Church 212 starts community garden to feed the needy

CULLMAN COUNTY ANIMAL SHELTER

Church 212 members work in the church's community garden in early June

W.C. Mann
craig@cullmantribune.com

GOOD HOPE – Right down County Road 437 from Good Hope, members of Church 212 have been tending a garden, and harvest time is about to begin. Some plants are already being picked. Their produce won't be just for the congregation; church members hope that their vegetables will be a means of reaching out even to total strangers all around the community.

Church 212 representative Robert Taylor, Jr. told The Tribune that the crop includes tomatoes, squash, okra, zucchini, corn, eggplant, green beans, purple hull peas, pinkeye peas, watermelon, cantaloupe, cucumbers and a host of various peppers. Large numbers of each type of plant are expected to produce continuously through the season.

"Once that starts producing, it'll have to be picked every other day," said Taylor. "And what we're going to do is pick it, and we're going to give it out to anybody we know with a needy family. Then we're going to bag it up and go door to door, like throughout the area of Cullman--say, into the projects, apartment complexes--and just knock on their door and give them some food, give them some fresh vegetables, and the kids watermelons and stuff."

Taylor talked about the idea for a community ministry garden:

"We just have the property, and we kept talking about something to put our church family together like a small group in the church. Two or three of us decided to build a garden and asked other people in the church to get involved with us. And we said, 'Look, we can get vegetables for our own family, we can provide and bless somebody else with what it produces'--we've got a lot of elderly people in our church. So it was just a good idea to come together."

Gardeners, from novices as young as 10, to veteran farmers in their 70s, work side by side in the field next to the church, with the experienced sharing knowledge and pointers, and everyone sharing good fellowship.

"You know, the best part about it is," said Taylor, "I'll be honest about it: I've got some people I've been going to Church 212 with for a year, and I see them on Sundays and Wednesdays, but I've never talked to them. But now, since we've been in this garden, I know a lot about their family, they know a lot about my family. After we get finished working, we'll sit around together at a picnic table there and talk or pray for the church or what we know if anybody's got anybody to pray for. (It) just became a good fellowship. We call it 'feeding the body and the soul' or the spirit, because we're bonding together as a church, you know, uniting together to serve our community."

Those who know of a needy area family and want to get some of the church's produce to them can message Church 212 - Cullman or Robert R. Taylor Jr. through Facebook or call or text Taylor at 256-735-6809.

ALERT: Utility termination scam targeting Cullman-area businesses

wendy@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN – The Cullman Police Department has recently received complaints from local businesses about delinquent power bill phone scams.

According to Sgt. Todd Chiaranda, businesses are receiving phone calls from an English-speaking man with an Indian accent claiming to represent the Cullman Power Board. The man is telling businesses that their accounts are delinquent.

The caller asks for immediate payment over the phone to avoid termination of the business' power. The scammer will only accept payment by pre-paid money cards or iTunes cards.

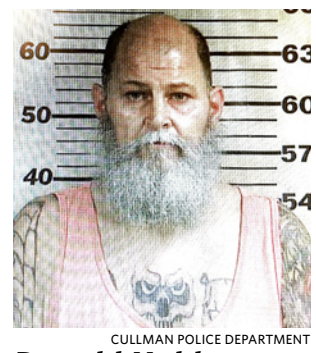

Chiaranda said the Cullman Power Board will never call asking for immediate payment over the phone.

"Be very skeptical of any phone calls asking for payment over the phone," he said. "Hang up and either contact the business in person or by phone after verifying their number."

CULLMAN POLICE DEPARTMENT

Donald Holder

BREMEN – A Bremen man was arrested recently after officers with the Cullman Police Department's Crime Suppression Unit (CSU) and the Alabama Drug Enforcement Task Force executed a search warrant on County Road 62, according to the CPD.

The arrest happened on June 15, 2018. The CPD said that Donald Holder, 50, was charged with unlawful possession with intent to distribute a controlled substance and unlawful possession of drug paraphernalia after the search allegedly uncovered 24 grams of methamphetamine, drug paraphernalia and a handgun. Holder was also arrested on a warrant for third-degree theft of lost property.

Holder was booked in to the Cullman County Detention Center and has since been released.

