jefferson Davis, Robert E. Lee and Pierre Beauregard) and a monument marking the site of the Reconstruction era Battle of Liberty Place. After legal wrangling and maneuvering, all four came down earlier this year, concluding with the removal of the Lee statue in mid-May. Debate has ensued over what should become of the monuments.

Milo's delays grand opening

CULLMAN – Those hankering for a Milo's burger with a glass of the chain's famous sweet tea will have to wait just a bit longer. The restaurant's official ribbon cutting, planned for June 26, has been postponed due to expected heavy rains delaying the completion of the parking lot. A new date has not yet been set, but The Tribune will share the date as soon as it is confirmed.

Milo's will be located at 1830 Patriots Way SW, in the south Cullman retail district that is home to CiCi's and Chick-fil-A.

The Birmingham-based fast food chain is already well-known in the Cullman area for its sweet tea available through local grocery and convenience stores and has been highly anticipated.

"Milo's is expanding out of the Birmingham area and could choose anywhere to locate; we are glad they have chosen to make Cullman home to one of their 20 locations," said Susan Eller, project coordinator with the Cullman Economic Development Agency. "This company has a huge following for their sweet tea and I know everyone has been waiting and anticipating the opening of the Cullman location. Milo's will be »PAGE 3

West Cullman neighborhood stunned by midnight gunfire

Tribune Staff
staff@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN – A west Cullman neighborhood was startled awake minutes past midnight on Monday, June 19, when two rifle shots rang out from a house near the intersection of Jackson Street and Jackson Drive near the Cullman County Health Department.

Neighborhood resident Timmy G. Twilley, 49, was taken into custody by Cullman Police, charged with domestic violence and person forbidden to possess a firearm. Later that morning, his live-in female companion Lesa Jordan filed for and received a protective order against Twilley, claiming a history of abuse, particularly in the last two days before the incident. Jordan, who is disabled, claims that Twilley was heavily intoxicated when he allegedly beat her severely and fired two shots at her and her service dog inside the house they share.

Neither Jordan nor her dog were injured by gunfire, but Jordan was transported to the Cullman Regional emergency room for treatment of injuries sustained in the beating.

Neighbors, who asked not to be identified for their own safety, supported Jordan's account. They also claim that, despite his previous felony conviction, Twilley maintained a large personal collection of firearms.

The neighbors' account of events on the night of June 18 agreed with the alleged victim's claim on the protection order request that police officers had come to the home around 8 p.m., but did not disarm Twilley. According to the neighbor, the officers said they could not find any information on him in their system. Instead of arresting him on that first visit, they took him to a local hotel. He returned home around 11 p.m., soon resuming the behavior that led to the second call to police at 12:09 a.m., and ultimately to his arrest.

Cullman Police Sgt. Adam Clark said, "When officers went the first time, around 8, nothing had really happened at that point. Twilley was intoxicated, and the officers thought it would be best for them to be separated for the night. They took him to the Economy Inn, where he was going to stay the night."

Twilley apparently decided not to stay the night and instead left the motel and returned home. Clark said he didn't know how Twilley got home, whether on foot or if he got a ride. Twilley told Clark the next day that he couldn't remember the events of Sunday night.

"We got another call around 12:10 a.m. from the neighbor and the victim's mother that he had returned and was at the house," said Clark.

"Sgt. Chuck Shikle and officers Brandon Patterson, Clint Sanford, David Brooks and Philip Botelho all responded then. They talked to the victim, who said he (Twilley) had beat her."

At that time, Twilley was arrested for domestic violence.

Clark says there was evidence all around the house that shots had been fired. The CPD recovered two AR-15s, four handguns and one shotgun from the scene. A background check at that time revealed that Twilley has a 1999 conviction for manslaughter, and he wasn't allowed to possess a firearm, leading to the additional charge of person forbidden to possess a firearm.

As to why a background check wasn't run at the time of the first call, around 8 p.m., Clark says that no crime had been committed at that time. Twilley was intoxicated, so officers removed him from the situation and placed him in the motel. "You don't usually run a criminal history when a crime hasn't been committed," said Clark. "I think they did what was right."

Twilley was taken to the Cullman County Detention Center, and was assigned a $21,000 cash bond.

Neighbors said the incident has shaken the usually quiet neighborhood, where numerous children live.

"My heart breaks for her (Jordan). We thought he (Twilley) was just running his mouth; we were never expecting something like this.

