Organizers getting the word out early for Veterans Day Celebration

Christy Perry
christy@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN, Ala. – Col. Ken Brown from Cullman Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW) Post 2214 spoke Wednesday afternoon at the Cullman County Mayors and Commissioners Association luncheon at Terri Pines. Several area mayors, along with Sen. Garlan Gudger, R-Cullman, were in attendance as Brown asked for their help in promoting appreciation for local veterans and the importance of Veterans Day events in November.

Brown explained, "We have 7,000 veterans in Cullman County according to the local VA. That's a large number of veterans, and almost every family is affected by having a veteran. In a country where we have 340,000,000 Americans and only 1% having served in the armed forces, having 7,000 in your county as constituents is unusual. (We are) very patriotic here in the South."

Every year the VFW helps host a day-long celebration honoring local veterans. It is held a week before Veterans Day each year to avoid competing with larger neighboring cities that hold similar events. The last couple of years, the event has been held at Cullman Regional Airport, but due to construction, this year's celebration will take place at Sportsman Lake Park.

Brown told the assembled guests, "I am coming before you today because I want to talk to leaders in the community and you are the leaders."

He said he hopes each municipality will do its part to help promote the celebration and encourage everyone to come out to show appreciation for the many remarkable veterans in Cullman County.

"I think when people understand a little bit more about the heroes who live among us that deserve to have someone come out one day a year and we have this celebration, (they will come)," said Brown. "It's important as leaders to make sure people know about it."

This year's Cullman County Veterans Day Celebration will take place Nov. 2 at Sportsman Lake Park.

Alabama Law Enforcement Agency (ALEA) Marine Patrol Division Troopers arrested Nick Bowling Suggs, 50, and Jodi Wallace Suggs, 50, both of Decatur, after a Winston County grand jury convened earlier this week and the pair was indicted.

ALEA said officials from the 25th Circuit District Attorney's Office in Winston County will prosecute the cases.

Troopers so far have not given any details about the indictments. The Tribune will report details as soon as they are available.

Efforts to recover Starling's body resumed Wednesday morning and will continue through Friday, Aug. 23, according to ALEA Marine Patrol Division Northern District Assistant Commander Sgt. Chad Pate.

Starling was a passenger in a 2012 Mastercraft wakeboard boat involved in a two-boat crash in the Rock Creek area of Smith Lake at approximately 10 p.m. July 4.

The driver of the boat, William Jackson Fite, 23, of Decatur, has been charged with boating under the influence.

Starling Family Statement

Our daughter, sister, and granddaughter, Kelsey Starling, is missing and presumed dead since July 4, 2019, following a boating incident on Smith Lake. We appreciate the tireless efforts of law enforcement and search personnel to locate Kelsey. We also very much appreciate the love and support we have received from so many individuals at Smith Lake and throughout our state. We have been especially touched by the blue Kelsey ribbons that have seemingly appeared everywhere in Alabama and states beyond. This has provided our family significant comfort.

We understand that an indictment has now been issued in connection with Kelsey's death; we will not comment on the indictment at this time.

We look forward to receiving information yielded from the investigation that resulted in this indictment.

The family will have no further comment on this issue at this time, as our efforts remain focused on the recovery of Kelsey's remains.

Researchers suggest higher levels of vitamin D are associated with decreasing risk of breast cancer. Their epidemiological study is published in PLOS ONE. Participants with high blood levels of Vitamin D had one-fifth the risk of breast cancer compared to those with the lowest levels. To reach the higher levels of Vitamin would generally require dietary supplements of 4,000 to 6,000 international units (IU) per day, less with the addition of moderate daily sun exposure wearing very minimal clothing (approximately 10 to 15 minutes per day outdoors at noon).

Reviewing medical information gathered on more than 6,000 adults over a ten-year period, Johns Hopkins researchers have found that lower-than-normal blood levels of vitamin D were linked to increased risk of early signs of interstitial lung disease (ILD). Results of the most recent data analysis, published in the Journal of Nutrition, suggest that low vitamin D might be one factor involved in developing interstitial lung disease.

Children who are vitamin D deficient have a greater risk of having more severe forearm fractures requiring surgical treatment, according to a new study presented at the Annual Meeting of the America Academy of Orthopedic Surgeons (AAOS). Fractures in children are very common, with some estimates as high as 50 percent of boys and 40 percent of girls having at least one fracture by age 18. Of these fractures, the forearm is the most common site, accounting for approximately 25 percent of all pediatric fractures in the United States. Vitamin D deficiency can lead to negative calcium balance, low bone mineral density and quality leading to compromised bone strength, so it makes sense for patients to be more susceptible to fractures at lower impact load and more susceptible to greater severity when fractures do occur.

