New nonprofit for area men seeks to bridge gap between rehab and normal life

W.C. Mann
craig@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN – The Cullman area has access to some highly regarded drug rehabilitation services through organizations like The Foundry Ministries and recovery programs like Restoring Women Outreach (RWO) that help get people ready to transition back into regular life.

RWO is, as the name implies, a program for women, and there has not been a comparable service for men, something that bridges the gap between intensive residential programs like the Foundry and life in the outside world. That can be a problem for men recovering from addiction. The longer a person can be separated from the context of his or her addiction, the better the chances of full recovery. With men coming out of programs in a year, and some coming out of jail after a matter of months, that distance in time is just not enough for some.

Now, a group of concerned citizens, including some high-profile community leaders, has come together to form Cullman Re-Entry Addiction Assistance (CREAA), a faith-based long-term service for men coming out of rehab programs or jail that gives them a place to live, the support of counselors and peers in similar situations, and assistance in doing the things they need to do to transition back to "the real world."

CREAA was incorporated in the spring of 2017 by counselor Albert Pugh, Dr. Bill Peinhardt and Jo Kreps.

According to a statement from Kreps: "The mission of CREAA is to bring healing and restoration to individuals and families touched by addiction and addiction-related mental illness. Our goal is to provide services to improve the physical, mental and spiritual health of those re-entering the community from incarceration, rehabilitation or homelessness due to addiction. Our commitment is to provide appropriate services to support these individuals as they return to a normal life. This transition back into our community is only possible through integration with other community services."

In a conversation with The Tribune, Kreps said, "We take people that have come out of rehab, that really have no place to go, unless it's back to their friends who are doing this. But we're still trying to direct them in a different direction."

She explained that, when men come out of jail or a rehab program, they may have little money or other resources, and family and friends are often wary of tying up their own resources in someone who might relapse. CREAA will help men get back to work and back to something approaching normal daily life, while giving them the opportunity to stay away from the settings in which they got in trouble, and in which they would be dangerously likely to return to trouble.

The organization's board of directors includes the three founders with Pugh as president, plus Cullman County Sheriff Matt Gentry, Assistant Cullman Police Chief Craig Montgomery, Rev. James Fields, Karen Willingham Gable and Maria Steele. Pugh and Fields have both worked with recovery programs in other places, and Gentry works with various programs offering services to inmates at the Cullman County Detention Center.

For Kreps and Steele, the project is a little more personal. Steele lost her son Bryan, and Kreps lost her son Clay, to drug overdoses.

Kreps, whose son became addicted to pain medication after surgery and relapsed after rehab, wrote in an email: "Our hearts were broken, our lives were drastically changed, and we do not want this to happen to any other family. A place for them to continue their rehabilitation/transition back into the community once out of rehab was (and still) is desperately needed."

Montgomery told The Tribune, "We have rented a house here in town (The specific location is currently confidential). And the name of the house is the Bryan Clay House; so we took the first names of both sons . . . and the idea is to have a home setting where they can have a place to bed down, to eat their meals. If they don't have transportation, we have acquired a van for the organization.

"We have a gentleman, Nathan Gable (who serves as CREAA's program manager), who actually lives in the residence, kind of oversees the residence to make sure that whoever lives there is complying with the rules and regulations of the facility. He also uses the van to help these gentlemen get to places of work: get there, get them home; if they need to run errands to the grocery store, if they need to go to the courthouse to get their license, Nathan is the one that helps them get around."

Residents will have to pay a small amount to stay at the house, but will be sheltered and fed, and will receive assistance in finding and getting to jobs. They can also be transported to take care of some of the administrative and logistical needs of life. The faith-based group encourages men to attend church and will help them find a local congregation and even provide transportation to some services.

The Bryan Clay House opened its doors on April 1, 2018. As of mid-April, the 10-bed facility had three residents.

VOICE
Cullman Memory Gardens update from Rep. Randall Shedd

Rep. Randall Shedd
Contributor

Cullman Memory Gardens update from Rep. Randall Shedd, R-Fairview:

The situation at Cullman Memory Gardens has been a long and frustrating turn of events to say the least. Hopefully, this is the year families and the community will see the cemetery begin to return to the dignity all involved deserve.

I got involved in this issue because of the disrespect the whole situation is to those whose final resting place is there and the pain it causes their families.

