CRANE HILL, Ala. – The Crane Hill community will soon be home to an 11-cottage development for veterans. A groundbreaking ceremony for the new low-cost veteran community took place Friday at the project site along County Road 949.

The development, named Connie's Cottages, was the idea of Irv Jones and a gift to his wife, Connie, a four-time breast cancer survivor. They traveled from their home in San Francisco to attend the ceremony on the peaceful lakefront property.

Also in attendance were Cullman County Revenue Commissioner Barry Willingham, Program Coordinator for the U.S. Department of Veteran Affairs Willie J. Fields, contractor Damon Monk and local veteran Ken Brown.

Jones explained the origin of his vision, saying, "I'm from a faith-based perspective and I was watching some faith-based programming about two years ago. It was an organization out of South Carolina that was partnering with the Dream Center in Los Angeles.

"Observing that programing, they were introducing the fact that there were veterans either coming out of the theater or out of the military all together and they were having difficulty finding affordable housing. Their perspective was to reach out and be a supportive arm."

Jones originally focused on the needs of female veterans, but after consulting with Fields from the VA Hospital in Birmingham, decided to broaden his scope to include all veterans.

"We want to assist whomever we can, either males or females, coming out of the military that are in search of affordable housing," he said.

Jones said he also saw a program in Tennessee where cottages were being built for those who had fallen on hard times, so he thought a cottage community for veterans would be a great idea.

"I asked, 'How can Connie and I do our little part in a small part of the world to help people in need?'"

He was introduced to the Cullman area during the purchase of an airplane and met several people, including Monk. With Monk's help, the two found the land Jones needed to make his dream a reality.

"It seemed like a good fit!" he smiled.

The cottages will be built on approximately 5 acres of land with 75 feet of waterfront on Smith Lake.

Jones said, "Let's just get it done! That's my perspective. Let's get it done for our men and women who have left a part of them out there and are coming home and finding some difficulty in finding affordable housing.

"Whatever role Connie and I can play in that endeavor, that's what we want to achieve. Faith-based scripture says, 'Do not despise small beginnings.' You gotta start somewhere!"

Jones is financing the project himself and hopes to sit down with the VA and other local veteran groups to best determine the requirements that will be put in place for those applying for a cottage.

Fields confirmed that the VA will act as a referral for veterans.

Monk told guests, "All the houses will be approximately 760 square feet. Mr. Fields asked us to build some with two bedrooms, so we will consider that. Right now, the plans are for them to all be one-bedroom. There should be seven on this end of the property and five to six on the other end of the property. We should start pouring concrete this coming week and start putting the houses up."

"Since 2008, the VA has embarked on a mission to end homelessness among veterans, and in order to do that housing is the key component," Fields said.

"What Irv is trying to do, what I told him I could commit to, is get the word out.

"Sometimes all you have to do is tell one veteran that and the word will spread.

"If we are going to have a chance of ending homelessness, we have to have affordable housing and a place they can thrive in.

"This area is conducive for that. It is tranquil."

Jones looks forward to the ribbon cutting for this project. He is also considering a second home on Smith Lake for him and Connie in the future.

Right now, their main goal is to have the first cottage completed in the next two months.

Alabama sets new record low unemployment rate at 3.3%; Cullman's rate falls to 2.6%

State breaks 3 additional employment records in July; Over-the-year job growth surpasses national growth

Tara Hutchison

MONTGOMERY, Ala. – Alabama set four new economic records in July, Labor Secretary Fitzgerald Washington announced Friday. July's preliminary, seasonally adjusted unemployment rate is 3.3%, setting a new record low, beating last month's previous record low of 3.5%. July's rate represents 2,171,721 employed people, a new record high, measuring 11,244 more than last month's count, and 57,413 more than in July 2018.

Cullman County's rate fell to 2.6% for July, down from June's rate of 3% and July 2018's rate of 3.5%.

"More than 57,000 Alabamians have jobs today that didn't a year ago," said Gov. Kay Ivey. "That means that 57,000 more Alabamians have work and are contributing to their communities and our state. The effort we are making to bring jobs and employers to Alabama is working. We are consistently improving our workforce and preparing Alabama for the future."

"I'm proud to see our unemployment rate decrease and continue to reach record lows," said Washington. "This month we also saw the number of people counted as unemployed fall to its lowest count ever. More people are joining the workforce, with the expectation that they will find work, and, for the most part, they are. But even as we celebrate these records, we know that there is still work to be done. We're proving month after month that Alabama has good, quality jobs. We stand ready to assist anyone who's ready to work."

The number of people counted as unemployed dropped to a new record low of 75,157, which represents a drop of 12,761 people from July 2018.

The civilian labor force increased over the year by 44,652 to a record high 2,246,878. The civilian labor force represents the number of people, aged 16 and over, who are either working or looking for work, excluding the military and those in institutions.

"Our over-the-year job growth measured 2.0% this month, which outpaced the nation's job growth by half of a percentage point. In fact, Alabama has matched or outpaced the national growth rate for six out of seven months in 2019," continued Washington.

