Faith traditions: 2018 Vacation Bible Schools

W.C. Mann
craig@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN COUNTY – This summer, numerous Cullman area churches will take their place in the 120-plus year old annual faith tradition of Vacation Bible School. What started as a somewhat academic endeavor to provide public school children extra instruction in the Bible has become a major component, both religiously and socially, of the summer schedules of many congregations. Many adult Cullmanites remember attending multiple VBS events with family and friends as part of their summer vacations.

Entries in the following list include the church's name, VBS program name, dates and times, contact number when available, and address. Most churches can also be contacted via Facebook or websites. If your church is having VBS and it's not on this list, or if your church's information is incomplete, let us know. Please send the information needed for the list, and it will be added to The Tribune's online community event schedule. Email information to wendy@cullmantribune.com.

CULLMAN – A Cullman County man was indicted for rape by Cullman County grand jury recently. Colby Michael Chapman, 20, was indicted on May 17 on three counts, according to court documents: second-degree rape, production of obscene matter and possession of obscene matter.

The indictments stem from Chapman's arrest on Feb. 15, 2018 for second-degree rape, for which he had a $10,000 bond. His alleged crimes involved a victim younger than 17.

For count one of indictment, according to court records, Chapman "being sixteen years of age or older, did engage in sexual intercourse with a member of the opposite sex, to-wit: (redacted) date of birth 08/19/02, who was less than sixteen years of age and more than twelve years of age."

For counts two and three, Chapman is

Altoona man indicted for Stony Lonesome death

Wendy Sack
wendy@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN – An Altoona man has been indicted by a Cullman County grand jury for the death of a woman at Stony Lonesome OHV Park in February of this year.

Walter John Cornelius III, 29, was indicted for criminally negligent homicide, manslaughter and public intoxication.

The indictments stem from the death of 21-year-old Hannah Nicole Bates. Bates was killed in an incident at Stony Lonesome OHV Park on Saturday, Feb. 24, 2018. She was a passenger in an RZR 900, an off-road vehicle, that flipped. Cornelius was the driver.

According to the Cullman County Sheriff's Office, Cornelius was allegedly intoxicated by alcohol at the time of the crash.

After his initial arrest on Tuesday, March 6, Cornelius was placed in the Cullman County Detention Center on a $20,000 bond. He made bond and was released. Following his grand jury indictments, he was arrested again on Friday, May 25. According to the detention center, he has been released; his bond amount was $40,000.

Stony Lonesome is a park for OHV, or "off-highway vehicles." It is owned by Cullman County and operated by Cullman County Parks and Recreation (CCP&R).

"It happened within minutes of the park closing, I think they were probably on their way back to check out," Doug Davenport, CCP&R director, told The Tribune the night of the crash.

Davenport said the wreck occurred on a hill on one of the designated trails.

According to Davenport, where the wreck happened, "It doesn't look like speed or anything would be a factor."

"It's a tragic event. There wasn't a race."

Davenport said it appeared the victim was not wearing a seat belt.

The Cullman County Commission reacted to the incident swiftly, approving several rule changes for Stony Lonesome on Tuesday, Feb. 27.

Davenport was at the meeting to outline the new rules at the park, including: no coolers on the trails, required safety harnesses and seat belts and a stricter wristband policy. Two weeks later, the commission took a step back on the no-cooler rule.

After public backlash, the commission changed that rule. Patrons are allowed to have coolers on the trails, but there are mandatory cooler checks upon entrance to the trails and random checks on the trails for alcohol and safety harnesses. Patrons found with alcohol can be ejected from the park with no refunds.

Bates's death was the third at the park in less than a year. Back on April 22, 2017, Lawrence Richey, 34, of Smiths Grove, Kentucky and Erin Duncan, 22, of Elkins, Arkansas were killed as the result of an ATV crash.

Stony Lonesome is located at 10075 Alabama Highway 69 South in Bremen.

119th graduation held at Saint Bernard

Joyce Nix
St. Bernard

CULLMAN – The Saint Bernard Class of 2018 officially joined the ranks of alumni from Saint Bernard Preparatory School during the 119th Commencement Exercises held on Sunday, May 27, 2018 in the Abbey Church. Family and friends gathered in the capacity-filled church to honor the 35 seniors who earned $3.3 million in scholarship offers to college.

