CULLMAN COUNTY ANIMAL SHELTER

Can you say no to this face?

PET OF THE WEEK

Sweet, sweet Lucille

W.C. Mann
craig@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN – The Cullman County Animal Shelter is celebrating four adoptions in the last week and hopes to keep the positive trend going. Volunteer Donna Ruttkay introduces The Cullman Tribune's Pet of the Week:

Lucille is a bull mix who's a little over a year old. She's a laid-back and submissive low- to medium-energy pet. She's people-orientated and cherishes human companionship. Shelter staffers feel that she could have a future as a companion, comfort, hiking or therapy dog.

Lucille enjoys the open air and is not a fan of being penned up inside the shelter. She knows how to walk on a leash and wants her human to use it a lot.

Animal shelter staff and volunteers work with their dogs to make sure they are accustomed to being around people, walking on a leash and practicing good behavior. Several of the shelter's dogs have even been "hired" to work as special needs service dogs.

Lucille's adoption fee is $90 which includes: DHLPP vaccine, Bordetella vaccines, rabies vaccine, wormer, general exam at the vet, spaying, microchip, free 30-day health insurance policy issued by 24PetWatch (with valid email only) and a free bag of food from Cullman Pet Depot (you must pay sales tax).

Please consider adopting to give a rescued pet a chance at a happy and healthy life.

Contact the Cullman County Animal Shelter at 256-734-5448 or visit them at 935 Convent Road NE. Reach them by email at cullmancountyanimalshelter@gmail.com.

BUSINESS

Goat Island Brewing undergoing 3rd expansion in 3 years

W.C. Mann
craig@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN – Goat Island Brewing, Cullman's hometown brewery, known for its revival of an original 19th century Richter's Saloon recipe, among other popular flavors, is currently undergoing a third expansion to its brew floor in as many years of business. The brewhouse, located at 1646 John H Cooper Drive on Cullman's south side, features an in-house tap room for customers to come and try its beer, and on weekends, listen to live music. While Goat Island does not regularly serve food, customers are free to bring in what they like, and the tap room is often served by food trucks and caterers like Freddie Day.

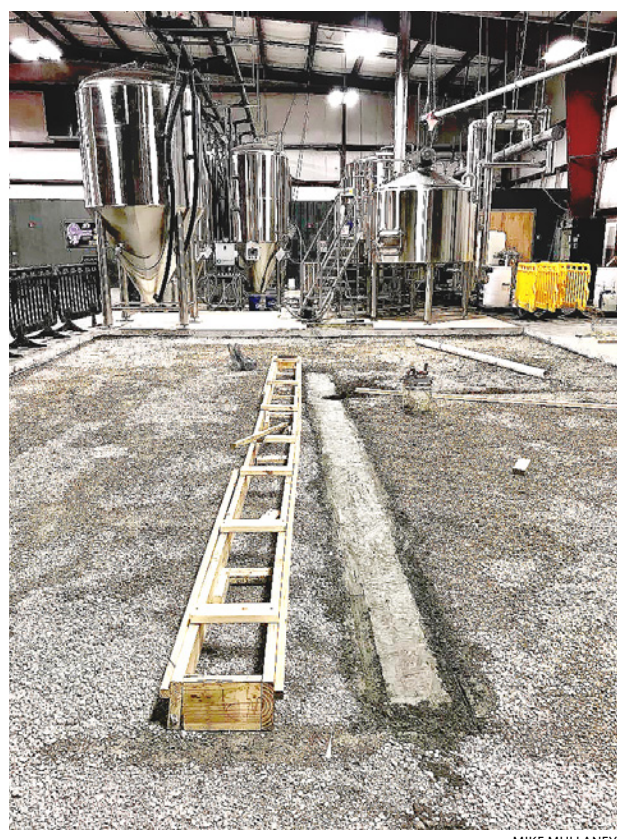

The local popularity of the tap room is not what's driving the growth, though. The main reason for the expansion, according to President/CEO Mike Mullaney, is the growing demand for Goat Island beers all over the state of Alabama.

Mullaney told The Tribune, "One beer in particular has caused a stir: that is the Blood Orange Berliner Weisse, a tart German-style wheat beer brewed with real blood orange. It is a gorgeous orange beer with a lush orange aroma."