"Alabama's economy added over 40,000 more jobs in the last 12 months, with at least four sectors reaching record level employment highs."

Over-the-year job growth measured 2.0%, compared to the national growth rate of 1.5%. The only month in 2019 in which Alabama did not match or outpace the national growth was January, when Alabama's growth rate measured 1.8%, and the national rate was 2.0%.

Over the year, wage and salary employment increased 40,200, with gains in the professional and business services sector (+8,700), the leisure and hospitality sector (+7,700) and the education and health services sector (+5,000), among others.

Four sectors saw record high levels of employment in July: transportation equipment manufacturing (66,600), motor vehicle manufacturing (14,100), leisure and hospitality (219,200), and computer systems design (26,300).

All 67 counties saw declines in their over-the-year unemployment rates, with drops ranging from more than half of a percentage point to more than three percentage points. Sixty-four of 67 counties saw no increase or a decline in their over-the-month unemployment rates, as well.

Counties with the lowest unemployment rates are Shelby County at 2.1%, Marshall County at 2.4%, and Elmore and Baldwin Counties at 2.5%. Counties with the highest unemployment rates are Wilcox County at 7.5%, Greene County at 7.0% and Perry County at 6.7%.

Major cities with the lowest unemployment rates are Vestavia Hills at 1.7%, Homewood and Alabaster at 2.0% and Hoover at 2.1%. Major cities with the highest unemployment rates are Selma at 7.3%, Prichard at 6.2% and Anniston at 4.6%.

Tillman (from Front)

christy@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN, Ala. – As you walk into the front doors of Cullman High School, to your right is Tillman Hall, named in honor of John Tillman, who served as principal from 1962-1981. He is known for his many wonderful contributions and his dedication to Cullman City Schools, but he is also a hero, having served in the Army during World War II.

He began his story, "I was born in Carroll County, Georgia and at the age of 4, I had an uncle here in Cullman to pass away so we came out here. Daddy decided while he was out here that he would sell the old Tillman homeplace.

"We moved out here, and the first year, well, his brother was in the process of having a new house built but not completed. His wife moved into the new house and we rented the old house that first year."

Tillman moved to Cullman in 1928 and was just 4 years old when his family rented the house in Cullman.

He said, "I became a Democrat when I was 4 years old, and the reason I became a Democrat is that year we were renting that land, the people next door to us rented land.

"So, here comes a team of mules out from some place here in Cullman that he had loaned and they were collecting.

"Here they had taken his mules and taken his working tools away. What got me though was the two milk cows tied onto the back of the wagon. At 4 years old that struck a bell with me. How can you take away the milk from those poor people?"

Tillman started school at Antioch when he was 6 years old. Once he completed the sixth grade, he went to Fairview for six years and graduated in 1943.

He said, "During 1943, I was 18 years old and eligible for the draft. They did let me stay and graduate, but a couple of months later, I got a Dear John letter to report. I became a private at that time and we moved up to Cape Cod, Massachusetts. Camp Edwards was out there."

Tillman was sent up with 50 boys from Alabama, 50 from Florida, 50 from Tennessee and 50 from Georgia.

He continued, "They put us in some GI tucks one weekend and they let us drive down to Plymouth, Massachusetts. That was my first opportunity to see the ocean or to be in the water.

"At that particular time, there was a bunch of girls that was from the college there in the Edwards area. They were there at the beach and somewhere along the line, those girls picked up, well we had Tennessee, Alabama, Georgia and Florida and that's actually about four different languages. They became interested in the conversation and the boys finally picked up on what it was."

Tillman was a medic and sent to Burma by ship through the South Pacific.

"They carried us around through the ships that were down from what was happening. I was amazed, we had 3,300 troops on the ship, and the pilot would be dead ahead onto an island or into a ship and all of a sudden, he cut like that. He knew the depth and so on of where he could go."

The ships they were going around were the remains of the ships from Pearl Harbor.

Tillman's ship first docked in Melbourne, Australia, but the men weren't allowed to leave the ship.

He explained, "The group that was up there where we were going, some of them had jumped ship, so they wouldn't allow us green people to go."

Next stop for Tillman was India where he would travel by train through northern India on his way to the jungles of Burma. With no way to heat water for coffee, he was relieved on the second day when he learned that the steam locomotives were a good source for clean hot water.

In part 2, Tillman will share his experiences fighting alongside the Chinese against the Japanese in the Burmese jungles to take the Burma Road.

Cullman's Glasscock speaks at chamber community luncheon

NICK GRIFFIN/THE CULLMAN TRIBUNE

CHS Head Football Coach Oscar Glasscock speaks at Friday's chamber community luncheon at East Side Baptist Church.

CULLMAN, Ala. – With football season less than a week away, the Cullman Area Chamber of Commerce decided to invite the newest local coach to speak at this month's community luncheon. Cullman High School Head Football Coach Oscar Glasscock is entering his first season with the Bearcats and was the guest speaker for the Chamber's August luncheon. He started things off by talking about his return to his hometown and how impressed he has been with the school system since his return. Coach says that the timing felt right for him to return and he's happy not only to be working the sidelines on Friday nights, but to be working within the city school system as well.