The Knights of Columbus Fourth Degree Honor Guard- Father Leo Carter Assembly 2624 led the procession into the church as organist, Jannie Ratliff, and trumpet player, Barry Stoner, filled the room with the music of "Pomp and Circumstance."

After the opening prayer, the national anthem and the Pledge of Allegiance, President Father Joel Martin, O.S.B., welcomed guests and introduced distinguished members of the board of directors, as well as the faculty and staff of the school.

The ceremonies began with the presentation of the Saint Bernard Distinguished Alumnus Award by Father Marcus Voss, O.S.B., Saint Bernard alumni director. The Young Distinguished Alumnus Award was presented to Gerald "Jeremy" Wootten, III, (PS'2001) who currently is the president and chief financial officer for HomTex, Inc, headquartered in Cullman. The distinction was given in recognition of his leadership in business, of his service for the common good of the community and of his commitment to philanthropy.

The Distinguished Alumnus Award was presented to Colonel Francis Leonard "Len" Loving (C'60), a 30-year veteran of the United States Marine Corps. This distinction was given in recognition of his meritorious service to our country and his commendable work, in recent years, on behalf of veterans and their families, especially in their hours of need.

Seymour Lenz, (HS '57, C'59), delivered the commencement address. A graduate from St. Bernard High School, he earned his bachelor's degree in engineering from Georgia Tech University and founded his own company. Recalling his days while enrolled at St. Bernard High School, he recounted many of the experiences that affected his success in life. He concluded his remarks by encouraging the graduates to have the confidence that God will always look after them and guide them, if only they recognize his presence in their lives. After the commencement address, Father Linus Klucsarits, O.S.B., headmaster, presented two academic awards. The Salutatorian Award for the second highest academic average in the senior class was presented to Andrew Liam Sweeney. The Valedictorian Award for the highest academic average in the senior class was presented to Genevieve Grace Griffin.

The criteria for the General Excellence Award requires that the graduating senior display academic excellence, exercise leadership and represent the values of the school. The General Excellence Award for the 119th Commencement was presented to Eva Marie Barck. A highlight of the ceremony was the awarding of the Saint Bernard diploma to each member of the graduating class. Father Linus called each graduate to come forward to receive his or her diploma from Abbot Cletus Meagher, O.S.B., chairman of the board, who was assisted by Father Joel Martin.

After the valedictory address given by Genevieve Grace Griffin, Father Linus congratulated the class on its accomplishments and closed the ceremonies with the singing of the school's Alma Mater. Afterward, the Abbey Church was filled with the sound of bagpipes and drums as the Alabama Pipe and Drum Band, from Birmingham, led the procession out of the church into the afternoon sun. A reception followed in the Saint Bernard Dining Hall.

A supplement that combines antioxidants with zinc and copper is a relatively inexpensive and effective means of halting the progression of the 'wet' form of age-related macular degeneration (AMD), a degenerative eye disease, concludes research published online in the British Journal of Ophthalmology. In 'wet' AMD, abnormal blood vessels grow underneath the retina. These vessels can leak fluid and blood, which can damage the macula – the part of the retina responsible for central vision. But the drugs (anti-VEGF therapies) currently used to treat 'wet' AMD are expensive and have been linked to heightened risk of inflammation of the inside of the eye (endophthalmitis) and possibly stroke as well.

Antibiotics prescribed by dentists may contribute to the growing problem of Clostridium difficile (C. diff), a serious and potentially deadly infection that causes severe diarrhea, suggests research presented at a recent Infectious Diseases Society of America conference. And many of those antibiotics are likely unnecessary, researchers note. Taking antibiotics can put patients at risk for developing C. diff and illustrates the importance of using the medications only when needed.

A new study ranking the safety and effectiveness of four drugs taken to enhance concentration, memory, alertness and moods found that donepezil was most likely to effectively improve cognition in patients with Alzheimer's dementia. However, patients who took donepezil were more likely to experience side effects including nausea, vomiting and diarrhea than those who received a placebo, according to the study, published online in the Journal of the American Geriatrics Society. In 2015, 46 million people worldwide had Alzheimer's disease, according to the study.

