An afternoon at the airport

NICK GRIFFIN/THE CULLMAN TRIBUNE

Cullman Regional Airport hosted the public on Wednesday, showcasing the airport and sharing future plans.

Nick Griffin
Tribune Correspondent

VINEMONT – Cullman Regional Airport hosted "An Aviation Afternoon at the Airport" Wednesday to showcase the airport and share plans for some upcoming additions.

The airport provides many services to the Cullman area. It is equipped to handle a large variety of aircraft, from corporate jets and turboprops to industry needing cargo brought in and shipped out. It also caters to private pilots and aviation enthusiasts of all kinds. The airport serves local businesses' personnel and cargo transport needs and hosts the Wallace State Community College Aviation program, Skydive Alabama, Air Evac Lifeteam, Alabama State Troopers and the Cullman City Police Department.

General Manager Ben Harrison shared his thoughts on the airport's role in the community.

"We're the airport of the community, so what the airport does is it drives an economic development factor in the community. We host companies that are coming in to do economic development within the community," Harrison said. "We also have industries here like Air Evac, the State Troopers, the police department and Skydive Alabama, so do we have a driver of business here at the airport."

Wednesday's event highlighted the recently completed south taxiway and plans for the north taxiway. In July, the Cullman City Council passed three resolutions to make improvements at the airport. Two of the three authorized the first phase of a two-year project to improve the airport's taxiway, while the third set the stage for continuation and completion of the project in 2018.

"Phase one is basically going to be directly in front of the terminal. We've got some issues where our connector between the apron and taxiway are not large enough, so we're going to reconstruct that connector, and then reconstruct the base of the taxiway to hold up larger aircraft," said Harrison at the time. "We have a runway that will hold a heavier aircraft, we have an apron that will hold a heavier aircraft; we just have to get the taxiway connected to them."

The scope of the project is large enough to be carried out in two parts, based on the fiscal calendar.

Harrison continued in July, "So, the way it's going to have to go, with the length of the taxiway, it's going to be a two-phase project. Phase two will be the next fiscal year: wherever we leave off with phase one, we'll just pick up with phase two." On Wednesday, Harrison shared, "The north taxiway is going to be the next project, it's going to be a two-phase project because of what all is going to have to go into that to make it a structurally sound project. So once we get the north taxiway done then we'll start on the runway. We still have an extension in the plan but we had to push that out a bit further to get some of this other stuff done."

This year's project builds upon another recently-completed project on the south taxiway.

"The south taxiway is totally complete," Harrison told The Tribune at the council meeting. "That project was finished up this year. Then the north taxiway has to be brought up to speed, as well."

In its entirety, the project does not mean an expansion of the airport's runways and taxiways, but an equalization of the quality and capabilities of all existing paved surfaces for aircraft. The resolutions passed by the council awarded a bid for phase one to Wiregrass Construction Company in the amount of $512,685.41, and approved Mayor Woody Jacobs to enter into a grant agreement with the Federal » PAGE 4

Quietly making a difference

At this week's meeting, Cullman Kiwanis club members enjoyed a visit from local country western trio "Behind the Times."

CULLMAN – On Monday, I was invited to help get a monkey off someone's back. Actually, it wasn't a monkey; it was an ape, a near-life-size plush toy orangutan named Otto that members who don't bring a guest to a local weekly lunch might be obliged (by lottery) to carry home with them to be ape-sat until the next meeting. Thus, I was introduced to the Cullman Kiwanis Club.

The local chapter of Kiwanis International meets for a fellowship lunch at noon each Monday in Christ Hall at St. John's Evangelical Protestant Church. The meal is no snack; it has choices of entrees, vegetables, soups, salads, desserts and drinks. Each lunch gathering features some type of program that may be a speaker from local government or another organization; sometimes it's just fun entertainment, like this week's meeting when the local country western trio "Behind the Times" put on a mini concert. It's a good time for professionals to network, and a great time for friends to catch up. And someone gets an orangutan.