"I've been gone for a little while and it's nice to come back here for sure to be a part of this and just get reacquainted and familiar with people. It's a neat thing to see y'all and to kind of get to know everybody again. It wasn't some career goal to come here and return as the head coach at Cullman High School, I just kind of took things one year at a time and tried to enjoy what I was doing, tried to impact the people I was working with, especially the students, and at the end of the year you may evaluate some things and get opportunities," Glasscock said. "This time around it just felt like a full-circle kind of thing where everything felt right about coming back here and I have to say I never thought we would see as much unity as is happening right now in the school system. I think it's a community thing but with just all the administrators in the city school system, the coaches, the teachers and everyone associated with city schools, I'm telling you, things are really, really good right now. I can honestly say that we're in a place right now that I never thought we'd be in."

One of the things that Coach Glasscock wants to instill in his players is a drive to put their best effort into everything that they do. Whether it's at work, school, on the practice field or at home, Glasscock wants his kids to put 100% behind everything they do and apply themselves.

"I told the kids this morning, if you're not giving 100% in everything that you do in your life, you need to ask why not. Even if you're 100% on the football field you may not be 100% in how you act at home with your parents or you're not 100% with how you act in the classroom and I think that applies to all of us," Glasscock said.

"If you're not giving 100% to some large component in your life, you need to ask yourself why not. Whether it's your faith, your relationship with your spouse or something to do with work, why are you not giving 100% it. If you can't really answer that than you need to start thinking about what you can do to get better. We talk about those things a lot every day."

Glasscock admits that over his years in coaching, he's seen a need in some of his athletes' lives that sports is able to fill. He didn't think about it as much when he was a player because of the structure and discipline he received growing up at home but now, he has seen how important that aspect of sports is for a lot of kids and their families.

"When I was younger and playing, I thought sports was sort of overrated as a character-builder because I got my character at home. We ate meals together every night and I had chores to do and things like that and I learned right and wrong at home. Now, unfortunately, a lot of these kids don't get that at home," Glasscock said.

"I don't think it's a good thing but now a lot of kids are only exposed to learning what's right and what's wrong in sports. The kids aren't different, it's the parents. There aren't absolutes anymore. As a coach I've dealt with more social media issues from parents than kids.

"So, I'm saying that to say this; the job of your coaches and your teachers and administrators is really more important now today than ever. I've changed as a coach. I used to always be about schemes and getting the players to play hard and things like that and that was it. Now, like I said, it's a larger role and we have to help make sure these kids are accountable."

Glasscock made several stops between leaving Cullman as an assistant and returning as the head coach in December of last year. His path as a defensive coordinator led him to Mountain Brook and he was comfortable coaching with the Spartans but when Hartselle's Bob Godsey called looking for a new defensive coordinator, Glasscock knew he needed to take advantage of the opportunity. It was his time under Godsey with the Tigers that made Glasscock start to think about becoming a head coach and running his own program.

"I got a call from Bob Godsey at Hartselle and that was an opportunity I just couldn't turn down. After watching him work and watching him lead a program, that was the first time that I thought 'you know what, I think I can do this'. I just saw the efficiency of how you work and have a structure to everything, but you didn't monopolize time. Everything you did, you did it with a sense of urgency," Glasscock said.

"It's 4th-and-1 every day of the year at Hartselle and I don't necessarily gravitate towards that as much, but I understand that there's an element of that you need in every kind of program, business or anything you're involved in.

"So, working for a guy like him, a hall of famer, it got me to think about running a program, what would I do differently, and I hadn't really thought about those things before. The goal is to take what has been good and successful here and keep those things, but I've just been so pleased that everyone has been so open to trying some new things."

Glasscock is the fourth different head coach the Bearcats have had in the last four seasons so he knows that can be a rocky situation for student athletes. In fact, Glasscock experienced the same thing during his playing days at Cullman and feels like he can relate to his group of seniors on a personal level. On top of trying to introduce consistency with the coaching staff, Glasscock wants to do what he can to upgrade the strength and condition programs at CHS as well.

"We've got 11 seniors and I'm their fourth head coach. I went through the same situation when I was in high school and it's a very turbulent time. I would say things are a lot better here now, but I think the seniors can understand because I've been in the same situation they have. It's going to take some time.

"We're behind in strength training but we're addressing it," Glasscock said. "I'm helping lead the beginnings of a strength program where we're taking all the eighth and ninth grade boy and girl athletes in the school system and we're doing a comprehensive strength program with them. It's going to include elements of speed training, plyometrics, core strength, flexibility and those type of things. Nobody wants to build bulk; everybody wants to build flexibility and core strength first.

"I don't know anybody else in the state that's doing a comprehensive program with ninth graders and I think with this, we can take what's been a weakness and make into a strength. It's going to take a little while but give it time and I think in a few years, you'll be really happy with how we're developing players, how we're developing kids and how we're developing young men learning in the athletic department."

