Peinhardt Farm Day this Saturday

W.C. MANN/THE CULLMAN TRIBUNE

Dr. Bill Peinhardt at the Dingler Cabin in the farm's east pasture

CULLMAN – It's October, and pretty much all of Cullman knows what that means. Yes, the temperatures are finally starting to drop, and yes, it's time to start carving up pumpkins. But in Cullman, it also means that Peinhardt Farm Day is almost here again!

For more than 20 years, the Peinhardt family and numerous volunteers have opened the old homestead farm to the public for a day of education, entertainment and general fun for all people and all the senses.

This year's event will include all the old standards:

- Museum collection
- Historic buildings and artifacts collected from around the region
- Live farm animals
- Picking in the garden. According to children's coordinator Sabrina Peinhardt Hudson, this year's crop includes potatoes and other foods
- Tractor parades in the morning and afternoon
- Wildlife presentation
- Woodcrafts in the east pasture, including 500 free birdhouses for kids to build on the spot
- Hands-on activities for kids with traditional farm and frontier tools
- Honey bees and honey
- Blacksmith shop
- Broom making
- Wood carving
- Chair caning
- Quilting
- Open fire cooking
- Weaving and cloth dyeing
- Pumpkin painting
- Grist mill
- Sorghum syrup making, using cane harvested from Peinhardt's own field
- Live music, featuring Chuck Carpenter, Buddy Campbell, Mountain Melodies and the Morgan County Dulcimer Club

According to Sabrina Peinhardt Hudson, new attractions this year include a display of antique firearms, attended to by Cullman's Willy Hendrix. Hendrix will be disassembling the weapons to show they worked. Also, Farm Day T-shirts will be available to the public this year.

Dr. Bill Peinhardt is always excited to see the day come around, despite the extra stress of putting on such a big event. As one of four Peinhardt siblings, he also spoke happily of the next generation of his family coming into the business.

When asked what keeps him doing this, he replied, "Part of it is because the next generation has stepped up. My brother's three daughters- Jennifer, Tamarin and Sabrina- have taken over a lot of the responsibility. My daughters, Rachel and Laney, both contribute. So there's five of the next generation that are stepping forward. And then the next generation: several of the grandchildren are helping, now."

Peinhardt is proud of how the event has grown over its 20-plus years, and feels that its current scope offers something for everyone.

Walking out to the 1840s-era Dingler family cabin, he shared, "We've got 40 acres here that we open up for Farm Day, and it's hard to see all of it. The part I get involved with mostly is this east pasture, and it's got both history and children's activities, everything from splitting logs and crosscut sawing that kids can do, to demonstrating old woodworking techniques.

"The Cullman Woodworkers' Guild brings 500 birdhouses out that they let the kids finish putting together, so they built them a birdhouse. And there's open-fire cooking down there. Just in this pasture, there's a lot going on."

All of the farm's buildings will be open Saturday, along with the school house at the gate. Just outside the gate, the North Alabama Agriplex will also be home to displays and activities, along with live entertainment.

Such an event does not happen with just one family, no matter how dedicated it might be. A small army of volunteers will help the Peinhardts put on Farm Day.

According to Peinhardt, "We're really blessed, because we'll have as many as 200 volunteers involved Saturday. It's not just us; we've had a lot of good support from the good people of Cullman."

When offered the final word, Peinhardt stated, "I'll just brag on my Peinhardt father and grandfather for coming here and starting farming in this area. My dad went to Auburn for two or three years and in 1933 he came back here and started scientific knowledgeable farming, up-to-date for 1933. He tried to always keep up with the latest trends in farming, was active in soil conservation in 1930s; that's when all the hillsides were washing away because they were plowing up and down the hills.

"He was involved with terrace rows, cover crops and all that kind of thing that changed farming in the 1930s. So I'll brag on him, and all he had to do with agriculture in Cullman County."

