CATA students map the way to 'Career Island'

CARTER ROBINSON

CULLMAN – Last week, three students from the county school system's Cullman Area Technology Academy (CATA) displayed an art project at Cullman City Hall intended to get middle school students thinking about developing career skills. Peyton Oden (Fairview High School), Carter Robertson (Fairview High School) and Jacob Ryder (Good Hope High School) are all 11th graders who attend career tech classes at CATA. Their "treasure map," titled "Career Island: Find Your Personal Skills Treasure," is a community service project for SkillsUSA, and will be entered in competition later this month.

CATA Building Construction Tech Teacher Mike Burkett described the project:

"This artwork was created by three students in the Building Construction Program at the Cullman Area Technology Academy as an educational tool that is part of a Community Service project for SkillsUSA, a leadership development organization for Career Technical Education students. The work emphasizes the importance of Personal Skills as a part of an overall employment framework that also includes Workplace and Technical Skills. Their premise is that without adequate Personal Skills on day one of a new career, the other two just aren't as essential to local employers.

"The Personal Skills shown on the artwork carry a priority designation by SkillsUSA within their Workplace Framework. While there are many other important characteristics in personal skill development, these are deemed more crucial to a new hire on the first day of his/her job.

"The students who created this artwork used a treasure map theme because it has a broad appeal with virtually everyone, but also appeals directly to their target audience, which are children in the intermediate or middle school grades. Studies show that personal skill development has the greatest impact on students in the middle school ages, and they carry that on into high school."

On Tuesday, the poster was moved from Cullman City Hall to the dental office of State Sen. Paul Bussman, R-Cullman, where the students got to meet the senator.

Afterward, it will go to the North Alabama Agriplex, Fairview Middle School and Harmony School, before traveling to Birmingham for the SkillsUSA State Conference on April 23-24. There it will be entered in a promotional bulletin board contest.

Burkett said of the students, "Jacob Ryder said, 'It was interesting to meet city and state leaders while doing this project.' Payton Oden said that he learned how important personal skills were to potential employers because he thought they only wanted people with technical skills. Carter Robertson said that he liked doing the art work and he now knows where city hall is located."

Shared Burkett,"This was a unique opportunity for our CATA students to engage with their community and fellow students while also learning what employers want, especially with regards to personal character."

Walking through history

Cullman Walking Tours begin this weekend

Noah Galilee
noah@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN – While the annual Walking Tours did not kick off on April 1, the four weekend tours will begin at 10 a.m. this Saturday, April 7 on the steps of the Cullman County Museum. The best part – they're free of charge!

If you have attended these tours before you'll know that they are a great learning tool for history buffs, people who love stories about where certain streets, bridges, crossroads or cemeteries got their names, or people who just love walking and looking at pretty gardens decked out in spring blooms.

There is something for everyone on the four April Walking Tours.

A total of 30 towns across Alabama will be on display during Saturday mornings in April as part of the Alabama Tourism Department's April Walking Tours.

Tour guides will lead the free tours through the historic districts or courthouse square areas of their hometowns. The hour-long tours will start at 10 a.m. on April 7,14, 21 and 28.

The tours are being coordinated with the Alabama Tourism Department.

"In Cullman each tour will begin at 10 a.m. on the front steps of the Cullman County Museum," said Drew Green, museum historian, curator and first week tour guide. "This year we are tying the walks to Alabama's Bicentennial celebration."

SCOTT STADTHAGEN

Scott Stadthagen

CULLMAN – Scott Stadthagen is one of the Republicans hoping to fill the Alabama House of Representatives District 9 seat being vacated by Rep. Ed Henry, R-Hartselle. Stadthagen is a graduate of the University of West Alabama and lives in Hartselle, where he is president of the Hartselle Area Chamber of Commerce, and owns Hagen Homes, Inc. He and his wife have one daughter.

What led you to seek elected office?

"With different projects that I've worked on in our community--one was the farmers' market that I kind of spearheaded, and raised money, and built it pro bono, and after that project we had a ribbon cutting. And to see the community's reaction to that, I knew my job was not finished, that this journey was just about to take off for me. That's what really started it all."

What in your life has prepared you for the office you are seeking?

"Being a business owner, starting from the ground up in '05--which was a tough challenge, the different things I experienced as a business owner--and you have to make » PAGE 7

Q&A with Justin Morrow

CULLMAN – Last week, The Tribune caught up with Justin Morrow, one of the Republicans hoping to fill the Alabama House of Representatives District 9 seat being vacated by Rep. Ed Henry, R-Hartselle. Morrow is a Falkville native who attended Wallace State and Athens State University. He works in business development for Wayne's Environmental Services. He is married with two children.

W.C. MANN/THE CULLMAN TRIBUNE

Justin Morrow

What led you to seek elected office?