Obviously, these are people who know how to laugh, and who enjoy being happy, but there's more to the Cullman Kiwanis Club than good food (very good, by the way) and oversize plushies. The motto of Kiwanis International is "Serving the Children of the World." Around the world each year, members dedicate more than 18 million hours to roughly 150,000 service projects, and raise more than $100 million. As stated on their website, "Through service projects and fundraisers, Kiwanis members improve their communities, make lifelong friendships, and, most » PAGE 5

CHS broadcast team ranked top in state

craig@cullmansense.com

CULLMAN – Did you know that Cullman High School (CHS) has its own broadcast network? It does, and it's really something. Recently, the school's faculty-led and student-staffed broadcast team, the Cullman High School Broadcast Network, was recognized as the top team in the state by the National Federation of State High School Associations (NFHS).

CHS' network is part of the NFHS' School Broadcast Program (SBP), which provides schools a means to livestream school events, and provides students a hands-on introduction to the world of broadcasting, via the federation's network.

On its website, the NFHS says, "A significant factor in the expansion of the (NFHS) Network has been the SBP, which last year gave more than 1,400 schools the opportunity to produce and stream live content for the Network. Schools that become part of the SBP can showcase not only their school's athletic events, but any school activities ranging from band competitions to graduation ceremonies.

"The SBP also gives students interested in production and broadcast journalism a chance to gain experience and display their talent on the national stage, something that was largely » PAGE 6

Moore (47.52 percent) and Democrat Doug Jones (65.85 percent) as their nominees for the U.S. Senate seat once held by U.S. Attorney Gen. Jeff Sessions. Statewide, the voter gap between Moore and incumbent Republican U.S. Sen. Luther Strange was much narrower, with Moore taking 38.9 percent of the vote and Strange 32.76 percent. Strange garnered 31.03 percent of the vote in Cullman County. The voters of Alabama will be heading to a Republican run-off election on Sept. 26. The general election will be Dec. 12.

Following Tuesday night's primary, leaders of the local Democratic and Republican Parties issued statements.

Said Cullman County Republican Party Chairman Waid Harbison, "We are very pleased with the results of last night's election with two great candidates emerging in Luther Strange and Roy Moore who will face off in six weeks in the run-off election.

"We had a very strong slate of candidates and we want to congratulate all the campaigns who did not prevail last night for their dedication and work in the campaign.

"I do want to encourage everyone to make sure they vote in the run-off election. Turnout was much lower last night with just 20 percent participation compared to over 60 percent in our last election for Cullman County. This is one of the most important officials we elect in Alabama, and our next U.S. senator will have to carry on our conservative principles and lead the fight in Washington to repeal and replace ObamaCare, lower and simplify the tax structure, ensure a strong military and protect our rights. I hope those who did not vote in the primary still rally together in the runoff to make sure we are electing the absolute best candidate to represent us in Washington.

"The local party is alive and strong as over 92 percent of ballots in Cullman County were Republican-cast ballots. We also were one of the top 10 counties in the number of actual Republican voters who turned out, but let's try to improve on these numbers going into the runoff!"

Shortly after Doug Jones was proclaimed the winner of the Democratic primary, the executive committee of the Cullman County Democratic Party officially endorsed him, saying, "We are so proud of all the qualified candidates that ran for the Senate primary. Now that the primaries are over the Cullman County Democrats officially endorse the winner Doug Jones and look forward to working with him and his campaign."

School boards issue statements on eclipse

W.C. Mann
craig@cullmansense.com

CULLMAN COUNTY – Cullman City Schools Superintendent Dr. Susan Patterson and Cullman County Schools Superintendent Shane Barnette issued policy statements this week on next Monday's solar eclipse.

City Schools

According to Patterson, parents who want to have their children out of school to see the eclipse may do so, as long as they send a note to the school by this Friday.

This absence will not count toward the five allowed parent notes.

Students at any city school that day will not go outside to view the eclipse.

Instead, classrooms with televisions will show NASA's live broadcast of the event.

County Schools

Barnette stated that students from kindergarten through second grade will remain inside their buildings during the solar event.

For older elementary, and for middle and high school students, outdoor viewing will be at the individual discretion of each principal.

Principals who allow students to go outside to view the event directly will be responsible to make sure that each student doing so has approved eye protection.