Peinhardt Farm Day will take place Saturday, Oct. 21, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. The farm is located at 1711 Talley Ho St. in Cullman. Admission is $7 for ages 13 and up, $5 ages 5-12, and free for children 4 and younger. Mmmm, good: Rumors honored as Retailer of the Year

Owners still quiet about move

ALABAMA RETAIL ASSOCIATION

Annette and Ralph Harris

W.C. Mann
craig@cullmansense.com

CULLMAN – Rumors Deli, a fixture of the First Avenue Warehouse District, is getting ready to leave its longtime location, but not before racking up one more honor. On Tuesday, Oct. 17, the winner of numerous local "best deli" and "best sandwich" awards was named by the Alabama Retail Association as Alabama's 2017 Silver Retailer of the Year in the Annual Sales Less Than $1 Million category.

Rumors was the outsider in a field dominated by Birmingham-area businesses. The deli finished in a three-way tie for the award, with CakEffect of Homewood and Please Reply LLC of Mountain Brook. Villager Yoga of Mountain Brook took the top place with a gold award.

Co-owner Annette Harris had this to say about the award: "What does it mean to get the award? We were not sure exactly what it meant at first to even be nominated. We were honored when we saw what a big deal this is. This is not just about restaurants, but about all businesses in the state of Alabama, yet we were in the running. We were excited, but had no clue we would even have a chance after seeing all the businesses that were also nominated. This is a big deal.

"We have all worked so hard for over 17 years, trying to keep the consistency with our food and making customers feel important and wanted here. We also try to make our employees feel like family. We all spend more time here at work than with our own families so it's important to develop that relationship with them. Without them, we have no reason to be here...same with our customers."

"Everybody knows Ralph and Annette," Monograms Plus owner Margaret Hamm told the Alabama Retail Association (Hamm nominated the Harrises for the award). "And they » PAGE 5

Farm-City Week set for Nov. 17-23; committee announces events

W.C. Mann
craig@cullmansense.com

CULLMAN – At a breakfast in downtown Cullman's Top of the Town Wednesday morning, the Cullman Farm-City Committee proclaimed Nov. 17-23 Farm-City Week in Cullman County. Farm-City Week is celebrated each year beginning on the Friday prior to and ending on Thanksgiving Day. The stated purpose of Farm-City Week is "to bring about a better understanding between rural and urban people by increasing their knowledge and appreciation of each other as partners in progress."

The proclamation was signed by the mayors of Cullman, Colony, Good Hope, Baileyton, Garden City, Fairview and West Point, as well as all three members of the Cullman County Commission.

Also in attendance was State Rep. Randall Shedd, R-Fairview, along with representatives of Cullman County Economic Development, the Cullman County Emergency Management Agency, the North Alabama Agriplex, Cullman Regional and other organizations.

Farm-City Committee Chairperson Lynda Hankey opened the breakfast meeting by saying to the political and organizational leaders present, "For the last five years, we've been the number one farm city of Alabama, and prior to that, for seven years we were second in the state of Alabama.

"And we could not do this without the support that you give us, for us to be able to do what we do, and so we'd like to say 'thank you' to you for that."

The theme for Farm-City Week 2017 is "Agriculture: Food for » PAGE 5

City school board proclaims Oct. Dyslexia Awareness Month

Nick Griffin
Tribune Correspondent

CULLMAN – The Cullman City School Board met Tuesday, where it adopted a resolution declaring the month of October Dyslexia Awareness Month, joining the Cullman County School Board, which declared the same thing last week.

Cullman City Schools Superintendent Dr. Susan Patterson gave a statement on how important dyslexia awareness is to her, the board and the community.

"Cullman City Schools joined with the State Department of Education and other school districts in passing a resolution declaring October as Dyslexia Awareness Month. It's important to raise awareness of dyslexia, recognizing that statistics tell us that as much as 15-20 percent of our students can be affected in their learning by dyslexia," said Patterson. "Cullman City Schools has been proactive throughout the years in seeking ways to support those students affected. Utilizing professional development funds to have staff receive specialized training in how to best teach students with dyslexia has been an objective for the system for several years now. Cullman City Schools has a strong partnership with the City, and through that we received additional assistance that allowed us to employ a full-time intervention teacher who has an advanced degree in dyslexia therapy.