William E. Smith, Jr. named Cullman Regional's first chief medical officer

Lindsey Dossey
Cullman Regional

CULLMAN – William E. Smith, Jr., M.D., F.A.C.S. has been named Cullman Regional's first chief medical officer (CMO) by Cullman Regional CEO James Clements. Smith has served as CMO in a limited capacity for the past two years.

"As healthcare evolves and changes, it becomes more critical to have dedicated physician leadership to help drive clinical quality improvement," Clements said. "We're excited to have someone of Dr. Smith's caliber leading the initiatives for clinical quality improvement."

Smith, board-certified by the American Board of Surgery, is also a certified professional in healthcare quality. He grew up in Demopolis, completed his bachelor's degree in chemistry at the University of Alabama and obtained his medical degree from the University of Alabama at Birmingham. Following an internship in general surgery, he completed his surgical residency at Carraway Methodist Medical Center in Birmingham. During his training, he was active in nutrition research, presenting his results at the Southern Medical Association annual meeting and again to the Alabama Chapter of the American College of Surgeons. Smith was also active in the development of the Trauma Service and "Life Saver" helicopter transport system at Carraway, where he served as chief surgery resident.

Smith is a Fellow of the American College of Surgeons and a Fellow of the Southeastern Surgical Congress. He has also served as a member of the State Committee on Trauma and Committee on Applicants for the Alabama Chapter of the American College of Surgeons. He is a member of the American Society of General Surgeons, Society of Laparoendoscopic Surgery, Medical Association of the State of Alabama and Cullman County Medical Society. Prior to becoming CMO he served as chief of surgery and chairman of the Quality Management Council, vice chief of staff and chief of staff for Cullman Regional.

Smith is especially interested in surgical education. As a leader in the field of thoracoscopic chest surgery, performing the first such minimally invasive videoscopic lung procedure in north Alabama in early 1991, Smith has been active in taking this technology to surgeons across the country. He has traveled to various major cities including Chicago, New York and Houston teaching other chest surgeons the technique of videoscopic lung surgery. In addition, Smith has extensive experience in other minimally invasive procedures, including laparoscopic gall bladder and anti-reflux procedures, colon resection, hernia repair and appendectomy.

Dr. William E. Smith, Jr.

Smith and his wife Sherrie have four children: Jim, Morgan, Hillary and Sage. During his free time, he enjoys flying planes, playing guitar, white water rafting and camping. Smith and his family have been in Cullman since 1987.

West Point launching food pantry

Nick Griffin
nick@cullmantribune.com

WEST POINT – The West Point Town Council held further discussions on a handful of issues at its monthly meeting Monday night, starting with the food pantry project.

Mayor Kenneth Kilgo said the planned location for the food pantry is in front of Superior Custom Barns on County Road 1242. Kilgo recently spoke with Panama Baptist Church Pastor Greg Aldridge about stocking the pantry and according to Kilgo, Panama Baptist, along with other churches in the community, will participate in collecting food, along with West Point High School.

Kilgo said there are still details to hash out as far as food storage and other things, but he wants to plan for a food drive soon and believes the pantry will provide a great service for the community.

"Lots of churches have programs and things like that, but there's still a need there," Kilgo said. "and the thing of it is, a lot of people who need help are ashamed to ask for it. So, this is kind of an inconspicuous way to get help."

Hwy. 157 turn lane project

Kilgo and the council also briefly discussed the pre-conference for the long-awaited Alabama Highway 157 turn lane project.

The meeting was held Tuesday, June 19 in the town hall.

At the conference, T&K Construction was presented all the contracts and a start date was set for the project. Once work begins, T&K will have 120 days to complete it, barring any weather issues. (See separate story.)

West Point Family Medical Practice

Before adjourning Monday night's meeting,

Kilgo mentioned to the council that the Cullman Area Chamber of Commerce will be coming to the West Point Family Medical Practice for an official ribbon cutting on June 28 at 10:30 a.m.

The practice is located at 4131 County Road 1141, Vinemont, AL 35179. Hot dogs and refreshments will be served to those in attendance.

The West Point Town Council's next meeting will be July 16 at the West Point Town Hall at 6 p.m.

West Point's Hwy. 157 turn lane project officially begins

Nick Griffin
nick@cullmantribune.com

WEST POINT – Mayor Kenneth Kilgo and the West Point Town Council met with T&K Construction at West Point Town Hall on Tuesday to hash out more details regarding the long-awaited Alabama Highway 157 turn lane project. Tuesday, June 19 is the official starting date of the project, and construction work is set to begin by Monday, June 25.

