Understanding Alabama's service dog laws

New act creates penalties for fake service animals

W.C. Mann
craig@cullmantribune.com

MONTGOMERY, Ala. – Among the first topics of conversation at last week's legislative community forum in West Point was the legal status of dogs in retail establishments, based on a question from an audience member who had observed a shopper enter a local Wal-Mart with a dog on a leash, then unleash the animal to let it wander the grocery aisles. Another audience member claimed that retail employees are not even allowed to ask whether that roving pooch is actually a service animal.

The Tribune investigated the matter and discovered an act (Senate Bill 10, enacted as Act 2019-478) passed in the 2019 Alabama legislative session that amends current state law (Alabama Code 21-7) concerning service animals. The amended law offers useful definitions, explains several issues and sets forth new penalties for people who falsely claim pets as service animals.

What is a service animal?

The act and updated code define a service animal as "an animal that is trained to do work or perform tasks for an individual with a disability. The work done or tasks performed shall be directly related to the disability of the individual and may include, but are not limited to, guiding an individual who is visually impaired or blind, alerting an individual who is deaf or hard of hearing, pulling a wheelchair, assisting with mobility or balance, alerting and protecting an individual who is having a seizure, retrieving objects, alert-

Cullman man charged after shooting in Good Hope

wendy@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN, Ala. – A Cullman man was arrested Saturday night after allegedly firing a gun at a building, as well as other people, according to the Cullman County Sheriff's Office (CCSO).

Gregory Stuart Adams, 52, is charged with shooting into an occupied building or dwelling. Other charges may also be pending.

According to a media release from the CCSO, deputies responded to a civil disturbance call in Good Hope after receiving a 911 call that an individual, later identified as Adams, had shot multiple times at a motorcycle club and had fled the scene.

Upon arrival, deputies and investigators learned that Adams is a » PAGE 2 former member of the club.

The CCSO said that Adams began arguing with current members Saturday night and was asked to leave.

"The members thought the suspect, Mr. Adams, had left the premises so some of them began to leave as well, then at that time they saw Mr. Adams start shooting in their direction. The members, including women and children, ran for safety and took cover until the gunshots were over," said the release.

The CCSO said Adams arrived at the Cullman County Detention Center lobby a short time later, where he asked to speak with deputies and was seeking medical treatment for injuries he allegedly received from club members after the shooting.

Adams was transported to the Cullman County Detention Center. He has made bond.

Urban Pine (from Front)

Maggie Darnell
maggie@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN, Ala. – The earthy scent of pine fills your nose when you walk into the quaint building along Alabama Highway 157 West. Urban Pine Co. in Cullman County first opened the doors of its brick and mortar store in April 2019, but its roots date back a lot farther than that.

Mother-daughter duo Ann Couch and Tammy Hill own Urban Pine Co., which designs and builds handcrafted goods and furniture.

Hill shared the beginnings of the family' endeavor, saying "Twenty years ago, I'm a dental hygienist. Once I started having a family, I decided that I wanted to stay home more with kids, so I worked part-time in the office and mother and I started this little business. Of course she had it way longer than even that, because we did this when I was growing up at home. My parents had other jobs, but we did this as a little side hustle to always earn money for trips or cars or college or whatever we needed money for. We've always done this; my dad has built birdhouses for over 40 years, but a just a couple of years ago we decided to do Urban Pine and we travel and do shows. We've been doing shows for 20 years and we go as far north as Nashville all the way to Birmingham, the Atlanta area and all the way to Mississippi, so we kind of stay within that radius doing shows and selling our goods."

She continued, "This year, we had this opportunity with this cute little building. This land was farmed at one time, but somebody from my church family owned the building, so we've redone the building and made it really cute and decided as of April this year we opened this little shop, because we are local; mother is from Jones Chapel, I live in Vinemont. We're just a family business. My husband builds the furniture, my dad builds the birdhouses, mother and I do all the finishing work on all of the furniture and we go to markets and buy all of our cute little stuff to go with it. You know our farmhouse tables and our bed swings, we custom make that for our customers. But we decided we would open a little shop and stay local, just kind of simple Southern charm."

Hill also explained the name, Urban Pine: "Where that came from, we just kind of liked it; we thought it was catchy and unique. We do everything pretty much with pine that we build."

Aside from building unique furniture, Urban Pine also offers T-shirts, with all proceeds from shirt sales going back into the community into local charities and memorial funds.

Hill explained, "Our little shirts that we sell, the profits go into a local charity. We call that 'Pine with a Purpose: Praying it Forward.' Depending on the sales of the shirts, we try to do it every month or every couple of months we donate to somebody local any profits from our shirts. So not only does that advertise for our little company, but it also helps to give back to the community."