Things you need to know

In north Alabama, the eclipse will begin at noon, reach maximum coverage (95 percent) at around 1:30 p.m., and will conclude just before 3 p.m.

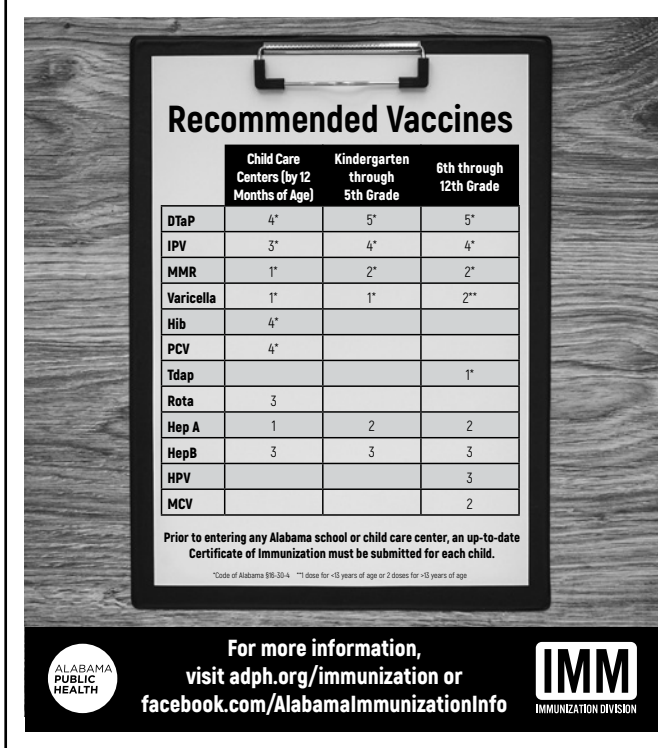

Many imported viewing shades are not approved for viewing the sun, and can actually harm the eyes.

"Eclipser" wearable sun shades by American Paper Optics are highly recommended by numerous eclipse authorities, and are available at Walmart and Lowe's.

Taking one-fourth the standard dose of a widely used drug for prostate cancer with a low-fat breakfast can be as effective-and one-fourth as expensive-as taking the standard dose as recommended on an empty stomach. The finding has significant financial implications. The drug, abiraterone acetate-marketed as ZYTIGA – now retails for more than $9,000 per month. Even patients with blue-ribbon health insurance can have co-pays ranging from $1,000 to $3,000 per month. Patients taking abiraterone acetate typically stay on the medication for 12 to 18 months. The American Cancer Society estimates that 161,360 men will be diagnosed with prostate cancer in 2017 and 26,730 men will die from the disease.

Nine years ago, SWOG (a cancer research organization) researchers confirmed a new standard of care for patients with incurable gastrointestinal stromal tumors (GIST), who could survive by being treated with imatinib mesylate, the breakthrough drug marketed as Gleevec.

Now long-term findings from that study estimate that nearly one in four patients treated with Gleevec will survive ten years. Results are published in JAMA Oncology. GISTs are different from more common types of gastrointestinal tumors because of the type of tissue in which they start. GISTs belong to a group of cancers called soft-tissue sarcomas. Soft-tissue sarcomas develop in the tissues that support and connect the body, including muscles, nerves, tendons and joints. GIST is a rare cancer, with about 6,000 new cases diagnosed in the United States each year.

CP&R hot topic at council meeting: swim, dive champions honored; report on Heritage Park

W.C. Mann
craig@cullmansense.com

W.C. MANN/THE CULLMAN TRIBUNE

Members of the Cullman swim and dive teams were recognized by the council.

CULLMAN – On Monday evening, the Cullman City Council hosted a crowd of guests as Cullman Parks and Recreation (CP&R) activities took center stage.