CCBOE's Barnette honored as 1st-ever Blue Ribbon Superintendent

craig@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN, Ala. – At Tuesday evening's Cullman County Board of Education (CCBOE) meeting, Superintendent Dr. Shane Barnette received a surprise as Dr. Judy Warden Fields, CEO of Blue Ribbon Schools of Excellence (BRSE), came out of the audience to address the board. She began by announcing that this was the first time in the history of the organization that the BRSE administration has ever attended a local school board meeting to make a presentation, and followed by reading a letter from the organization.

"Dr. Shane Barnette, we recognize and honor your important work in preparing students for college, successful careers and productive lives in Cullman County. We have watched Cullman County Schools move up 12 slots to the 30th highest ranking school district in the state, out of 129 districts. Congratulations to you and your school community."

She went on to commend Barnette for "vision," "leadership" and "listening, caring and communicating," before announcing his being named as a Blue Ribbon School Superintendent and presenting him the organization's Lighthouse banner. Barnette is the first superintendent to ever be given the distinction.

Banners are usually issued to local schools. According to Fields, this will be the first banner to hang in a system's central office.

Afterward, Barnette told The Tribune, "It's the faculty and staff and the administration that have earned that award, because they have worked so hard at improving their schools, and we all are reaping the benefits from it, I guess, but I'm just excited to be part of their team.

"They've accomplished some great things. I mean, Blue Ribbon Schools, they assess all of the schools and put together an action plan, and the faculty and staff and the administration on each campus have worked hard at raising test scores and creating a culture where kids want to be at school. They've done all the work; I just got to be part of it."

CCBOE honors Holly Pond bus driver, Fairview business owners with 1st Exceptional Service awards of school year

craig@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN, Ala. – At its meeting Tuesday evening, the Cullman County Board of Education (CCBOE) issued its first Exceptional Service Awards of the 2019-20 school year to Holly Pond bus driver Matt Wood and Fairview businesses The Hutch and Fairview Quick Stop, represented at the meeting by owners Dr. Josiah and Shannon Daily.

Superintendent Dr. Shane Barnette read Holly Pond Middle School Principal Cynthia Roden's nomination letter for Woods, saying, "Matt Wood has a strong work ethic. He does an excellent job as bus station head for Holly Pond schools.

"He works well with all the bus drivers for daily scheduling and routing for bus drivers every day. He maintains a positive attitude when working with all our bus drivers, teachers, sponsors of teams and the administration, even when being pulled in several different directions.

"Then he works with campus administrators to plan and organize all trips needed for transportation to multiple events including basketball, football, volleyball, soccer, archery, scholars' bowl, math team, field trips, just to name a few.

"Often it is difficult to find a bus driver or a sub bus driver, and he is so very dependable to work diligently to help out everyone to try to fill a spot for a driver.

"He volunteers often to drive for the school for trips for free, so you could really say he is a team player."

The second award was addressed to "the owners and employees of Fairview Quick Stop and The Hutch Restaurant."

Barnette read the nomination letter from faculty and staff members at Fairview High School recognizing the businesses for "their outstanding and exceptional service throughout our community.

