Turning canine companions into good citizens, and much more

ELENA CAUDLE

Paula Kretzschmar brought poodle Luke and Bichon Frise Louie out to the ATD tent at July's pet-friendly 2nd Fridays event in Cullman.

W.C. Mann
craig@cullmantribune.com

TRIMBLE, Ala. – Paula Kretzschmar is a dog person, and that's putting it mildly. On a quiet little west Cullman County backroad, the retired educator lives on a homestead that's part house, part country retreat and part canine arena. Saturday, she hosted a group of dog owners from across north Alabama, who brought their animals for judging by an American Kennel Club (AKC) evaluator as candidates for the organization's Canine Good Citizen (CGC) certificate.

The dogs had to complete basic obedience tasks like walking, turning and circling on a leash, sitting and staying, but also had to walk through a crowd, encounter another dog and be subjected to a sudden loud noise without getting spooked. They had to behave themselves while meeting a stranger who wanted to pet and groom them, and even had to sit quietly with a stranger for three minutes while their handler disappeared from the arena: no barking, no trying to run away, and, as one participant observed, no eating the stranger!

Elena Caudle, who had her 4-month-old Tosa Inu/Japanese Mastiff puppy Enishi along for his first evaluation, explained, "The CGC is, basically, to show that the dogs can be in public safely, have been trained and are controllable in public."

Some of the dogs went through an additional Trick Dog evaluation, performing five puppy stunts chosen from a long list of possibilities. They walked elevated beams, navigated tunnels, jumped bars, shook hands, gave high fives and kisses and displayed an array of other skills to get their ribbons and certificates.

While kennel clubs are often best known for fancy dog shows with best of breed, best of group and best of show awards, events like CGC and Trick Dog are open to all breeds, crossbreeds, mixed breeds and even what-the-heck-is-that breeds.

Several purebred dogs came out Saturday, but the event also hosted a strong contingent of "doodles," hybrids of poodles and golden or Labrador retrievers.

For four of the dogs there Saturday, there was much more on the line than just a ribbon or certificate. Kretzschmar is a tester/observer (TO) for the Alliance of Therapy Dogs (ATD), a national organization that gives hospitals, nursing homes and assisted living facilities, schools and businesses access to certified and insured therapy dogs. While the dogs were going through their CGC evaluation, she was at ringside, observing for herself. As the canines were proving their status as good citizens, they were also completing the first of four steps in becoming certified ATD therapy dogs.

Once candidates complete CGC or another evaluation that shows a good relationship between dog and handler, as well as good temperament on the part of the dog, the dog/handler team will make visits to three facilities (two of them medical) where therapy dogs are commonly used, under the supervision of the TO. If all goes well during those visits, the team is recommended for certification.

According to Kretzschmar, ATD currently has 12 certified dogs in north Alabama with fewer handlers, since a few handlers have two dogs each. Four more dogs and three new handlers are in the certification process.

More puppies, like Caudle's Enishi, are biding their time, waiting until they reach the 1-year minimum age requirement for the program.

The active dogs are visiting nursing homes, assisted living facilities, hospitals, public and private schools, public libraries and even businesses whose employees could use a little stress reduction.

They often provoke nursing home and assisted living residents into reminiscing and sharing stories about pets of their childhoods, as well as pets they left behind when moving into the facility.

Said Kretzschmar, "At the nursing home, a lot of it is folks who are missing their dog, that they can't have their dog with them."

She shared, "We are invited into the schools. I did Reading Day at Cleveland Elementary (Blount County), where I went over- it was Dr. Seuss Week, and we did "Fox in Socks;" (my poodle) Luke wore socks and I did, too.

"Anywhere we're invited, that's the main thing."

ATD dogs are not response dogs; they aren't trained to alert on early signs of medical distress or things like that. Their primary purpose is emotional support: just making people's day a little brighter.

PET OF THE WEEK

Look out for Scout!

CULLMAN COUNTY ANIMAL SHELTER

Scout

W.C. Mann
craig@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN, Ala. – Cullman County Animal Shelter volunteer Donna Ruttkay shares The Cullman Tribune Pet of the Week:

Scout is a Redbone Coonhound mix who's approaching the year and a half mark. He's a laid-back, low- to medium-energy pet who is pack-oriented, submissive and loves human attention.

Ruttkay called him a "kind-hearted fellow who'd gently climb into your lap if you'd allow him to."