"Placing a focus on early identification and intervention with students is important. Research proves students who receive effective phonological awareness and phonics training have significantly fewer problems. Through our school-based reading specialists, we are ensuring all students receive the support needed to be successful readers and learners. Early intervention is key to supporting students with dyslexia because statistics state that 74 percent of readers who struggle in third grade will continue to struggle as ninth graders. We want to meet the needs of all students through our partnerships such as this with the City and the dedicated teachers we have. Cullman City Schools will continue to provide our students a successful foundation to their learning," said Patterson.

The board also recognized several board members and presented awards.

The first award recognized was the 2017 School Board Member Academy President's Award, presented to the Cullman City Board of Education along, with recognition of board members Chris Branham, Joey Orr and Lee Powell for completing the Alabama Association of School Boards (AASB) School Board Member Academy Achievement Level 1. Cullman City Schools was also recognized as a 2018 Best School in America by Niche.

Next up was the Cullman High School Fishing Team, led by coach Kyle Morris, who in June won the Alabama B.A.S.S. Nation High School Championship. The fishing team members present for the recognition were Lawson Graves, Cameron Glasscock, Cy Lambert, Houston Smith, Keaton Kenney and David Dueland. Following them was the Cullman Middle School Future Farmers of America (FFA) Chapter, sponsored by Lucas McCollum, who finished first in the county in Forestry Judging and will be one of 23 schools in Alabama advancing to the district competition. They also received a Gold Level National Chapter Award at the state FFA convention.

After the award recognitions, the board moved onto approving several agenda items:

- Approved the LEA Consolidated Plan for federal programs within Cullman City Schools.
- Approved the Cullman City Primary School CIP plan.
- Approved permission to contract with Dr. Gayle Morrison to provide guidance to teachers pursuing their National Board Certification for the 2017-2018 fiscal year.
- Approved a revised FY2018 Head Start Grandfathered Salary Schedule.

The next school board meeting will be held Thursday, Nov. 16 at 5 p.m.

A new analysis of patients who have undergone treatment for prostate cancer shows a connection between androgen deprivation therapy (ADT) – a testosterone-lowering therapy and a common treatment for the disease – and dementia, according to researchers from the Perelman School of Medicine at the University of Pennsylvania. Their previous studies have shown men who undergo ADT may be at an increased risk of dementia, including Alzheimer's disease, compared to men who were not treated with the therapy. This new analysis – the largest of its kind ever performed on this topic – shows that all existing studies taken together support the link to dementia and show a possible link to Alzheimer's. The findings are published this week in Prostate Cancer and Prostatic Diseases.

AHSAA play-off picture shaping up for several local teams

josh@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN COUNTY – With three weeks left to go in the 2017 regular season, the play-off picture is starting to take shape for several high school football teams around Cullman County.

CLASS 1A
The Addison Bulldogs have already assured themselves a spot in the 1A state playoffs. The Bulldogs boast a record of 6-2, 4-1 in 1A Region 7 play. They currently sit at the number two spot.

The Meek Tigers may need some help this week, as they are currently sitting in fifth place and Region 7.

The Tigers, who are 5-3, 1-3 in region play, will need to take care of business against Southeastern this week and Sumiton Christian in week 10, the team who currently sits in fourth place, to earn a play-off spot.

CLASS 2A
Although the Cold Springs Eagles (1-6, 0-4 in 2A Region 7) will miss the playoffs this year, they have the chance to play spoiler to Tanner if they can take down the Rattlers with a win this week.