"You think it's not going to happen to you; you think it's not going to happen to one of your friends. It's terrifying to know that something like this could happen here. Kids play down there. You don't imagine something like this happening here. It was crazy. It's like our entire world was turned upside down. We no longer feel safe here.

"We know our neighbors, we love our neighbors, and everyone looks out for each other. This has always been a peaceful neighborhood. I would never have imagined something as devastating as (Sunday) night would have happened."

Cullman man out on bond arrested for trafficking meth

wendy@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN – A Cullman man was arrested and charged with trafficking in methamphetamine following a traffic stop on Cherokee Avenue on Monday.

According to a media release from the Cullman Police Department, Officers Trey Higginbotham and Cole Kelly stopped a small sport utility vehicle on Cherokee Avenue for a traffic violation on June 19. The driver of the vehicle was identified as Jonathan Franklin Davis, 32.

After gaining consent to search the vehicle, the officers allegedly recovered more than 30 grams of methamphetamine hidden inside a food bag.

In addition to the trafficking charge, Davis also had an outstanding felony warrant and was out on bond from a June 1, 2017 arrest by the CPD for unlawful possession of a controlled substance and unlawful possession of drug paraphernalia.

Davis had a small child in the vehicle at the time of arrest, and the Cullman County Department of Human Resources responded to the scene.

Davis is being held in the Cullman County Detention Center.

Said Sgt. Chris Thomason, "I would like to commend Officers Higginbotham and Kelly on doing an outstanding job and removing these drugs from our community. If anyone has any drug information that they would like to pass on, please call 256-734-1434 or 256-775-7179."

New West Point fire station and storm shelter to officially debut July 15

Heather Mann
Tribune Correspondent

WEST POINT – West Point Mayor Kenneth Kilgo was happy to announce at this week's town council meeting that the community open house for the long-awaited new West Point Volunteer Fire Department station and Community Storm Shelter No. 2 will be Saturday, July 15, at the new fire station on Highway 157. The event, kicking off with an official ribbon cutting, will be from 10:30 a.m. - 2 p.m. with a display of fire trucks for the younger kids and a free barbecue lunch for everyone.

The new fire station is located at 11168 Alabama Highway 157, Cullman, AL 35057. West Point Community Storm Shelter No. 2 is at 11160 Alabama Highway 157, Cullman, AL 35057.

The council also welcomed Jolanda Hutson, executive director of the Good Samaritan Health Clinic. She talked about the services the clinic offers to low-income and uninsured patients, including treatment for both acute and chronic illnesses, limited dental work, and vision work. The clinic also offers health screenings for the community at public events and celebrations and has an upcoming screening in August in Colony.

After telling the council about the clinic's services, Hutson talked finances. She stated that it's more cost-effective for the community to treat people's afflictions at earlier stages for a lower cost than for them to go to the emergency room and have the costs written off as charity because the patients can't pay.

Hutson shared that the clinic is financed mostly through donations and said that any support from the community and the different municipalities would be a tremendous help.

The first order of old business addressed was a discussion of proposed sewer updates for the new subdivision on County Road 1141.

While there was a lot of conversation about it, there were no final decisions made. While still on the subject, Kilgo mentioned that he had already had several people express interest in living in the new subdivision, so the area's outlook is optimistic.

Other old business regarded the turn lane project on Highway 157. The project is on its way to getting started, so the meeting's discussion mainly focused on liability assurances for all parties involved and working on the financing agreement with ALDOT.

The council also discussed a potential medical clinic that might set up shop in West Point, but Kilgo said he is waiting on responses on a few logistical issues.

For the committee reports, Councilman Frankie Jones (Roads Committee) reported that some repairs were needed on County Road 1127 and that the council might need to talk to Good Hope in order to get the repairs started.

The Parks & Rec Committee report from Darion Daniel simply said that the netting around the ballpark needs replacing and that the canopies they wanted to get over the bleachers would need to be installed before the season starts. There was some discussion about whether or not the projects could be done all at one time or if it would be better to do them separately, but the consensus was that it would be best to start working next month. Overall, the council was very pleased with the way its investments in the park have paid off.

The West Point Town Council meets on the third Monday of each month at 6 p.m. at West Point Town Hall. The public is welcome to attend.