Scout arrived at the shelter malnourished, but he's healthy now. According to Ruttkay, he's still "a little on the thin side, nothin' that TLC cannot cure!" He could be a good comfort, emotional support or therapy dog.

Animal shelter staff and volunteers work with their dogs to make sure they are accustomed to being around people, walking on a leash and practicing good behavior.

Several of the shelter's dogs have even been "hired" to work as therapy and special needs service dogs.

Cullman native Kane Ward, 8, wins WWA National Championship

Nick Griffin
nick@cullmantribune.com

MONROE, Wash. – The 2019 Nautique World Wake Association (WWA) Wakeboard National Championships are in the books and this year, there was some local flavor in the field. Cullman native Kane Ward, 8, placed first in the 9 & Under Jr. Boys Division after scoring an 88.00 in the Final Round up against the nation's top wakeboarders in his division. Ward advanced to the event after winning a regional qualifier in Orlando.

Ward's father, Justin, is blown away by how quickly his son's skills have advanced.

"It's obviously a proud daddy moment," Ward said. "Kane has shown a lot of skill from an early age. He started riding when he was 3, and I think he started flipping on a wakeboard around 5 or 6 years old, and last year at 7 years old, I think he learned like five different flips and three different spins and he's just kind of blown up from there. He's got them real consistent and he's getting better and better every time he goes out."

After performing very well in the semi-final round, Ward earned the chance to do his final run last, giving him a chance to watch the other competitors go before him.

His dad explained how the event is set up and the position Ward was in when he began his finals run.

"There's a buoy that you start from and then there's one that ends your run and you can only get in about five tricks before you get to the end of the path and then the boat turns around you get another pass. You can only fall one time where they'll turn around and pick you up, on your second fall, you're done," Justin Ward said. "So, you have to be super consistent, especially if you're throwing harder tricks, so there's a little bit of strategy to it if you're riding last because you can play it safe depending on what the other riders do."

After watching the rest of the field compete before him, Kane Ward began his final run, but things started a little choppy. He fell on one of his first tricks, ramping up the pressure and making it an even more exciting, if stressful, experience for his family watching when he pulled off the win.

"(Kane's) first two tricks are kind of just stylish stuff that you have to get in and then his third trick is a nose grab 180 and he fell on it. He never falls on that ever and so now he's got to get up and land all of his hardest stuff with no falls," Justin Ward said. "He got up, squeezed in two flips before the buoy, the boat turns around and he does a backflip, toe side backflip, heel side 360, comes back with a switch 180 and then another heel side back side 360 to win. So, it was pretty clutch, and he definitely got some fist bumps and claps from the boats that were judging. You just don't see a little kid doing that kind of stuff."

Kane Ward is bringing the WWA National Title back home to Cullman, but his season isn't over just yet. He will hit the water again soon when he travels to Playa Del Carmen, Mexico in October for the WWA Wakeboard and Wake Park World Championships. To see more of his progress throughout the season and his preparation for the World Championships, you can follow his Instagram page at www.instagram.com/_kaneward_/.

2019 EvaBank Midnight Run sees best turnout in years

nick@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN, Ala. – Friday night provided great conditions for the 2019 EvaBank Midnight Run 5K and it certainly showed when the crowd of runners lined up for this year's event. More than 400 runners registered for this year's 5K, but many more showed up to participate by the time midnight rolled around.

The event helps support Cullman Parks, Recreation and Sports Tourism's (CPRST) yearly projects and activities and CPRST Executive Director Nathan Anderson was happy to see another great turnout from the community.

"This is a great event and we couldn't do it without EvaBank, they're awesome and have really helped us out. We just want the community to have fun, come out and do something healthy and enjoy a fun atmosphere," Anderson said.

"We have an incredible team, and this year it was led by Jordan Rodriguez and she did a great job on this event. We're very proud of this set up; it's the best look we've had so far so I'm really excited about this year. This is the strongest crowd I've seen in over five years; this is a really good turnout."

Rodriguez, programs and events coordinator with CPRST, touched on some of the new additions to this year's race, but also noted that with the consistent success of the event, they're really just building on what they've done.

"We've tried to add obviously more glow stuff and tried to add more lights, more powder and more runners apparently," Rodriguez joked.

"I think that's all we've tried to add. We've really just built on a good event and we did try to light up our finish line this year. That's one thing new from last year where we're trying to light it up so people can see it and have a cheering section as they come through the finish line."