Urban Pine's hand-crafted merchandise is one of a kind, with two products being the most popular.

"The farmhouse tables with the benches and the bed swings, or we call them Sunday Swings, because they're great napping on Sundays swings. We have people come in and ask for certain things and we try to accommodate that; right now, we're building a farmhouse table that's 7 feet long and they wanted it custom on the ends so they could put chairs on each end," said Hill. "We try to do for people to come in and have a special request, because we are building it and nothing is ever going to be alike, no two things will ever be alike, they're always going to be unique and different, just like the birdhouses. None of them are ever the same. They're always different, so I think that's kind of unique, that's a unique thing about us, because we custom make things and we're building it as we go, everything never looks the same and the paint's never going to take the same, the stain's going to be different, and I think that's what people like about us. They like that we try to be good people and we try to give back and we gift wrap for free and we just try to do some custom things that people won't find in a big name brand store."

Hill said with a smile, "We're just a family business. We say simple Southern charm and everything's kind of unique and handmade and different. We have some things that are not handmade, you know our pumpkins and our wreaths, but we just put that with it to make it all cute.

Urban Pine Co. is located at 7321 Alabama Highway 157, Cullman, AL 35057. The store is open Thursdays and Fridays from 10 a.m.-6 p.m. and Saturdays from 10 a.m.-2 p.m.

Laws (from Front)

vidual to the presence of allergens, providing physical support and assistance with balance and stability to an individual with a mobility disability, helping an individual with a psychiatric or neurological disability by preventing or interrupting impulsive or destructive behaviors, reminding an individual with mental illness to take prescribed medications, calming an individual with post-traumatic stress disorder during an anxiety attack, doing other specific work, or performing other special tasks.

"This shall include a dog owned, used, or in training by any police or fire department, rescue or first response squad, ambulance corps, or search and rescue organization for the purpose of locating criminal and lost persons, or detecting illegal substances, explosives, cadavers, accelerants, or school or correctional facility contraband.

"A service animal may not be a pet. For the purposes of Sections 21-7-3, 21-7-4, and 21-7-5, the term 'service animal' shall be limited to a dog or a miniature horse.

"The crime-deterrent effect of the presence of an animal and the provision of emotional support, well-being, comfort, or companionship may not constitute work or tasks for the purposes of this definition."

An "individual with a disability" is defined as "A person who has a physical or mental impairment, including a physical, sensory, psychiatric, intellectual, or other mental disability, that substantially limits one or more major life activities of the individual."

Note that the Code's definition does not include security, emotional support or companion animals, nor does it include pets or any animals other than trained dogs and horses.

Rights of disabled persons with service animals
According to the law, "An individual with a disability has the right to be accompanied by a service animal in any public place all areas of a public accommodation, including a public or private school, and any of the places listed in Section 21-7-3 that the public or customers are normally permitted to occupy."

Those "places" include "A common carrier, airplane, motor vehicle, railroad train, motor bus, streetcar, boat, or other public conveyance or mode of transportation, a hotel, a timeshare that is a transient public lodging establishment, a lodging place, a place of public accommodation, amusement, or resort, and other places to which the general public is invited, subject only to the conditions and limitations established by law and applicable alike to all persons."

A person who is approved to train service animals has the same rights of access while training a new animal.

Responsibilities of persons with service animals
So, can a customer turn his service dog loose to roam the grocery aisles? The law says no.

According to the Code: "A service animal shall be under the control of its handler and shall have a harness, leash, or other tether, unless either the handler is unable because his or her disability prevents him or her from the use of a harness, leash, or other tether, or the use of a harness, leash, or other tether would interfere with the safe, effective performance of work or tasks by the service animal, in which case the service animal shall be otherwise under the control of the handler by means of voice control, signals, or other effective means."

The law also says: "An individual with a disability is liable for damage caused by a service animal if it is the regular policy and practice of the public accommodation to charge a person who is not disabled for damages caused by a pet.

"The care or supervision of a service animal is the responsibility of the individual owner of the service animal.

1. A public accommodation may not be required to provide care or food or a special location for a service animal or assistance with removing animal excrement.

2. A public accommodation may exclude or remove an animal from the premises, including a service animal, if the animal is out of control and the handler of the animal does not take effective action to control the animal, the animal is not housebroken, or the behavior of the animal poses a direct threat to the health and safety of others."

Can store employees ask?
Well, yes and no. According to the law, a person does not have to present proof that the animal is a certified service animal, and employees are limited in the questions that they can ask.

The law says, "Documentation that the service animal is trained is not a precondition for providing service to an individual accompanied by a service animal," and "A public accommodation may not ask about the nature or extent of the disability of an individual."