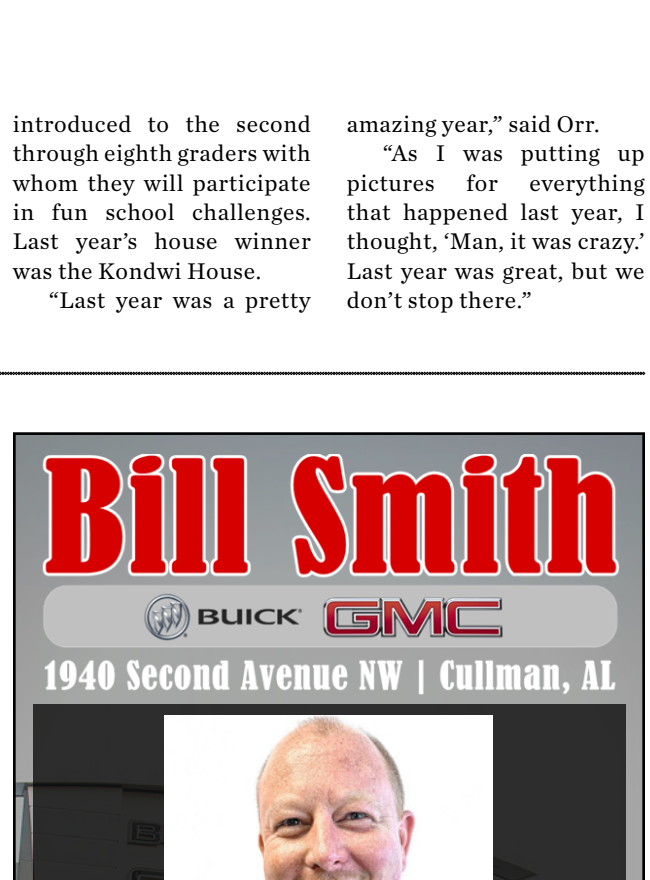

"The Hutch Restaurant and the Fairview Quick Stop share ownership and deliver exceptional services to the customers who frequent them.

Fairview High School has, on multiple occasions, reached out to these local businesses to help our schools through providing incentives for our ACT program, our athletic programs, as well as several prominent school events. These incentives have been enjoyed by students who have reached academic and athletic goals, and have been admired and appreciated by the small community of Fairview."

Halls (from Front)

BAILEYTON, Ala. – The Panthers of Parkside School returned for the 2019-2020 school year to find more whimsy and wonder throughout their halls and classrooms. The unique artwork and creativity that fills the school brought international recognition last year (www.cullmantribune.com/2018/11/02/wizarding-world-descends-on-parkside) and Principal Richard Orr hopes to keep building on those successes.

Local artist Aaron Sullivan continues to lend his talents to help each teacher create a fun classroom entrance that reflects his or her students' interests as well as his or her own. From Dr. Seuss to the Grand Canyon, the students are surrounded by color and wonder that provide an exciting learning environment that sparks the imagination.

One of the newest murals is Auburn's Jordan-Hare Stadium. It only makes sense that it's next door to rival Bryant-Denny Stadium.

Orr smiled, "He got a little jealous that her door had Aubie, so he went back and added Big Al to Alabama's stadium."

Orr also told of another unexpected trend, "It's funny; they started making it personal. That's the teacher's dog, so he put his dog there."

As the teachers' doorways were being painted, their own dogs and even a cat were incorporated into the scenes.

Sixth-grade teacher Laura Dunkin worked hard over the summer on her classroom.She has created a chic and inviting space that has all the students talking.

Orr explained, "It looks so pretty in there. She's really crafty and her husband is very handy and they teamed together and took some lockers, I think, from Holly Pond from the 60s that her parents had in her basement and made a fun bar out of them for the kids to sit at to read or work on school work.

"I've heard the kids in the hallway say, 'Have you seen Mrs. Dunkin's room? It's so awesome!'"

With almost all the classrooms finished, the next projects will be the lunchroom and perhaps the office.

Orr hasn't come up with an idea for the office but the lunchroom will soon be the "Parkside Grille."

This is Orr's ninth year as principal at Parkside and he said that is special because this year's is the first eighth-grade class that has been with him from start to finish.

Next Friday, the first graders will participate in the "house" selection process, and they will be introduced to the second through eighth graders with whom they will participate in fun school challenges. Last year's house winner was the Kondwi House.

"Last year was a pretty amazing year," said Orr.

"As I was putting up pictures for everything that happened last year, I thought, 'Man, it was crazy.' Last year was great, but we don't stop there."

Holey Moley

Who would have guessed that a goofy summer competition show set on a mini-golf course could prove to be addictive? Filmed at the same location in Santa Clarita, Calif., where they made "Wipeout," this show taps into a similar zany spirit as contestants test their putting skills on a course where the hazards at each hole are ginormous and diabolical. Season 1 wraps tonight with two back-to-back episodes, respectively titled "Mother-Putter!" and "Power of the Fanny Pack."

7 p.m. on HIST
Ax Men

In the new episode "Measure Twice, Cut Once," Danny Pihl is happy to rely on veteran ax men Dwayne and Chuck when it comes to taking down massive old-growth trees. Elsewhere, Craig Rygaard makes the unhappy discovery that son Jason made a disastrous miscalculation that will prove very costly. Buckin' Billy finds a rare, vintage power saw as he shelters from a storm, while Frank Harkness transports $100,000 worth of logs from his frigid worksite via treacherously icy mountainside logging roads.

8 p.m. on BRAVO
Million Dollar Listing New York

Luis and Ronita schedule private showings of their first co-listing together, but she decides some changes are in order when he keeps dominating the events in the new episode "Jess We Can!" Elsewhere, Ryan's elation over landing three luxury NoHo properties is quickly dashed when he must take on 233 other units, all of them rentals. Steve is forced to take extreme measures to monitor his former assistant Jess as she takes the lead on his latest listing.

