Cullman Brewers Guild distributes funds for the holidays

CULLMAN – Another Christmas has come and gone, and for most it was another joyous occasion. For those in the Cullman community who might have needed a helping hand this season, there were several nonprofits and organizations that stepped up for the holidays. The Cullman Brewers Guild was one of them.

CBG used money it raised at this year's Oktoberfest celebration to give back to its neighbors all over the county through several charitable organizations. One of the Guild's members, Preston Prewett, explained where the donations » PAGE 4

Baileyton restaurant feeds community on Christmas Eve

Staff and volunteers pose for a photo on Christmas Eve at Kims Parkside Catfish Restaurant in Baileyton. The restaurant served a free meal to the community.

BAILEYTON – Every table was full Monday night at Kims Parkside Catfish Restaurant as friends and neighbors gathered to fellowship and enjoy a home-cooked meal. This is the second year the restaurant's owner, Kim Thomas, has opened her heart and her business to the Baileyton community on Christmas Eve. Santa even stopped by early before heading off for a busy night.

Thomas and many volunteers spent all day cooking 10 20-pound turkeys, at least 12 pounds of dressing and all of the traditional fixings.

Meals could be taken to-go, but many chose to eat there and enjoy some time with their friends and neighbors. People brought canned goods and items for the Parkside Outreach Program.

"When I had the idea last year, I was thinking about the people with no place to go or who were alone for the holidays. I still want that, but thought hey, the more the merrier. Christmas is a time of fellowship, visiting and celebrating Jesus' birth," explained Thomas. "It's my way of giving back to this community. Everyone's been good to me, so it seems fitting."

The crowd was made up of many who came alone but quickly found acquaintances to join. Perhaps the most important thing about Monday at Kim's restaurant was that no one was alone.

Everyone was smiling and making Christmas memories.

Meals were delivered to those who were homebound.

Thomas did not want the event to be about her. Instead, she wanted all the volunteers who came out to help serve, bus tables, cook and support her mission to receive the credit. Restaurant employees, teachers from Parkside School and many others happily gave of their time to help.

JD Smith said, "She wanted to help people, and well, we wanted to help her."

April Smith, who spent Christmas Eve helping cook turkeys, said, "You don't get any better than Kim. She deserves all the credit and we are just here because we love her."

Thomas spoke of her plans for Christmas Day, "I think I might treat myself by sleeping in. I have grandchildren coming tomorrow so I'm not sure how late that will be."

As for next year, Kim said, "We will be here, Good Lord willing!"

PET OF THE WEEK

Chloe's looking for her forever home

W.C. Mann
craig@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN – Cullman County Animal Shelter volunteer Donna Ruttkay introduces The Cullman Tribune's Pet of the Week:

CULLMAN COUNTY ANIMAL SHELTER

Chloe

Chloe is a pit bull mix a little less than a year old, who, Ruttkay warns, might not be the right choice for a first-time pet owner. She's a lively medium- to high-energy pet who will want plenty of play and exercise, but she could also be a good companion dog for someone who enjoys an active lifestyle. Chloe's not fond of "sheep, cats and female dogs" according to Ruttkay, but she does love being around people.

While her finicky tastes and rambunctious liveliness might make some folks think twice, she will be a committed friend, and she enjoys play time with her human. If you throw her ball, she will fetch it and drop it at your feet.

Animal shelter staff and volunteers work with their dogs to make sure they are accustomed to being around people, walking on a leash and practicing good behavior. Several of the shelter's dogs have even been "hired" to work as special needs service dogs.

Chloe's adoption fee is $90 which includes: DHLPP vaccine, Bordetella vaccines, rabies vaccine, wormer, general exam at the vet, spaying, microchip, free 30-day health insurance policy issued by 24PetWatch (with valid email only) and a free bag of food from Cullman Pet Depot (you must pay sales tax).

Please consider adopting to give a rescued pet a chance at a happy and healthy life.

Contact the Cullman County Animal Shelter at 256-734-5448 or visit them at 935 Convent Road NE. Reach them by email at cullmancountyanimalshelter@gmail.com.

Ivey awards nearly $2.5M for emergency housing assistance

Daniel Sparkman
Contributor

MONTGOMERY – Gov. Kay Ivey has awarded nearly $2.5 million in grants to help homeless Alabamians find immediate housing and to assist others who are in danger of becoming homeless. The funds from the Emergency Solutions Grant program will support organizations across the state that provide shelter, legal and health services and financial education for families and individuals without a residence. The grant program also can assist these families with moving costs, including rental and utility deposits.