CLASS 3A
Holly Pond (5-2, 2-2 in 3 A Region 6) is on the bubble, sitting in fourth place going into week nine. However, things look good for the Broncos as they have had wins over Susan Moore and Hanceville, two of the three teams behind them in the standings. A win over Vinemont in week 10 will assure the Broncos a spot in the 2017 AHSAA playoffs.

Vinemont (2-5, 1-3 in 3A Region 6) has a tough road ahead of them. The Eagles can still make the playoffs under first-year head coach Stephen Robinson but it's going to take wins over Susan Moore and Holly Pond in consecutive weeks to accomplish it.

Hanceville is on the outside looking in this year with a record of 1-7, 0-5 in Region 6 play. This will not stop the Bulldogs from trying to make life difficult for Locust Fork as they try to throw a monkey wrench in their post-season plans.

CLASS 4A
Good Hope (3-4, 1-4 in 4A Region 6) will miss the 2017 playoffs. The Raiders will look to finish the season strong and take that momentum into the 2018 season.

CLASS 5A
West Point has had a strong season this year, going into week nine with a record of 4-3, but most importantly 3-2 in 5A Region 6. The Warriors control their own destiny and can earn a play-off spot with a win over Curry in week 10.

Dafford-Smith Stadium will have to wait another year to see a play-off game as the Fairview Aggies (2-4, 0-4 in 5A Region 6) will miss the playoffs in 2017. The Aggies will look to end the season on an upswing as they get fired up for the cross-creek rivalry game against the Holly Pond Broncos to end the season.

CLASS 6A
It has been an emotional season for the Cullman Bearcats (4-3, 2-2 in 6A Region 7), with longtime head coach Mark Britton announcing his cancer diagnosis on the heels of his announcement of his plans to retire at the end of the season.

The Bearcats would like nothing more than to win a state championship for Coach Britton.

To accomplish this, they will first need to earn a spot in the 2017 AHSAA playoffs. They can do this with a win over Southside-Gadsden this week.

Pet of the week: help Ella find her forever home

Wendy Sack
wendy@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN – Cullman County Animal Shelter's Ryan Whisenhunt introduces us to this week's Pet of the Week, Ella.

"Ella is a sweetheart that has a low energy level. She loves people (especially children); she is slightly grumpy around other dogs, but one of our volunteers is working to correct that issue by introducing her to the other dogs here, and she is not particularly interested in the cats," said Whisenhunt.

"She is approximately 5 months old and weighs approximately 26 pounds. Her adoption fee is $90 which includes her getting spayed, her microchip, her rabies vaccine, her 5-in-1 vaccine, her dewormer, a free 45-day pet insurance policy through the microchip company (have to have a valid email address), and a bag of dog food from Pet Depot in Cullman (have to take the adoption receipt and pay the sales tax). That is a lot of service and a sweet dog for $90. We would love to meet or talk to anyone who is interested in adopting her."

"We are honored that we won," continued Harris. "I still didn't get it, even when I got to the awards luncheon. One of my friends asked me if I had a speech prepared and I said no. I didn't. I winged it. It was fine. It just never clicked. It is a fantastic organization that helps retailers all over Alabama and they really made a big deal over all of us. I loved it."

Of course, The Tribune couldn't let the conversation go by without asking about Rumors' closely-guarded secret new location, especially in the wake of a recently-circulated possible address. Harris continued to play that card close to the vest, saying that she had heard speculations and decided not to respond. She also said that, when the time comes to reveal the new location, she will take time to share that information with her family and employees before publicizing anything.

Harris did share with The Tribune back in August that the new location will have a pick-up window.

New medical practice closer to reality in West Point

Nick Griffin
Tribune Correspondent

WEST POINT – West Point's new medical clinic was on the top of the agenda at Monday night's West Point Town Council meeting. The West Point Family Medical Practice, which is currently under construction at the intersection of County Roads 1242 and 1141, could be open in four weeks, according to the council.

Diana Wilhite, CRNP is spearheading the project and was on hand to discuss details and the status of the construction with the council.

