CAMPAIGN 2018: Q&A with Circuit Judge Martha Williams

W.C. Mann
craig@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN – Recently, The Tribune spoke to incumbent Circuit Judge Martha Williams, who is facing a fierce challenge from Melvin Hasting for her seat. Hasting and his supporters have gone after Williams' handling of certain cases, both in print media and face-to-face at a series of Cullman County Republican Party town hall meetings around the county.

What made you want to become a judge to begin with?

"I've always been a peacemaker, and so I think that the challenge of trying to settle disputes between people or companies, or those kinds of things is something has always intrigued me. I've had a long private practice, and then, after I was at the district attorney's office, I just felt like it was time. But it's something I've always wanted to do."

What do you hope to accomplish in your next term in office?

"We have already started trying to be more efficient with the limited actual resources that we have. We have less personnel, we have more cases than judges to handle all of that. So Judge (Gregory) Nicholas and I, who is the other circuit judge, have divided our docket so that I'm responsible primarily for the criminal dockets, and he for the domestic dockets. We » PAGE 7

CAMPAIGN 2018: Q&A with Melvin Hasting

craig@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN – Before the last Cullman County Republican Party town hall meeting, The Tribune spoke to Melvin Hasting, who is challenging incumbent Martha Williams for her seat as Cullman County Circuit Judge. Hasting and his supporters have used social and print media to go after Williams hard concerning her handling of certain cases. He has challenged her handling of cases and the administration of her office face-to-face at the GOP meetings, and a group of his supporters followed him to those meetings to question the professional behavior of both Williams and her staff. Hasting maintains that every aspect of his campaign has stayed firmly within legal bounds, and that every claim he has made is true and supported by documented evidence.

What made you want to seek this office?

"I love Cullman County, number one, and I've been born here, I've been raised here, I raised children here, and I raised a family here. And Cullman is special to me, and I see an opportunity as a circuit judge to do what I can to keep Cullman special, to keep Cullman safe.

"One of the important things that a circuit judge does is handle criminal dockets. So when you're handling a criminal docket, you're handling the criminal jury trials, you're handling probationers--people that's been convicted of crimes; you're also instrumental in helping people with the victims collect their money. So I want to work to keep Cullman safe. I don't want Cullman to get in this situation like some of these other towns and cities, where all the criminals are coming in and taking over. I want to do what we can to keep them out, by sending a message that we're tough on crime in Cullman."

I-65 rehab project update: Exit 305 south to Blount County line

CULLMAN – The Interstate 65 rehabilitation project from south of Exit 305 to the Blount County line continues. Work will be ongoing Sunday through Thursday nights, first on ramps and shoulders, then on the interstate itself.

"McCartney Construction started back to work on I-65 in Cullman County last night. They will continue working nights Sunday through Thursday until the project is complete, probably in mid- to late-summer," said Alabama Department of Transportation (ALDOT) North Regional Public Information Officer Seth Burkett. "Most of the work this week will be around Exit 304 at Good Hope (Alabama 69/County Road 437). Motorists may encounter temporary ramp closures during this time requiring them to detour to Exit 305 (County Road 222) or Exit 299 (Alabama 69/County Road 490) at Dodge City. Single-lane closures are also possible on the interstate mainline during this time."

Burkett advised that when ramp and shoulder work is complete, McCartney will begin placing the asphalt overlay on the interstate.

"Single-lane closures will be necessary each night. Following the mainline resurfacing, paving operations will move to the Gov. Guy Hunt Rest Stop, which should have little impact on traffic but will require closure of the rest area Sunday nights through Friday mornings," he said.

Holly Pond Bronco Band raising funds for new uniforms

Heather Mann
Tribune Correspondent

HOLLY POND – Wrapping up his first year at Holly Pond means planning and preparing for several years down the road for band director Evan Curtis. As part of his campaign to get new marching band uniforms - a $30,000 goal that he estimates will take at least a couple years - Evans organized a car show fundraiser this past Saturday. Along with classic cars, visitors enjoyed a bake sale and refreshment tents, could purchase old band T-shirts or color guard flags, or go down to the football field for games, face painting, or burgers at the concessions stand.