Employees can ask certain questions, though:
"To determine the difference between a service animal and a pet, a public accommodation may ask if an animal is a service animal required because of a disability and what work or tasks the animal has been trained to perform."

Service animals and service animals in training are required to wear special harnesses, backpacks or other accessories containing wording readable from at least 20 feet away that identifies them as service animals.

To identify animals in training, employees may ask:

- "If a trainer is an owner trainer with a disability or a qualified trainer with at least one year's experience training animals.
- "For photo identification stating that the trainer is an employee, volunteer, agent, or graduate of a school for seeing eye, hearing, service, or guide dogs or an organization generally recognized by agencies involved in the rehabilitation of persons with disabilities as reputable and competent to provide dogs with training, and who is actually involved in the training process.
- "What task the animal is being trained to perform, and if the trainer is currently engaged in the training of the animal."

Fake service animals, real trouble
Unfortunately, service dog harnesses and animal ID's are not regulated and can be purchased from numerous online sources, making fake service animals a growing problem. The 2019 act responds to the issue by stating:

"A person who knowingly and willfully misrepresents himself or herself, through conduct or verbal or written notice, as using a service animal and being qualified to use a service animal or as a trainer of a service animal is guilty of a Class C misdemeanor, and in addition to any fines and penalties provided by law, shall perform 100 hours of community service for an organization that serves individuals with disabilities, or for another entity or organization, at the discretion of the court, to be completed in not more than six months."

A subsequent infraction is a class B misdemeanor and carries a $100 fine.

OPINION

Worldview, part 2

Tom Fillinger
Tribune Contributor

In previous articles we endeavored to define "worldview." Your worldview gives evidence that documents in specific public view what you believe. What you believe is what you practice day by day. Every parent knows that children do what mom and dad do. Children model the behavior of their parents.

That principle of modeling is precisely the reason that your worldview is important. One of the primary reasons for the decline of the American church is the clouded and impotent demonstration of the Christian worldview in the marketplace of life. The Lord has provided every resource we need to declare a Christian worldview. We have the message – the Gospel. The Gospel portrays people as sinners in need of a Savior. Jesus Christ is that Savior. The Gospel requires sinners to repent and believe (Mark 6:12; Luke 13:3).

One of the provisions the Lord has made for Christians in expressing their worldview is the shield of faith (Eph. 6:16). Scripture tells us that genuine faith is like a shield that protects us. But that shield isn't there merely for us to "endure" the storm. We are meant to use it to keep moving forward, no matter what is happening. When we openly and clearly express our faith, we will encounter fierce resistance, hatred and persecution. Jesus made this abundantly clear (Luke 6:22).

If we don't really believe the truth of God and live it, then our witness will be confusing and misleading. Most of us go through life not recognizing that our personal worldviews have been deeply affected by the world. Through the media and other influences, the secularized American view of history, law, politics, science, God and man affects our thinking more than we realize. We then are taken "captive through hollow and deceptive philosophy, which depends on human tradition and the basic principles of this world rather than on Christ" (Colossians 2:8).

However, by diligently learning, applying and trusting God's truths in every area of our lives — whether it's watching a movie, communicating with our spouses, raising our children or working at the office — we can begin to develop a deep comprehensive faith that will stand against the unrelenting tide of our culture's non-biblical ideas.

If we capture and embrace more of God's worldview and trust it with unwavering faith, then we begin to make the right decisions and form the appropriate responses to questions on abortion, same-sex marriage, cloning, stem-cell research and even media choices.

Because, in the end, it is our convictions that lead to action that reveal what we really believe.

"Do not conform any longer to the pattern of this world but be transformed by the renewing of your mind" (Romans 12:2). Without genuine objective ongoing transformation, you will fail miserably in your effort to model a Christian worldview. Are you being transformed daily (2 Cor. 4:16)?

In the next article on worldview I will provide the account of a man whose life and conduct portrayed the Christian worldview for three nations of the world to observe.

CBD (from Front)

maggie@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN, Ala. – Cullman has a new store that specializes in cannabidiol, or, as it's more commonly known, CBD.

Your CBD Store's Cullman franchise owner is Denise Burnette, who talked with The Tribune about what motivated her to open the business.

"My mother has dementia and she has a lot of other ailments and a lot of people told me to give her CBD," said Burnette.

"We had tried a couple of different brands and I wasn't seeing any results. I came across one of these stores (Your CBD Store) in Decatur and I went in and they told me the difference between this brand and probably what I'm getting from everybody else, so I bought it.

"It has made a tremendous amount of difference as far as her anxiety, her depression and her sleep. She was on painkillers for many, many years, and she doesn't do any kind of painkillers anymore.