The council presented a resolution honoring the 2017 Cullman Swim and Dive Teams for numerous accomplishments this season, including:

- Alabama Recreation and Parks Association (ARPA) state dive team champions, with five individual state first-place finishes from Reagan Ogstad, Cort McNeel, Reese McNeel, and Garrison Haigh
- ARPA district dive team meet second place, with five individual district champions
- The Cullman Swim Team had two individual state champions: Mason Fuller (25-yard male freestyle) and Cabri Adams (50-yard female backstroke)

In addition to the swim and dive teams, CP&R Director Nathan Anderson was on hand to give an update on Heritage Park, and to comment on the recent McKenzie ASA Classic Pro/Am archery tournament at St. Bernard.

"The big thing we've been working on this summer," said Anderson, "is getting everything back after Rock the South, with all the rain. I think, considering how much rain we had after the event, it's gone quite well. Just so everyone understands, there was over three weeks' worth of rain delays in the reconstruction of those fields.

"So it did push us back a little later than we were comfortable with; however, we did discuss this with the ASA (Alabama Youth Soccer Association) representatives before we started, because it affected them more than anyone. And we have always had a date of Sept. 1; that was the direction we were aiming, and I think we'll be there.

"There's a few spots on the soccer fields I'm not completely confident that we will open up on that main big field, but it will be minimal. But, overall, it's come back quite nicely. We're just going to continue to walk it and address anything that's left with top dressing and fertilizer, and rain, and pray for some sunshine. That's going to be our big friend, going forward.

"Everything else for the events ha(s) gone quite well. The archery tournament, I'm happy to report, went smoothly. We had over 500 more archers than we've ever had historically, with this event, and that's a lot of bodies when you think about it. These are people from all over the country. Everything went well, as far as for the most part, for lodging, and they had a great experience while they were here, with Celebrate Cullman, with our community, with restaurants and businesses. They couldn't say enough good about our community. The tournament director was very pleased and excited about planning next year.

"Everything else is going quite well. The Midnight Run was really good; we had over a hundred more runners than we did last year. Second Friday continues to grow, so everything's going well."

Other council business

Council President Pro Tem Jenny Folsom gave a brief financial report, noting that city revenue is up by more than $646,000 during the first nine months of fiscal year 2017, a 2.7 percent increase over last year. Expenses rose, but were mostly planned expenses like the new fire station.

The council suspended the rules of procedure to pass an ordinance annexing property at 94 County Road 701. Annexation was requested by the property owners, and received a favorable recommendation after review by the City Planning Commission.

The council unanimously approved the following resolutions:

- to award the bid for a milling machine to the lowest responsible bidder, Robert Ingram, in the budgeted amount of $49,995
- to award the bid for a sweeper broom to the lowest responsible bidder, Bobcat of Huntsville, in the budgeted amount of $3,647
- to award the bid for pipe-fusing equipment to the lowest responsible bidder, Consolidated Pipe & Supply, in the budgeted amount of $63,555
- to authorize a one-time payment to retirees from city employment through the Employees' Retirement System of Alabama. This resolution, based on a legislative act, will give each city retiree $24 for each year they were employed by the city.
- to enter into a professional services contract with Kathy Johnson, former director of the Alabama Broadband Initiative, related to the Gigabit City Project. The purpose of this project is to strengthen the city government's electronics and communications infrastructure via a fiber optic network that will eventually become the backbone of an improved system for all city residents.
- to amend the City of Cullman Position Control Detail and incorporate it into the fiscal year 2017 city budget. This corrects job classifications within the existing city Position Control ordinance.

The Cullman City Council meets on the second and fourth Monday nights of each month at 7 p.m. in the Cullman City Hall Auditorium. The public is invited to attend.

Good Hope renews deputy contract

Heather Mann
Tribune Correspondent

GOOD HOPE – The Good Hope City Council this week approved the City's annual agreement with the Cullman County Sheriff's Office, continuing the contract of Deputy Chad Chapman as the city's assigned patrol deputy. Good Hope will pay the sheriff's office $40,000 per year - most of which will go toward the deputy's salary, with the remainder funding training, supplies and equipment expenses.

After the council approved minutes from the last meeting, as well as financials for July, Councilman Maxie Jones (Roads) proudly stated, "Everyone is pleased with what the City of Good Hope is doing with the roads."

Mayor Jerry Bartlett echoed the sentiment, saying roads look better than he's ever seen and that infrastructure work is going well.

