Vinemont passes $517K 2019-2020 budget

Christy Perry
christy@cullmantribune.com

VINEMONT, Ala. – The Vinemont Town Council on Tuesday night passed its 2019-2020 budget. The $516,770.72 budget has a built-in buffer of just less than $15,000.

Mayor Radginal Dodson said the council studied past years' budgets while compiling the new one, explaining, "We've gone far back and most all of them have been increased just a little bit, somewhere between 5-10%, with (some) expectations. Everything is going to start costing more anyway, so we might as well at least include that in the budget."

He continued, "There's a buffer built into it for whatever happens so (if) it's not down, tied, true, (there's) no deviation. It's built into it where we can give and take."

The council reported the Town's cash reserve as $360,660.

The council approved a payment of $18,699 to Alabama Municipal Insurance Corporation. The » PAGE 4

Main: Laura Crandall Brown; Right center: Pre-sales of the Accelerate the Fight Alabama license plate are happening now. At least 1,000 must be pre-sold for the license plate to be produced.

Laura Crandall Brown was just 25 years old when she passed away from ovarian cancer. Now, the foundation she helped start with her father, Jim Crandall, is trying to raise awareness and funds for those battling gynecological (GYN) cancers.

A new Accelerate the Fight Alabama license plate is currently being pre-sold; the sales will support the Laura Crandall Brown Foundation, which assists women with ovarian, cervical and other GYN cancers.

Pre-sales have to reach 1,000 plates for the new plate to be produced.

Jim Crandall explained, "We are in the process of getting all our pre-sales done. It kicked off June 1. We've gotten around 250-300 sold, but we still have a long way to go to get to the 1,000."

The deadline for the pre-sales is May 31, 2020.

The foundation will receive $41.25 of the $50 from each purchase of the new license plate. The tag features the colors of three of the GYN cancers and was designed by Tiffeny Curier, a GYN cancer survivor and artist.

Crandall hopes to clarify one problem the foundation has encountered since the pre-sale began.

He said, "A lot of people say, 'My tag doesn't renew until November and I will get it then.' Well, it's not available in November and we have to get them pre-sold. Basically, you are reserving a tag and once they are available, you are notified and you get your voucher. You take the voucher to the tag office and get your new tag."

For those with specialty tags who want to help, but don't necessarily want the tag for themselves, Crandall suggests they consider sponsoring a tag for someone else.

"We will find someone who will want them," he said. "We have a good network of survivors and patients that » PAGE 8

Desperation Church moving into civic center

W.C. MANN/THE CULLMAN TRIBUNE

CULLMAN, Ala. – With the positive vote of the Cullman City Council Monday evening, the Cullman Civic Center is set to be sold and become the permanent home of Desperation Church. According to Desperation Pastor Andy Heis and Mayor Woody Jacobs, there are still loose ends to tie up, equipment to be moved and legal paperwork to be completed, but the move could begin in October, when things settle down after Oktoberfest, and the congregation should be settled in by the end of the year.

The City is selling the civic center at its appraised value of $3,125,500. The sale will help fund the construction of the City's new sports and events complex along Main Avenue Southwest, where most of the events that take place at the civic center now will be hosted. The voting precinct at the civic center will be moved to the Donald E. Green Senior Center.

The Cullman Civic Center, officially the Robert E. McGukin Civic Center, was named for the former Cullman mayor who was instrumental in creating the facility during his tenure in office. The City has offered to place a memorial marker at the civic center site and possibly at the new multi-use complex that will take the place of the civic center.

McGukin's daughter Nancy Wright attended the council meeting and addressed the body on behalf of her family, saying, "I appreciate the mayor and the city council for asking our input as such, and just sort of our idea of how this is going to work. We appreciate the fact--my brothers Jeffery, who could not be here, and Courtney, who is out of state--appreciate the » PAGE 4

Cullman commission approves purchase of new CCSO radios, enters detention agreement with Walker Co.

CULLMAN, Ala. – The Cullman County Commission on Tuesday approved the purchase of 20 individual radios with equipment for the Cullman County Sheriff's Office (CCSO). The total amount approved was $19,439. The quote from Sharp Communications includes the radios, chargers, belt clips, speaker microphones and three-year warranties.