"Our distributors always ask for more than we can give them," said Paul White, Goat Island's brewmaster who created the new brew, "so we have to expand our capacity to keep up."

To accommodate new equipment, Goat Island had to increase the size of its brew floor because it has simply used up all the space it started with. The brewery is getting more tanks and is also adding more capacity to its chiller that keeps the fermenters at the proper temperature as the beer goes through the fermentation stage. About 1,000 feet of the existing concrete has been cut up and a thicker pad with a drainage system poured.

According to White, the extra chilling capacity and brew floor is more than they need now. However, this should allow them to expand even more as needed over the next few years.

MIKE MULLANEY

More than 1,000 square feet of Goat Island Brewing's floor had to be taken up to put in a new reinforced floor with drainage for the new equipment.

"We are experiencing growing pains," said Mullaney. "The brewery is not yet three years old and is already going through a third expansion to keep up with demand. Adding capacity while still keeping up with our orders is making for a busy end of the year for the brewery, but that is a very good problem to have."

Cullman man denied 'stand your ground' defense in 2016 murder

wendy@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN – A Cullman County man will stand trial for murder, after his motion for immunity, or "stand your ground hearing," was denied on Friday by Cullman County Circuit Judge Martha Williams.

Windell Joe Campbell, 62, is charged in the Oct. 5, 2016 shooting death of Edwin Lee Wood, 43, of Phelan.

Deputies and investigators with the Cullman County Sheriff's Office responded to a shooting at an apartment on County Road 625 in the Phelan community at approximately 9:30 p.m. that night. When they arrived, they found Wood deceased due to a gunshot wound. Deputies took Campbell and another individual into custody at the scene for questioning at that time. The next day, Campbell was charged with murder, as well as unlawful possession of marijuana, unlawful possession of prescription medicine and unlawful possession of drug paraphernalia.

Sheriff Matt Gentry said in a statement shortly after the arrest: "This incident is a direct result of how drugs and alcohol can result in the senseless death of an individual's life."

Following Williams' ruling on Friday, the order denying pretrial immunity for Campbell states: "After conducting the pretrial evidentiary hearing and considering all of the evidence presented, the Court finds, pursuant to Section 13A-3- 23(d)(4), Code of Alabama, that the Defendant has not met his burden of proof and has not established that immunity attaches in this case. Therefore, it is hereby ORDERED and ADJUDGED that the Motion For Immunity is DENIED and Defendant shall proceed to trial on the charge contained in the Indictment, being: MURDER."

Campbell is represented by local attorneys Johnny Berry and Brandon Little.

Alabama's "stand your ground" law, in full:

Alabama Code Title 13A. Criminal Code § 13A-3-23

(a) A person is justified in using physical force upon another person in order to defend himself or herself or a third person from what he or she reasonably believes to be the use or imminent use of unlawful physical force by that other person, and he or she may use a degree of force which he or she reasonably believes to be necessary for the purpose. A person may use deadly physical force, and is legally presumed to be justified in using deadly physical force in self-defense or the defense of another person pursuant to subdivision (5), if the person reasonably believes that another person is:

(1) Using or about to use unlawful deadly physical force.

(2) Using or about to use physical force against an occupant of a dwelling while committing or attempting to commit a burglary of such dwelling.

(3) Committing or about to commit a kidnapping in any degree, assault in the first or second degree, burglary in any degree, robbery in any degree, forcible rape, or forcible sodomy.

(4) Using or about to use physical force against an owner, employee, or other person authorized to be on business property when the business is closed to the public while committing or attempting to commit a crime involving death, serious physical injury, robbery, kidnapping, rape, sodomy, or a crime of a sexual nature involving a child under the age of 12.

(5) In the process of unlawfully and forcefully entering, or has unlawfully and forcefully entered, a dwelling, residence, business property, or occupied vehicle, or federally licensed nuclear power facility, or is in the process of sabotaging or attempting to sabotage a federally licensed nuclear power facility, or is attempting to remove, or has forcefully removed, a person against his or her will from any dwelling, residence, business property, or occupied vehicle when the person has a legal right to be there, and provided that the person using the deadly physical force knows or has reason to believe that an unlawful and forcible entry or unlawful and forcible act is occurring. The legal presumption that a person using deadly physical force is justified to do so pursuant to this subdivision does not apply if:

a. The person against whom the defensive force is used has the right to be in or is a lawful resident of the dwelling, residence, or vehicle, such as an owner or lessee, and there is not an injunction for protection from domestic violence or a written pretrial supervision order of no contact against that person;

b. The person sought to be removed is a child or grandchild, or is otherwise in the lawful custody or under the lawful guardianship of, the person against whom the defensive force is used;

c. The person who uses defensive force is engaged in an unlawful activity or is using the dwelling, residence, or occupied vehicle to further an unlawful activity; or

d. The person against whom the defensive force is used is a law enforcement officer acting in the performance of his or her official duties.