The Bearcats will kick off the 2019 season and Oscar Glasscock era at Cullman next Thursday when they travel to Jasper to take on the Vikings. Cullman defeated Jasper 28-27 last year in dramatic fashion so the Vikings will be anxious to see the Bearcats again Thursday night.

THE CULLMAN TRIBUNE • ALABAMA'S OLDEST CONTINUOUSLY PUBLISHED WEEKLY NEWSPAPER

"THE 67-COUNTY, ALABAMA GARDEN PARTY"

DALE COUNTY

Ben Johnson South
Tribune Correspondent

In our 200-year history, Alabama has had some well-known "big mouths," but Dale County proudly claims to be a wonderful place to fish for large-mouth bass and is also the birthplace of "Big Mama Thornton," one of America's greatest blues belters.

Speaking of big mouths, here's a Dale County fish tale for you: A fisherman who hadn't bothered to get a license was out at Lake Tholocco casting for bass as a stranger walked up and asked, "Any luck?"

This big mouth fisherman boasted, "Any luck? Hellfire, I reckon. I'd heard Lake Tholocco was a prime spot for catching catfish and crappie, but it's pert near paradise for catching bass. I caught 10 bigguns yesterday."

"Son, is that so? By the way, do you know who I am?" asked the stranger.

"Nope," said the fisherman.

"Well, meet the new game warden."

The fisherman gulped, "Dang...so, do you know who I am?"

The game warden said he didn't.

Then, the fisherman replied, "Well, sir, meet the biggest liar in Alabama."

Dale County was established in 1824, but almost 200 years later, thanks to concerted efforts of local and Ft. Rucker conservation vigilance, much of the natural beauty of the terrain is preserved. In many parts of the county, you can feel the same hope and optimism settlers felt in Alabama's early days.

This is a part of Alabama treasured for the peace and quiet and an unhurried pace. Paradoxically, let's give a shout-out to the farming community of Ariton which gave blues great Willie Mae "Big Mama" Thornton her Southern Gospel roots. Even though her father was a Dale County Baptist minister, "Big Mama" played on the famous "Chitlin' Circuit" and pumped up the volume for rockers in juke joints across the country. Thornton, who once weighed 450 pounds, had a deep, powerful voice that projected self-assuredness when she growled hits like "Hound Dog" which was no. 1 on the Billboard Magazine rhythm-and-blues chart for seven weeks. This was three years before Elvis Presley made it a huge hit for himself.

When you see the magnificence of blue skies meeting the proud, tall trees in Dale County, it's easy to understand the palpable patriotism people in this part of Alabama feel. Fort Rucker, the state's largest military base, is here, as is the United States Army Aviation Museum.

Here are places in Dale County where PLANTS + PEOPLE + patriotism come together in positive and pleasurable ways, including our original recipe for BIG MOUTH BASS FISH TACOS:

- DALE COUNTY FARMERS' MARKETS- (Daleville) corner of Daleville Avenue and Highway 134; (Ozark) across the street from Ozark City Hall

- OZARK FARMSTANDS- Chris Carroll, Delony Farms, Peters Farms, Travis Johnson

- DALE COUNTY U-PICK FRUITS AND VEGETABLES- Snell Farms, 6928 County Road 33, Skipperville, AL 36374, 334-774-0787; call ahead for what's in season: strawberries, sweet corn, peas, butterbeans, collards, summer squash, watermelons, tomatoes

- HOLMAN MANSION AND GARDENS- (Ozark) One of the most-elaborate Neoclassical homes in southeast Alabama, it was built by a local merchant and cotton gin owner; it is listed on the National Register of Historic Places.

- ED EISENBY LAKE- Another great fishing spot with a glistening, 92-acre lake inside a beautiful, green, 390-acre park; a 3-mile, paved path around the lake welcomes those in wheelchairs; walking trails, duck feeding, picnic tables; 861 Myrtle Drive, Ozark, AL 36360, 334-774-0588; fishing is allowed from sunrise to sunset every day except Wednesday, and the park is open every day; a canister of crickets for bait is only $1.25.

- PLANTING AN IDEA: For centuries before white settlers came to Alabama, Native Americans had been placing a small fish in a hole in the ground with corn seed to make their crops thrive. All plants need biologically active soil, and all-natural fish fertilizer gives plants the immediate benefit of food with the long-lasting impact of enhancing the soil's microbial activity. Dale County could be a great place for fish fertilizer production and experimentation as we look for ways to make Alabama soil and people richer in future centuries.

Y'ALL COME to Dale County on your 67-County Alabama Garden Party tour. If you were fishing for an invitation, the friendly folks, warm climate and gorgeous countryside in this southeast part of the state welcome you all year long.

My thanks to Laurie Johnson for creating and sharing her recipe for Dale County Big Mouth Bass Fish Tacos. These are flavorful, festive and fun for a lakeside picnic.

The Cullman Tribune is celebrating the Alabama Bicentennial (1819-2019) with statewide field reporting by Alabama Master Gardener/Botanical Artist Ben Johnson South. This year-long feature, "The 67-County Alabama Garden Party," will spotlight different counties each week. Each county will get its own "quilt block," along with a historical profile, and we'll share a recipe specific to the area. At the end of the year, all 67 counties will be put in a book to commemorate the Bicentennial.