Rodriguez and the team did even more work this year when it came to reaching out and recruiting runners, and based on Friday night's turnout, it looks like they were able to cover a lot of ground.

"We love the support from the community. EvaBank is awesome and we've both been out trying to get people here," Rodriguez said. "We tried to reach more schools for this year from places like Huntsville, and we even sent out registration forms to Tuscaloosa and the Birmingham area, so we've been trying to reach a lot more people."

Anderson and the rest of the CPRST staff are always excited for this annual event not only because of the support it shows from the community, but also because it's a great chance to get out and be active as a community.

"It's awesome to see everyone come out and do something healthy together," Anderson said. "At midnight, this time of year, it's a perfect time to be out here so it's just been great."

Sons of Liberty Riders and Christian Motorcycle Association offer prayers at county schools

heather@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN, Ala. – Saturday morning, county schools around Cullman were visited by members of the Christian Motorcycle Association (CMA) and the Alabama Sons of Liberty Riders (AL-SoLR) during their 2019 Prayer and Pledge Ride. Starting at Harmony School, the riders visited Cold Springs, Good Hope, Hanceville, Welti, Holly Pond, Parkside, Fairview, Vinemont, West Point and the Cullman County Child Development Center to pray and say the Pledge of Allegiance at each school.

The riders encouraged school administrators and teachers, as well as members of local churches, to join them at each school's main flagpole.

The schools each received prayers for safety and success for both students and teachers, in addition to signs signifying that the CMA and AL-SoLR prayed and pledged at the site in support of First Amendment rights: the right to freely choose and practice one's religion, the right to peaceful assembly, freedom of speech and the press without government interference and the right to petition the government to remedy grievances.

The ride saw a large outpouring of community support throughout the day, receiving gratitude from school faculty.

Steve Miller, principal at Holly Pond High School, said the riders' visit just added to an already-good day for the school.

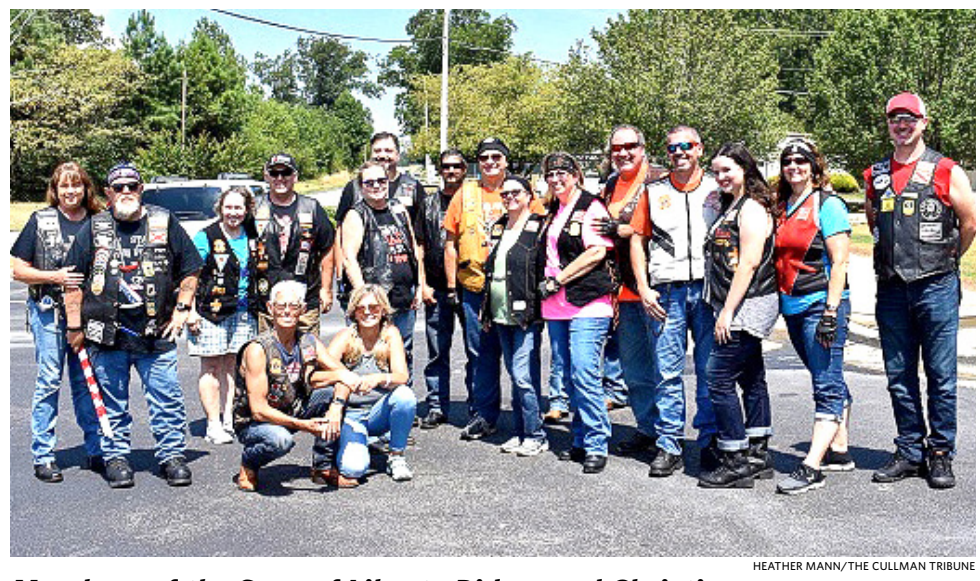

"Personally, I am excited anytime people take time out of their busy schedules to come and pray for us.

"It's refreshing to know that people are thinking about us and care enough to pray for us," Miller commented.

"We had a church group from Holly Pond First Baptist come to do a work day today, and they did much-needed finishing touches on our campus. Also, Desperation Church had a group come in and just walk around campus praying for our students and staff.

"The bikers just came in and also took time to pray for the students and staff. It was a great day to be at Holly Pond School."

The CMA and AL-SoLR will be holding another Prayer & Pledge Ride, this one for Morgan County schools, Saturday, Aug. 10. They will start at West Morgan High School at 8 a.m. and end at Sparkman at 12:45 p.m.