The West Point Town Council awarded the bid for the extended deceleration / turn lane project in May to T&K Construction, LLC of Vinemont.

The total bid was priced at $301,260.54. The Town of West Point is responsible for approximately $90,000 of the project after accounting for grants and other contributions.

The lane is planned for the eastbound side of the highway as it approaches the County Road 1242 intersection where Jack's is located.

The Alabama Department of Transportation (ALDOT) previously committed $100,000 to the project, while the Cullman County Commission put in $50,000, according to Kilgo.

Garden City announces Freedom Celebration, upcoming paving projects

Heather Mann
Tribune Correspondent

GARDEN CITY – Keeping its June meeting short, the Garden City Town Council was excited to announce the town's annual Freedom Celebration as well as upcoming paving projects.

Mayor Pro Tem Scott Arnold said the Freedom Celebration will take place on July 1 in the park, with festivities starting at 6 p.m. and fireworks starting at dark.

Mayor Tim Eskew also announced that paving for the following roads should begin shortly: Boundary Avenue, Water Avenue, Railroad Avenue, Shaver Avenue, Third Street and Tenth Street.

In old business:

• Deb's Tire update: The court continuation date will be July 24. In April, the council issued citations to Deb's Tires and Roger's Tire, each found to be in violation of several ordinances including weed accumulation, garbage disposal and violating no parking zones. Maintaining a nuisance was also listed as one of the violations as several council members said the businesses have been aware of the violations for two years. According to the council, Roger's Tire has been operating out of the same location as Deb's Tires with no business license.

• Second reading and adopting of Ordinance 2018-221: Amendment to Business License code as approved at the May council meeting. The amendment changes the definition of a business - "any occupation including renting or leasing two or more residential or non-residential real estate for profit or gain" - by changing "two or more" to "any" and adding an exception to someone renting only one single-family dwelling.

In new business:

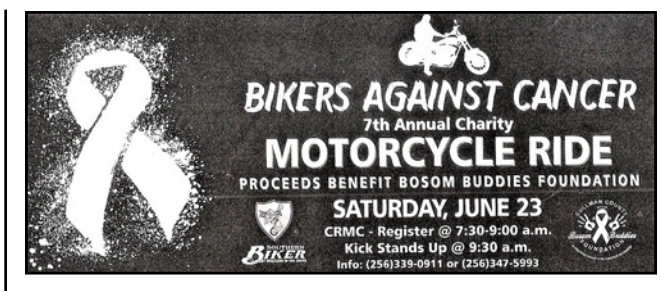

• the council considered a half-cent sales tax; it was tabled until next month's meeting

• gave an update on police vehicle repairs: A dipstick tube has been acquired, the transmission needs to be replaced, the radio needs to be changed, windows will roll down but not back up, lights and siren have been put on, there is an issue with a plug on the light bar and there are two new batteries.

• said the Town should be hearing about the grant it applied for for the fire department earlier this year and said the lack of a rejection by now seems to indicate a favorable response to come.

• considered imposing a speed limit for trains traveling through town

The Garden City Town Council meets on the third Monday of each month at 6 p.m. at Garden City Town Hall. The public is welcome to attend.

From 1999 through 2014 the number of U.S. adults taking daily vitamin D supplements above the recommended levels increased and three percent of the population exceeded the daily upper limit considered to possibly pose a risk of adverse effects, according to a study published by JAMA. A 2011 report concluded that vitamin D was beneficial for bone health but noted possible harm (e.g., abnormally high levels of calcium in the blood or soft tissue, or vascular calcification) for intakes above the tolerable upper limit of 4,000 IU daily. The recommended dietary allowance for vitamin D is 600 IU/d for adults 70 years or younger and 800 IU/d for those older than 70 years.

In the first year of availability of the cholesterol-lowering medications PCSK9 inhibitors, fewer than one in three adults initially prescribed one of these inhibitors actually received it, owing to a combination of high out-of-pocket costs and lack of insurance approval, according to a study published by JAMA Cardiology. Since 2015, the PCSK9 inhibitors alirocumab and evolocumab have been approved for adults with persistently elevated low-density lipoprotein cholesterol (LDL-C) levels despite maximally tolerated statin therapy and those with familial high cholesterol.