The Alabama honeysuckle border was inspired by an 18th century, Southern applique quilt.

BIG MOUTH BASS TACOS WITH CHIPOTLE DRESSING AND MANGO SLAW

Make this fresh version of the popular fish taco for a casual taco party. The beauty of it? All advance prepped and refrigerated until time to bake the fish and serve. Keeps you free to enjoy the party!

INGREDIENTS FOR FISH AND MARINADE:

- 2 limes - juiced and zested (Save one lime (juice) for the dressing and all the zest for the slaw.)
- 1/2 cup vegetable oil
- 1/2 tsp. each chili powder and cumin and 1/4 tsp. each cinnamon and ground cloves
- 2 tbsp. minced cilantro
- 1 lb. fresh lake caught bass fillets, cut into bite-sized nuggets (Other firm white fish will work.)

INGREDIENTS FOR ASSEMBLY – TORTILLAS, DRESSING AND MANGO SLAW:

- 1-33 canned chipotle peppers in adobo sauce (One is enough for most.)
- 1/2 cup each sour cream and mayonnaise
- Coarse sea salt and ground black pepper
- 1/2 cup finely shredded cabbage
- 2 green onions and 1/2 small red onion, sliced into thin strips
- 1/2 mango, julienned (slivered) into fine bite-sized strips
- A splash each of honey, white wine vinegar and vegetable oil
- About 8 corn or flour tortillas (Allow 3-4 fish nuggets per taco; you may need more or less than 8, and some people like to double the corn ones to hold up better.)
- Other garnishes as desired; such as extra limes, cilantro, avocado or shredded cheese

INSTRUCTIONS:

- Marinate fish: Mix the marinade ingredients in a medium-sized bowl with a tight-fitting lid (like plasticware) and submerge the fish nuggets. Marinate about 30 minutes at room temperature or several hours in the refrigerator. Shake and invert the bowl a few times (after checking for no leaks!) so that the marinade gets on all fish surfaces.
- Prep chipotle dressing: While the fish is marinating, stir together the sour cream, mayonnaise, lime juice and salt and pepper. The chipotle peppers can be very hot, so start with one. Finely chop it and then smash with the knife blade or a fork and stir into the mixture. Taste and, depending on your heat tolerance, add more (1/2 at a time). Some of the adobo sauce clings to the peppers and it is hot, so taste as you go. Keep refrigerated until needed.
- Prep mango slaw: Toss together the cabbage, onions, mango, reserved lime zest, honey, vinegar, oil and salt and pepper and set aside. Stir occasionally while you finish the fish.
- Prep to cook fish and tortillas: Preheat oven to 350F. Line a sheet pan with parchment paper. Wrap tortillas in foil.
- Bake: Spread out the fish nuggets on prepared pan and discard excess marinade. Place the pan and the wrapped tortillas in the oven and bake for 8-10 minutes until fish is opaque and flakey.
- Present the cooked fish nuggets, the dressing and slaw with the hot tortillas for your guests to assemble their tacos (with other garnishes as desired).
- Enjoy!

Hanceville Police K-9 Unit making big impact on drug arrests

MAGGIE DARNELL/THE CULLMAN TRIBUNE

Hanceville Police Department Sgt. Joshua Howell and Tazer

Maggie Darnell
maggie@cullmantribune.com

HANCEVILLE, Ala. – The Tribune had the opportunity to sit down Friday afternoon and talk with Hanceville Police Department Sgt. Joshua Howell and his K-9, Tazer. The department's other K-9, Zero, and his handler, Cpl. Zac Chrietzberg, were not able participate in the interview due to Zero being on the night shift, said Howell. Both Zero and Tazer are narcotics dogs.

"We only have narcotics dogs here at the Hanceville Police Department," said Howell, "because we don't want anything associated with any kind of violence or anything like that. Our dogs are meant to keep the community safe from drugs and things like that."

Tazer, now 13 months old, became part of the HPD back in November 2018, when the City of Hanceville received a $25,000 anonymous donation for a narcotics dog.

The department used that donation for Tazer and the necessary equipment to care for him.

Howell said, "We hadn't had a K-9 in years. It's been several years since we've had a K-9 unit."

That was, until this past February, when Howell and Tazer completed the necessary requirements and courses in order to be certified.

"We've had numerous (drug) seizures and arrests since then," said Howell. "The biggest bust he's (Tazer) had so far is 9 pounds out of a storage unit.

"Storage units, they're hard to search because the airflow through them; it could be moving through different areas of the storage buildings and it throws off the scent. It's been very lucrative for us, and it's helped us. He's a big asset, along with Zero."

Zero came on board in March, also thanks to an anonymous donor.

"Both of the K-9s that we have are awesome at what they do," Howell said. "We train weekly with the dogs.

"Some agencies, they train monthly, but we think that our dogs, we want our dogs to be the best out there.