Students, families enjoy Kids' Night Out in Hanceville

HANCEVILLE, Ala. – Children filled CW Day Park in Hanceville Friday evening for Kids' Night Out. The party is hosted each year by the City of Hanceville to give kids a great night of food and fun as summer comes to an end and the school year begins.

The park was full of laughter as kids enjoyed bouncy houses, a climbing wall, the dunking booth, a mechanical bull, train rides and catching up with friends. Families even brought their dogs for a fun and relaxing night in the park.

First responders from across the area were out with their fire engines and other vehicles for the kids to see. Hanceville Fire and Rescue and Hanceville Police were joined by the Dodge City, Colony, Loretto, Crane Hill, Berlin, Johnson's Crossing, Good Hope and Logan fire departments to show the kids their trucks.

The Cullman Police Department showed off its helicopter and Cullman County Sheriff's Office brought vehicles as well. Even Batman stopped by in his Batmobile to visit with the kids before they head back to class.

In addition to the fun activities, River Valley Ingredients provided 400 Chick-fil-A sandwiches, chips and drinks. Folks also lined up for free lemonade and Blue Bell Ice Cream.

Mayor Kenneth Nail couldn't have been happier with this year's turnout and praised River Valley Ingredients for its continued support and generosity, saying, "it's not just this Kids' Night Out they do. Next week when these kids get to Hanceville Elementary School on Wednesday, they will have everything they need sitting on their desks."

Jamie Sewell and Steve Smith with River Valley Ingredients were working hard giving out sandwiches and drinks.

Sewell said this is at least the 10th year for the company to sponsor the Kids' Night Out event. It provided the food and the many bouncy houses.

Among the crowd were Kage and Katelynn Hurst who will be sophomores at Hanceville High School. The twins have mixed feelings about returning to school next week.

"I left in eighth grade, so I'm a little nervous about going back," said Kage Hurst, "but I do have some friends there already."

The twins found their friend Haley Whitehead while at the park. She will also be a sophomore at Hanceville High School. She said math was her favorite thing about school. The three sophomores are hoping for a great year.

The Hanceville Bulldog mascots, Spike and Spice, came out to greet the kids and they seemed very excited to have the students headed back at school. Open house will be Monday night with the kids returning for the 2019-2020 school year Wednesday.

The Cullman Tribune moves from 3 to 5 days per week

maggie@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN, Ala. – The Cullman Tribune has moved from three days a week to five, starting today, Tuesday, Aug. 6, 2019, and Publisher Noah Galilee is excited about the benefits the expansion will bring to Tribune readers.

"Residents will now be receiving five days of great, local content along with quality photos and special sections each week. More days means more news, which means a better-informed public."

When Galilee and his business partner Dustin Isom acquired The Tribune in 2016, their plan was to push the once per week publication up to five days.

"Now we've done that and will be offering up incredibly low prices for local news: no Associated Press content. The decision was not a difficult one to make as it was in the original designs when Dustin and I launched CullmanSense in January 2011. The plan has always been there; I just didn't show my hand until recently."

One of the things Galilee is excited about is the ability to offer a more cost-effective product to Cullman-area residents.

"Moving to a Tuesday through Saturday print format will give our readers more local news, offered up five days per week in print and daily online, while providing a low-cost, five-day subscription."

New rates are: $100 inside Cullman County, $125 outside Cullman County and $225 out of state (Current subscribers will not see a rate increase until their subscriptions are up for renewal).

"I believe, as we've recently seen, the readership will continue to climb, which in turn will allow us to hire additional reporters, editors and in the very near future - home delivery drivers," said Galilee. "Yes, we are looking at taking The Cullman Tribune off the mailing system, so you can have the paper in the morning, as opposed to midday or afternoon. We understand it's important to have the latest news available and moving to the Tuesday through Saturday format will allow us to do just that while continuing to offer the only local news website that is free to view."

Galilee was emphatic in his appreciation for The Tribune's readers.

"Thank you to all of our readers who've stood by us from the beginning to now. We never would have made it out of the backroom if it weren't for all of you, so thank you! While The Cullman Tribune may be the oldest business and newspaper in the region, it's important to remember since April 1, 2016 it has had a major overhaul and is now an Alabama Press Association award-winning publication. Now, the fun begins!"

Subscribers who refer a friend will receive $10 cash back, with no limit on the number of referrals. Contact Robin Winton at 256-739-1351 for more information.