9 p.m. on FX

Multiple Emmy nominee Jonathan Krisel, who created the bizarre world of this deadpan Zach Galifianakis comedy series and usually serves as its resident director, also penned tonight's series finale, called "Moving On." If you're a fan, it's unlikely you'll get a lot of closure, though. When this episode was filmed, FX had not announced the current Season 4 would be the end of the road. Emmy winner Louie Anderson and Martha Kelly also star.

9:03 p.m. on HIST
Alone

Shocking weight loss, brutally low temperatures and relentless predators continue to make life a misery for the final three survivalists in the Season 6 finale "Fire and Ice." As the bitter cold makes acquiring food all but impossible, one hapless finalist loses everything in a devastating catastrophe. The other two continue to push on until one finally prevails, claiming the $500,000 prize.

9:30 p.m. on FOOD
The Flay List

Bobby Flay shares the spotlight with Sophie, his daughter, in this new series, in which they move from one eatery to another, each sharing a personal favorite dining experience with the other. The series premiere, "Tacos," finds the pair spending a day together in New York, starting out walking on the High Line to visit Los Tacos No. 1 in Chelsea Market, followed by creamy Italian gelato at L'Arte del Gelato. Next, Sophie takes the lead to Brooklyn and her own favorite tacos at Oxomoco.

10:35 p.m. on SHOW
Movie: The House That Jack Built

Controversial Danish writer-director Lars von Trier ("Breaking the Waves") once again polarized critics with this 2018 psychological horror film that chronicles a 12-year crime spree in Washington state by Jack (Matt Dillon), a serial killer. In between depictions of Jack's horrific murders, he chats about philosophy, ethics and world events with someone named Verge (Bruno Ganz). The film got only a single-day theatrical release in the United States, yet earned some international accolades. Uma Thurman co-stars.

Zach Galifianakis stars in "Baskets" on FX.

After turning around a slow start to the 2018 season and winning three of their last four, the Fairview Aggies built some momentum going into the offseason and now they're ready to ride that wave into this fall. Head Coach George Redding is entering his 13th season with the Aggies and he's really pleased with where his team is mentally as they prepare to host the West Point Warriors in week one.

"We're looking forward to the season. As always, these guys are going to work hard this time of year, our energy is good, we've had tremendous effort and I just like where this group has been," Redding said. "The chemistry is good, and I just like the progress that we've made from the spring through this summer. We have 10 seniors, seven juniors, 13 sophomores and 10 freshmen with seven guys returning on offense and six guys returning on defense. So, we're excited about where we're at and where we're headed."

The Aggies ended the season by winning three of their last four games and Redding thinks those games gave his team some momentum going into the offseason. With a more experienced group retuning up front, Fairview is looking forward to a solid year offensively.

"I think our biggest thing is just trying to build on that foundation that I felt like we ended the season last year with, especially up front on our offensive line," Redding said. "They were young, new and inexperienced and I was very happy with the way we ended winning four of our last six games and I think that gave us some good momentum going into spring training. I think just having a little bit more experience up front is going to help us. We do return more than 50% of our skill guys as well so we feel like those guys can be playmakers for us if we give them that opportunity."

One of the things that Redding talks about with his guys is making sure they don't try to do too much. He wants his players to let the game come to them and avoid mistakes to give themselves the best chance to win each week.

"It's important for us to kind of play within ourselves. We do a lot of focusing on ourselves, we don't do a lot of talking about other people and if we can do the things we need to do to play at a high level, things are going to work out as good as they can for us," Redding said. "I think if we can stay focused on that and just make some plays when we have the opportunities and not play behind the chains. The big focus for us is staying away from bad football and I know that sounds easy but it's important. We want to try and eliminate the bad things that happen; the turnovers, playing behind the chains and things like that. If we can stay in the area of good football, then we've got a shot."

One of the most noticeable losses for the Aggies this season will be quarterback Dayne Black. His departure in May left the quarterback position open but Redding has been very encouraged by what he's seen from two candidates in the offseason.

"We lost a couple wide receivers from last year and lost a guy at the quarterback position and left tackle so those are some areas that we definitely have to fill. We're asking some young guys to step up to get lots of reps and make plays and I know that Oakley (Mullican) has served a lot at the quarterback position and has probably had as good a summer as I've seen him have throwing the football as well as Parker Martin who will be a sophomore. Those guys have slung it around for us all summer and have done a really good job of that," Redding said. "I'd say skill-wise that's kind of where we're at with the right side of our receiving corps and our quarterback position. I feel like we made huge progress up front and I'm very pleased with where we're at. We're not ready, we still have a long way to go but I like where we're at right now."