"We train them weekly to get them more proficient at what they're doing- for searching, finding drugs and keeping our community safe. That's our ultimate goal."

Howell said Tazer immediately made a difference after becoming part of the HPD.

"I acquired him (Tazer) first in November. Zero was acquired in March. Me and Tazer came and we went to training in January, spent five weeks, came out the first of February, and after that, a week into being on patrol, he made a drug arrest already.

"We went from there; we've done search warrants with our narcotics team, several seizures off that, arrests and some assets as well."

He continued, "After Zero came in, we have one K-9 on night shift, and I'm (with Tazer) on day shift. Anything that's needed to be done on days I do and anything that's needed on nights, Zero (with Chrietzberg) does."

Chrietzberg passed his courses with Zero in June.

"That's the thing we have to go through- countless hours of training, I think it's 160 hours that we have to have to be a K-9 handler."

In person, Tazer is a very happy, docile dog who just wants to play.

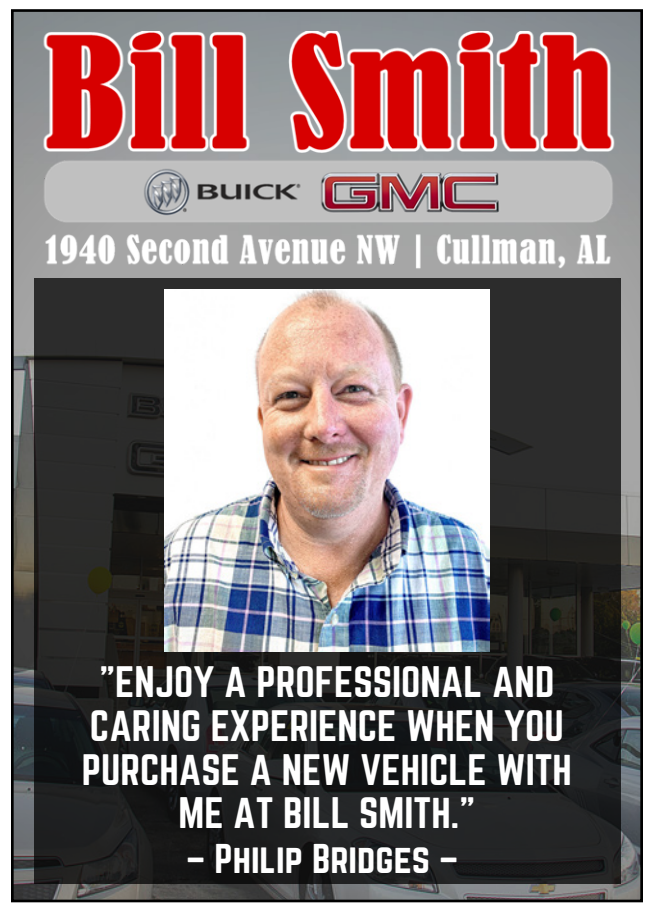

Howell smiled, "As you can see, he's a very happy dog. He's very happy, very gentle. He likes to play and he might even want you to tug on (his toy), cause that's the thing, he just likes to play."

The K-9s are groomed routinely, usually once every two weeks.

Said Howell, "If not, then once a month. We take them down to PetSmart and have them groomed, the whole nine yards. It's a 24/7 job. When I get off work, I still have to go home and let him out of the car to play, things of that nature, feed him, water him, just like you would any kid. It's a job, 24/7, even on the weekends, on my time off, I still have to get him out and play with him and do searches. Because if we don't do that, they sit in that kennel and they start getting anxiety and they get stressed. So we have to get them out, run them, let them play. Let them be a dog, more or less."

Howell said the K-9s have been instrumental in multiple drug arrests.

"Like I said before, we've made several drug arrests, about one arrest a week off of the dogs. Or K-9s, I shouldn't call them dogs, because they're more than dogs. I know I've made one a week here since we're in the month of August, since I'd say July, it's been one every week. And we maintain that."

Hanceville Bulldogs

With a solid-sized senior class missing from last year's team, including several that are gearing up to play at the college level, the Bulldogs and Head Coach Cody McCain are looking to fill spots all over the field.

"It was about a 10-man senior class and I think eight of those guys were starters. We've got a lot of young faces out there this year and we've only got two seniors on the team. It's a majority ninth, 10th and 11th grade team so we're very young but we've got a pretty good-sized junior class and a lot of those guys got playing time last year," McCain said. "So, it is a small senior class, but the junior class is big and got experience as 10th graders so we're having to treat them like they're basically getting two senior years. They've got to be out leaders for two years in a row."

After playing a few games last year, McCain decided he wanted to switch things up a bit on the offensive side of the ball and he expects that trend to continue in the 2019 season.

"About three or four games into last season we kind of adjusted what we were doing offensively and went to more of a true spread kind of offense. Down the stretch last season, we were throwing it 20-25 times a game and I imagine we'll be 25-plus this year just because of personnel," MacCain said. "We're a little thin up front as far as our linemen goes so we'll try to spread it around as much as possible. We feel like we've got decent speed on the outside so we're going to try and get the ball to those guys and let them do their thing."