(b) A person who is justified under subsection (a) in using physical force, including deadly physical force, and who is not engaged in an unlawful activity and is in any place where he or she has the right to be has no duty to retreat and has the right to stand his or her ground.

(c) Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection (a), a person is not justified in using physical force if:

(1) With intent to cause physical injury or death to another person, he or she provoked the use of unlawful physical force by such other person.

(2) He or she was the initial aggressor, except that his or her use of physical force upon another person under the circumstances is justifiable if he or she withdraws from the encounter and effectively communicates to the other person his or her intent to do so, but the latter person nevertheless continues or threatens the use of unlawful physical force.

(3) The physical force involved was the product of a combat by agreement not specifically authorized by law.

(d)(1) A person who uses force, including deadly physical force, as justified and permitted in this section is immune from criminal prosecution and civil action for the use of such force, unless the force was determined to be unlawful.

(2) Prior to the commencement of a trial in a case in which a defense is claimed under this section, the court having jurisdiction over the case, upon motion of the defendant, shall conduct a pretrial hearing to determine whether force, including deadly force, used by the defendant was justified or whether it was unlawful under this section. During any pretrial hearing to determine immunity, the defendant must show by a preponderance of the evidence that he or she is immune from criminal prosecution.

(3) If, after a pretrial hearing under subdivision (2), the court concludes that the defendant has proven by a preponderance of the evidence that force, including deadly force, was justified, the court shall enter an order finding the defendant immune from criminal prosecution and dismissing the criminal charges.

(4) If the defendant does not meet his or her burden of proving immunity at the pre-trial hearing, he or she may continue to pursue the defense of self-defense or defense of another person at trial. Once the issue of self-defense or defense of another person has been raised by the defendant, the state continues to bear the burden of proving beyond a reasonable doubt all of the elements of the charged conduct.

(e) A law enforcement agency may use standard procedures for investigating the use of force described in subsection (a), but the agency may not arrest the person for using force unless it determines that there is probable cause that the force used was unlawful.

Man from Arab charged in Cullman with sexual abuse of child; Hanceville man facing SORNA charges

wendy@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN – Two men were arrested recently by the Cullman County Sheriff's Office (CCSO) for sex crimes; the two cases are separate and not related.

Justin Anthony Jeffries Jr., 25, of Arab, has been charged with sexual abuse of a child under the age of 12. A spokesperson for the CCSO said investigators worked the Child Advocacy Center (CAC) during the investigation after a minor child came forward with the allegation.

Due to the victim's age and graphic nature of the crime, no details will be released.

Jeffries has made bond.

In a separate case, CCSO deputies arrested Jason Lynn Cloud, 40, of Hanceville, charging him with several violations of the SORNA Act (Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act), as well other charges.

Charges include failure to provide registration information SORNA, failure to register/ establish termination address SORNA, sexual offender failure to register termination employment SORNA, first-degree theft of property, failure to obtain travel document SORNA.

"I would like to thank the deputies, investigators and the CAC who all worked to see these suspects were arrested. The sheriff's office will always stay vigilant keeping track of sex offenders and arresting those who don't follow the law," said Cullman County Sheriff Matt Gentry. "Also, as I have stated many times, I don't see how anyone can harm a child, and when they do we will also arrest those suspects as well."

Cloud is a registered sex offender. He is being held in the Cullman County Detention Center on an $80,000 bond.

Experience (from Front)

Nick Griffin
nick@cullmantribune.com

SITGES, SPAIN – However interesting you think your last week was, it probably wasn't as interesting as Jacob Brown's. The head coach of Cullman High School's varsity girls soccer team spent the week learning his craft from some of the best in the world next to the Mediterranean Sea. Brown was one of just a few coaches who was able to make the trip overseas for the TOVO T1 Coaching Course in Sitges, Spain, near Barcelona.