Councilwoman Susan Eller (Utilities) brought in Grady Parsons from Living Water Services to talk about the city's sewer system. Parsons stated that July's heavy rainfall (around 10 inches) resulted in the water plant running an average of 300,000 gallons per day, peaking at almost 500,000 some days, but there were no complications.

He also reported that the water quality was "pristine," then discussed a clarifier that would need to be cleaned within the next few weeks when the water covering it dries up.

Councilman Greg Brown (Community Service) said that the back-to-school bash was a success.

Approximately 300 hamburgers and hotdogs were served, and there were enough door prizes for almost every child who attended.

"He also reported that the Girl Scouts are hoping to build a neighborhood food pantry in the park soon.

Councilman Taft Dillashaw (Parks) stated that the City would likely have a basketball half-court poured, painted, lit and ready for use within the next couple of months.

The council then accepted and approved the 2015-16 completed annual audit, which got good feedback from the auditor.

The Good Hope City Council meets the second and fourth Mondays of each month at 6:30 p.m. at Good Hope City Hall.

The public is always welcome.

Aviation Administration for the project. Under the grant terms, the City and County will only have to pay five percent of that cost. The council also approved a proposal to apply for additional funding for next year's phase two.

Harrison shared at Wednesday's event, "We are an economic development driver for the city of Cullman and for all of Cullman County.

"We don't do economic development, but we host the companies that are coming in, that are doing economic development here. I would say, pretty much all the large industry, at some point in time, always has someone coming into the airport several times per year, whether it be executives, whether it be air cargo that they need, whether it be people coming in to do business with them. So, constantly, we have someone coming in that deals with all the local major suppliers."

Harrison also talked about some of the partnerships the airport is involved with that he feels have been mutually beneficial for them and the community.

"One of the other industries we have here is Air Evac; we have (the) Air Evac base here which is if anyone is an Air Evac member this is the base helicopter that will come get you in the event of an accident or an emergency. We also have their southeast regional MRO facility so that is the maintenance and repair facility for all the aircraft in the region so that has been an excellent partnership for us as well. We hope to capitalize on that and even help them expand."

Thanks to several business services the airport provides as well as attractions like Skydive Alabama, Harrison says he can see the interest in the airport growing both economically and recreationally.

"We've definitely seen an increase in traffic and involvement from last year to this year and every year we seem to be doing a little bit better.

"That's the goal is to keep driving it and moving it forward."

The facility even has its own restaurant, The Prop, open for breakfast and lunch Thursdays through Sundays.

City school board previews budget, recognizes achievements

W.C. Mann
craig@cullmansense.com

CULLMAN – The Cullman City School Board this week recognized the achievements of staffers and schools, and got its first official look at the proposed budget for fiscal year 2018.

Achievements

System Student Services Coordinator Dr. Richard Templeton was recognized for his appointment as Director of the Alabama Council of Administrators of Special Education on the CLAS Board of Directors for 2017-18. The Board of Education itself received a 2017 Beautification Award from the Cullman County People Against a Littered State (PALS) committee.

Cullman Primary School and West Elementary School both received 2017 Beautification Awards from PALS.

Cullman Primary won the county PALS first-place Clean Campus Award. East Elementary School won the county PALS second-place Clean Campus Award.

Budget

At a hearing before the regular meeting, Chief School Financial Officer Russell Raney presented a preliminary budget for fiscal year 2018.

- Total of all revenues and other financing sources: $34,684,791.43

- Total of all expenditures and other fund uses $34,051,239.12

With the surplus in this budget added to money already in the system's account, the budget predicted that the system will have $8,236,549.49 in the bank at the end of FY 2018.

Local funding is expected to benefit from a $150,000 increase in sales and ad valorem taxes, while funding from the state board is dropping slightly. The system's reserve fund will be able to cover up to two-and-a-half months of operating costs, placing the system's reserve capability in the top third of the 137 school systems in the state.

The final budget will be approved at a special meeting on Sept. 14, one day ahead of the deadline for submission of that budget to the state. The board will meet at 5 p.m. in the central office boardroom; the public is invited to attend.

importantly, help children thrive, prosper and reach their full potential."