In a study published online by JAMA, researchers have determined that human papillomavirus (HPV) type-specific antibody responses would be non-inferior (not worse than) among girls and boys ages 9 to 14 years after receiving two doses of the 9-valent HPV vaccine compared with adolescent girls and young women ages 16 to 26 years who received the standard three doses.

An already available drug can help patients get back on their feet more rapidly after a hip fracture, according to an international study published in the Journal of Bone Joint Surgery. The results suggest that treatment with the drug accelerates the healing process in broken bones. The drug tested by the researchers, teriparatide, is based on a naturally occurring hormone, parathyroid hormone (PTH). Teriparatide is the active ingredient in human PTH and is currently used to treat osteoporosis (brittle bones). The hormone influences bone structure.

Two commonly prescribed statins appear to be associated with a higher risk of bleeding than others when combined with dabigatran, a drug often used for preventing strokes in patients with atrial fibrillation, according to a study published in the Canadian Medical Association Journal. Hemorrhage, or bleeding in a critical area or organ, is a possible side effect of dabigatran (brand name Pradaxa) and occasionally can be severe enough to warrant hospital admission or emergency department visits. Cholesterol-lowering statins such as lovastatin and simvastatin may increase the amount of dabigatran absorbed by the body and thereby increase the risk of bleeding, something other statins would not be expected to do.

Lions, Lionesses install new officers, celebrate members

Andrew Cryer
Tribune Correspondent

CULLMAN – The Cullman Lions and Lionesses held a joint dinner Monday night to install newly elected officers, celebrate 40 years of Cullman Lionesses and to present several awards to outstanding members.

New officers of the Lions, Lionesses are:

- President: Bill Ruehl, Carol Nielsen
- 1st Vice-President: Mike Ponder, Mary Daniel
- 2nd Vice-President: Andrew Manning, Tiffany Gambrill
- Secretary: Don Smith, Cynthia Tubbs
- Treasurer: Jerry Bonner, Penny Burkett
- Tail Twister: Richard Gurley, Sybil Tubbs
- Lion/Lioness Tamer: Dave Gratz, Heather Rabending
- Director: Howard Perry, Dottie Henke
- Director: Riley Smith, Judy Waldrep
- Director: Gary Murphree, Mary Caudle
- Director (Lions Club International): Chris Robinson
- Membership Chair: Frank Odell, Kaye Harbison
- Membership Vice-Chair: Scott Waldrep, Emma Thornton
- Membership: Fuller Smith, Nelda Powell

Jerry Bonner, treasurer of the Cullman Lions Club, shared, "The incoming president serves a year; all of the incoming officers serve a year unless re-elected." He laughed, "The president has never been reelected." Bonner says he views that as a good thing because the club always has someone who's willing to serve.

In celebration of 40 years of the Cullman Lionesses, Cullman City Councilwoman and President Pro Tem Jenny Folsom presented the Lionesses with a certificate of appreciation from the City of Cullman for their years of service to the community. Ten of the 52 charter members of the Lionesses were in attendance, standing alongside Folsom as the certificate was presented.

The Alabama Lions Sight Executive Director, Durden Dean, presented the first annual Helen Keller Legacy Award to Ed Henke, saying, "I want to thank the commitment of the Cullman Lions Club and the Cullman Lionesses Club to what Alabama Lions Sight has done since our founding... our honoree tonight for the first Helen Keller Legacy Award is truly a great ambassador for your clubs."

Other awards given included:

- Lion of the Year: Doug Spradlin
- Md-34 Award: Wendell Copeland
- Lioness of the Year: Judy Waldrep

After the officers were officially installed, both newly sworn-in presidents gave a brief speech.

Bill Ruehl shared, "I didn't realize that when I took the nomination for third vice-president what was going to happen down the road. It's come along, and I've looked forward to it. I look forward to this next year; we'll have a great time, a great club and we'll do great community service."

Said Carol Nielsen, "We were designed for good works. We work to make our community a better place to live, work and raise our families. I thank you for this opportunity to continue working as your president."

Late-inning comeback gives Cullman Dizzy Dean 12U district title

johnny@cullmansense.com

VINEMONT – Cullman's 12-under All Stars put together a comeback in the final two innings to overtake Winston County's All Stars 7-4 and win the Dizzy Dean 12-under District V title Monday night at the Vinemont Sports Complex.

Cullman managed just one run on three hits through the first four innings, thanks to good pitching by Winston County left-hander Eli Kennedy.