CCSO Lt. Rebekah Cash explained, "The reason we are asking for 20 is because the ones that we have are either broken already or to the age where we can't replace them. For officer safety... we are having other issues with other working ones that are not connecting back to the repeater because the technology is out of date.

"We really just need to upgrade to make sure we are all on the same page and can talk to each other."

Kay Bell, chief at Cullman Juvenile Probation asked the commission, by request from the Cullman County Partnership for Children, Inc., to enter into a six-month agreement with Walker County to allow Walker County juveniles to be housed at the Cullman County Detention Center and to waive the $85 per day fee.

"Walker County is having some alarm issues and so they have requested to use our short-term detention facility," said Bell, who recommended the fee be waived due to ongoing work at Cullman's detention center.

The agreement, according to Bell, is essentially a safety net for Walker County, in the event that Walker County needs extra space for a juvenile offender while its facility's alarm system is being serviced.

Bell also said that Cullman County may need to in the future use Walker County's facility as the Cullman County Detention Center is still undergoing repairs from the 2018 hailstorm.

The commission approved the short-term agreement.

CCSO Lt. Rebekah Cash speaks to the Cullman County Commission Tuesday morning.

In other business, the commission:

• Authorized Chairman Kenneth Walker to sign the Alabama Department of Youth Services Agency Grant Agreement for FY 2019-20 in the amount of $248, 984 for the benefit of Cullman, Blount and Jackson Counties.

• Authorized Walker to sign the Alabama Department of Youth Services Agency Grant Agreement for FY 2019-20 in the amount of $128,888 as the fiscal agent for Lauderdale County.

• Authorized Walker to sign the Alabama Department of Youth Services Long-Term Detention Subsidy Contract for FY 2020.

• Authorized Walker to sign the North Alabama Highway Safety Grant for FY 2020.

• Renewed its annual stop-loss insurance with HCC Life Insurance Company. The projected cost will be $586.212, an increase of $243, 461. The increase is due to multiple catastrophic losses over the past year.

• Renewed its annual enrollment agreement with Blue Cross/Blue Shield of Alabama- continued current self-insured medical/dental plan- no change in pay structure.

• Approved a one-year maintenance agreement with Johnston Technologies, Inc. for battery backup for the CCSO for $5, 094.

• Approved the surplus of the courthouse's old security Rapiscan system.

• Approved proposed plat for Shady Cove Subdivision located at District 2 off County Road 51.

Commissioner Garry Marchman reappointed Dewayne Goodwin to the E-911 Board of Commissioners for a term to expire Sept.1, 2023.

The next Cullman County Commission meeting will be Tuesday, Sept. 24 at 10 a.m. preceded by a work session at 8:30 a.m. amount will be paid in three installments of $6,233 each.

An ordinance was passed to rent an electronic voting machine from Cullman County for the next election. The council also plans to move the voting precinct for the next municipal election in 2020 to the community center (formerly the Scout House) from town hall. The council will vote on the location change in October.

Dodson also asked the council to be thinking about the salary amounts for the positions of mayor and council members. The salaries for the next terms must be determined by February.

Dodson explained, "I'm gonna bow out of this and let you all handle that. I ain't got no dogs in this fight. Really, I think the mayor needs to pay some more money and I think the council needs a little increase too, but that's just my own feelings.

"You all need to figure out between now and February what needs to be changed as far as that's concerned."

Maintenance director Mike Graves had a short report but was happy about the completion of the gutters at the community center.

The council continued its discussion from previous meetings regarding rental deposits for the community center. The council said the Town continues to find tables damaged and in need of replacement. No action was taken, but the Town is considering accepting debit and credit cards.

The Vinemont Town Council meets on the second Tuesday of each month at 6 p.m. at Vinemont Town Hall.

fact that you considered doing something for our father in the future. We were a little concerned when we understood that the civic center was going to be sold, because it was his baby."

She continued, "Even though he had a lot of naysayers that felt like he was going to build the Birmingham Civic Center here in Cullman, it was not that. It has turned out to be a very good thing for the city of Cullman.