Longtime Cullman Kiwanis members Martha Burchell and Melba Palys (who, with her late husband Bob Palys, were driving forces in area high school Key Clubs) talked about what their local chapter does for Cullman County.

Burchell: "We serve our community; we serve Key Clubs; we've got four."

Palys: "We sponsor four: Cullman, Fairview, Holly Pond and Addison. They (Cullman Kiwanis Club members) provide moral support, which we obviously need; they provide money for our kids to go to leadership conferences and conventions. Our kids come and work projects with Kiwanis like Pancake Day, and I'm lining them up to come help with the dog show.

"We both benefit. I tell (the Key Club members) all the time, 'If there's something that you need from Kiwanis, just tell me, and I'll see what I can do to get it for you. And (Kiwanians) have been so supportive; we couldn't exist as a Key Club without them.

"At the end of each year, each school (with a Key Club) has been getting a $500 scholarship for a while.

"But last year we had a good fundraising year, so this year it was $1,000, and we give two scholarships to each of those four schools."

Burchell: "In addition to just the Key Clubs, we do a lot of support for the community, wherever there's a need: knapsack ministry, the shoebox ministry which is just opening up right now, and we support the parks and recreation. Our Key Clubbers do this: they go every year to the Special Olympics."

Palys: "It'd be hard to put a name to everything that we do; most of it others don't know about."

Burchell: "Most of it is done without any recognition. We just see a need and provide it."

Palys: "We're very proud of what we do. I think we're a very important part of the community. We're a well-kept secret; we talk about that all the time. A lot of people don't know we exist."

Burchell: "I think we're the best-kept secret in Cullman, because we do a lot that nobody knows anything about. It's not that we're trying to do it under the table or anything, it's just that we don't broadcast it. We just see a need and provide it."

Palys: "I agree with her. Some organizations want their name on their project; they want it labeled that this is a certain project for such-and-such club. But we don't ever really do that.

"We just do these things, we raise this money, and through the year we give it out to people that need it, organizations that need it. I'm just proud of what support we give to everybody; we spread it around."

Schools involved in the SBP can be recognized for excellence in their work through the awarding of "Select" and "Elite" status to high-performing schools. Recently, CHS was named an Elite School, the only school in Alabama to receive that rating.

The Tribune contacted CHS' program director John Drake for more information about what he and his students are doing.

Who are the members of your broadcast team?

"The members of my broadcast team are primarily current students. Last year's students that have graduated were Abbie Kate Hancock, Caleb Coley, Wheeler Eastman, Carter Bowen, Noah Fondren, Ann Carol Braswell, Lexi Clemons, John Brown, Isabella Gardner, Zachary Bell, Bishop Lee, Alyssa Pylant and Clay Tomlin. Abbie Kate Hancock is studying broadcast communication at Mississippi State University. Lexi Clemons is studying graphic art and design at Spring Hill in Mobile. Lexi designed our Cullman High School Broadcast Network Logo.

"My returning students from last year's broadcast team are Kacy Burroughs, Dawson Culver and Carley Byerley. Our new broadcast students to the Cullman High School Broadcast Network (CHSBN) team are Isabella Allred, Nicholas Braswell, Hayden Henderson, Caroline Hollingsworth, Ben Hollis, Elijah Kilpatrick, Matthew Brock, Cole Lawrence, Jady Pipes, Alex Stansell, Ninfa Moreno, Ethan Hendrix and Austin Stricklin. In addition, I have 20 more students that have signed up the first week of school wanting to be a part of our broadcast network."

How long have you been involved in the SBP?

"We became involved with the SBP/NFHS on January 28, 2016, when we broadcast our first sporting event. It was a home basketball game against Decatur. I actually became involved in TV production and multimedia production when I taught at Wallace State approximately 15 years ago. I then had the opportunity to teach television production in 2006 at Cullman High School when CHS needed a teacher to manage the on-campus television station and teach multimedia and television production.