The bake sale stands featured homemade brownies, rice cereal treats, cookies and cakes made by auxiliary members and their families. The repurposed craft stand not only had T-shirts from previous band years and old flags from the color guard, but also sold yearbooks from as far back as 2006 and drawstring bags made from even more old flags. Down at the football field, there was a tent set up for prizes won at games like bowling or cornhole and a second tent for face painting, and the visitor-side concessions stand was open and selling savory foods like burgers, hotdogs and nachos for people who satisfied their sweet tooth at the bake sales.

When asked about future fundraisers, Curtis mentioned a majorette camp for kindergarten through fifth grade. The camp will help act as an introduction to twirling and will be held June 18-22. He also talked about the band's traditional fundraisers, two chicken dinners and the golf tournament, and stated that he hopes to make the car show a new tradition. While most of the events held throughout the year will go toward general band maintenance or funding the band's spring trip, the car show was specifically to raise money for new band uniforms.

This fall will be the 20th season for the current uniforms, and many of the students and parents agree that the age is obvious. Many of the jackets are missing buttons or snaps, have stains on the collars that won't wash out, and have had seams taken in or let out more times than can be counted. The pants' age isn't as obvious, but years of hemming, letting out and dragging the ground has taken a toll.

"When I was in band, I'd complain all the time, 'These uniforms are so old! These things have been here for nine years,'" Curtis recounted, "then when I got here I was like, '20 years old?!' This isn't just something where we want to get new uniforms because they look nicer, this is a desperate need."

Curtis said donations are always welcome, saying the Bronco Band needs all the help it can get in this endeavor.

AHSAA 6A STATE BASEBALL PLAYOFFS

Bearcats' season ends with 6-1 loss to Hazel Green

Nick Griffin
nick@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN – Saturday afternoon was a tough one for the Cullman Bearcats. After splitting their first two AHSAA 6A semifinal playoff games with Hazel Green Friday night, the 'Cats dropped game three 6-1 and capped off the 2018 season at 34-10.

Hazel Green scored in the top of the first on an RBI single into center field, but the Cullman defense caught a runner at third base and limited the damage to a single run.

Grayson Taylor got the start on the hill for the Bearcats, and after giving up a run in the first, stranded several Trojan baserunners in the next two innings with the help of a couple double plays in the infield.

Hazel Green made it 2-0 in the fourth with an RBI double, but the 'Cats were able to get one back in the bottom half of the inning with a lead-off homerun from Will Morrison. Up 2-1 in the fifth inning, Hazel Green had Garrett Gustafson knock a three-run homerun over the deck in center field and to give the Trojans a 5-1 lead.

Hazel Green added one more run in the sixth on an RBI double, and the Bearcats could not come up with any offense in the final three innings.

The Trojans won it 6-1 to advance to the state finals in Montgomery and end Cullman's season at 34-10. This will be the first trip to the state championship series in the school's history for Hazel Green.

'Cats Head Coach Brent Patterson knew his team would have to hit to have a chance on Saturday and credited Trojans' starter Jackson Minor for slowing down the Bearcats' bats.

"We knew we were in a tough spot and that it was going to take some runs. Their guy came out and threw like three balls to every hitter in the first few innings and then he'd come back and find it and we'd foul a ball off and he'd find it again. Hats off to him, he got it done," Patterson said.

"I know he struggled a little with command, but the guy really competed and today we got beat by the better team.

"I think they were in a really good spot when they came, and we needed to have better at bats early and we didn't. We got behind and sometimes that's the way baseball works out."

Patterson has helped lead the Bearcats to an appearance in Montgomery for four straight seasons and came up just one game short of a fifth straight appearance this year.

Patterson is proud of the program's consistency and credited the people around the program, on and off the field, for the team's success.

"There's something to be said about consistency. There's always a target on your back and everybody is gunning for you and to be able to sustain a level of success is good, but what that is, is a testament to the parents that pour into the program and the type of kids that stick around and work their rear ends off and all these coaches and people around me that try to give them the best opportunity and prepare them as much as we possibly can," he said.

This Cullman team replaced nearly the entire lineup from last season and got off to a rocky start in February, but Patterson is proud of this group and how they came together to win 30 of their last 35 games and finish the 2018 campaign with a Final Four appearance and a 34-10 record.