12U Cullman Cats win world series title; players look to be part of tradition

craig@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN – The 12U Cullman Cats Baseball took home the title over the weekend after finishing first in the 2018 Playmaker World Series in Hoover. The Cullman Cats defeated the Central Alabama Baseball Academy (CABA) Jays, the Alabama Elite, the Spain Park Jaguars, HBC 12UB and tied Top Gun on their way to the championship. Cullman was set to take on Top Gun again in the semifinal round, but wet weather cut the tournament short, and as the highest remaining seed with the best record, Cullman claimed the top spot in the bracket.

Cullman Cats Head Coach Jeff Burgess knew he had a talented group at the start of the year but watched them work through rough patches early on before the bats got hot toward the end of the season.

"We were really gritty and really tough but really raw, and we had some new guys join the team this year that we didn't have last year. So, there was a period of time where they had to learn a whole lot in a short amount of time, sort of on the fly in live games. We struggled with focus and concentration.

"We would show flashes of brilliance and then have a breakdown inning and it would cost us. There was a point in the season when we were actually 10-13 and I was just kind of wondering 'How are we going to get this thing turned around quickly,'" Burgess said.

"That was about five or six weeks ago and since then we had a really strong showing at a tournament at Field of Miracles, we won the B bracket, and then the following weekend we won the global state championship for USSSA (United States Specialty Sports Association) in Athens. The following week after that was the state tournament up here at Heritage Park and I think we finished third or fourth there, but we only lost two games in last month and a half," said Burgess.

"We can really hit; our team can really hit, and I don't have the most updated stats but going into the world series we hit .335 as a team and I know that probably went up 10 points because we went on a tear through the series."

Hitting well over .300 as a team can help win a lot of games, but Burgess credits a lot of his team's success to the high baseball IQ his players displayed on the field.

"Our guys are really smart. They understand what they're supposed to do, how it's supposed to be done and why, and how it affects the other team when we execute. A lot of people when they hear 12U think of cute little 12-year-old boys, but these guys are not average in any way," Burgess said. "If anybody ever saw us they would think that we're very advanced just based on baseball IQ, and the things that we execute, we never really see done to us. We were really able to get to a point where we would never let up, we never had a lapse in focus and that made all the difference."

Sticking to his point about intelligence on the field, Burgess said the community as a whole can take credit for that; he said he has seen the community embrace baseball at all levels in Cullman.

"The community has caught on to that and they support it. They genuinely care about the next generation, the next class coming through, and so a lot of these travel ball teams start getting put together at 7 or 8 years old," Burgess said.

"They come in with that high baseball IQ already and then (Cullman High School) Coach (Brent) Patterson is able to mold them and take them up another level. The parents deserve a lot of credit because, like I said, over the last 15 or 20 years people have taken notice and they want to get behind it and they're willing to spend the money and the time."

Burgess is excited to play a role in Cullman's baseball tradition and believes excitement around the high school program only leads to more success at all levels.

"I think that what has been established here over the last 20 years now is an anomaly. You just don't see a city or town with as small a population as Cullman produce elite talent year after year. Something like that might be expected in a city once every seven or eight years, and every year we've got four or five scholarship players coming out of Coach Patterson's program.

"These kids idolize those guys you know: Ben Moore, Keegan Thompson, Caleb Clay, Michael Rutledge, Josh Rutledge, I mean we could go on forever," Burgess said.

"They love to watch those games, when Cullman plays Hartselle, all my kids are there, and I didn't even have to tell them to come. They want to see them, and they idolize them, and they want to put that uniform on and be part of that when the time comes. I think that is probably what sets Cullman apart and it's a pretty special thing to even indirectly be a part of."

Practitioner (from Front)

craig@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN – Good Samaritan Health Clinic (GSC), the Cullman area's medical service for county residents without insurance, welcomed Stephanie Barnett in April as its new Certified Registered Nurse Practitioner (CRNP).

A Montgomery native, Barnett completed her RN studies at Wallace State before earning her Bachelor and Master of Science in Nursing from the University of Alabama at Birmingham (UAB). She served at the clinic in a volunteer capacity for two years. She is married to Barry Barnett and has three adult children and three grandchildren (with one more on the way).