"He was very encouraged by it before he left this world, but we have been very proud of the fact that the civic center was there. He helped to move Cullman toward some new items that we could not do before, new events, and it has been used quite a lot, and we are very happy about that."

While proud of the facility her father helped create, Wright commended the City for moving forward, saying, "We are very pleased that the civic center is going to be put to another use and that this wonderful event center will just sort of move Cullman forward in the way it needs to be moved forward, in my opinion.

"I'm glad to see the council and the mayor being such visionaries to take Cullman from where we are with our civic center that is used so much, to a place that will be able to seat so many people and have so many events."

Heis also attended the meeting and addressed the council and audience after the vote.

He first addressed Wright, telling her, "We're honored to be able to move into the building that your father had such a vision for," and inviting her to attend the dedication of the facility after the congregation completes its move.

Wright responded, "We'd love to be a part of it."

Heis went on to say to the council, "The first thing I'd say is 'Thank you,' that I'm honored to have the opportunity to speak to the city council in regards to the purchase of the civic center, which has been a gigantic blessing for us. The goal of our church--it's never been a building, it will never be a building--and the goal, more than anything else for us, is serving and loving people."

Heis said Desperation's previous plan to develop a 39,000-square-foot facility along Old Hanceville Highway could have cost the congregation more than $15 million.

He said purchasing the civic center will save the church "millions of dollars with a building that was already existing, that's going to be larger than what we already have, that's going to be a better foundation. Probably, as good as that (Old Hanceville Highway) location is, it's going to be a better location, because we believe the west side is moving. So, there's lots of pros." He said that the only "con" to the property is the parking lot, though he did not go into specifics. He did say that he is praying Jacobs "helps us out with it a little bit."

Heis said Desperation Church has outgrown its current facilities, and its ability to minister to a growing congregation and community have become limited by space. He expressed confidence that the new facility will change that.

Said Heis, "For us, the purchase of the Cullman Civic Center represents an opportunity to do even more ministry, because we have the space to do it . . . It means that we'll be able to host all that we do under one roof. It means that we'll be able to add children's space; we're hoping to add a wing onto it, foyer space, and renovate the layout and look of the building. I believe that the area will benefit and be something the city of Cullman will be proud of, and what we plan to do with the civic center and this building is going to be gigantic. It's going to be incredible for that side of town, and for just the city of Cullman, period."

Jacobs proclaims Day of Caring in city of Cullman

Leanne West
Contributor

CULLMAN, Ala. – Cullman Mayor Woody Jacobs on Monday officially proclaimed Wednesday, Sept. 11, 2019 a Day of Caring in Cullman. On hand to accept the proclamation from United Way of Cullman County (UWCC) were Executive Director Becky Goff, Board Chair Ross West, Public Relations Manager Michele Dingler, Finance Chair Mark Hestla, Administrative Assistant DeAnn McDonald and Board Member Jennifer Parker.

The annual Day of Caring, sponsored by UWCC, brings our community together, promotes the value of volunteerism and helps make a lasting impact on Cullman by providing volunteer labor to local nonprofit organizations.

During a Day of Caring, volunteers from the community and from local businesses donate their time and resources to complete hands-on projects such as cleaning, landscaping, painting, carpentry, and other tasks in order to give back to these local agencies that help the community so much throughout the year.

So far, more than 150 people have volunteered.

A Day of Caring is held in conjunction with the National Day of Service and Remembrance, which was launched in 2002 in response to the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks in order to encourage Americans to volunteer in their communities on 9/11 in tribute to the individuals lost and injured in the attacks, the first responders, and the many who have served with the U.S. Armed Forces to defend freedom.

This year's event will kick off Wednesday, Sept. 11, 2019, at 7:30 a.m. at the historic Cullman Train Depot.

In the proclamation, Jacobs urged all citizens to come together and volunteer to "'Live United' and to make a difference for local agencies that quietly and tirelessly contribute to the betterment of our community throughout the year."