"Every season is different, and every team is different, but as far as how rewarding it was and the return on investment, this team right here grew so much, starting right about spring break," he said.

"We had good times and some really bad times and then right around spring break there were guys that stepped up and led and I think that when young men that have never had to be in leadership roles have to leave their comfort zone, that's awfully rewarding...to see it translate on the field and taking care of the little things and taking ownership of their team, and it led to wins, too."

He continued, "After they go through this program we hope they're more prepared for different things in life.

"I look at a guy like Carson Freeman who so unselfishly played some as a sophomore, split time and didn't get to hit a lot as a junior and a very good player, then he's looking forward to his senior year and he tears his ACL in the last football game and he battles through that adversity.

"Things like that are what it's really all about. We all want to win every single game and we all want to finish our seasons with a win on the last day and sometimes that doesn't happen, but there are more important things when it comes down to it."

Local archers compete in national tournaments; East Elementary brings home national title

nick@cullmantribune.com

LOUISVILLE, Ky. – A handful of local archery squads made their way to Louisville, Kentucky over the weekend for the 2018 National Archery in the Schools Program (NASP) national tournaments, and one of them even brought home a national title. East Elementary took the top the prize in this year's International Bowhunting Organization (IBO) shoot, finishing with a score of 1,660. East also managed to take home second place in the bullseye event.

East Elementary Coach Branch Whitlock knew after watching his team shoot that they had a chance to win it all, but he didn't realize how well they really performed until after all the results were in.

"We shot the ministry event the night before and had a real strong score, so I thought that if we shot that score again the next day, we would probably win. We turned around and we shot a better score. Our score was 20 points higher than the national champion from the year before, so I felt really good about it. I felt like we were in a great place moving forward and had a great opportunity to win," Whitlock said.

"I thought that we had it won, I really felt good about it. 1660 is the score that won and that's an unprecedented score, that's a middle school score and we shot it, so I knew I felt good about it, I was trying to encourage the parents not to go home and to wait and see and most of them did. The kids were so excited, probably the first national championship for an Elementary School here in Cullman. We also felt great about our bullseye score except for the fact that on Friday, Kingston Elementary out of Louisiana shot a score that I thought might be untouchable, kind of like our IBO score. If we had like an incredible day we could've beaten them, and we just barely came up short. We would've beaten last year's champion by two points, so that's how good we shot this year."

Whitlock said he knew by the end of the year that he had a special team but back at the start of the season, he had a lot of questions about his 2018 squad.

"I thought this year was going to be a struggle for us. I thought coming into the year we were probably second in the state. We had some good returners but not as many as I normally have. I really had to bring on some new fifth graders and develop them along the way and of course every year we have new fourth graders but about middle of the year, around March, I realized how much potential this team had. I thought at that time it was probably the group with the most potential that I've ever had so I got really excited that we could potentially have a national championship team," Whitlock said. "I wasn't sure we would be good enough by state to win state, but I did think we'd be good by the time nationals rolled around. We made a huge jump right before state and an even bigger one right after. We shot 19 points higher at nationals than we did at state. In turn, Dixon Elementary, the team I was most worried about, shot about 80 points lower than they did at state so that's how things can take a turn. It's just the mental makeup of the kids that makes or breaks it sometimes. The kids shot out of their mind good. It's a lot of stress and pressure and they were just able to fight through it and bring it home."

Cullman Middle School finished sixth overall in the IBO shoot after posting a 1,670, Vinemont Middle School placed 24th with a score of 1637 and West Point High School posted a 1,370 to finish 96th. East Elementary also came up with a second-place finish in the bullseye event after posting a score of 3,260. Vinemont Middle School and Cullman Middle School finished 28th and 33rd in the bullseye event, respectively and West Point Middle School finished the event in 214th place nationally. West Point and Good Hope High Schools were the only local high schools in Louisville over the weekend and finishing in 98th and 157th place in the bullseye event, respectively.

Vinemont Elementary placed 28th in the IBO shoot and 21st in the bullseye event over the weekend, but the standout during the trip for the Eagles was fifth-grader Kayden Henderson. Henderson finished in third place in the bullseye event, finishing ahead of more than 2,000 other elementary archers with a score of 288.