Barnett's professional achievements become more impressive when one considers that, not so long ago, she had no interest in the medical field and was even turned off by some its less savory aspects. A personal crisis would change all that.

In her introduction to the GSC community, she told members, "If anyone had told me 10 years ago I would have a career as a nurse, much less a nurse practitioner, I would have laughed. Before 2009, when I started on this career path, I despised blood, guts and needles."

Barnett related to The Tribune how she had been squeamish about such things, even to the point of struggling at times to deal with her own children's minor medical emergencies.

"You can ask my husband," said Barnett. "My kids, when they were little, and they were sick, I was running the opposite direction, like, 'Barry, take care of that kind of thing!' It made me sick!"

Then, as Barnett explained, "I was diagnosed with cancer in 2004, and in 2005 I completed treatment. I kind of had a come-to meeting with God, you know, 'What do you want me to do, and why am I still here?' because there were other people that, when I was receiving chemotherapy, that weren't quite making it through.

"God showed me that he wanted me to go this nursing path after I was five years out--so it would have been 2009.

"I didn't think I'd be able to do it, because, you know, with chemotherapy, you've got this thing called 'chemo brain' where your brain is a little slow on the uptake sometimes--or you feel like it is.

"Anyway, I signed up for classes at Wallace, and, remarkably, did really well! And so I knew that that was where I was meant to be, because it was kind of--I won't say it was easy--but I did very well."

Barnett even got over her medical squeamishness. As she related, "I've not had a single thing since I started nursing that has made me sick, which is remarkable . . . I would nearly pass out, but now, it's like nothing bothers me, so I know I'm where God's wanting me to be."

After going to work at Cullman Regional, Barnett was contacted by UAB about continuing her education.

"I ended up at UAB," said Barnett, "and was in the Rural Health Scholars program there, because this is where my heart is. And that's all God, and it's nothing to do with me at all."

Barnett told the GSC community that now, "everything about medicine interests me. When I was going through my cancer treatments, I not only received great care, I was also shown great compassion and given hope. My goal is to be there for my patients, listen to them, and provide excellent quality care--leaving no stone unturned so that they will receive the best possible outcome with regard to their health and well-being."

GSC Executive Director Jolanda Hutson said, "I'm thankful to have Stephanie join the clinic. In the short time she's been here, she's already had such a positive impact on our patients. I've seen Stephanie's heart for our patients and her commitment to providing them with the very best care."

Under Barnett, for instance, GSC has instituted a new program of patient education classes. The first class, for patients with Type 2 diabetes, drew 22 attendants last month.

"I love my patients," said Barnett. "That's all. I'm here for them, whatever I can do for them. That's my goal, just to bridge the gap. There's this gap between the people who have insurance and the people who don't have insurance, and the health care that they receive, and I'm just trying to bridge that gap so that they get the opportunity that the rest of the community has."

In her introduction to the GSC community, Barnett wrote, "In Alabama there are millions without access to medical care. As a NP at Good Samaritan, I am able to help ease that burden in our community.

"I am able to be an advocate for our patients to insure equality of care. My goal is to offer a healthier future for my patients . . . I am passionate about all aspects of healthcare. I love my patients and will work diligently for them.

"I want to make a difference in our community. What the Good Samaritan Clinic has achieved since it first opened is amazing! The impact on lives in our community has been great. I feel we have only touched the tip of the iceberg. I am excited to see what God has in store for our future because the possibilities are endless."

GSC needs...

Barnett and Hutson discussed a few things the clinic needs, including:

• Home blood pressure monitors - The clinic wants its patients with blood pressure issues to be able to monitor their pressure at home and report that to the clinic, since office visits for some patients can be stressful enough to artificially elevate their pressure at that moment. GSC is asking for new or gently used monitors to distribute.

• Volunteers - GSC is seeking medical volunteers in all fields, so that the clinic's workload can be spread out and not overburden a few physicians. In particular, there is a need for physicians with specializations in: gastroenterology, neurology, gynecology, oncology, orthopedic surgery, podiatry, cardiology, ENT, dermatology and endocrinology.

Save the date for GSC's Caring for Cullman Concert Oct. 18

Be sure to mark your calendars for the fourth annual Caring for Cullman Concert benefiting GSC on Thursday, Oct. 18 at Cullman High School.