Brown was excited when he found out he would be getting this kind of opportunity and it didn't disappoint.

"You go through an application process and go over all of your qualifications, what you have in licenses, how long you've coached, what you coach and why you wanted to be there. They screen all the coaches and pick out who they want to be in the course and I couldn't tell you exactly why I was chosen," Brown joked. "I can tell you that I was very thankful for being chosen because it was definitely a tremendous experience, a once in a lifetime kind of experience, and I learned a lot."

According to its website, TOVO Training is intelligent football (soccer) training designed to develop players of great cognition, competence and character. Unlike traditional training, TOVO is based upon sound pedagogical practices that encourage players to seek effective solutions with vision, precision and pace.

After experiencing the TOVO methodology up close and personal, the thing that stood out the most for Brown was the mental challenge that came with the training.

"The main emphasis is on cognitive ability. Everything they do, whether it's a training session or whatever, is built around thinking and mental decisions. They don't do a single exercise that is not mentally taxing or challenging," Brown said. "We also had discussions about research on how kids learn and what are the most effective ways for kids to learn. The methodology itself is very simple and about making sure you don't do anything that isn't cognitively challenging."

Brown has already been following this training model for a few years but getting the hands-on experience overseas showed him even more that he can bring home and apply to the Lady Bearcats program.

"This is the methodology that I've really been following the last three years, so we've already had a lot success going into it; however, being able to go hear it first hand was a wealth of knowledge that I didn't already have," Brown said. "So, I will adjust my practices, but one of the new things we'll be implementing is what we learned from their movement expert. He teaches things like mobility, stability and running technique so if we can incorporate that into our practices, theoretically it will reduce the number of injuries that we have and keep everybody healthier for the longevity of the season. That's definitely some knowledge I did not have before and this was the top guy in Holland. He's actually worked with several professional coaches, so it was nice to get first-hand knowledge from him."

Brown had a lot of memorable experiences outside of the classroom and off the practice field as well, like making the short trip over to Barcelona to watch some of the best in the world compete at the FC Barcelona La Masia Youth Academy.

"That's where some of the greatest players in the world have come through and we got to watch a U18 and U19 game. So, those are the kids getting ready to potentially be promoted to the first team," Brown said. "It's literally the number one youth academy in the world and everything is top notch so that was an incredible experience to be able to witness that."

Other than the coaching knowledge that he was given first-hand, the thing that Brown will remember most about the trip is the setting. His time in Spain gave him some more perspective on the world in general as well as the game.

"Being by the Mediterranean was definitely an experience. What we actually did every morning was we went on a 30-minute walk right along the Mediterranean from where we were staying to the field, so literally every day we're walking along the sea and obviously that's not a view that you get here. It gives you a little bit of a different perspective of the world I guess," Brown said. "One of the things they did before each session was, we would all line up in a circle, close our eyes and take a couple deep breaths just to take in the fact that you're training by the Mediterranean Sea and you should be thankful for what you have. It's a lot to take in and definitely reminds me that I have a lot to be thankful for."

CHS Theatre presents 'Peter and the Starcatcher'

W.C. Mann
craig@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN – On Friday, Cullman High School Theatre (CHST) premiered its award-winning production of "Peter and the Starcatcher," the story of a remarkable girl and an orphan boy, and the adventure that creates a backstory for one of the most beloved characters in children's literature. Molly (Chandler Greer) and the anonymous orphan (Atticus Phillips) attempt to keep a secret and supernaturally powerful treasure from the hands of the malaprop-prone and insanely over-the-top pirate Black Stache (whose portrayal by Graffin Shaddrix is one of the show's highlights). When Stache, while attempting to recruit the orphan and secure the treasure, offers the boy the name "Peter," you begin to get the idea that you might know this story, though you've definitely never heard this take on it before.

CHST Director Wayne Cook told The Tribune, "It's a different kind of show. We wanted to do something a little different with our kids.

"We took a selection of this from here that we did tonight, we did it at district and state Trumbauer, which is our state competition that we do.

"And it's a good show for that, because it uses a lot of kids, a lot of people. And we have a big department; we want to use a lot of people and things like that.

"We won all kinds of awards at district, and then we were honored to represent our district at state. And there were like 14 schools that did a one-act at state.