Alongside Henderson, there were a few more standout performances in Louisville from local archers. East Elementary's Allie Stewart took fourth place in the bullseye event with a final score of 283, Hayden Scott finished sixth for East in the IBO shoot with a score of 283, and East's Ava Ray finished second in the IBO shoot with a score of 282 just ahead of Stewart, who finished third. East Elementary also had five girls finish in the top 10 of the Ministry 3D Tournament, starting with Arianna Scott. Scott finished second with 278 points just ahead of Allie Stewart and Ava Ray, who finished third and fourth, respectively. Brianna Willoughby also cracked the top 10 with a seventh-place finish just ahead of Lillyann Powell in eighth. East Elementary's boys also had a big day in the 3D Ministry shoot. Hayden Scott took second place after posting a 282 and Evan Dockery was right behind him in fourth place. Jack Yeager put together a seventh-place finish in the shoot, with Cole Burnham rounding out East's top 10 performers in ninth place.

Top six finishers for each time in each event. Top six individual scores count toward the team's total.

As your state Representative, I fully support and appreciate local law enforcement leaders like Sheriff Matt Gentry and their efforts to protect and serve our community.

The School Resource Officer programs are vital to prevention and response to issues facing our schools, and deserve stronger funding that I am working to secure.

I will work with our Police Chiefs, Sheriffs and Superintendents to support their efforts to provide safe schools for our children.

On June 5,

Elect GARLAN GUDGER ★ SENATE ★

ELECT GARLAN GUDGER FOR ALABAMA STATE SENATE DISTRICT 4

"I was elected to the Cullman City Council in 2004. In 2008, I was elected President of the City Council and still hold that position today. No longer was it 'What can I do to make Cullman better?', It became 'What can WE do to make Cullman better?" Our primary objective was to build up the city to make it the best place for its citizens to live, work, play and worship. We've seen unprecedented economic growth from 2004-2018, surviving the recession of 2008 and rebuilding after the 2011 tornadoes. We invested back into our community continuously, improving the quality of life, and empowering all citizens to care a little more, work together a little more, and to believe a little more until our aspirations started to meet our achievements! This campaign is no different than my story above. It's going to take hard work, determination, and honest, open conversation, but I believe that together, we can make District 4 a Powerhouse in Alabama, in which all other communities are able to look at for a blueprint for success!"

– GARLAN GUDGER

Remember to cast your ballot for a man who cares as much for your community as you do your own. Vote Garlan Gudger for Alabama Senate District 4, which includes Cullman County, most of Lawrence County, and portions of Marion and Winston Counties, on June 5.

Graduation is Tuesday, May 22, 2018, at 8 p.m. at AG Hicks Stadium.

"The Addison High School class of 2018 has been one the most successful classes to ever walk the halls of Addison High School. They have displayed success in the classroom, as well as in all extracurricular activities. They have received, as a class, almost $600,000 in scholarships in academics and athletics to two-year colleges and four-year universities.

"They have had several students score 30 or above on the ACT, been very competitive in scholars' bowl and placed in the state robotics competition. In athletics they have been a part of five straight state volleyball championships and consecutive semi-final and quarter-final playoff appearances in football.

"I cannot wait to see what this class accomplishes after high school and the difference they can and will make in society. I will continue to pray for this class as they go out into the world and embark on what I hope is a successful journey through life. Thank you for the great memories we have shared and know that my doors will always open to you if there is anything you need."

CLASS OF 2018

Graduation is Thursday, May 17, 2018 at 7 p.m. at Christ Covenant Presbyterian Church.

"Congratulations to the Cullman Christian School 2018 Senior Class! While our students have studied hard and learned well in many academic areas, I am most proud that these seniors have grown in their understanding of God and in their relationship with Him. As the Word of God says, 'The fear of the Lord is the beginning of knowledge.' (Proverbs 1:7). These students have achieved excellence in the classroom and demonstrated character outside the classroom. They have learned from mistakes and shown determination to overcome obstacles. I believe these students will not only can be successful in whatever academic or vocational area they choose to pursue, but I believe they will also make an everlasting difference in the world by sharing God's love through Jesus Christ with others. We love you, Seniors! May God bless you."