"Growing up, you know, some people when they graduated high school knew that they wanted to be a doctor, lawyer, mechanic. I never knew exactly what I wanted to do as far as a career; I just knew that I wanted to help people and serve people, because that's what we're put here for, is to serve. Now I get to do that in my current occupation. I get to help people, but I feel like I now have the opportunity to serve thousands of my neighbors, and potentially the whole state. So that's kind of the reason I wanted to do this, because I feel that I've been called to serve."

Q&A with James Bowling

craig@cullmansense.com

CULLMAN – James Bowling is another Republican hoping to fill the Alabama House of Representatives District 9 seat being vacated by Rep. Ed Henry, R-Hartselle. The Tribune sat down with Bowling last week. A graduate of Danville High School and captain in the Danville Volunteer Fire Department, Bowling works in chemical plant maintenance and has owned a trucking company. He is married with two children.

W.C. MANN/THE CULLMAN TRIBUNE

James Bowling

What led you to seek elected office?

"Well, I've been part of the volunteer fire service for most of my life. I've been around the fire service my entire life. My grandfather was a founding member of a volunteer fire department in Priceville, Alabama. So public service has always been part of who I am, and this is a way for me to expand on that, to help others.

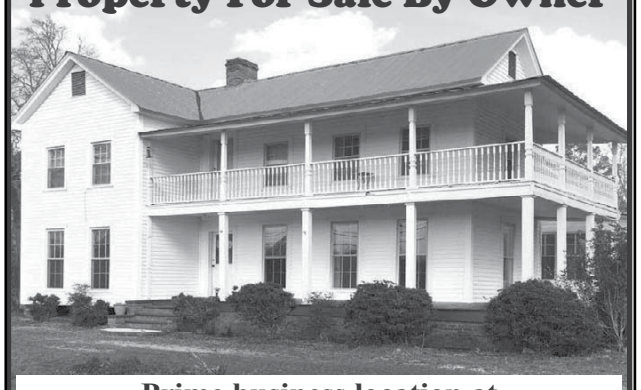

What in your life got you ready for this?

"My life experiences. I've been in the trenches with everybody. I've watched how the government is kind of like a government overreach: they're trying to govern more and more of our lives. » PAGE 7

Statins used for the treatment of high cholesterol may have other beneficial effects, but there has been reluctance to prescribe them to patients with liver disease because of concerns that they may cause abnormal liver enzyme levels in the blood. In a new Alimentary Pharmacology & Therapeutics analysis of data from the Danish National Patient Registry, patients with cirrhosis of the liver due to alcohol had a 43 percent lower risk of dying prematurely than patients not on statins. The results add to previous studies indicating that statins might help patients with chronic liver disease, including cirrhosis.

Antidepressant medications, most commonly prescribed to reduce depression and anxiety, increase the risk of death, according to new findings published in the journal Psychotherapy and Psychosomatics. Most commonly used antidepressant treatment for depression blocks the absorption of serotonin by neurons. However, all the major organs of the body – the heart, kidneys, lungs, liver – use serotonin from the bloodstream. Antidepressants block the absorption of serotonin in these organs as well. The researchers reviewed studies involving hundreds of thousands of people and found that antidepressant users had a 33 percent higher chance of death than non-users. Antidepressant users also had a 14 percent higher risk of cardiovascular events, such as strokes and heart attacks. Taken by one in eight adult Americans, antidepressants are among the most frequently used medications. They are often prescribed by family doctors without a formal diagnosis of depression, on the assumption that they are safe. Since depression itself can be deadly – people with depression are at an increased risk of suicide, stroke and heart attack – many physicians think that antidepressants could save lives by reducing depressive symptoms.

They started catering to a few, instead of worrying about the rights of the many. There's a lot of different aspects that got me involved and prepared me to go to Montgomery. It's life experiences that will help you make sound decisions, because you had to have experienced some of these things in your community to be able to represent them and have an idea of what others may need.

"Plus, I have the attitude that I want everybody to come to me. You have to not worry about what happens four years from now. Your mindset needs to be 'What can I do right now, today?' and we'll let the future handle itself."

What do you hope to accomplish in office?

"Well, I want to address mental health. I've been talking about this subject for many years, especially over the last year. I believe we can help some of our prison overcrowding, we've got a lot of bullying issues going on in our schools, we've got drug abuse, we've got true mental emergencies.

"There's a lot of things tied into mental health nowadays, and they stripped all the funding away. And I'm not sure where that funding went, but I would like to have the opportunity to try to bring it back to mental health.

"Or education: everybody talks about education's number one on their list. Well, I think we need to put our money where our mouth is and dedicate ourselves to making the education system better. There's about 15 earmarks that I was sent a month or so ago, during the budget hearings, that are just ridiculous. They may be good programs, but they have nothing to do with education, and they're pulling money out of the classroom. And I want to see more money make it to the classroom, so our children are more prepared for the future."