"While many of us gather with family and friends this time of year, it's important to remember that there are some Alabamians currently struggling to keep a roof over their heads and others who don't have a home at all," Ivey said. "I am pleased to award this funding to provide important aid to many families at a critical moment in their lives."

The Alabama Department of Economic and Community Affairs is administering the grants from funds made available by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

"The Emergency Solutions Grant program helps families dealing with very difficult times avoid homelessness and take important steps to becoming independent and self-sufficient," ADECA Director Kenneth Boswell said. "ADECA is pleased to join with Governor Ivey in providing this vital assistance to local programs who help families in need." Governor Ivey awarded the grants to 14 governments and community agencies that administer the program locally and assess individual needs for those seeking assistance. Individuals or families requesting assistance can contact their local agency directly or may be referred by the program to a local shelter. Case managers screen applicants for program eligibility at the local level.

Below is a list of each amount awarded, the name of the grant recipient and the areas served:

- $275,000 to the Alabama Rural Coalition for the Homeless (Barbour, Bibb, Blount, Butler, Chambers, Chilton, Choctaw, Clarke, Clay, Cleburne, Coffee, Conecuh, Coosa, Covington, Crenshaw, Cullman, Dale, Dallas, Escambia, Fayette, Geneva, Greene, Hale, Henry, Houston, Jackson, Lamar, Lee, Macon, Marengo, Marshall, Monroe, Perry, Pickens, Pike, Randolph, Russell, Sumter, Talladega, Tallapoosa, Walker, Washington and Wilcox counties)

In a new analysis, patients with atrial fibrillation showed a substantially reduced risk of dangerous bleeding in the brain – known as intracranial hemorrhage – when taking the newer anticoagulant apixaban, compared to those taking warfarin. The study, published in Blood, The Journal of the American Society of Hematology (ASH), also showed that taking aspirin increased the risk of intracranial hemorrhage, especially in older patients. Atrial fibrillation is a type of irregular heartbeat that affects between 2.7 and 6.1 million Americans, according to estimates from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. An erratic heartbeat can allow blood to pool in the heart, which can lead to the formation of a blood clot that travels through the bloodstream and blocks a blood vessel in the brain, causing a stroke. Patients with atrial fibrillation are five times more likely to experience a stroke compared to the general population. Medical guidelines recommend the use of oral anticoagulant medications in patients with atrial fibrillation who are at high risk for stroke. These medications reduce the blood's clotting ability, which substantially lowers the risk of stroke, but also increases the risk of uncontrolled bleeding. Intracranial hemorrhage is a rare, but serious complication of these medications, occurring in about one percent of patients prescribed anticoagulants for atrial fibrillation.

came from and where they went.

"The Cullman Brewers Guild is in charge of the beer tent at Oktoberfest and we have tip jars sitting out so that when people come by and grab a beer, they can leave a tip. A lot of people probably think those tips go to us, but what we actually do is take all those tips and divide it up between different charities throughout Cullman," Prewett said. "This year we raised $2,000 that we were able to give back to the community, and we do that every year."

CBG evenly dispersed the money to five different local organizations: Cullman Caring for Kids, The Link of Cullman County, Flourish of Cullman, Cullman's Little Pantry and St. Vincent De Paul Food Bank. Prewett visited Cullman Caring for Kids himself to help give the donation and was excited to find out how much good that money will do.

"Cullman Caring for Kids is the one that I went to and the way that works is they are able to buy food through some sort of food pantry in Huntsville (Food Bank of North Alabama) with the money that we donated," Prewett said. "I believe they said they would be able to get around 2,600 or 2,800 pounds of food to give to needy families. Which was just really cool."

For Prewett, being part of the CBG and Oktoberfest is already a lot of fun but knowing that their work is helping families all over Cullman County makes it very rewarding as well.

"It's completely awesome," he smiled. "A lot of people think that the beer tent is just a tremendous amount of work, and it is, don't get me wrong. Oktoberfest is a ridiculous amount of work, but it's so much fun because you get to talk to everybody that comes through to get a beer and get to explain all the different kind of beers and do a little craft beer education, but at the same time we get donations to give back to the community. It's just awesome, man."

Weather (from Front)

CULLMAN COUNTY – The National Weather Service has issued a high wind advisory and flash flood watch ahead of a weather system moving into the area, expected to dump up to 3 inches of rain on Cullman County Thursday and Friday, accompanied by gusting winds that could topple trees and damage structures.

According to the NWS Huntsville online forecaster's discussion page, Thursday evening to Friday morning is the main point of concern for weather over the next several days. A low pressure system over the Texas/Oklahoma panhandle region drifting to the northeast will send substantial rain to north Alabama, expected to peak during the overnight hours. Quantitative precipitation forecast models currently indicate 1 to 3 inches of rain, with the heaviest amounts falling close to the Cullman County area south and east of Huntsville, due to more prolonged rainfall in the area.