5th annual breakfast celebrates Future Foundation scholarship recipients, donors

Kristen Holmes

HANCEVILLE – The Wallace State Community College Future Foundation matched students who received foundation scholarships with the donors who funded those scholarships during a special celebratory breakfast at Wallace State last week. The event is scheduled each year during the lead-up to graduation.

During this year's fifth annual Scholarship Celebration Breakfast, Foundation president Jason Spann announced the awarding of more than $205,000 in named, endowed and Foundation scholarships to 135 students, double the amount awarded last year.

"Our story begins with you," Wallace State President Dr. Vicki Karolewics told the guests in attendance. "The story of each student awarded today will begin or continue here at Wallace State because of the generosity of donors like you.

"Today's event celebrates the success of these students, while honoring those who choose to give and to make their success a reality. We are eternally grateful to all of our donors who give throughout the year to support Wallace State and the Future Foundation."

Suzanne Harbin, executive director of the Future Foundation, said they received more than 200 scholarship applications, and were able to grant approximately 65 percent of those requests.

"We feel so passionately about being able to help students complete their educational goals," Harbin said

"We work really hard to fund as many scholarships as we possibly can, based both on need and on merit."

In keeping with a tradition set in past years, the group heard from both a scholarship donor and a recipient.

Lt. Capt. Aaorn Matthis, who flies for American Eagle, provided the donor remarks.

He received word he was being promoted to captain before the event and said that speaking at the breakfast was a "full circle moment."

Matthis, 22, was the recipient of the Richard Caretti Aviation Technology Scholarship when he was a student in the flight program at Wallace State several years ago.

He has since established his own scholarship, the Aaron J. Matthis Future Professional Flight Scholarship.

"Wallace State offered much more for me," he said. Not only was the college tuition and the cost of living more affordable than university programs, even for the flight program which has the added cost of air time requirements, but also, he was able to offset some of that cost with his scholarship, and the facilities, equipment, and faculty and staff were top notch, he said.

"There's no better feeling than signing in to register, and finding a scholarship credit on your account," he said.

"It helped me and my parents."

His mother reminded him later how fortunate he was to have received that scholarship.

"Wallace State provided everything I needed to go from zero to hero," he said. "Being back here has been amazing."

Matthis presented the first scholarship awarded in his name to flight student Lindzey Hughes at the event.

Alleah Welch, the recipient of the Jim D. and Mattie Moody Endowed Scholarship and the Sonya Hembree Memorial Scholarship, offered a scholarship recipient testimonial. She is majoring in nursing.

Welch explained that she was a single teenage mother, who wouldn't have been able to dream of a college education without the support the Foundation has provided.

She thanked the foundation and her donors for recognizing the worth of investing in those "who may not come from great wealth but who are wealthy in our hearts," and who have a desire to learn and to serve.

The Wallace State Future Foundation is in the midst of a Major Gifts Campaign and more than two-thirds of its way toward its goal of raising $5 million for scholarships.

To date, the Foundation has established 45 endowed scholarships, which require investments over five years of $25,000 or more, and 89 named funds and scholarships, which may be established with gifts of any amount.

The Foundation has already awarded more than 2,000 scholarships valued at $1.5 million.

In addition to the Scholarship Fund, the Major Gifts Campaign includes fundraising for instructional technology, an entrepreneurship center and a Lion Legacy fund, which is a best use fund that will be used to address unbudgeted needs, such as setting up training for a new or expanding business or industry.

In addition to Spann, members of the Foundation Board of Directors include Danny Kelly, Cheryl Bailey, Leah Bolin, Tim Compton, Dr. Jim Davis, Dr. T.J. Franey, Dale Greer, Donna Guthrie, Scotty Hooper, Don Hubbard, Billy Jackson, Shirley Quattlebaum, John Riley, Bill St. John, Dr. Tomesa Smith, Retha Tinney, Lisa Weeks, Jason White, Board Members Emeriti - Betty Haynes and Fred Cespedes and Dr. Vicki Karolewics – Wallace State president.

Wilson (from Front)

wendy@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN COUNTY – Jordan Lee Wilson and her sister, Nicole Wright, were raised on Smith Lake. That's why Wilson's family chose the lake as the place to hold a small, private vigil for her this month. Today, May 15, 2018, marks two years since Wilson went missing. And though there is a $50,000 reward for information leading to her whereabouts, there has been no break in the case, according to Jordan's mom Judy (Johnston) Thomas.