The disadvantages that come with an inexperienced team are relatively obvious but there are some positives that come with a young group as well. McCain wants to take advantage of those positives and mold this year's roster into a competitive team.

"The advantage is that they should all be young and hungry. They shouldn't have developed a lot of bad habits and they should all be eager to compete. The thing that I like about having young guys out there is for the most part they are pretty eager to learn and they're a little more accepting of coaching when you get on to them and try to correct mistakes," McCain said. "To me the biggest thing even more so than the experience factor is getting them to play without fear. The fear of messing up, the fear of being smaller than the other guy and those types of things. We've kind of identified three of four of those guys that are ready to get past that stage and we're just trying to bring the rest of them up with us."

With a lot of new faces on the field this year, McCain is excited to get things kicked off and believes that a fast start will be critical to the Bulldogs having a good season.

"It's basically a new team from last year. Not just because of the seniors that left but we've had seven or eight guys that chose not to come back from last year and we've added a handful of guys that didn't play so there's a lot of turnover on the roster," McCain said. "Maybe that comes from trying to establish more of how you want things done as far as requiring them to work out and watching their attendance and the kind of stuff, so I think the mentality for those guys is to come out and compete and we feel like for us to have a chance at a good season, we need to come out of the gate pretty strong. We have three county games in the first four or five weeks of the season so for our guys it's important to come out fast. We play Fairview, Holly Pond and Vinemont kind of in that first month of the season so that's going to be a big stretch of games for us if we want to have a chance at a good year."

The Bulldogs will play several of their most important games on the schedule before October so the pressure will be on right out of the gate. With a lot of new names hitting the field after a disappointing 2018 season, Hanceville will be hungry to bounce back and right the ship in 2019.

Good Hope Raiders

McEachern Photography

2018 was a historic season for Good Hope High School. The Raiders posted a 9-1 record in the regular season and knocked off top-ranked, undefeated Jacksonville at home to advance to the third round of the AHSAA State Playoffs for the first time since 1997. With more buzz around the program than ever before, head coach Alan Scott is pleased with how offseason preparations have gone so far.

"I think that we really had a positive summer. I think overall, we had really good attendance with good effort and the kids showed up and worked hard," Scott said. "So, I was very pleased, of course it's never perfect, but at the same time I thought it was a solid summer."

Last year's Raiders team was led by a massive senior class that included names like Bailey Quick, Matt Hancock, Matt Dixon and Jackson Hancock to name just a few. With a lot of bodies missing from 2018 and a new team in the locker room, Scott is ready to see this year's squad put its own stamp on the program.

"I've never had a senior class like that one as far as talent and numbers. We really took a big hit on both lines, offensive and defensive, we took a hit in our defensive backs and lost basically our entire secondary besides Tanner (Malin) who's coming back. On offense obviously we lost the vast majority of our yardage producers so it's a unique situation," Scott said. "It was a great season and I really enjoyed it last year and love those guys but that's going to be big shoes to fill. Like I said, we've got guys that are working really hard and they want to be good so that's a positive. I think the standard has kind of been set so these guys want to just take what's been done and run with it and not try to duplicate something that anyone else has done but continue to try and compete and be the very best that we can be."

There are some obvious disadvantages that come with being a younger, inexperienced team but Scott was able to point out some of the positives that come with those circumstances. After a massive senior class graduated in May, a lot of positions opened up for the Raiders and Scott is excited to see who steps up and fills those needs.

"The competition should be really good. We should have several guys trying to earn their spot on the field whether it's in a starting role, everybody kind of gets hung up on the starters, or just to contribute. I think we're going to have to have some of those guys that are ninth and 10th graders coming in hopefully give us some quality playing time on Friday nights," Scott said. "Whether it's to start the game off or right in the middle or if we've got a series going and we're on our second or third set of downs, we're going to have to move some guys in there. What happens every year though is a young man that you don't even really have on the radar, gets his opportunity in a situation whether it's an injury or somebody is tired and this season we don't know who it's going to be. But they'll make the most out of that opportunity and earn themselves a spot and that's kind of the fun part is seeing which of these guys are going to step up and take on that role. It presents them a good opportunity."

When you lose as much offensive production as Good Hope is losing this fall, it could bring about some schematic adjustments. Scott says that he and his staff want to establish a consistent system for their kids to work and develop in but they want to tailor their plan to this team's strengths as well.

"I think that by nature, our coaching staff wants to have a system in place. We want to have a base set of plays and formations and we want to have the same thing on defense, but we also want to tailor that to what our strengths are going to be this year. So, the play names might not change, the formations might look a little different, but you know football really comes down to blocking and tackling so if our guys can feel comfortable within the system and know where they're going and can get there at 100 mph and have a little bit of an attitude when they get there, we feel like we can compete," Scott said. "Football is a simple game, if you can run the football effectively, you're going to be tough to stop but if you can also attack people on the outside with the pass and compliment that, it makes you even better. So, if we can do those two things on offense and then play sound defense, make sure we're aligned properly and be really solid tacklers I think everything will be fine."