ELECT GARLAN GUDGER FOR ALABAMA STATE SENATE DISTRICT 4
"I was elected to the Cullman City Council in 2004. In 2008, I was elected President of the City Council and still hold that position today. No longer was it 'What can I do to make Cullman better?', It became 'What can WE do to make Cullman better?" Our primary objective was to build up the city to make it the best place for its citizens to live, work, play and worship. We've seen unprecedented economic growth from 2004-2018, surviving the recession of 2008 and rebuilding after the 2011 tornadoes. We invested back into our community continuously, improving the quality of life, and empowering all citizens to care a little more, work together a little more, and to believe a little more until our aspirations started to meet our achievements! This campaign is no different than my story above. It's going to take hard work, determination, and honest, open conversation, but I believe that together, we can make District 4 a Powerhouse in Alabama, in which all other communities are able to look at for a blueprint for success!"

PROVEN ACCOUNTABILITY

Transparency and honesty are more than buzzwords. It's how I run my office. When it comes to serving as Cullman County's Chief Election Official it's my job to make sure our voters know where and when to cast their vote. While some may criticize me for allocating extra funds to publish our voters' list in more than one publication, I feel it's my responsibility to make sure the people in Cullman County have access to the information they need to let their voice be heard. I am careful with taxpayer dollars and have always worked within the budget allotted for my office. During my tenure as Probate Judge, I have had two clean audits proving my fiscal responsibility. Don't forget to cast your vote on June 5th.

Event security

Last year's Las Vegas concert mass shooting weighed heavily on the minds of RTS event planners, and no one has forgotten the less serious problems that occurred during last year's weather delays. Event planners and the Cullman Police Department (CPD) have taken a serious look at matters of security both inside and outside Heritage Park.

Said RTS event coordinator Nathan Baugh, "While we understand things can happen anywhere, we want to do everything we can to protect our attendees and artists. As another layer of protection, we are adding metal detectors to our entrances at Rock the South in 2018. Safety is of paramount priority to our team, and we will continue to work with our law enforcement partners to make Rock the South safe for all."

Police Chief Kenny Culpepper worked with the RTS staff to manage security in and around the park, using CPD and Cullman County Sheriff's Office resources. He declined to release specific details of the plan, for security reasons, but shared that it would include an increased personnel presence in sensitive areas, an expanded park perimeter and even aerial surveillance of the event site.

"We've always felt comfortable with our interior security," said Culpepper. "In other words, (once) you go through the gate and you actually get into the grounds. We've always felt like we had a good presence, and that we were able to maintain security fairly well inside the perimeter. And that's going to be enhanced and increased this year with the metal detectors.

"The problem now is (if) you have an event that's out of the norm, and then you have to respond to it. So, the direction and guidance that we're getting now is to pay more attention to the exterior, the perimeter, which is what happened in Las Vegas. You had the shooter on the outside; he wasn't actually in the venue, he just had line of sight from a distance away," said Culpepper.

"So, we're putting in place some plans to, number one: try to prevent someone from doing something like that, and number two: to respond to it quickly, to limit it as much as possible if it does occur, because it's very difficult, you know, to completely stop something like that from outside the venue. The advantage we have is that we don't have high-rises and a lot of vantage points, but we do have a few areas of concern that we're working some contingency plans on."

The increased exterior security presence should not only be able to deter or respond to a crisis event like a shooter, but also to respond to issues at local businesses and other locations surrounding the park.

According to Culpepper, the event venue and surrounding areas will be patrolled by around 100 law enforcement officers from multiple agencies including CPD, the Cullman County Sheriff's Office, ALEA (Alabama State Troopers), Tuscaloosa Police, Guntersville Police, Hanceville Police and the State Fire Marshal's Office. Personnel will be assigned to small teams to patrol inside and outside the event perimeter. Cullman County Juvenile Probation personnel will also be on hand to assist with any issues involving minors. An onsite command center will coordinate the efforts of personnel from all the above-listed agencies plus others like Cullman Fire Rescue, Cullman Emergency Medical Services (EMS) and even the National Weather Service.

Culpepper noted that RTS is an all-hands-on-deck event for the CPD, and that the large number of city officers at and around the park will not lessen the number of officers on regular patrols in other parts of the city.

A tip for visitors

Culpepper and Baugh advised all RTS visitors to realize that the event is like most other large music events today: bags and containers will be subject to search, and metal detectors will be in use. They encouraged visitors to come early, be patient and double check what they are carrying.