I personally don't have family at Cullman Memory Gardens, but I do have lots of friends there including numerous veterans who put their lives on the line for our freedom.

I have given my best and done everything I can to address this problem. To say it is a complex matter is an understatement.

The current bankruptcy also involves three other cemeteries in Alabama, with 8,800 customers. Obviously, it has been a time-consuming process for the bankruptcy court.

This past week, I spoke at length with the bankruptcy trustee. A court hearing is scheduled for next month and then a 90-day period will exist for certain legal matters.

After that, hopefully there will not be further delay.

Let me remind everyone what has been done to try to address this problem:

• I sponsored and passed legislation in May of 2016 to establish a local Cemetery Board that would have the authority to own and operate Cullman Memory Gardens. However, since it is currently privately owned (but controlled by the federal bankruptcy court), the owner would have to agree to transfer the cemetery and all assets to the Board and the Board would have to agree to accept it.

• In December 2016, I met with the investment company that owns the property by foreclosure, Cache Private Capital in Sandy, Utah. The company was amiable to transfer the property to the local Board once it is released from the bankruptcy court. Obviously, this could change if someone made a substantial financial offer to the company, however that is doubtful.

• Once the bankruptcy court releases the property to the owners, if the owners (Cache Private Capital) are still willing to donate Cullman Memory Gardens to the local Board, then the legislative delegation could appoint board members who could active the Board and negotiate the terms of the transfer.

• The legal counsel at the company in Utah that I met with has changed, but I have spoken with the new legal counsel for the company and had no indication of a change of plans by the company other than if a substantial financial offer for the property was made it could change the owner's plans. I just want everyone interested to know that.

This has been a difficult situation for all involved, but I think it is important for everyone to understand, effort has been made all through the process to address the problem.

Also, I commend the volunteers in the community who've spent many volunteer hours mowing and providing upkeep at the cemetery.

Other investor-owned cemeteries across the state are facing the same problems as Cullman Memory Gardens.

One good thing that has resulted from our community addressing the problem with legislation, several other legislators used our legislation as a pattern for cemetery legislation in their communities.

Sincerely,
Randall Shedd

Vitamin D deficiency in expectant mothers during pregnancy has a negative effect on the social development and motor skills of pre-school age children, a new study in the British Journal of Nutrition reports.

A new study in JAMA Surgery analyzed more than 200,000 opiod-naïve individuals who had undergone one of eight common surgical procedures between 2006 and 2014 and were subsequently prescribed opioid pain medication. Every day, more than 90 Americans die after overdosing on opioids, according to the National Institute on Drug Abuse. Misuse of and addiction to opioids has become a public health crisis with more than two million Americans suffering from substance abuse issues related to prescription opioid pain medication. While over-prescription of pain medications has been implicated as a driver of this growing opioid epidemic, few guidelines exist on how to appropriately prescribe opioid pain medication following surgery with the goal of balancing pain with risk of addiction. Using a nationally representative sample of people who were opiate naïve undergoing common procedures, researchers found that median prescription length for the first-time prescriptions was four to seven days and that the number of people who required a refill of their opiate prescription varied from 11.3 percent to 39.3 percent depending on the type of procedure performed. The duration of the prescription also varied depending on the category of procedure, from nine days for general surgery procedures to 15 days for musculoskeletal procedures. While seven days may be more than adequate for many patients undergoing common general surgery and gynecological procedures, prescription length limits may need to be extended to ten days, recognizing that as many as 40 percent of patients may still require a refill at seven-day limit for pain management, particularly following many orthopedic and neurosurgical procedures.

Cullman City Council honors fire chief Edward Reinhardt; city revenues up 4.5%

cra@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN – The Cullman City Council on Monday night honored retiring Cullman Fire Rescue Chief Edward "Junior" Reinhardt with a certificate of retirement, expressing its appreciation for his 40 years of service to the city, and with a visit from a friend and business colleague.

Billy Atchison of Sunbelt Fire, one of Cullman Fire Rescue's equipment suppliers, presented the chief with a fireman figurine. After that, noting that Reinhardt had on many occasions talked to him about going fishing but always seemed too busy to go, Atchison presented him with a pair of rod/reel combos.