Models indicate "a very small possibility for strong/severe storms, due to very strong shear in place; however, for now, it still appears that stable air from the wedge ridge will inhibit surface- based instability. Still, there is sufficient elevated instability and more than enough shear for isolated/scattered storms. Rain will slowly taper off Friday as the cold front pushes east."

Rainfall is expected to ease up or even stop Friday night, but could crank back up at lesser intensity to drop another half inch of rain on our area over the weekend.

Expected progression

According to the latest NWS forecast, models indicate that "light rain will develop to our south and then move northward, reaching northwest Alabama by daybreak on Thursday. Rain chances will increase through the day and into the overnight hours on Thursday . . . Latest guidance would suggest that we will see at least one break in the more widespread precip(itation), potentially Thursday afternoon, before even heavier rainfall moves in Thursday night."

Less than one-tenth of an inch of rain is expected to fall before noon Thursday, but the afternoon will see almost half an inch. Sustained winds throughout the daylight hours will range from 13 to 15 miles per hour, gusting possibly as high as 35.

Rains will come in hard Thursday evening, dropping an estimated 1.2 inches between 6 p.m. and midnight.

Another six-tenths will fall before 6 a.m. Friday. Sustained winds will start in the evening at around 12 mph and taper off overnight. Gusts will mostly remain below 20 mph, but some higher speeds could occur.

On Friday, according to the models, a "cold front will swing through the TN Valley, with rain coming to an end by Friday afternoon. "Looking at the potentia l impacts with this system, the organized severe threat continues to be rather low . . . while there might be scattered thunderstorms in the widespread showers, even the thunder chances appear low.

"The biggest threat continues to be the heavy rainfall. Moisture will be very high, no question, and the TN Valley will be within a favorable location within the jet to see some heavy rain . . . We are still looking at 1 to 3 inches of rain, but locally higher amounts are likely. If the 3 inches or less amounts are realized, the area should be able to handle that, with only minor nuisance flooding and minor rises on area rivers. But, to err on the side of caution, the setup still warrants a higher attention to a flood threat and will continue to mention that in our HWO (hazardous weather outlook)."

Expected impacts on the area

Strong winds will create hazardous driving conditions throughout the day Thursday. According to the forecast, "Vehicles should exercise extreme caution when driving at this time, especially in higher elevations where wind speeds and directions can rapidly change.

"Multiple episodes of heavy rainfall Thursday and Friday will, according to the forecast, "result in nuisance flooding in low lying and flood prone areas. Creeks and rivers may rise into action or minor flood stage. Those with interests in flashier basins should closely monitor river gauges and forecasts."

Trees will face a particular threat from the combination of wind and rain. According to the forecast, "Moist soils from prolonged rainfall combined with strong and gusty winds will create favorable conditions for shallow trees to be uprooted."

Flood watch and wind advisory issued

At 3:04 p.m. Wednesday, NWS Huntsville issued a wind advisory to be in effect from midnight Wednesday to midnight Thursday for the following counties and cities: Lauderdale, Colbert, Franklin, Lawrence, Limestone, Madison, Morgan, Marshall, Jackson, DeKalb, and Cullman; including the cities of Florence, Muscle Shoals, Sheffield, Tuscumbia, Russellville, Red Bay, Moulton, Town Creek, Athens, Huntsville, Decatur, Albertville, Boaz, Guntersville, Arab, Scottsboro, Fort Payne, Rainsville and Cullman.

According to the advisory statement, "A Wind Advisory means that sustained wind speeds of at least 25 mph for 3 hours, or gusts of at least 35 mph, are expected across the affected area. Winds this strong can make driving difficult, especially for high profile vehicles. Use extra caution. In addition, ensure all loose outdoor objects remain secure, including patio furniture and trash cans."

Immediately following the wind advisory, NWS issued a flash flood watch for the same locations from 6 p.m. Thursday evening to 9 a.m. Friday morning. The watch declaration included the following statement:

"A Flash Flood Watch means that conditions may develop that lead to flash flooding. Flash flooding is a VERY DANGEROUS SITUATION. You should monitor later forecasts and be prepared to take action should Flash Flood Warnings be issued."

Cullman EMA monitoring situation

Cullman EMA Director Phyllis Little informed The Tribune that her agency is monitoring the situation and is receiving regular updates from NWS Huntsville. She encouraged county residents to watch for further alerts and to exercise caution in low-lying areas.