But in the fifth, Cullman capitalized on two balks by Kennedy, plus timely hits, to move back on top. They added three to their side of the scoreboard in the sixth and were able to shut down Winston County's serious threat in the final inning.

Cullman led 1-0 when Hunter Moore singled in the first, stole second and third and came home on a balk call against Kennedy while facing clean-up hitter Lane Parker.

Winston County answered with a run in the second on a single by Eli Edgil, who later scored when Kennedy grounded to Parker at the mound. Parker threw to first for the out, with the score locked at 1-1.

A two-run third by Winston County sent them into the lead. With one out, Sy Blanton walked and was awarded second on a balk by Parker. Following a strikeout of Briley Millican, Edgil blooped a single to center that scored Blanton and it was a 2-1 advantage for Winston County.

Edgil moved into scoring position and advanced home on a passed ball, giving them a 3-1 lead at the end of the third.

Then in the Cullman fifth, Zayden Calvert grounded into a fielder's choice, forcing Logan Brothers out at second. Calvert took second on a balk by Kennedy, stole third base and came in when the throw to third sailed into left field to narrow the margin to 3-2.

Moore was safe on a fielding error, then another balk by Kennedy trying to stop Moore from another stolen base tied the game at 3-3.

The inning was extended when Ty Federer's pop fly was dropped at second, allowing Parker to step to the plate.

Parker took the first pitch and ripped the ball up the middle, scoring Federer, and Cullman was in front at 4-3. The local team manufactured three runs in the fifth on one hit, three errors and two balks.

Parker was able to keep Winston County scoreless in the fourth and fifth, retiring six of seven batters he faced in the span.

Cullman added to its lead in the sixth on a run-scoring single by Brothers, an RB I single by Calvert and a passed ball that scored Drew Carter.

Winston County produced a run in its final at bat on a ground out to first by Brody Tidwell that scored Kennedy. Kennedy singled with one out in the inning, went to second on a passed ball and third on a stolen base.

But Parker regrouped and finished the 1 hour, 36-minute contest by getting Eli Green who tried to bunt his way on for a hit. Parker ran in front of the plate and threw a strike to Carter to end the game.

Cullman was 4-0 in the tournament that started on Friday.

Winston County defeated Vinemont in the semifinals by the score of 8-2, giving them a chance to play for the district title.

Parker got the win by allowing six hits and striking out six, including one batter through the final four innings. Kennedy suffered the loss, but pitched well, yielding seven hits and striking out five.

Cullman, Winston County and Vinemont advance to the Dizzy Dean Area Tournament this weekend at Holly Pond Park. Pairings will be announced later by Dizzy Dean Baseball.

Cullman All-Stars 12U coaches are Kevin Gentry, Doug Gaines, Chris Calvert, Heath Parker, Steve Moore, Tom Calligaris and Rusty Daniel.

Garden City council still shaken by loss of Councilman Gene Norman

W.C. Mann
craig@cullmansense.com

GARDEN CITY – At Monday evening's meeting, the Garden City Town Council was still visibly shaken by the recent and sudden death of Councilman Gene Norman. Norman passed away Monday, June 12 of a reported heart attack. His burial took place on the day of his 47th birthday. Before the meeting, several observations were made. Councilman and Mayor Pro Tempore Scott Arnold cited Hanceville Funeral Home as reporting that Norman drew the largest number of attendants ever for a visitation and funeral.

Arnold also talked about moving forward without his friend and fellow councilman, "It ain't going to be normal; we're going to have to get used to a new normal. Gene wasn't perfect, ain't none of us perfect. But I'll tell you what: if you wanted an example of a Christian man, he was a Christian man. He strived every day to do what's right.

"He's sorely missed. At church, before service every Sunday, we always gather all our men together in the back room and we pray. Gene was always the one that volunteered to pray. Yesterday, our circle was smaller."

The council announced a resolution in Norman's honor:

REMEMBERING COUNCILMEMBER MILES EUGENE "GENE" NORMAN

WHEREAS, it is a great sadness to the town of Garden City, Alabama to lose one of its important and distinguished citizens; and

WHEREAS, Gene Norman was a faithful Councilmember of Garden City's Town Council from 2012 to 2017; and

WHEREAS, Gene Norman was a faithful member of Garden City's Planning Commission from 2002 to 2017; and

WHEREAS, Gene Norman served selflessly as a volunteer firefighter for Garden City's Volunteer Fire Department for several years; and

WHEREAS, Gene Norman was greatly loved and respected among those who knew him, both personally and professionally; and

WHEREAS, the Town of Garden City extends its most sincere condolences to Gene's family and friends; and

NOW, THEREFORE, the Town of Garden City fondly remembers our friend and fellow Councilmember who will be tremendously missed.