Before you approach the gates, make sure any weapons (including pocket knives) are secured in your vehicle. Have keys and other metal objects out of your pockets and ready to hand off to security personnel when passing through the metal detectors.

And, of course, don't try to bring anything into the park you wouldn't want to be caught with. In light of current concern across the country, this will be the most secure RTS yet.

Said Baugh, "Ultimately, everybody's sensitive to what happened in Las Vegas and around the country, but I think that the amazing thing, on top of just how great the city of Cullman is to us, is the partnerships we have with Chief Culpepper and (Cullman Fire Rescue Chief) Brian Bradberry, and his team and EMS. And so, they do a really good job of devising the security plan and working with our team, and so we feel really confident that we have the ability to keep people safe this weekend."

Minimizing the impact on Heritage Park

An expanded event perimeter will not only help address security matters, but also allow the relocation of certain resources within the venue, to alter foot traffic patterns from previous years and protect areas that have tended to suffer more damage. The vendors' area will now be located in the Lee Street parking lot, and the park's baseball fields will be closed.

Said Baugh, "We have worked diligently with Cullman City Parks and Recreation to develop a plan that eliminates uses of certain pieces of the park, like the baseball fields, and helps give us more space for attendees to move about."

Main Soccer field/stage area set for renovation

Event planners aren't too worried about the large soccer field that houses the stage, as that field is set for a complete renovation after RTS. Seven months ago, Cullman Parks, Recreation, and Sports Tourism Executive Director Nathan Anderson announced the renovation after the discovery that the main field had originally been designed as two crowned fields with a low drainage area between. (See www.cullmantribune.com/articles/2017/10/22/cpr-planning-drainage-redesigns-heritage-park-fields-other-areas.)

At that time, Anderson said, "We are working with the civil engineers at St. John and Associates on a redesign of these fields. We are looking at raising the center of this field up over a foot and a half. We will have all the drainage of the field going to the perimeters of this large field; nothing will drain into the interior of the field. So during a larger festival or when we have larger crowds on these fields, they will be far more resilient if we have another rain event like we had this past year.

"As far as playing soccer, the design will make (the fields) easier to play on in light rain situations and in a heavy rain situation they'll drain much quicker and get the players back on the field faster.

"So this is something that really revealed to us that we need to redo these fields. We are currently going through design work and engineering work to redesign these large fields."

After RTS, the turf will be taken up, and the field will be regraded and crowned to promote better drainage. For that reason, turf conditions on that field are not as much of a concern as visitor experiences on the field.

Planners don't want the middle of the field to become a mud hole like last year, so they covered all low-lying areas with large sheets of plastic a while back, to keep those spots dry through all the rain that Cullman has recently experienced.

Said Baugh, "We're in a little bit different situation than we were last year, in the sense that we don't have to play soccer on it two months later, because they're actually going to tear them up and re-engineer them and regrade them and do all that stuff. So, while that helps the long term next week, that doesn't help the consumer experience onsite.

"So we worked with other people, and basically we just said, 'Hey, let's just cover our high impact areas.' We knew the rain was not going to most likely be there during the show-it was going to be there the week prior to the show. So we invested in, basically, a ton of plastic to cover all your high impact areas: meaning all your lanes, all the areas that were wet last year . . . Using that approach has been huge for us. We're going to pull it up, basically, as soon as the weather clears here, and we'll have a dry field underneath."

Vendors and other extras for visitors

According to Baugh, "We have tons of stuff out here, anywhere from Jack Daniels to El Jimador, to Tito's, to Firestone. One of the biggest things we champion is stuff offstage as well, the consumer experience and the patron experience that doesn't necessarily have anything to do with the stage.

"So we've taken a real big investment in that side of things, and making the vendor area more engaging, more active, and we think we've really done a really good job of that this year."

PAID FOR BY PAUL BUSSMAN FOR STATE SENATE

Cullman County First

As your state Representative, I fully support and appreciate local law enforcement leaders like Sheriff Matt Gentry and their efforts to protect and serve our community.

The School Resource Officer programs are vital to prevention and response to issues facing our schools, and deserve stronger funding that I am working to secure.

I will work with our Police Chiefs, Sheriffs and Superintendents to support their efforts to provide safe schools for our children.