Jacobs proclaims Oct. 18 Pilot International Founders Day in city of Cullman

CULLMAN, Ala. – Cullman Mayor Woody Jacobs on Tuesday officially proclaimed Oct. 18, 2019 Pilot International Founders Day in Cullman. On hand to accept the proclamation were Pilot Club members Connie Byrne (Cullman Pilot Club's Founders Fund representative) and Peggy Harris (Alabama District of Pilot International's Founders Fund representative).

"I am proud to proclaim Oct. 18 as 'Pilot International Day' because the achievements and contributions of Pilot Clubs throughout the world deserves special recognition and celebration," said Jacobs. Pilot International was chartered Oct.18, 1921, in Macon, Georgia by a group of civic-minded business leaders who combined their diverse talents in the Pilot principles of "Friendship and Service" to improve the quality of life in communities throughout the world. To celebrate the club's founding and to honor the history and tradition of the organization, Oct.18 is set aside every year as "Pilot International Founders Day."

Today, Pilot International is comprised of nearly 7,000 Pilot Club members and 7,500 Anchor Club members worldwide. The organization's mission is to influence positive change in communities. They do this by getting together in friendship and giving people an outlet for service. They focus on preparing youth and young adults for service, encouraging brain safety and health, and supporting those who care for others. Pilot International also provides scholarships and grants to support research, education, and community care-giving programs and partners with Project Lifesaver and Brain Injury Association of America.

The Pilot Club of Cullman is very much involved in our community. Some local projects that the Cullman Pilot Club are involved with include:

• Pilot Light Home: This was the Cullman Pilot Club's first community service project. Developed in 1982, the Pilot Light Home provides safe shelter, food, and clothing for children in need in our community.

• Margaret Jean Jones Center: The Margaret Jean Jones Center provides daytime care and attention for adults with brain-related disorders. Local Pilots provide entertainment, books, cookouts, refreshments, story-telling, and more for the attendees. Pilots also throw a Christmas party each year for the attendees of the center.

• Field of Miracles: The Cullman City Parks, Recreation, and Sports Tourism Department's Field of Miracles is a multi-use sports complex featuring the Miracle League Field, a rubberized field surface that can accommodate athletes of all capacities. Pilots provide support and encouragement for Field of Miracles participants as well as scholarship money for those who may not be able to participate in the Miracle League Baseball program.

• Alabama's Special Camp for Children and Adults: This is a place where campers with disabilities can participate in horseback riding, swimming, canoeing, fishing, arts and crafts, water sliding, water tubing, and other camping activities in a safe environment. Cullman Pilots, along with other Pilot Clubs throughout Alabama, raise money to support building and maintaining this nationally recognized therapeutic recreation facility.

• Alzheimer's Support Group: Sponsored by Cullman Regional Medical Center, this support group is for caregivers of family or friends with Alzheimer's. Cullman Pilots provide refreshments and a program for this group, as well as friendship and conversation.

• Pilot International: The Pilot Club of Cullman contributes funds to support the overall focus of Pilot International: Brain safety, brain research, and assistance to those living with brain-related disorders, injuries, or disabilities.

"Y'all do a lot in the community," said Jacobs to Pilot Club members Peggy Harris and Connie Byrne.

"The Pilot Club is a great organization with great members who really care about helping folks in their communities, and we thank you for all you do."

Harris and Byrne are also representatives of the Pilot International Founders Fund, a program that assists local Pilot Clubs in their efforts to serve and meet the needs of others. The program has an extensive grant program and also provides scholarships to support graduate and undergraduate students working in fields related to Pilot International's main areas of service focus.

In the "Pilot International Founders Day" proclamation, Jacobs encouraged citizens to learn more about Pilot International and about our local Pilot Club of Cullman.

9/11: Inside Air Force One

This new two-hour documentary takes viewers aboard Air Force One — as well as into cockpits, command centers and underground bunkers across the United States — to recapture the chaotic activity on one of the most terrifying days in American history. The film includes interviews with former President George W. Bush and Vice President Dick Cheney, as well as ex-chief of staff Andy Card and the pilot of Air Force One. What emerges is an account of that day as viewed by American leaders and members who were in the chain of command.