The resolution was tabled for the next meeting, as one council member was absent, and it was desired that all members should be able to sign the statement together.

Action to fill Norman's seats on the council and planning commission was tabled to be taken up at a later meeting.

In other business, the council approved a resolution reporting to the Alabama Department of Environmental Management that the Town has reviewed the annual Municipal Water Pollution Prevention report and found no issues in the town's water system that needed to be addressed.

The council also accepted a bid from John's Paving to seal coat at the town hall and park, and approved the placement of "children playing" signs on Boundary Avenue.

The Garden City Town Council meets on the third Monday of each month at 6 p.m. at Garden City Town Hall.

The public is welcome to attend.

Monuments (from Front)

In a letter to New Orleans Mayor Mitch Landrieu, Nail wrote:

"I would like to respectfully request for you and your city council to consider donating these monuments to the City of Hanceville. We have located in our city a Veterans Memorial Park that honors all Veterans and all struggles. We would put these monuments on display there. They would be safely protected and enjoyed by all people who visit the park."

According to the Associated Press, Landrieu's office said this week it is preparing a response to Nail's request, saying it is "working on a request for proposals from nonprofits and government agencies that will place the monuments in what New Orleans officials deem to be a more appropriate place than the high-profile spots they once occupied."

Nail sat down with The Tribune to talk about his proposal.

"It just seemed like, to me, it's a shame just to take them down and throw them away," he began.

"And I get it; I understand that different symbols mean different things to different people. But this is where my heart is: it's not racist, it's not hate; it's about heritage, it's about history. It's about lifting each other up. It's about the struggles that we all have had: white, African-American, North, South.

"I've been to most Civil War battlefields, because I'm a big history buff. Slavery was terrible, a terrible time in our history. I'm glad it's over. We should never put down any man regardless of their color. But we've got to remember this history.

"What I'd like for people to do, when you look at a statue of Robert E. Lee, Jefferson Davis or Beauregard, don't just think about that person. Look at the big picture; look at the whole struggle. Think about where the African-Americans came from. They're the ones that had the hardest time; let's be honest. We don't want to put a thought of anything negative in anybody's head, but I ask them to look at it with an open mind."

On locating the monuments in Veterans Park

Nail shared, "I just thought Veterans Park is a great little place. People go down there to walk, to reflect, to exercise; and my thing is, if we had those statues down there, it would give people a chance to go down there and reflect- reflect on the mistakes we've made in the past, and think about how we can do better in the future."

On local response to the proposal

Comments on the mayor's Facebook page, as well as general talk around town, have been largely positive and supportive of Nail's effort.

Numerous area residents, and even people from outside Alabama, have offered to contribute money to help fund the project.

Even so, the mayor admits that he has not pleased everyone.

"Yesterday I got a call from an African-American man who said he lived at Colony," Nail explained, "very nice man, very respectful- and he said he would just prefer that they not be brought here. I explained to him, 'What I'd like you to think about is to look at the big picture and think about the mistakes that all of us has made.'

"One of my good black friends came to me yesterday and said, 'Mayor, I think what you're trying to do is a good and noble thing.' I put both hands on his shoulders and looked him in the eye, and said, 'You know I'm no racist.' He said, 'I know that. I know what you're trying to do.'

"Now, these people that live in Birmingham or other places- honestly, I don't care what they think. I work for the people here in this community. If they're happy with it, that's what we're going to go for. I could care less what they think in Atlanta, Georgia or New York."

The potential cost of the project

Louisiana's Lieutenant Governor Billy Nungesser requested that Landrieu turn the monuments over to the State, for preservation at one of its battlefield parks or another historic site.

Landrieu refused, but invited the state government to participate in an anticipated bidding process for them. Deputy New Orleans Mayor Ryan Berni said that bids would be considered both qualitatively- considering how the monuments would be displayed and used--and quantitatively- considering how much money particular bidders offered.

Whether or not a bidding process will actually be used has not yet been determined by the New Orleans City Council.