Atchison said, "I deal with hundreds, and pushing over a thousand, fire departments in the state of Alabama. I deal with Mobile, Montgomery, Hoover, Vestavia Hills, Mountain Brook, Huntsville, Muscle Shoals, Gadsden. I deal with some fine men in our state, and, Chief Reinhardt, there's none better than you."

Atchison also told incoming Chief Brian Bradberry that Reinhardt was "one of the shortest men I've ever met, but Chief Bradberry, you are about to walk into some shoes that are larger than you can imagine."

Council President Garlan Gudger and Councilman Andy Page presented the council's certificate of retirement to the chief. Page read the certificate and presented a copy to Reinhardt. Gesturing to the large crowd of firefighters assembled in the back of the auditorium, Gudger told the chief:

"You've always made the right decision for these guys back here, for this city, and for the people sitting in here, and for the people outside here. And I'm going to miss knowing that I've just got you on my team, even though I can call you anytime, day or night, like I have. But I'm going to miss you just being up here, and I just wanted to come down here to say thank you, I love you, and we're always going to be friends, and we're going to need you still."

W.C. MANN/THE CULLMAN TRIBUNE

Billy Atchison, left, a fire equipment supplier, stopped by to honor Cullman Fire Rescue Chief Edward Reinhardt, right, and present him a few tokens of appreciation. Reinhardt is retiring April 30 after 40 years of service.

Other council business

Councilwoman Jenny Folsom reported that city revenues are up 4.5 percent, meaning an extra $787,000 in the City's accounts. Sales tax revenues are up almost one percent, and business license revenues are up more than 10 percent. Building Director Rick Fulmer added that, while building permits normally number around 150 per month this time of the year, the first two weeks of this April saw 804 permits issued, many related to reconstruction after March's storm.

Mayor Woody Jacobs issued a city proclamation naming April 26 through May 4 as "Frankweiler Visitor Days" in honor of a group from Cullman's sister city who will be visiting the city next week.

The council approved the following:

• A request from Water Superintendent Chris Freeman to purchase from the state bid list a Ventrac Rough Cut Mowing Machine with accessories from Coblentz Equipment & Parts Co., Inc. in the budgeted amount of $49,055

• A request from Waid Harbison of Cullman Parks and Recreation for a special event permit to hold Dinner on First on May 18, 2018 from 6 p.m. to 11 p.m.

• A request from Freeman to purchase from the HGAC bid list a pipe bursting machine with accessories from Hammerhead Trenchless in the budgeted amount of $231,176.16.

• An ordinance to update the City's building codes and adopt the 2015 International Building Code

• A resolution to submit the 2019 TAP grant application for the City of Cullman. This will be an 80/20 grant that will cost the city $160,000 but will give the city $800,000 to upgrade more downtown sidewalks for handicap accessibility.

• A resolution to approve matching funds for the 2019 TAP grant application by the Cullman County Commission. The resolution will allow the City to access 80/20 grant funds available to the County, with the City putting up the matching funds.

• A resolution to amend the position control for the City of Cullman.

The Cullman City Council meets on the second and fourth Monday nights each month at 7 p.m. in the City Hall Auditorium. The public is invited to attend.

Colony pursues storm shelter, prepares for summer enrichment program

W.C. Mann
craig@cullmantribune.com

COLONY – At its meeting Tuesday evening, the Colony Town Council heard about plans for its second Summer Enrichment Program and took the next step toward securing a community storm shelter.

Summer Enrichment Program

Councilwoman Ethel Alexander presented plans for the program, which was first instituted in 2017. It will run weekdays from June 4 to July 27, at the town educational complex/library, and will offer two programs: Project Extend and Morning Recreation, beginning at 8:45 a.m. each day. Bus transportation will be available in some cases.

Colony will again participate in the free summer feeding program it used successfully last year, with food for breakfast and lunch provided by the North Alabama Food Bank under a federal grant.

The first week's program will be a garden camp for 5-12-year-olds sponsored by the North Alabama Agriplex. Kids will get hands-on in the community center garden and will do make-and-take projects each day. Registration packets became available this week, with registration and medical forms, and information on programming, schedules, rules and dress code. They can be picked up at Colony Town Hall or the library.

Storm shelter

The council voted to accept a sub-grantee agreement for the state's Hazard Mitigation Grant Program which will help fund the construction of a community storm shelter for the town.