OPINION

Always Reforming: Life in Community (14)

Tom Fillinger
Tribune Correspondent

Today in our series on the One Another Commands we focus on Be Accountable To One Another.

One of the most challenging issues in the Christian life is the question of accountability. Accountability is similar to submission. I once read a gospel tract in which a female stated with gusto, "I ain't accountable to no man." Pity her poor husband. Tragically this attitude is prevalent and growing in the culture and in the church as well. It is in direct defiance of what the text requires of every believer.

I urge my readers, DO NOT embrace this sinful attitude.

At every level of Christian community, the question arises. We know that Christians are accountable to God for their lives and will one day actually give an account (Mt. 25:31-46; 1 Cor. 4:4, 2 Cor. 5:10).

2 Corinthians 5:10 "For we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ, so that each one may receive what is due for what he has done in the body, whether good or evil."

But, are we accountable to each other? Which others? Are you accountable to your pastor? Fellow church members? All members of your church?

Since the answer is "yes" to these questions, how is this accountability exercised?

I know that I am accountable to God for the entirety of my life. Even though I trust Christ for salvation, I do not presume that this frees me from accountability for the conduct of my life. Quite the contrary -- it heightens my accountability as one who has publicly confessed to serve Jesus Christ as Lord of my life.

Let me illustrate the importance of accountability to one another from a recent experience my wife and I had while in the hospital for her cataract surgery. Across from us a lady was talking on her cell phone and weeping profusely.

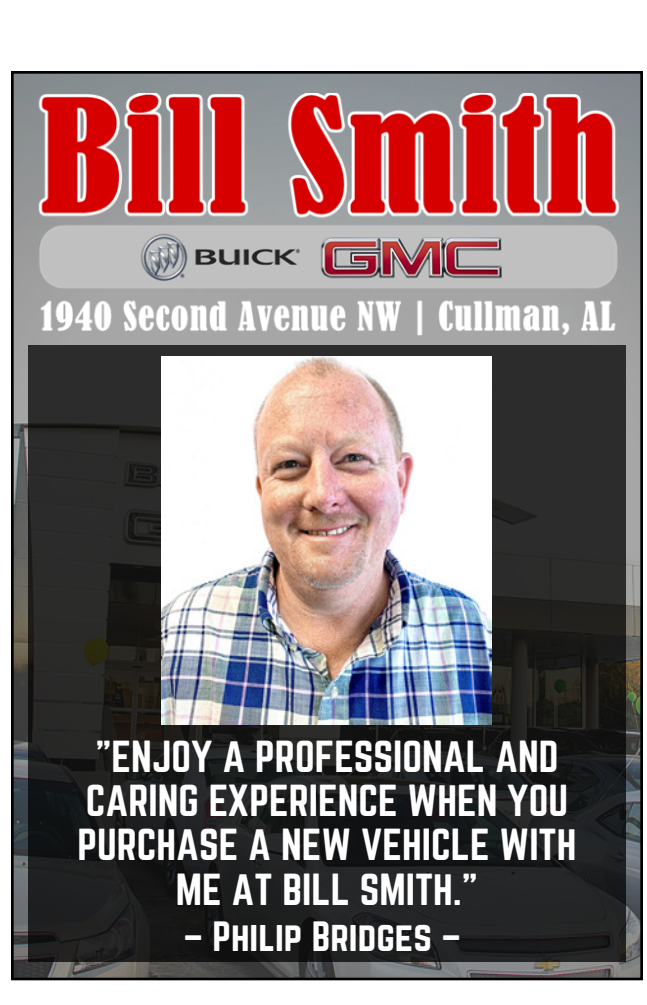

We overheard part of her conversation. I offered to pray with her. Her adult daughter, married with several children, had attempted suicide. I inquired about her spiritual condition. She claimed to be a believer. She also attended church every Sunday. She was in the midst of a very troubled marital situation.

It is highly unlikely that those who attended each week with her were totally unaware of these troubles. Did anyone, even one person speak with her? Did anyone come alongside of her and offer to pray with her?

I do not know the answers to these questions. What I do know is that very often people look the other way. Being involved in the troubled life of others is messy. It hurts, so we pretend not to notice. Such avoidance is not acceptable.

In Christ, we belong to one another. We must embrace this privilege and accept the responsibility of holding one another accountable.