Nail said that such a bidding process amounted to holding the monuments hostage, and wants to assure Hanceville residents that no public funds would be expended to purchase or relocate them.

Nail emphasized, "I'm not going to burden the taxpayers of Hanceville with a million-dollar bill to buy those statues, not going to do it. We're too small, we can't afford that. There's other things in day-to-day living in this town that we'd have to first, and that would be a priority.

"I would love to have the statues. I will raise the money to go get the statues and put them on a proper pedestal at Veterans Park. One big trucking company has called me, and has offered his services. He hauls big, heavy loads, and he said, 'I will go to New Orleans and get those statues, and bring them back to Hanceville at no charge. I understand what you're trying to do.'"

The final word

"Again, for me it's not about hate; it's about heritage," said the mayor. "It's thinking about the mistakes we made in the past, and where we can go in the future. This race thing- we've still got a ways to go; we sure do. We all can work on it. We need to learn how to get along. We need to learn how to live side by side with people of all races. I think it's a great thing that we live in harmony with each other, that we respect each other.

"The haters are going to hate; there's nothing I can do about that.

"They don't know Kenneth Nail, they don't know my heart, they don't know my intent. I don't want to offend anybody; I promise I don't. But some people are just looking to be offended. Get over it. Life goes on. Lift each other up, be kind, don't disrespect anybody."

Heatherly signs $1 million deal with Cincinnati Reds; area coaching roundup

johnny@cullmansense.com

CULLMAN – A week after being selected in the MLB draft by the Cincinnati Reds, Cullman left-hander Jacob Heatherly signed a contract with the National League franchise, valued at $1,047,500. Heatherly was guaranteed $743,900 when he was drafted. A $300,000 signing bonus put him over $1 million.

Heatherly, the Class 6A pitcher of the year, was the 77th pick taken in the draft, the second player chosen in the third round.

Heatherly had a 10-1 record his senior year at Cullman with a 1.11 earned run average. He struck out 166 batters on the season and was unstoppable with a 5-0 record in the playoffs.

Heatherly has been clocked with a fastball at 90-95 miles per hour and has excellent off-speed pitches.

Heatherly was taken to the Reds' rookie team in Arizona last Thursday and is ready to work his way through the organization.

Softball coach steps down at Cullman

Stephanie Conner submitted her resignation as softball coach at Cullman High School on Monday. The decision was accepted by the city school board.

Conner was in command of Cullman softball since 2013, with the program rising to a very serious competitive level in the last three years.

Conner directed the team to three consecutive AHSAA Elite Eight appearances. The best finish was fourth by the Lady 'Cats in 2016 in Class 6A.

In 2017, Cullman overcame a slow start with a strong finish and reached the 6A state by a dramatic finish in the North Regional in mid-May in Huntsville.

Her final squad finished with a record of 30-21-1. Conner is reported to be expecting her first child in the wintertime.

The process to replace Conner is currently underway by the school's administration.

Susan Moore having to fill football coaching vacancy

Susan Moore High School is dealing with the task of replacing Ken Adams as head football coach and athletic director after he submitted a letter of resignation to principal Mike Stansberry June 14.

Adams was in charge of the football team and athletics for two seasons.

Stansberry reported to AL.com that Adams will retire in the state of Alabama and coach in the state of Mississippi. Adams is a graduate of Mississippi State University.

JOSH MCBRAYER/THE CULLMAN TRIBUNE

Stansberry and his administration are in the process of replacing the two vacant positions at the 3A school in Blount County.

Vacancies could be filled by the end of the week

Vacancies at the following schools in the Cullman County system could be filled by Thursday, when the next meeting of the school board takes place.

Fairview High School is in search of a basketball coach. Cullman freshman coach Branch Whitlock has been the acting coach for the Aggies during their summer play-day schedule.

Vinemont High School is in the process of replacing football coach Matt Norris after his contract was not extended following the end of the 2016-17 school year. Also, Principal Ferrell Runge has two weeks remaining in his position as he will officially retire on June 30.

The Eagles have been accepting applications and talking to candidates in trying to fill the vacancy. Vinemont was 3-17 in two seasons with Norris in command.

Holly Pond High School is currently working to replace Paige Adams, who stepped down as girls' basketball coach on June 13.

Adams coached the varsity for one season and was directing the team in a series of play days when she suddenly turned in her resignation to Principal Kim Butler a day after The Tribune covered Holly Pond in a play-day series at Falkville.