The culture and attitude of the program is very important to Redding and his staff, so they spend time coaching the players about more than their performance on the field. He believes that establishing a strong culture off the field and in the locker room will only help them when they get under the lights on Fridays.

"We harp on them all the time about vocal leadership. In this day and age, it's always silent and if I text them what to do, they'll probably get it done better than if I tell them but there's time where we need to put everything else aside and speak up. I think we're built on character, that's why we do what we do and just learning how to become men," Redding said. "If things need to get done, let's get it done and if we need to make a stand, let's make a stand. So, I just want to make sure we're doing that each and every day I see the growth in these guys on a daily basis, so we're excited about where we're headed."

Redding is anxious to see what this year's Aggie team can do but for him, football is always about more than just the game on Friday night. He feels good about his program knowing that his kids are doing everything they can to compete while also learning lessons they can carry with them for the rest of their lives.

"Everything we build on is just trying to play at a very high level and compete. Our first thing is about character and then we want to compete. Competing, to me, is about so much more than just showing up on a Friday night," Redding said. "We've asked our young men to kind of suffer for the things you say you're passionate about and trust me, we're talking about more than football when we talk about that."

West Point Warriors

RiverCat Photography

After getting off to a fast start in 2018 and winning their first two games, the West Point Warriors dropped their next seven before capping off the year with a 55-14 win over Cordova. With last season behind them, head coach Don Farley is happy to report a very productive offseason with good effort and leadership from his guys.

"We had a real good summer," Farley said. "We had really good attendance from everybody, good leadership and our guys really held each other accountable and trusted each other."

Farley is entering his seventh season as the head coach of the Warriors and he and his staff have a new challenge ahead of them this fall. With a large senior class missing from last season, including several impact players on both sides of the ball, there are plenty of opportunities for new faces to step up and earn playing time on the field this year.

"You know anytime you lose that many seniors like we had, it's going to affect you the next year. With Rylan Jones and Kolton Sapp and Hunter Persall we lost a lot of our productivity as far as yards go," Farley said. "We lost those guys' experience as well and we lost three offensive linemen and that's not a position that you want a lot of turnover in if you can help it. Then we lost some guys on the defensive front as well."

When you lose that much offensive production all at once, it can force some schematic changes for a team the following year. Farley definitely wants to mold their style of play to his team's strengths, but they also want to try and stay within the system that he and his staff have established over the past few years.

"We're going to play to our kids' strengths, but we'll try to stay within the same philosophy of what we've run the last few years as far as scheme goes," Farley said.

"The guys that we're expecting to step up have been running this same scheme for two or three years in our JV program so while we're younger than we have been in a long time, I think we've really got some good guys that are ready to step in."

Replacing quarterback Rylan Jones has been one of the biggest challenges for the Warriors this offseason but Farley likes both of the two major candidates. Whichever one of them doesn't land the job under center will become a valuable target on the outside so Farley is excited to see how this team's starting group of skill players shake out. West Point has attended several passing camps this summer and Coach believes those reps will be invaluable for this team once the season kicks off.

"At quarterback right now it's between Whitt Laney and Will Cochran. They've both been getting reps in the spring and in the summer and of course whichever one is not taking the snaps will be lined up at wide receiver and be a big-time target there," Farley said. "Kobe Bowers will be back for us at receiver and early in the year last year he was one of our top guys before he got injured and Levi Farley and Kelton Washington are two of the guys that we're looking to replace Persall. It's good to get to them and we did more of that this year than we did last year," Farley said. "It helps get our secondary understanding the calls and adjustments that they will see, it's good for the quarterbacks and wide receivers for their timing and everything so it's not football but it's good reps for those guys."

When thinking about the struggles his team had a year ago, Farley recognized that one their biggest issues in 2018 was being a little too focused on getting to the playoffs instead of playing the game in front of them that week. Having learned that lesson, Farley is excited to see this year's team hit the field and get things started with a win at Fairview in week one.

"Looking back and reflecting on last year, we'd had that great run of four straight postseason appearances, and I think we got a little too far ahead of ourselves and focused too much on the result and not what makes that result happen," Farley said. "We got too focused on the playoffs and overlooked what it takes to get there, and this group has kind of refocused their attention to what it takes to make the playoffs."