A West Point High graduate, Wilhite has been practicing for more than a decade and has spent some of that time working at UAB. She is affiliated with Decatur Morgan Hospital and believes that a practice in West Point would attract her patients to the area.

At the clinic, Wilhite will be accepting walk-ins for acute illnesses, follow-up appointments for chronic illnesses, and physical examinations for athletes. The clinic will accept all kinds of insurance plans.

Up next on the agenda was the lighting situation on County Road 1243 and in front of West Point High School. Mayor Kenneth Kilgo said he has continued to hear from people within the community who feel those areas are dangerously under-lit and are not safe for walkers and runners. The council went over some photographs of the areas and motioned to add new lights onto County Road 1243, and after meeting with Cullman Electric Cooperative, they plan on adding a new pole and light on the street running between the high school and the football stadium. Kilgo also plans to investigate the cost of replacing all the bulbs on that street with new LED bulbs.

The last thing the council touched on was the progress on the turn lane project being built on Highway 157. The council motioned to hold a public hearing on Monday, Oct. 30 at 6 p.m. to sign a community development block grant that will go toward funding the project. The council will be seeking a $120,000 grant.

After the public hearing on the 30th, the council is scheduled to meet next on Nov. 20. The public is welcome at both.

Garden City talks hours, fire department responsibilities and nuisance properties

W.C. Mann
craig@cullmansense.com

GARDEN CITY – At its meeting Monday evening, the Garden City Town Council voted to extend the town hall schedule from four days per week to five, with the town office to now be open on Fridays. Mayor Tim Eskew and Councilman Butch Bradford shared that community residents had complained about lack of access to town services on Fridays.

While the office will definitely be open on Fridays, the council debated whether or not town Public Works employees would be required to move from four 10-hour shifts to five eight-hour shifts per week.

Two town employees who were present were opposed to the idea, stating that a fifth work day each week would mean less work getting done per shorter shift, as well as disrupting their established personal and family schedules.

The council put off further discussion until a later time.

Next up, Garden City Volunteer Fire Department Chief Steve Ohls raised a concern about a recent incident in which his department was called out to a wreck on I-65, saying, "I'm basically dead set against having to go out on that interstate. It's bad enough here on (Highway) 31."

When asked if other departments were available, the chief answered that he was informed by the dispatcher that his was the closest available with medical personnel. Colony's department was closer to the accident scene, but according to the Ohls, "They won't call Colony for any medical calls. Their fire chief does not want none of their people running medical calls, because they had an incident about five, six months ago."

Mayor Eskew encouraged Ohls to contact the dispatchers and talk about the situation with them.

He did not want to see Garden City's department simply refuse to assist when called.

Said Eskew, "If nobody can respond, somebody needs to respond. We need the reputation that we're going to be there if we're the only one that can get there."

He also cautioned that the department should never commit all of its resources to such a call, but should always have enough personnel at home to respond to local emergencies.

The council also discussed three local properties with issues it claims are making them nuisances:

• Deb's Tire - The council said that after numerous discussions between the Town and owners over outside tire storage, and trucks parking on Town property and hindering vision and access to nearby streets, this case will go to court on Nov. 7.

• Property of Eric McAnnally - The council reported sending letters to McAnnally about an overgrown and debris-filled yard. Due to a claimed lack of progress on the resident's part, council members will begin drawing up paperwork to go to court.

• Property of Britney Tytler - The council reported that Tytler has shown significant effort to clean up her property, and the council decided simply to encourage her to continue to carry her efforts to completion.

Lastly, the council also welcomed Good Samaritan Clinic's Executive Director Jolanda Hutson, who is visiting each municipality in the county in an effort to promote contributions to the nonprofit organization, which provides medical services to the uninsured.

Drastic reductions in annual gifts from two major funding sources have left Good Samaritan $40,000 short this year.

The Garden City Town Council meets on the third Monday of each month at 6 p.m. at Garden City Town Hall. The public is welcome to attend.