The bar was raised for football at Good Hope last season as soon as the game against Jacksonville was over, but Scott just wants his guys to stay within themselves, play hard and have fun.

"When you have a younger team, they tend to be very coachable, they tend not to get discouraged or anything like that. They just want to go out and play football and I think that's great so we're definitely not going to try to put any pressure on them other than the fact we just want them to play hard," Scott said. "Play with a lot of effort and represent their school well and be disciplined and if they can do those things, I'll be very proud of them."

A young boy runs toward the ocean, his kite sailing behind him.
A mother lightly splashes water into her small child's face who in shock slings her arms experiencing the first of things.
Friends gather,
some quiet mouses,
some loud macaws.
A family goes by,
with matching lights
strapped to their head,
sand crabs scamper away.
The sun sets into a watery grave, as sea breezes whisk through the air and oh, I love listening, and watching these unique sights on this beach evening.

Funny Things from Yesterday: I'll meet you after school to settle this

Robert N. Tidwell, Sr.

Did you ever have a difference with a classmate while you were in grammar school? I always got along with most everyone in school except this one red-headed boy. We seemed to antagonize each other if we were on the same playground.

This boy was a grade ahead of me in school, one year older, and it seemed like he was a good bit bigger. Anyway, we must have started our relationship off on the wrong foot because it took us years to be friendly to each other.

One day at play period (or recess), we had a difference of opinion and did not get it settled before class started. He said to me, "I'll meet you after school and we'll settle this."

After school was out, we met on a vacant lot about two blocks from school. The lot was on the north side of St. John's Church.

A large crowd of our classmates had gathered around to witness the outcome. We put our books aside and faced each other. We were like two little bantam roosters with their feathers all fluffed out ready to do battle.

We circled around looking at each other, but neither of us was brave enough to make the first move. We each had friends cheering us on, but neither of us would throw a punch.

Before long one of the schoolteachers drove by. She saw the crowd and thought there was the making of a fight. She stopped her car and got out. She dispersed the crowd and told all of us to go home before we got into trouble.

I sure was glad she came by for I had already decided that I just wasn't cut out to be a fighter.

Since that time, I have come to realize that I may someday have a red-headed grandson because my son married a girl that has red hair. But neither of our grandsons have red hair.

BILLY BOB'S STORIES AND STUFF

If summer is over why is it still so hot?

Bill King
Tribune Contributor

The temperature in Opelika today was 92, with a heat index of 425, but summer has ended. In case you are wondering about that heat index, it was baking. Fall has not fallen yet, but summer is unofficially over, because school has started.

We have enjoyed a wonderful summer at the King's house. Our grand-buddy Drew has spent most of his summer break with us. We went swimming 5,352 times, went fishing several times but not every day, played racquetball regularly, watched Braves baseball most nights, and visited O-Town Ice Cream parlor so much I've had to buy new pants...twice! I probably should tell the truth about swimming. We really didn't go 5,352 times. I think it was only 5,351, but Drew wanted to go once more. We didn't go fishing quite as much as either of us wanted, so last week we decided to squeeze in one more. On Friday of Drew's first week back in school, I picked him up with the rods and reels in the back. We headed straight to Uncle Paul's pond, which has become our favorite fishing hole. On the way, we stopped by The Country Store for some essentials - soft drinks, junk food, a slice of hoop cheese, and a box of red-wigglers. Yes, you can buy all of that at the same place. We fed the worms to the fish, as well as some of our cheese. Yes, mamas, we washed our hands. Fish don't want to eat dirty cheese or worms!

We had a good day. Drew caught ten bream, and I caught eight, plus one small snapping turtle. It was a catch and release day. We discussed bringing the turtle home with us but Gigi voted no, and she wasn't even with us. On our way home, Drew was digging around in the pocket of his passenger side door. He fished out a shiny object that was an inch long. It had a metal wire running through the center of three gold balls that were about twice the size of BBs. It had what looked like a hook on one end. Drew held it up and said, "Look what I found." I asked, "Where did you get that fishing lure?" He said it was in the pocket of the door, but upon further examination he said, "I don't think it's a lure. I think it's an earring." I had never noticed how much some dangling earrings resemble certain fishing lures. Then my warped sense of humor arrived on the scene. I told Drew, "You know, we could go to the sporting- goodstore and buy some fishing lures for Christmas presents for your mother and Gigi." No, they don't fish, but they do wear earrings. Drew's education must already be working because he said he wasn't so sure that was a good idea. He said they might get too close to water wearing those lures and a big bass jump out of the water and clamp down on their ear lobes. We've decided to forget that idea, but we are trying to put a three pronged fishhook on that earring. If the fish bite it, we might look in Gigi's jewelry box for some more lures. They aren't free, but they've already been bought and are available.

If we actually did that, Drew and I might be in for an education when Gigi found out. I am praying that Drew is in for a good education at school, as well as all the others who have begun another school year. Please join me in praying for their learning, safety, teachers, and administrators.