"We had another search in February," shared Thomas. "This one was the typical search. We had about 30 people. We're exhausted, mentally and physically. But we do need to keep her name out there. We know no more today than we did two years ago."

At approximately 5'8" and 150-160 pounds, Wilson, who was 32 at the time she disappeared, has dark blonde hair and was last seen by friends and family on May 15, 2016 driving a newer, dark-colored Kia Sorento near the Walker County line in the Bremen and Bug Tussle area. Later discovered near Busby Road and Campbellville Lane in an area north of Sipsey and west of Arkadelphia, the SUV was abandoned approximately 7 miles from where Wilson was last seen by friends and family, and Wilson was nowhere to be found. Her cell phone was in the vehicle.

"The community has shown so much support," said Thomas. "We have the billboard up on (Alabama Highway) 69, they put a banner up at Cold Springs School, at the ballfield, and we've seen around 300 decals on cars showing Jordan's picture and the information about the reward."

Wilson's family is asking everyone in the community to pray for her, especially today, on the anniversary of her disappearance. An online event was created at www.facebook.com/events/444905145961781.

On that page, Wilson's family writes:

"Jordan's loved ones ask that on the 15th of May you join with them and friends and all who loved her in a day of prayer to bring her home and have the answers so needed. Please share this page on all social media and take a moment that day to light a candle and say a prayer for Jordan. Post your prayer, light a candle and share on this event page.

"Such a simple thing to do, and one that will help this family as they continue to search for their loved one. Pray for answers, courage, strength, hope and resolution. Pray by yourself or gather your family together or even your friends. Let's completely cover Jordan and all who know and love her in prayer. Thank you all.

"'For where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them.' Matthew 18:20"

The past two years have been a struggle for Thomas. She shared, "I'm better today. There was a time I couldn't have a conversation with anyone. I went into seclusion. I protected her two boys. It was disbelief. This is not happening. It's just something you see on TV. I was in a vegetative state of mind until last fall. I had to come out of it. I forced myself out of it. Here I am, today, continuing to fight."

Wilson's aunt, Dawn Shoults, was the face of the family's search until the beginning of this year, stepping in for Thomas.

"Jordan was 32 years old at the time she disappeared," Thomas said. "My life stopped that day. It stopped. There's very little recollection between then (before Wilson disappeared) and now."

Wilson is not only a beloved daughter and niece. She is also a mother to two young boys.

"The little one (Caleb), we keep him pretty protected, we just tell him mama's in heaven," said Thomas. "May is a hard month. He's still making Mother's Day cards. It makes it difficult. He was 6 when Jordan disappeared. He's 8 now. Dylan is 13. It's taken a toll on him. He's coming into manhood; he's stayed in that protector mode, 'I wanna fight for my mama.'"

Thomas shared that one of the worst parts is all of the phone calls the family receives.

"There's a $50,000 reward, but nothing has come forward. We get all kinds of crazy phone calls, and what I've learned since the beginning of this, and I've talked to other parents of missing children, or spouses, or whoever the family member may be, they get the same kind of phone calls that we get. They're gruesome, gory stories. It's all the same. And those were the stories that we were told, and there's nothing that leads to any of this."

For their part, the Cullman County Sheriff's Office is still actively working the case, along with the Walker County Sheriff's Office.

"The sheriff's office (CCSO), they've not dropped the ball on anything in any aspect; they have covered every base there is to cover, and there's nothing. There's not a drop of blood, anything," said Thomas. "If we find Jordan, things will change. The search will continue."

Cullman County Sheriff Matt Gentry said, "On behalf of the sheriff's office, this case is very important to us. The family means a lot to the sheriff's office and we went to ensure we're doing everything we can to give them closure in this case. No matter what, we're not going to stop, you know, we 're going to continue to work every day on this case, for the family. We're continuing to work every lead we can get. I want the family to know they're still on our heart and prayers. We're going to continue to be vigilant on this case."

