Alzheimer's support and awareness headline Cullman council meeting

Wendy Sack
wendy@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN – Prior to adopting Resolution No. 2018 - 09 in support of November being Alzheimer's Disease Awareness Month in the city of Cullman, the Cullman City Council, at its regular meeting on Monday evening, welcomed Jerry Jacob from Grace Episcopal Church, who was in attendance not only to support the resolution, but also to speak about a new program that will be starting at the church in January 2018.

"I'm here also to talk about a new ministry that Grace Church is going to establish in January of the coming year," said Jacob.

"It will be a program for people with mild to moderate memory loss, and it will be patterned after a program started in Lawrenceville, Georgia."

Jacob said the program, which made its way into Alabama more than five years ago when a Methodist church in Montgomery started it, is now in multiple churches in Mobile, Montgomery and Birmingham.

According to Jacob, the program is "four hours of stimulation for those with memory loss. It's volunteer-driven. Activities include arts and crafts, singing, exercise and lunch and it will be a four-hour program on Tuesdays and Thursdays of each week."

Grace Church is aiming at reaching a larger demographic than just Cullman County.

"It's going to be open not only to Cullman County, but very possibly surrounding counties, because there's no program like it in north Alabama," Jacob shared.

"We are hopefully going to be able to accommodate as many folks as might want to join. All the programs in Birmingham are maxed out already and Montgomery is maxed out," he continued.

"Churches are scrambling to try and get programs set up...because this is much better for those folks than sitting at home isolated, with no socialization or contact outside of the caregiver. Plus, it offers respite for the caregiver during those four hours. They don't have to be there."

Jacob concluded, "UAB is so interested in this program, that they're talking about doing a medical study on it to see if they can explain how it so positively impacts the people with memory loss. It's that powerful."

Council President Garlan Gudger, on behalf of the council, said, "Well, Jerry, we believe in you and we appreciate everything you've done in the community, and this is just something else that can bring it to the forefront, so any way we can help in that, we will."

The council also held a public hearing for Resolution No. 2018 - 08, to vacate and surplus Hickory Avenue Southwest between Sixth Street Southwest and Seventh Street Southwest, which received a favorable recommendation from the City of Cullman Planning Commission. The council adopted the resolution later in the meeting.

A second reading of Ordinance No. 2018 - 01, to participate in the 2018 Severe Weather Preparedness Tax Holiday was held and the ordinance adopted.

The council approved the following:

- A request from Edith Smith of Christmas Love and Cullman Caring for Kids for a special events permit to hold the organizations' annual car show in Depot Park on Nov. 11, 2017 from 8 a.m. until 3 p.m.
- A request from Dennis Burse of the Cullman Downtown Merchants Association for a special events permit to hold a Veterans Day Celebration on Nov. 10-11, 2017 in the 300 block of downtown Cullman
- A request from Police Chief Kenny Culpepper to purchase five vehicles on the state bid list from Donohoo Chevrolet in the budgeted amount not to exceed $154,709. The vehicles include four Tahoes and one 4x4 truck.
- A request from Fire Chief Edward Reinhardt to purchase five heart monitors from Zoll Medical LTD, a sole source provider, in the budgeted amount not to exceed $125,000. Note: the council did ask Reinhardt to be sure to get the lowest price possible.
- A request from Reinhardt to purchase an E-One Pumper on the NJPA bid list from Sunbelt Fire in the budgeted amount not to exceed $650,000 to be, delivered in October 2018. This is part of the City's 2018 budget and will replace Engine 15.

The Cullman City Council will meet again on Monday, Nov. 13 at 7 p.m. The public is welcome.

Long term antibiotic use in early to mid-life may be linked to a heightened risk of abnormal growths in the colon and rectum – known as polyps or colorectal adenomas – which precede the development of most cases of bowel cancer, reveals research published online in the journal Gut. The findings add to emerging evidence that the type and diversity of bacteria in the gut, referred to as the 'microbiome,' may have a key role in the development of cancer.