What about you and the church you attend? Do you obey this command? Pray for grace and obedience to this humbling quality.

Cold Springs' Burleson celebrates retirement after nearly 30 years

BREMEN, Ala. – After 28 years of serving at Cold Springs High School, Timothy Burleson celebrated his retirement with the community and other faculty members Sunday afternoon.

Burleson spent the first 19 years at Cold Springs in the classroom, where he taught subjects like science, history, health and P.E. He eventually became assistant principal, keeping the position for three years before finishing the rest of his career as principal. He also coached basketball for 21 of his 28 years at the school.

During the festivities, Burleson gave a short speech thanking his family for their support, then thanking his colleagues and friends for all the time they've had together at the school.

"It's a tough job," he said. "In this day and time, the only discipline - now it's not the case for everybody, but it's the case for many of the kids we see - the only discipline and accountability that they see comes from that school over there. They don't get it at home, so it makes the teachers' job tough, but it's a rewarding job. You all mean a lot to me."

He also gave a few words of advice to his successor, Eric Dickerson, saying, "When you make your decisions about these kids, if you make your decision not out of anger or malice then you can go with it. Also, have a thick skin and stay off of social media."

He finished the speech by telling his colleagues, with a smile, they are more than welcome to call him if they ever need help, just call a little later in the morning.

As the party started to wind down, Burleson sat down with The Tribune to reflect on nearly three decades of service to the school.

"This was my first job, (the) only job I've ever had. Got it right out of college," he commented. "I was just very lucky that I found a place that I loved. Not many people can say they've been in one place for that long because they get unhappy for whatever reason, but that was just not the case here."

What are some of your best memories or most memorable moments from the job?

"When students come back and they tell you that, you know, that you'd made a difference, you'd treated them fairly and you treated them right. Those always stand out. As far as accomplishments or achievements, a highlight of the coaching part would have to be going to the finals."

What are your plans for the future?

"I'm going to be working part-time at St. Bernard. I'll be going back to coaching basketball again, teaching health and a couple of P.E. classes. I wouldn't necessarily call it a full retirement."

What can you tell us about your successor?

"Eric Dickerson. I know him very well; he actually played on one of my basketball teams. He's taught at Cold Springs for probably 12 or 13 years, and he's been my assistant principal for the last three. I know he's going to do an outstanding job."

Burleson smiled, "I've enjoyed my time at Cold Springs, and I wouldn't trade it for any other place in the world."

Addison Bulldog Band marching in a new direction

Christy Perry
christy@cullmantribune.com

ADDISON, Ala. – It's an exciting new adventure for the Addison High School marching band as Garrett McCurley takes over the band program this year. Since being named new director, McCurley has recruited more than 15 new band students from grades fifth grade and up. The 35 members of the Addison Bulldog marching band have worked over the past two weeks of band camp and finished with a performance for friends and family Friday evening.

This year's halftime show has a patriotic theme and features a medley of songs including "America the Beautiful," "You're a Grand Old Flag" and "God Bless America."

The percussion is also featured in the show, which McCurley said is in honor of "the 75th anniversary of D-Day and our drum break is featuring the 200th year of Alabama."

McCurley has brought a great energy and enthusiasm to the Addison band program.

He has some young students who are new to playing instruments but he praised their efforts and ability to pick up the music so quickly.

He said, "I am super tickled with them. They make me proud."

McCurley works with the new band members after school allowing the kids to continue participating in PE. The upperclassmen help by having sectional practices and mentoring the younger members.

Jackie Austin has come in to help with the color guard and choreographing the routines.

"I am excited and would love to build the program. Band is one of the best things you can do. It creates great memories, " McCurley said.

He is an Addison High School and band alumnus. He went to Wallace State on a music scholarship before earning a degree from Athens State in social science. He has worked at the elementary school since last year.

Fairview discusses controversial bus behind Fire Station 1

The controversial bus behind Fairview Fire Station 1

FAIRVIEW, Ala. – The Fairview Town Council Monday night again addressed concerns about the bus parked behind Fairview Fire Station 1, located along Alabama Highway 69, which has been the subject of many complaints from town residents.

Fairview Volunteer Fire Department Chief Doug Williams was on-hand to discuss the bus and provide the fire department financial records the council requested from him at its last meeting.

Said Williams, "We're opening books at the fire department." Williams also informed the council that the controversial pole on the bus behind the fire station has been hidden and will no longer be a problem; however, he said the firefighter occupying the bus will need to stay.