Under the grant's matching terms, Colony will have to provide $27,000 of the proposed $108,000 cost of the shelter.

Other business

The council reviewed three applications for a summer assistant for the town's maintenance worker, but without taking any action.

Brenda Johnson's assignment classification was changed from administrative assistant to library aide, and her work hours at the library were set at noon to 4 p.m. Tuesdays through Thursdays.

Mayor Donnis Leeth told the council that he and Councilman Curtis Johnson will be meeting with representatives of the Alabama Department of Transportation to talk about possible state-funded repairs to four local roads: Byars Road, Johnson Circle, Colony Road and Wooley Road.

GOOD HOPE – The Good Hope City Council on Monday night awarded a bid for engineering services to CDG Engineers & Associates, Inc. The services are required for a new pump station as a part of the city's sewer expansion project. The pump station must be completed before AGCOR Steel can move to the city.

Good Hope Mayor Jerry Bartlett said the station will cost $250,000, for which the city is applying for a Community Development Block Grant (CDBG). Bartlett said he feels it is critical to move quickly on this issue and get the grant for the sewer work as soon as possible.

AGCOR Steel is moving to Good Hope from Vinemont and will be Good Hope's first manufacturer.

The new facility will sit on 53 acres on Industrial Drive.

The company will add up to 20 new jobs and is expected to have annual sales of $8-$10 million.

AGCOR is a manufacturer of metal building components.

The council also surplussed a 2009 Ford F350.

The Good Hope City Council will have its next meeting on May 14 at 6:30 p.m. at Good Hope City Hall.

Publix delivers $24K check to United Way of Cullman County

The store has donated more than $57K to the nonprofit this year

W.C. Mann
craig@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN – On Monday afternoon, Publix Super Market managers presented the United Way of Cullman County (UWCC) with a check for $24,100 from Publix Super Market Charities, completing the organization's donation pledge from this year's drive. Publix associates and Publix Super Market Charities exceeded last year's campaign for a total donation of $57,146 this year. (See www.cullmantribune.com/articles/2018/02/26/united-way-cullman-county-celebrates-publix-appreciation-day-after-57k-donation.)

Contributions from the 2017-18 campaign will benefit UWCC's 16 local agency partners. This is the second United Way Campaign since Publix opened its doors in October of 2015.

In a press release, UWCC Director Sammie Danford wrote, "Publix and its employees have made an outstanding commitment to support United Way and Cullman County. We could not continue to meet the needs of our community without their generosity. We are honored and grateful to the employees who give back to the communities they serve."

This particular donation was generated entirely by Publix employees with support from Publix Super Market Charities. On Tuesday, UWCC Assistant Director Becky Goff explained to The Tribune, "It is part of their commitment that they have. All Publix stores run an internal campaign and then, once the employee campaign is finished, then they usually present the check to the local United Way."

According to UWCC's press release, "Publix is consistently one of the top donors to United Way of Cullman County. This past February, United Way board, staff and volunteers personally thanked Publix associates during Publix Appreciate Day in recognition of their contributions. Located in only six states, Publix is ranked the third largest United Way donor in the WORLD! Their continued support of our communities shows the 'Strength in Giving.'"

Goff told The Tribune, "We are just proud of our relationship with Publix here in Cullman, and the local support that each store gives is very important to our community. And we are excited to recognize not only the Publix associates, but Publix Charities for their continued support of the United Way of Cullman County."

Cullman Regional celebrating Occupational Therapy Month in April

Mary Beth Sellers
Cullman Regional

CULLMAN – Cullman Regional is celebrating Occupational Therapy Month by recognizing the occupational therapists (OTs) and certified occupational therapy assistants (COTAs) who enable people of all ages to live life to its fullest by helping them promote health, and prevent—or live better with—injury, illness or disability.

These services are available through Cullman Regional Rehab & Therapy Services (formerly ONE Rehab) as well as through Cullman Regional Home Care.

Cullman Regional Home Care focuses primarily on individualized therapy for patients in their home who have an injury, illness, disability or specific diagnosis which includes the hand, wrist, elbow or shoulder. However, Cullman Regional Rehab & Therapy also provides these services on both and inpatient and outpatient bases as well as other specialized therapy programs, evaluations for work-related injuries, pre-employment physical evaluations and much more.