Are there differences between you and your opponents that people should consider?

"I believe that's something that a lot of people will kind of have to judge for themselves. One of the main differences is I am a lifelong resident of this community. I was born, raised and grew up here. I've worked, bled, sweated and cried next to a lot of people.

"I'm very accessible; I've always been the guy that never could say no, that always tried to help. I'm very honest up front; I don't dance around questions. I'm a very big proponent of the Second Amendment; people can go back and look last year. I'm a rock-solid person.

"I believe people will have to look at each of us, and decide which aspect sets us out from the next. But I can tell you, I've got the spine and the spirit to make a difference. I believe if people pay attention, they'll see that."

If you could boil your platform down to a concise statement, what would you want people to know?

"Elect one of US. That's what it boils down to. Elect one of us: elect a working-class person to represent the people, somebody that can make a difference."

this?

"I grew up in a small family business my dad and grandfather owned, as a child. Then I, of course, worked in small businesses throughout high school and college. To me, the main qualification to represent this area is growing up here, experiencing and knowing this community.

"And specifically, in education. I've experienced our state education system first-hand. I know the teachers, know the schools. And we have great schools and teachers, but I know what improvements we can build on."

What do you hope to accomplish in office?

"One, as I mentioned, is improving education. I'd love to see us invest more in pre-K programs, dual enrollment for high schoolers and college, and of course more investment in partnerships with trade schools and businesses as well.

"One of the main topics that I'm talking to people about is, I call it strengthening child safety laws. Mainly what I'm tackling there is the human trafficking epidemic we have in this country, that's also in this state as well. With the interstate system we have with 65, I-20, even the highways like 72 in Madison, we're just this perfect funnel for these, if you want to call them criminals, that are taking women and children and entering them in human trafficking. So I want to sit down with state law enforcement agencies and figure out what do you need to better combat this."

Are there differences between you and your opponents that people need to consider?

"I would just say this: everyone needs to look at all the candidates running. You need to really investigate who they are and what they do. I honestly believe you really do need someone who's been here a while, that knows the community, knows the people. So I just encourage people to always research candidates, find out everything you can, call and ask questions. My personal phone number's on everything, if people want to call me. So I just encourage people to do that."

If you boiled your platform down to a concise statement, what would you want people to know?

"Here's the deal: like I said, I really hit the thing on knowing the community. But we need to make sure that we have a Representative who is going to be a voice for all of the district; not just one city, one group of people. We are a large district: very rural, very spread out.

"Towns are a little different, have their own personalities. We just need to make sure that we have a Representative that understands that he is beholden to his neighbors, but also represents the whole district, not just a part."

some pretty good, tough decisions at stressful times, and I feel like that can put me over the edge to handle what we need to handle. Also, being a public servant to my community through the chamber of commerce, and like the farmers' market project, and being there for them, and truly doing it for the community. I mean, I feel like that is what makes this right here."

What do you hope to accomplish in office?

"It's kind of cliché, but number one: I want to give our district a voice they haven't had in a long time. I want to give our teachers a voice they haven't had. I want to be present in our district.

"I want to be present in West Point, Vinemont, Hartselle, Lacey's Spring. I want to be present, so you see your state representative.

"And secondly, I want to be present in Montgomery for them. I plan on doing town hall meetings. We'll know what the topics are before we go down there, and we will have a town hall meeting at West Point, Hartselle and Lacey's Spring. And the people that are there, they'll voice their opinion.

"Hopefully, I can round everybody's opinion up, and we can vote as a district, as one. And that's my ultimate goal.

"I'm trying to do this to set an example, not to do as a career, because I love my job!"

If you had to boil your platform down to a concise statement, what would you want people to know about you?

"I would say that I'm a successful businessman, and I want to serve my community.

"And I feel like if we do not give back to our community, that my kid's generation will not be as successful as it is now. So we need to give back and be involved and do it because we care, and not do it for a title or position."

History (from Front)

Green stated, "The tours are rain or shine events and the only reason they would be canceled is dangerous weather."

Those concerned about constant walking during the one-hour historical tours need not be worried as there will be frequent stops to take in the sights and listen to the stories of Cullman's past. "It is a slow-paced refreshing walk to learn about the fascinating history of our town. There will also be places along the way to rest," said Green.

This year, the walking tours will be led by: first Saturday/Drew Green; second Saturday/Michael Sullins; third Saturday/Sharon Rowlette; fourth Saturday/Greg Richter.

"Each Saturday will have a different local historian as a leader, so come every week to learn more!" said Green. "Every walk is different because the leaders and the participants bring unique insights each Saturday."

More information about the April Walking Tours is available on the Alabama Tourism Department website at www.alabama.travel.