Use of inhaled corticosteroids in women is associated with a higher body mass index (BMI) and an increased prevalence of the metabolic syndrome, which is a cluster of risk factors for type 2 diabetes and heart disease, researchers have found in a study presented at the Endocrine Society's 99th annual meeting. Corticosteroids are widely used anti-inflammatory medications. In their inhaled form, they are most often used to treat asthma and other lung diseases. The metabolic syndrome involves having at least three of the following risk factors: increased waistline, increased blood pressure, increased levels of fasting blood glucose (sugar) and/or triglycerides and decreased levels of HDL, or "good" cholesterol..

Beta blockers are commonly used worldwide to treat a variety of cardiovascular conditions, such as arrhythmias and heart failure. Scientists have known for decades that the medications work by slowing the heart rate and reducing the force of contraction – lessening the burden of work carried out by the heart. However, new research published in Nature Scientific Reports has now shown that these drugs also reverse a number of potentially detrimental genetic changes associated with heart disease.

Suicides (from Front)

fourth incident on Monday was initially believed to have been a suicide, but after an investigation was determined to have been an accident.

With two other cases still under investigation but expected to be ruled as intentional, the county's total number of suicides in 2017 has risen to 27, with two months still to go.

The 12-month total for 2016 was 15.

According to Kilpatrick, who has been in touch with other coroners around north Alabama, this tragic trend is not unique to Cullman County.

He contacted coroners in other counties earlier this year to talk about what was happening around Cullman, and reported hearing from most of them that suicides are on the rise in their counties as well, compared to last year.

In one case, a coroner in a neighboring county had to respond to 12 incidents in a single week.

Authorities, from law enforcement to mental health, are still baffled as to what has caused this year's spike.

Said Kilpatrick, who is passionate about finding people help, "I don't know if it's a failure in our mental health care system, or people just failing to believe in themselves so they can fight these demons, or people not getting help. I'm wishing something would happen, these people would start calling suicide helplines."

68 graduate from sheriff's Citizens' Academy

craig@cullmansense.com

CULLMAN – On Tuesday evening, the Cullman County Sheriff's Office (CCSO) graduated 68 students from its second Citizens' Academy of the year in a ceremony at Temple Baptist Church. With numerous deputies and administrative staff present, along with County Commissioner Garry Marchman, Sheriff Matt Gentry welcomed guest speaker Jay E. Town, who serves as the U.S. attorney for the northern district of Alabama.

The sheriff began by applauding his staff and the commissioner, then said, "I think about the vision that we had for the Citizens' Academy, and what we could accomplish with it. Day one I told you the office of sheriff doesn't belong to me, it doesn't belong to the deputies in here; it belongs to all of us. And that's what the office of sheriff is about: it's about our community. It's about how strong that we can become, as a community, to be successful."

He commended his deputies: "I hope and pray that you learned a little bit about the deputies. I guarantee you, the men and women at the sheriff's office will do anything in the world for you, even if they seem tough and gruff. I promise you, when you need help, you can't beat them to the call. You can't beat them to the call, and it's because they believe in their community and they believe in each other. And that's really what it's about today. It's about taking care of each other and supporting each other."

Town told the graduates that they are now "ambassadors for law enforcement," and delivered an address on the current state of the federal justice system, and how that system will help local law enforcement agencies be more effective.

"These (deputies), they have a real job; it's a dangerous job, it's an important job. It doesn't just come with a diploma and a little bit of training.

"There's a huge responsibility, and really a huge burden that these men, the sheriff's men, all the PDs here in this county, that your District Attorney Wilson Blayock and all the law enforcement in the northern district and indeed the country, bear.

"It's a huge weight," Town continued, "and if you look at the past several years, I think the weight has been greater. It's been borne in significant ways that, maybe, we didn't anticipate when we got into law enforcement, wouldn't have occurred to us, in so many ways.

"Members of the Cullman County Sheriff's Office and so many others have faced a pretty negative perception, a pretty negative time these last several years, and, to the extent, gentlemen, sheriff, that your men and your women have felt unwanted by the federal government, to the extent that they have felt unwelcome, and to the extent that somehow your reputations have been tarnished--let me just say that, to the extent that I can help it, those days are over."

Town commended the graduates on their demonstration of support for law enforcement, shown in their participation in the academy. He went on to talk about U.S. Attorney Gen. Jeff Sessions' support for law enforcement, saying that the federal government has begun again to respect the high standards to which law enforcement officers are held, and echoing the AG's recent words to law enforcement, "We have your back, and you have our thanks."