Occupational Therapy helps patients regain their independence through daily living skill building which can include cooking, self-grooming, writing, job-specific skills and much more. Cullman Regional Therapy Services is the ONLY provider in North Central Alabama that offers Hand Therapy under the direction of a Certified Hand Therapist.

What is hand therapy?

Hand therapy is the art and science of rehabilitation of the upper limb, which includes the hand, wrist, elbow and shoulder girdle. It is a merging of occupational and physical therapy which restores function and/or reverses the progression in the upper limb in order to enhance a patient's ability to perform tasks and to participate fully in life.

Why is a Certified Hand Therapist important?

Certified Hand Therapist (CHT) is an occupational therapist or physical therapist who has a minimum of three years of clinical experience, including 4,000 hours or more in direct practice in hand therapy.

In addition, the Certified Hand Therapist has successfully passed a comprehensive test of advanced clinical skills and theory in upper quarter rehabilitation. Because of changes in the profession, every CHT is required to demonstrate continued professional development and competency by recertifying every five years.

Show (from Front)

CULLMAN – The 26th annual Pilot Club of Cullman Fashion Show and Luncheon packed out the Cullman Civic Center Wednesday with more than 430 guests coming to enjoy lunch, show and local vendors. The yearly show also celebrates Administrative Professionals' Day.

"Material Girl" was this year's theme, and wares from 11 different local shops were modeled, some by local law enforcement. The shops included Jennifer's Treasures, Better than Before, Belk, Dixie Duds and Décor, Options, Tre Bellezze, MoMo She 103, Sweetheart Tree, Younique Sophistication, Be Blessed Boutique and Mr. Hick's Menswear. Pilot Club member and local State Farm agent Katherine Morgan served as this year's master of ceremonies.

The fashion show is one of several fundraisers that benefit Pilot Club projects. The organization supports the local Pilot Light House, an emergency harbor for abused children, helps support the Field of Miracles and gives to Project Lifesaver which provides bracelets equipped with a transmitter that locates patients with brain disorders such as dementia in the event that they become lost or separated from their families.

Co-chair of this year's event, and Pilot Club member, Peggy Harris gave a quick breakdown of what the Pilot Club does and who they are able to help with the funds from the show.

"This is the 26th annual fashion show that the Pilot Club in Cullman does as a fundraiser. We raise the funds and work really hard to raise money, so we can turn around and give it back to the community. Our first and foremost project is supporting the Pilot Light House and then we brought in Project Lifesaver about 10 years ago and we support that pretty well. Our agencies and our charities that have to do with the developmentally disabled, physically or mentally, we support those and their activities as well. I guess this is the longest-running fundraiser that we have, and everybody just always looks forward to it."

Wednesday's event might have been one of the most anticipated shows that the Pilot Club has put on. According to Harris, this fashion show may have sold out faster than any that has come before it.

"We have local merchants that agree to have their clothes modeled and other local merchants or vendors selling their things. Right now, I think we have 49 or 50 Pilots here, so it takes a lot of people to do this, not just today but leading up to today, too. We probably ran out of tickets earlier than we ever have. I think our count on meals was 484, about 60 or so are working so about 432 is where we are with the seating."

Danville 16, West Point 14

WEST POINT – After going 2-2 in the Lincoln County Border Battle Tournament in Tennessee over the weekend, West Point returned home to take on Danville.

West Point erased an early deficit late to send the game into extra innings but couldn't keep it going and wound up falling to the Lady Hawks at home in a wild back-and-forth match-up.

Danville jumped on the Lady Warriors to start out the game. Savanah Free lined a double to center field with one out, then Emma Broadfoot hit a two-run shot over the left-field fence to put the Lady Hawks on the scoreboard. Then with two outs, Lindsey West lined a double to right field and Emily Watts reached on a Makayla Brown error at first base to move West over to third. Ellie Tucker hit a two-run single to right field to put the Lady Warriors in an early 4-0 hole.

The deficit grEw even more in the second inning when Broadfoot hit an RBI double to right field to make it 5-0, then in the third inning, an error by shortstop Olivia Ball allowed the Lady Hawks to add to their lead; Free and Broadfoot added an RBI single and RBI double, respectively, later in the inning to make it an 8-0 advantage for Danville.