"Sheriff Gentry, when he looks at me in my eyes, I know," Thomas said through tears, "I know that he will never give up. You know, you just don't find that anywhere. Because this is happening to us. It's happening to other families across the country, families next door to us in other counties, and they do not get what we get out of Sheriff Gentry. I'm not putting up there at the pearly gates with God and Jesus, but he's real close."

The CUE (Community United Efforts) Center for Missing Persons has been instrumental in the search for Jordan Wilson.

The nonprofit has organized several searches in the area where her car was found, working its way outward and searching in grids, documenting each search and keeping records of exactly what areas have been searched.

Anyone with any information on any missing person in Cullman County or the surrounding area is asked to contact the Cullman County Sheriff's Office at 256-734-0210 or 256-734-0342, or the 24-hour CUE Tip Line at 910-232-1687 or 910-343-1131. Find out more about CUE at www.ncmissingpersons.org.

Hasting (from Front)

"Since I've been campaigning, I've listened to what the electorate, what the people in Cullman County, say they have a problem with and how we can fix it.

"And one of the things is these cases that get continued, continued, continued--criminal jury week cases, and then some of these criminal cases. And we can fix that, number one, by having criminal jury trials and getting these cases resolved.

"You can't just let cases go on and on and on. And that's going to take someone that's proactive, where you step up to the bench and say you've got to, a month, two months in advance of these criminal jury weeks, get with the DA--the district attorney, get with the attorneys and say, 'Which cases do we have? Which cases require trial, and which cases may settle?' so we can set in order 'This case is first. If it gets settled, we're going to go second, third, fourth.'

"Also, when we have a jury week like a criminal jury week, we just had one last week, if you don't have criminal cases to try--which we do--then you can have civil cases tried, because all we need is a jury. So making more efficient use of our jury weeks is very important to me.

"And the other thing is people sometimes feel like their judges are out of touch with them, you know, that they don't want to hear their cases, they don't want to be heard. I hear it all the time. So, as your circuit judge, I'm going to hear your case. Some people just want their day in court, and I'm going to give them their day in court, and I'm going to follow the law when I do it."

What differences between you and your opponent do you think are important to consider?

"Number one, neither one of us are entitled to this job. We're both running as candidates for circuit judge. So it's important to me that I get the message out: what is the differences. And what I have chosen to do in two ads that I've run is take two particular cases and said, 'Here's what happened, and this is how we can fix it.' And they really--all it boils down to is being fair.

"Three of the cases I talk about are criminal cases. And what's happened to them: it's been one side heard the story; the state side hasn't been heard, and there's been errors made in those cases by my opponent. So I want to fix that: give everybody hearings, follow the law, and do what we're supposed to.

"Another example is a case that I had brought out, which is an estate case where it's a 2015 case. The case has drug on and on and on, and all the money's depleted out of the estate. And your judge has control of that. Unfortunately, this case has got out of control, and that's what happened. So we've got to be on top of these cases, make sure that the decisions we're making lines up with law, lines up with the facts and lines up with people. We've got to take people into consideration.

"So that is some differences. I'm going to give you hearings, I'm going to treat you right and we're going to follow the law."

If you had to boil your message down to a concise statement, what would you want people to know about you?

"As your circuit judge, I care. I care about your case, and I understand that your case is important to you, and your case also will be important to me as your circuit judge, because my decisions affect you and affect your life, and I know that's important."

Williams (from Front)

have tried to streamline our administrative duties so that we can spend more time with the cases that are in front of us. I would hope that, in the next term, that we could continue that and be even more efficient.

"But also, I've had the honor to be on the task force for development of some kind of mental health resources here in Cullman County, and I'm looking forward to having an opportunity to do more for the folks that sometimes will end up before me, and really need treatment."

Are there differences between you and your opponent that are important to consider?

"Well, I would say the main difference is that I've had so much more experience. I've had experience both in private practice, and also as a prosecutor. So every case that will come before me, and that has come before me, I've handled, and I've handled them from both sides. I have the experience, and I have the desire to continue to work for my community, and I want to serve."

When asked if she wanted to address attacks by Hastings supporters through The Victim's Voice PAC in local print media and social media, Williams declined.

If you had to boil your message down to a concise statement, what would you want people to know about you?

"I think I have a unique set of talents and experience to serve this community, and I want to continue."