The event will feature performances by Triumphant Quartet and the Wallace State Jazz Band. Doors will open at 6 p.m. and the concert will begin at 7.

All tickets are general admission, available for $15 from ticket outlets or at the door and $18 if purchased online at www.goodsamaritancullman.com. Bronze, Silver, Gold and Platinum level sponsorships are available. For more information, visit the website or call 256-255-5965.

Ticket outlets: Yates Chance Christian Bookstore, Borden Family Pharmacy, The Added Touch 2, Heritage Pharmacy at Dodge City, Good Samaritan Clinic

About GSC

Good Samaritan Health Clinic is a primary care medical facility connected to a network of doctors and medical specialists, offering services to county residents who lack health insurance. It offers a wide range of services and can refer clients to other community agencies for food, employment assistance and other services. The clinic has just brought Paula Waters on board as a social worker available on Mondays to help clients navigate the process of accessing GSC services and to help them locate and tap into other community resources.

GSC is located at 401 Arnold St. NE adjacent to the Folsom Center. For more information, including program eligibility requirements, visit www.goodsamaritancullman.com or call 256-775-1389.

Car show raises more than $3K for child hunger program

Heather Mann
Tribune Correspondent

CULLMAN – Pentastar South Car Club partnered with Cullman Chrysler Dodge Jeep Ram to host the club's annual Mopars at the Park car show recently. The show brings Mopar vehicles from all over the Southeast to support Alabama Credit Union's Secret Meals for Hungry Children program. On Wednesday, a check for $3,362 was presented to the cause.

Laurie Legg, supervisor for the Cullman branch of Secret Meals, stated that the program is designed to help ensure that children get the nutrition they need outside of school.

Every year, as many as 450,000 children in Alabama will require free or reduced lunches in state school systems due to low family income. Many of these children depend on the two meals their school provides - breakfast and lunch - and struggle on weekends when food is not readily available.

Brenda Allison, who organizes the car show each year, is a high school special education teacher, and she sees the struggles of food-insecure students firsthand.

"I have students come by my classroom as they are going home in the afternoon to see if I may have just a pack of peanut crackers they can have. That's why we work so hard with Laurie and Secret Meals to help all we can to provide meals for as many children as possible."

The program's website, www.secretmeals.org/, states, "Secret Meals fills the gap these children experience by discretely slipping into their backpack, on Friday's, vitamin-fortified and nutritional meals. Alabama Credit Union created the Secret Meals For Hungry Children program in 2008 with one goal in mind - decreasing the number of children in Alabama and Florida facing hunger over the weekend. [...] With one of the highest poverty rates in the country, 22 percent of both Alabama and Florida's children live below the poverty level. Currently 2,312 students are receiving Secret Meals food packs across the state of Alabama and into Florida. To date, no school has been denied a request to increase the number of children enrolled in the program. $140 (on average) is the cost to provide a weekend food pack to one child, identified as going hungry, for an entire school year."

Said Allison, "I remember the first show we did, we were so happy to present a check for $800. Each year our show has grown, and we are so very happy to present a check this year for $3,362. This is only possible because of the strong sponsorship from Scott Spitzer and the Cullman Dodge Dealership. They really step up each year with our car how and give us whatever we need to make it a success."

sive, low-energy pet with the potential to become a great companion, therapy or comfort dog.

He enjoys human company but isn't clingy; he won't invade your personal space very often. He's also not much of a barker, even when other dogs in the shelter start up.

Radar enjoys playing outside and, on hot days, is quite fond of a cool kiddie pool.

Ruttkay declared Radar to be "just a swell guy!"

And if you need a little more encouragement, there's one more special thing about Radar: the cost of adoption. He's already been neutered and is up to date on his shots, so his adoption fee is only $5!

You can find good pets at the Cullman County Animal Shelter, as staff and volunteers work with their dogs to make sure they are accustomed to being around people, walking on a leash and practicing good behavior. Several of the shelter's dogs have even been "hired" to work as special needs service dogs.

Please consider adopting to give a rescued pet a chance at a happy and healthy life.

Contact the Cullman County Animal Shelter at 256-734-5448 or visit them at 935 Convent Road NE. Reach them by email at cullmancountyanimalshelter@gmail.com.