At the July council meeting, Williams told the council the bus is occupied by a volunteer fireman who resides at the department, stating, "The bus belongs to a firefighter that is now a full-time resident, if you will, which provides an extreme amount of ability to respond at least 24 hours a day with at least one person with a truck, whether it's medical or fire.

"That's home. He put it there to live in so he could be here all the time. It helps on your insurance rate."

There are living quarters inside the fire station, but Williams said they're being used for storing medical records and the showers need to be pulled out and redone.

Mayor Keith Henry addressed Williams Monday night, saying, "We appreciate what you've done so far."

Henry told the council he's looking into having a lawyer look over the contract with the fire department and modifying it so a structure or vehicle like a bus will no longer be allowed to be parked outside fire department buildings.

The council was also visited by Good Samaritan Health Clinic Executive Director Jolanda Hutson, who is visiting the various municipalities asking for support for the clinic. After her presentation, Henry said, "We'll consider a spot for you in our budget."

BAILEYTON, Ala. – The Baileyton Town Council Monday night announced the Town will host a meeting Saturday, Aug. 31 at 7 a.m. at the Baileyton Senior Center with Sen. Garlan Gudger, R-Cullman and Rep. Randall Shedd, R-Fairview. Invited to attend the meeting are mayors and council members from Baileyton, Berlin, Fairview, Holly Pond, Vinemont and Hanceville, along with members of the Cullman County Commission and Cullman County Board of Education. The council said the meeting will be about projects the named municipalities would like to see completed in the coming year.

The council reversed its decision to enter into an agreement with Sweetwater Security. After receiving a bill from the company for charges and fees the council said were not mentioned or disclosed by Harold Nelson with Sweetwater Security at Baileyton's July 1 council meeting, Mayor Johnny Dyar said he felt the billing was dishonest. The council agreed and will look for other companies locally.

More lights will be installed at Baileyton's park due to unused money from a Cullman County Community Development Commission (CCCDC) grant received earlier this year. The Town was left with just more than $3,000 to spend to close out the grant. The council agreed to order and install 22 more lights and poles for the park. The Town will provide the labor to install the lights.

Coming up this weekend is the seventh annual Roger Latham Memorial Horse Show. The event will start at 6 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Aug. 9-10, and admission is free.

Walking horses will show on Friday evening at 6. Racking horses will show on Saturday evening at 6. Concessions will be available, with proceeds going to the Parkside Jr. High and Fairview High School girls' basketball teams. Baileyton Park Horse Arena is located at 600 Fire Station Road.

HANCEVILLE, Ala. – A Hanceville man was killed in an officer-involved shooting along County Road 599 near Hanceville Sunday afternoon. Cullman County Coroner Jeremy L. Kilpatrick identified the man as Robert Clay Wilsford, Sr., 65.

The incident unfolded following a call from a family member who asked the Hanceville Police Department (HPD) to do a welfare check, according to a statement from the HPD.

According to the HPD, officers arrived at the residence and were met with gunfire. The patrol car was hit several times.

The statement said shots were exchanged between Wilsford and the officers, and Wilsford was shot multiple times. Although first aid was administered, Wilsford died a short time later.

The name of the police officer involved has not been released.

Bobby Joe and Edith Calvert live next door to the home where the shooting took place.

Edith Calvert told The Tribune's news partner, WVTM 13, "He was a nice man who played with grandkids out in the yard. I never saw him do anything that was questionable."

The Calverts said in their 40 years living there, this is the last thing they ever expected to happen and it's something they won't soon forget.

"We have two little great-granddaughters who live four houses away and they're back and forth across that yard all the time," said Edith Calvert, "and yeah, we're going to be a little weary about that now."

The HPD posted the following to Facebook Monday afternoon:

A Message From Police Chief Bob Long:

"Yesterday was a terrible time for the Hanceville Police Department and the City of Hanceville. With sadness I say again what many of you already know about an officer involved shooting."

"Hanceville Police responded to a location on County Road 599 where they encountered a man with multiple firearms. The subject was identified as Robert Wilsford Sr."

"There was an exchange of gunfire between the officer and the subject which resulted in the officer's patrol car being struck multiple times. Mr. Wilsford was also struck during this exchange of gunfire, and he later succumbed to his injuries at Cullman Regional Medical Center."

"Our thoughts and prayers are with all involved, as well as their families."