"We knew about the SBP/NFHS network a few years back, but things did not come together for us until early 2016. I actually had four seniors at that time that kept pushing me to livestream. They kept telling me that I had promised to let them broadcast sporting events via the internet before they graduated. Spencer Allen, Fred Craft, Mason Felps and Griffin McCravy were those four seniors that were responsible for getting us on air for the first time.

"They graduated in 2016 and will still make an appearance to help us broadcast some events even now. All four of them are currently working full-time or part-time in the multimedia business world. Mason and Griffin are doing primarily audio production, while Spencer is doing a combination of video and audio production. Fred is currently working at WBTV 3 in Charlotte as a field reporter after graduating from the Connecticut School of Broadcasting in Charlotte."

What has participating in the program done for the school or for your students?

"Participating in the program has been an incredible experience for my students and Cullman High School. My students get hands-on, real-world experience. They get to be producers, editors, commentators, camera operators and technical directors. They get experience at troubleshooting when equipment fails and situations get hectic. They also get to be on-air talent and get experience at producing commercials and graphics.

"The school and community get exposure all over the world. We are not just viewed locally, we are literally accessible anywhere in the world. People all over the world can see what a great school Cullman High School is and get to be involved in our events.

"I have had many people tell me that they are so thankful that we are doing this because it allows them to keep up with Cullman High School's events even when they cannot be here in person. This is, hands down, one of the best programs that me, this school, and my students could ever be involved in."

What does it mean to be named an Elite School?

"Being named an Elite school is exciting. I did not see it coming. I did not even know there was such an honor until we were awarded it. To me, this makes the Elite School award even better for us, because we just decided to work extra hard to make the Cullman High School Broadcasting Network as good as possible, not even knowing that we could gain an award or recognition.

"Of course, I am very honored that my students earned this. If it wasn't for my students being willing to work extra hours and work so hard, we could not have accomplished this. I also have to give credit to my administrators.

"My students and I had a vision, but it can never be accomplished without the full support of administrators. We are not only supported from the top down, but we are enthusiastically supported. I cannot thank them enough. That always gives you a lot of confidence that anything can be accomplished.

"It's also very exciting that we were the only school in Alabama to receive this award this year. I really want people to know that I have a great group of students to work with at Cullman High School. They get excited about broadcasting and they want to learn. It is easy to get motivated and want to do well when my students want the same.

"I am excited about the future of our livestreaming network. We are gaining momentum and people are very excited about it. We have a great group of sponsors this year and we are looking forward to showcasing them on CHSBN too!

"We are very thankful for our sponsors. This year's sponsors are Buffalo Wild Wings, ERA Waldrop Real Estate, Johnny's Bar-B-Q, Kathy Sims-ALFA Insurance, McGriff Tire Pros, Mitch Smith Chevrolet, People's Bank of Alabama and Premier Bank of the South.

"Because of these sponsors, any Cullman High School supporter can view all of our regular season sporting events and any of our extracurricular events for free. I also have to thank the NFHS, SBP and the AHSAA. They have supported us immensely. I am very blessed."

Those interested in following Cullman on the NFHS Network can create a free account at www.nfhsnetwork.com/schools/cullman-high-school-cullman-al. The AHSAA does require a $9.95 monthly pass for post-season games.

This pass allows three devices to be logged on simultaneously during an event.

MONTGOMERY – The artwork of local student Carson Smith will be featured in the 2018 Alabama Farm-City calendar, which is now available for pre-order.

Smith of Good Hope Middle School in Cullman County won honorable mention in the poster contest. Each month includes students' artwork depicting the 2016 Farm-City theme — Agriculture: Stewards of a Healthy Planet. The calendar also includes first place essays and a link to the first-place multimedia presentation based on the theme.

"Students work hard every year to earn recognition as a state winner in the Farm-City poster, essay and multimedia contests," said Jeff Helms, Alabama Farm-City Committee chairman. "This calendar is a lasting way to promote the creative ways they show the importance of farming."

Calendars are $1.25 each, with a minimum order of 10 calendars. Deadline for orders is Aug. 31.

Farm-City week is celebrated annually starting the Friday before Thanksgiving. Students are encouraged to participate in county poster, essay and multimedia contests for a chance to move on to the state competition. For more information, visit AlabamaFarmCity.org.