"So we're very happy with the results, and our kids did a fabulous job with it. And it's been well-received by people all over the state, so we're very happy about how it went."

Elks share Christmas cheer with area kids

Christy Perry
christy@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN – Santa Claus visited the Cullman Elks Lodge Sunday afternoon to the delight of children attending the lodge's annual Christmas party. Kids from Cullman City, Garden City, Harmony and Vinemont Head Start and Pre-K classes were treated to a pizza party and presents from Santa.

The Cullman Elks received a $2,500 grant from its Grand Lodge to help continue the yearly tradition.

Cullman Elks Exalted Ruler Dale Ball shared, "We had 162 kids this year and with the grant we were able to get each child a nice gift, a bag of fruit and a gallon container of snack mix to share with their families."

The children enjoyed pizza, cookies and juice provided by the Elks while anticipating the arrival of Santa.

Santa Claus planned on arriving by helicopter on the lawn, but the foggy weather resulted in a change of plans.

The kids enthusiastically chanted "Santa! Santa! Santa!" as news spread that he had arrived safely by car. As he entered the lodge, the children squealed and cheered.

Each child got to meet Santa and his helpers; the kids waited patiently until each had received his or her gift.

As Santa gave them the nod, the kids ripped into the wrapping paper. The toy trucks and Disney Princess dolls brought smiles and celebrations.

Ball said, "We have about 50-60 Elks volunteering here today. I'm guessing we have been doing this for at least the past 20 years."

Cullman Elks Leading Knight Lynn Jones added, "We do what we can to help our community. We have many projects we work on throughout the year. As soon as we finish one, we are working on the next."

The Elks Lodge is also busy working on its upcoming nursing home Christmas project. The Elks will be adopting 30 residents from two local nursing homes for the holidays.

2018 Sheriff's Rodeo likely a record-setter

W.C. MANN/THE CULLMAN TRIBUNE

Dusty the Rodeo Clown poses with some young fans Saturday night at the 2018 Cullman County Sheriff's Office Jimmy Arrington Memorial Rodeo.

VINEMONT – For three straight days, the Cullman County Sheriff's Office (CCSO) Jimmy Arrington Memorial Rodeo filled the Cullman County Agricultural Trade Center in Vinemont to capacity and beyond. Almost every space was filled in the 1,300-seat stands, with additional floor seating packed in, as well.

A special needs exhibition mini rodeo on Thursday drew approximately 1,400 students, family members and teachers.

On Friday and Saturday, pro competition in bareback riding, steer wrestling, calf roping, team roping, breakaway roping, barrel racing and bull riding, which concluded the 2018 season for the Professional Cowboy Association, filled the arena right back up. The CCSO had to put out the word shortly before Friday's event via social media that anyone not already at the arena should not come.

On Saturday afternoon, Sheriff Matt Gentry told The Tribune, "Last night was huge. It was packed out.

"We filled all the parking here and all the parking over at the vocational school, and it was a packed house last night.

"I think we put out on Facebook about 7, 10 till 7--something like that--'Hey, we're sold out; we're completely full.' And that was about 30 minutes before the rodeo started."

On Saturday, the threat of dangerous weather could have thinned the crowd, but the crowd decided otherwise, filling the stands and floor seating once more.

Gentry said this was the first time he remembered a maxed-out crowd all three days, so this year's rodeo could be the biggest ever.

The rodeo is the primary fundraising event for the CCSO, with the money used to purchase equipment for patrol deputies and computers for the office.

Additionally, it supports community events like Citizens' Academy and firearm training and allows the office to donate more than $15,000 per year to local schools with special needs educational programs.

A cowboy's perspective

Cullman County resident Adam Gibbs is a professional rodeo announcer who, with his wife, spends around 85 days each year at rodeos from the Gulf Coast to the Canadian border.

For him, coming home to serve as the arena announcer at the Sheriff's Rodeo is the highlight of his season. Gibbs described competition at the Cullman rodeo being "as good as anybody, because tonight we had several world champions out like Trey Moore, those Brunson boys (Louie and Bart Brunson)--they had roped at Rodeo Houston, almost made the NFR (National Finals Rodeo) a couple of times--Tanner Phipps. A bunch of good guys like that."

About coming home, Gibbs said, "All year long, I do some rodeos like Grayslake, Illinois that has 12,000 people, but Cullman is the best rodeo of the year for us, because it's home. I mean, it really is just a blessing to get to come here to work, so we love it here.