"Then I found it was a franchise and then I thought, 'Everybody needs this.'"

Your CBD Store claims: "Our CBD Store products are made using only the highest quality, organically grown hemp from Colorado which has been certified by that state's Department of Agriculture. This phytocannabinoid rich (PCR) hemp has a naturally high CBD level, and an abundance of other beneficial cannabinoids (CBG, CBN, CBC), as well as flavonoids, terpenes, and essential amino acids. We use a CO2 extraction process, which eliminates the need for chemical solvents and produces a high-quality, full-spectrum CBD. For our zero-THC products, the CBD is processed again to remove all traces of THC."

Burnette said she believes her store's products definitely help her customers.

"I see it every day. Every day," she said. "I first saw it with my mother, that's the person I saw it with. It took the product that she needed; it took an organic product. Just that relief and the anxiety is not that bad, is a change. Has it cured her? No. Has it helped her? Yes."

Having an open mind is a key component in first trying CBD, said Burnette.

"That's all it is, it's that open mind, the willingness to even try it. Is it going to work for everybody? Probably not. There's no one quick fix for everybody. But do I feel like it would help a lot of people? Yes, because I've seen it. We just want to make people feel better," she said.

What exactly is CBD?
Cannabidiol, called CBD, CBD oil or hemp oil, is a chemical extracted from the flowers and buds of the hemp plant, a variety of cannabis sativa (marijuana is also a variety), has been both touted as a medical miracle and condemned as nothing more than "liquid pot."

So why Cullman?
Burnette, from Hartselle, shared, "Cullman is kind of a town like Hartselle; to me it's like it's always kind of left out. Nobody had opened one here, there wasn't even a lot of CBD at all here. The demographics were where they needed to be as far as who benefits the most out of these products. I just felt like Cullman would be a better playing field for me."

CBD and marijuana are not the same, said Burnette.

"This is the health without the high. This is the natural alternative for ailments, but without the high. This will not get you high. You cannot get addicted, you cannot overdose, you can't get high."

Your CBD Store only carries the brand SunMed, which is organic, from Florida.

According to Harvard Medical School's Harvard Health Publishing contributing editor Peter Grinspoon, M.D., CBD "is the second most prevalent of the active ingredients of cannabis (marijuana). While CBD is an essential component of medical marijuana, it is derived directly from the hemp plant, which is a cousin of the marijuana plant. While CBD is a component of marijuana (one of hundreds), by itself it does not cause a high."

What can CBD treat?
Burnette said, "When you stress your body and all this, and you get all that inflammation and that tension in your body, your body doesn't feel good, it aches. But when you give it to me, when you give it the CBD that is needed to control the inflammation in your body, you feel better. I might be saying it wrong because we have the FDA stuff and you can't say it cures and can't say it helps and can't say it prevents, and I know we can't say all that, but me as a person being in here, I literally have seen it change people's lives. Literally."

From medical studies, results have shown assuring results for CBD in treating:

- chronic pain and inflammation
- nicotine or opioid addiction, by reducing withdrawal symptoms
- psychiatric disorders like schizophrenia
- cancer, by inhibiting the growth of cancer cells
- anxiety disorders, including PTSD
- type one diabetes, by decreasing inflammation in the pancreas
- acne, by lowering the skin's production of sebum
- Alzheimer's Disease, by slowing the progress of the illness
- seizures, especially those caused by epilepsy

"There's a guy that comes in here that buys the vapes, and the first time he came in here he said, 'I just wanted to see if it works. I'm just going to try it to see if it works.' And he came back in, and now he buys them three at a time. I'm going to tell you what he told me after the first time he came in, he said, 'I used to have panic attacks driving. They would be so bad I would have to pull over.' It was from traffic and it was just the noise, come to find out he has PTSD, he was in the military. He said, 'Now, if I feel it coming, I just pull on that vape pen, it's gone and I continue to drive. It doesn't affect my life anymore,'" shared Burnette.

She shared another story: "I got another customer, her husband came in here, he was looking for something for her and then she came in, I guess he was taking too long, but she came in and she told me, 'I'm sorry, I have to sit down, I can't stand long.' And she went through this stuff about something with her bones and how her legs and stuff were, they'd turn blue.

"They bought the CBD stuff, and the second time they were in here, which you'll see my grandbaby's here 99% of the time and that's his little spot over there (a corner in the store where he plays). The next time they were in here, she didn't sit down the whole time she was in here. She danced around and she played with the baby. She was a totally different person. And she went, 'This stuff has changed my life. I couldn't stand up and cook dinner for my husband.' So, when you see that, it makes you think 'How can I not say that this is changing people's lives?'"

Said Burnette, "These are people that live in Cullman, these are stories of people that are coming right in here."