Town talked about the differences between local and federal authorities in the area of sentencing convicted criminals, and how federal courts can make sentences stick while local authorities are routinely hindered by sentences that can be arbitrarily reduced.

By means of a new program, local law enforcement now has a streamlined means of referring certain dangerous or repeat offenders to federal prosecutors for longer sentences that will actually result in long prison stays.

"This is our home," said Town. "People ask me why I want this job: 'Why would you want that job and the scrutiny that goes along with it?' Why would your sheriff want to run for office every four years, and face the political scrutiny and the money that it takes, and the effort that goes into it? Because this is our home, and if we're not going to lead, who's going to? And if they're better than us, then, hey, bring them. Send them on; we could use their help. But otherwise, that's why we want this job. That's what our legacy is at the end of the day."

Town concluded by encouraging the graduates to continue to speak well of law enforcement based on what they learned, saying that every good statement chips away at the negative narrative of the last several years and makes life a little better for all law enforcement officers.

inflicted gunshot wound. Cullman County Coroner Jeremy L. Kilpatrick officially released Lambert's identity Tuesday morning. Lambert was a junior at Cullman High School.

"Cullman High School has suffered a tragic loss of a student," said Cullman High School Principal Kim Hall Tuesday morning. "At this time we have additional counselors and system personnel supporting our student body along with the amazing staff of Cullman High. We ask that all be in prayer for the family and the students of Cullman High."

As The Tribune reported Monday night, the incident occurred on the city's southeast side.

"At approximately 8:27 p.m., we received a call of a possible accidental gunshot," said Cullman Police Chief Kenny Culpepper. "When officers arrived, they found a deceased juvenile male."

"Patrol responded to the call, which was in the Fox Meadow subdivision," said CPD Lt. Gene Bates, one of three investigators on the scene. "Investigation was called in, and it was obvious to us that it was just a horrible, horrible accident. He (Lambert) loved to hunt, loved the outdoors, but for whatever reason last night he made a huge mistake while handling the firearm and it discharged."

Bates said the weapon was a handgun, and that Lambert was on social media with a friend, who witnessed the incident.

"If there's anything to take away from this," said Bates, "it's how important gun safety is. What I understand is he had been around guns a lot, he was an avid hunter, shot a lot and was very particular. Even for those of us around guns all the time, we don't ever need to drop our guard. You need to continuously think about safety. All it takes is that split second."

Bates said Sgts. Dave Nassetta and Adam Clark also worked the scene.

"When you arrive at something like that, you don't ever want to assume anything. We worked it as thoroughly as we could, and as more information came in, we received information about the social media thing, and we interviewed the friend.

"It's just a bad situation, a horrible situation, tragic," said Bates.

Culpepper said no foul play is suspected.

The CPD and Cullman Emergency Medical Services responded to the call.

wendy@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN – Four teenagers were arrested in the early morning hours of Tuesday, Oct. 24 for allegedly burglarizing the Cullman location of Cabin Fever Beverages at 10805 U.S. Highway 31 South and attempting to burglarize the liquor store's Good Hope location (1536 County Road 437).

The suspects, Kie J. Burns, 18, of Cullman; Thomas W. Williams, 19, of Trenton, Georgia; Chase R. Johnson, 18, of Hanceville; and Dakota J. Martin, 17 (adult status), of Holly Pond allegedly broke into the Cullman store, damaging the front door and stealing alcohol.

The suspects tried unsuccessfully to break in to the Good Hope store.

"Officers were dispatched to an alarm going off at Cabin Fever Beverages (in Cullman)," said Cullman Police Department Patrol Capt. J.P. White.

"Officers who responded found that someone had thrown a rock through the front glass."

White said that around the same time, approximately 2 a.m. Tuesday, officers became aware of the attempted burglary at the Good Hope location. Another officer, meanwhile, stopped a vehicle for a traffic infraction, and allegedly found the four suspects and the stolen alcohol.

All four suspects have been charged with third-degree burglary and minor in possession/consumption of alcoholic beverages.

According to the CPD, the damaged and stolen property value is $3,550.