West Point finally got on the scoreboard in its half of the third inning as a lead-off single by Avery McClure, followed by an RBI double by Gracie Abbott, plated the Lady Warriors with their first run of the game. Abbott advanced to third on a ground ball by Molly Pendley and later scored on an RBI single by Ball to make it an 8-2 game, but they were just getting started.

Free added an RBI single in the fifth inning for Danville, but the Lady Warriors countered in their half. Abbott led off the inning with a single to center field, then Pendley drove her in with an RBI double to center field; Ball reached on an error by first baseman Laney Coker, allowing Pendley to score to make it a 9-4 game.

In the sixth inning, a lead-off single by Carlie Wilkins, followed by a walk by Ava Rushing, had West Point looking to close the deficit, and the Lady Warriors did just that as McClure lined an RBI single to center field. Two outs later, Ball made it a 9-7 game with a two-run double to center field. Danville added three more runs in the top of the seventh on an RBI single by Savanna Pelfrey and a two-run single by Watts, and West Point was looking at a 12-7 deficit heading into its final at-bats.

The Lady Warriors got it started quickly as Hope Shedd drew a lead-off walk, then Braelee Quinn lined a single to left field. Wilkins drew a walk to load the bases for Rushing, who hit a two-run double to left field, then McClure hit a sacrifice fly to make it 12-10. Two straight walks loaded the bases back up for Ball, who, along with Brown, hit back-to-back RBI singles to miraculously tie the game at 12.

Coker got things started for Danville in extra innings with an RBI double to left field, then later, an error by Brown allowed Coker to score and Pelfrey added a two-run double to left field sending the Lady Warriors into the dugout trailing, 16-12.

They started yet another rally as a single by Shedd moved Ball over to third and Quinn hit an RBI groundout to make it a 16-13 game, then Wilkins added an RBI single to make it 16-14. Bethany Minck, the courtesy runner for Wilkins, advanced to second on a wild pitch; Rushing went down swinging for out number two. Minck stole third during McClure's at-bat and she would later draw a walk to keep the inning alive for Abbott, but she flew out to center field for the final out, ending the game and the rally for the Lady Warriors.

Ball led the way for West Point with three hits, four RBIs and a run scored. Abbott (three runs scored) and Wilkins each added three hits and an RBI. Brown collected two hits and an RBI. McClure added two hits, two RBIs and scored two runs. Pendley and Quinn each collected a hit, an RBI and scored a run. Rushing chipped in with a hit, two RBIs and two runs scored.

Shedd collected a hit and scored two runs. The Lady Warriors fall to 10-16-2 on the season and will take on Jasper in their home and regular season finale on Thursday.

Cullman 11, Hanceville 0

CULLMAN - A big offensive outburst by Cullman, plus a five-hit shutout by Sydney Holder, allowed the Lady Bearcats to win in dominant fashion at home Tuesday on Senior Night.

Cullman got things started in its opening at-bats when Ashlen Heatherly hit a one-out single to left field, then Savannah Davis drew a walk. Kennedy Wren lined an RBI double to center field to put the Lady Bearcats on the scoreboard. Later on, a two-out, three-run homer by Reagan Quattlebaum over the left-field fence, gave Cullman an early 4-0 lead.

Cullman added five more runs in the third and two more in the bottom of the fifth inning on a two-run homer by Wren, which ended the game.

All but one Lady Bearcat collected at least one hit in the game. Wren had three of those hits, along with three RBIs and two runs scored. Quattlebaum added two hits, three RBIs and scored two runs. Heatherly collected two hits, an RBI and scored three runs. Alex Stansell chipped in with a hit and a pair of RBIs.

Guest added a pair of hits and a run scored. Davis (two runs scored), Keslynn Grimmett (one run scored) and Hannah McPherson each collected a hit in the game. Holder pitched a complete game, five-hit shutout, walked one and struck out six.

The Lady Bearcats will participate in the Pre-State Blowout at home on Friday and Saturday.

Cassidy Campbell, Jadah Hurst, Destiny Martin, Taylor Short and Raygen Turner each collected a hit for Hanceville, now 3-18 overall on the season. The Lady Bulldogs will travel to Oakman next Tuesday for the Class 3A, Area 12 Tournament.