"We ride for My-Way Transportation--that's our big sponsor, along with Nutrena Feeds--and we pick our feed up at C and M Feed out at Arab, Alabama. So it's always good to get to come here to home.

"I do want to thank God and the Cullman Sheriff's Office, Matt Gentry and the crew, for allowing us to do that."

Community with Carol: Victim Services of Cullman, Inc.

Carol Berry
Tribune Columnist

I am excited to partner with the Cullman Tribune to write this weekly series, "Community with Carol." This series is focused on community awareness.

As a lifelong Cullman resident, I love my community! I have owned and operated a successful local business. I founded and oversaw a local nonprofit that has changed the lives of my neighbors. This organization was also designed to give back to the community and help individuals become the best citizens they can be.

I am passionate about helping in my community and not only talking about change but doing the hard work to see change actually happen.

After my first political campaign ended I wanted to use the experience to help others. On the campaign trail, I realized how truly blessed we are in Cullman. We have so many wonderful organizations and public service-minded individuals in our community.

Each week I showcase a local organization or individual and give the community an overview of their services and contact information.

My hope is to motivate fellow citizens to get up, get out and get involved.

This week: Jamie Sims of Victim Services of Cullman, Inc.

Victim Services of Cullman, Inc. was established in 1991 by then Cullman County District Attorney Len Brooks and concerned citizens of Cullman County. With community support and government grants, the Harbor Haus shelter for victims of domestic violence opened its doors.

In 1996, Victim Services began providing services to victims of sexual assault. In 1998, Victim Services implemented a batterer's intervention program.

I sat down with Jamie Sims this week to talk about Victim Services. Jamie is a new board member and is full of excitement and ideas.

Her goal is to ensure the organization is not only around 27 more years but also grows!

She wants to see the number of individuals it assists continue to increase.

Jamie shared with me a few of the important things Victim Services provides to our community:

- Harbor Haus domestic violence shelter
- 24-hour crisis line (256-734-6100)
- Group and individual domestic violence and sexual assault counseling for children and adults
- Parenting classes
- Court advocacy
- Hospital accompaniment for sexual assault victims
- Community education programs
- Batterer intervention program

Victim Services has several specific needs for growth: money, volunteers and more shelter space. Renovations need to be done on the current shelter and office. Creative fundraising and community outreach are also top priorities.

I have no doubt after meeting Jamie that the money raised by Victim Services goes directly to benefit the women and children.

Her heart and those board members she describes serving alongside her would not allow money to be wasted!

For more information about Victim Services, visit www.victimservicesofcullman.com/ or call 256-775-2600. See my interview with Jamie Tuesday, Dec. 11 at www.Facebook.com/CullmanTribune.

Wallace State's women's basketball team wins 3rd consecutive game

Russell Moore
WSCC

HANCEVILLE – Wallace State's women's basketball team notched a 78-67 road victory at Roane State over the weekend, extending the Lady Lions' winning streak to three games.

Imari Martin and DeMaurea Moore each paced with Wallace State with 16 points apiece. Moore added eight rebounds, while Martin had seven assists.

Sophomore Jada Golden scored 12 points for Wallace State, and Channing Gafford pitched in with 11 points and eight rebounds. Miajah Bullock added eight points.

Wallace State (7-3) nursed a 20-18 lead after the first quarter and extended it to 34-31 at the half.

Roane State put its best run together in the third, trimming Wallace State's lead to 51-50 by quarter's end.

The Lady Lions closed the game on a big surge, tallying 27 points in the fourth quarter.

Kyra Williams and Jasmine Baker added five points apiece off the Wallace State bench.

Wallace State is averaging 82.2 points per game over the opening 10 games.

The Lady Lions posted a season-high 114 points vs. Cleveland State on Dec. 4 as Bullock scored a career-high 25 points and six players overall posted double digits.

Wallace State has reached the 100-point plateau in two games and scored 90 or more in six games.

Wallace State travels to Wallace Community College-Selma on Saturday for a second matchup this season against the Lady Patriots.

Wednesday's previously scheduled game vs. Carver College has been postponed.

The Wallace State men are also 7-3 and travel to Lurleen B. Wallace Community College on Tuesday before also making the trip to Selma on Saturday.