In the Shadow of the Towers: Stuyvesant High on 9/11

When New York's World Trade Center was attacked in the terrorist attacks of Sept. 11, 2001, the teenage students at nearby Stuyvesant High School found themselves being evacuated from their classrooms and faced with a harrowing journey home that led through a danger zone choked by debris. Through a series of intimate interviews with those now-adult survivors, many of them from immigrant families, filmmaker Amy Schatz reveals what it felt like to be a young person near Ground Zero on that fateful day.

9/11: Control the Skies

Dozens of films and documentaries have recalled the 9/11 terror attacks, but this new one-hour special examines an element of that tragic day that has received relatively scant attention. On the morning of Sept. 11, 2001, after the four terrorist attacks had happened, there were 500 planes in the air over the North Atlantic. Chillingly, no one knew whether any of those other planes had been hijacked by terrorists who were about to commit further acts of destruction, so official efforts began to — as the title suggests — control the skies.

THE CULLMAN TRIBUNE

PREP FOOTBALL

Holly Pond, Hanceville preparing to renew county rivalry; Bearcats, Eagles, Tigers facing region foes

Nick Griffin
nick@cullmantribune.com

With three weeks of high school football in the books, we're starting to get into the thick of region play and seeing potential playoff teams take shape while others are in danger of falling out of postseason contention in the coming weeks. The Cullman Bearcats will travel to Columbia after collecting their first win of the season over Decatur, Meek will head to Hubbertville after a tough loss to South Lamar, Vinemont will host Midfield after being shut out at Westbrook Christian and Holly Pond will host Hanceville to renew that county rivalry.

(2-1) Hanceville (3A Region 5) at (0-3) Holly Pond (3A Region 5)
The Bulldogs are coming off a big win at J.B. Pennington last week in which Hanceville's defense kept the Tigers off the scoreboard and the offense found the end zone several times to collect an impressive 28-0 win on the road.

Pennington handled the Bulldogs 71-8 just a season ago so this most recent Hanceville victory could create some real momentum going forward. Holly Pond on the other hand, is coming off another tough loss on the road in which the Broncos fell behind Midfield 30-0 in the second quarter and despite moving the ball in the second half, could not overcome the early Patriots lead.

Hanceville hasn't defeated Holly Pond since 2015 when the Bulldogs edged the Broncos in a 60-50 shootout. Holly Pond has controlled the rivalry since then, but this Friday will be as good a chance as any for Hanceville to turn that around.

The Broncos offense has had issues with turnovers early this season and this Bulldogs defense is playing with more confidence after last week's performance in Blountsville.

Hanceville leads the all-time series 22-14 but it'll have a chance to widen the gap Friday if the Bulldogs successfully contain Holly Pond's run game and continue to put points on the board.

(1-2) Cullman (6A Region 7) at (0-3) Columbia (6A Region 7)
The Bearcats dropped a pair of tight games at Jasper and Mortimer Jordan to start the season 0-2 but hit their stride in the second half of their game against Decatur. After falling behind 17-0 in the second quarter, Cullman ran off 41 unanswered points behind a resurgent offensive line and a smothering performance from the defense.

The 'Cats racked up 375 yards on the ground alone, led by Jayden Sullins with 190 yards on 31 carries and Jaylen Hughey with 130 yards on just 12 carries. Quarterback Max Dueland ran in five touchdowns for Cullman in the win and the Bearcats will be trying to replicate last week's second half performance going forward this season.

The 'Cats will be facing another region foe when they travel to Columbia Thursday night to face an Eagles team that has had a rough start to the 2019 season. Columbia has lost its first three games by a combined score of 172-0 so Cullman will certainly be the favorite heading into this one. Thursday's game will be another good opportunity for the Bearcats running attack to show out and if the defense continues to play well, Cullman shouldn't have too much trouble moving to 2-0 in the region.

(0-3) Meek (1A Region 6) at (1-1) Hubbertville (1A Region 6)
The Tigers will be trying to shake off a 62-0 loss to South Lamar last week in which they fell behind 48-0 at the halftime break and could never find the end zone against the Stallions.

Now, Meek will travel to Hubbertville Friday for another region showdown. The Lions are coming off a 28-6 loss at Berry, making both the Tigers and Hubbertville 0-1 in the region.

With both teams behind in the region win column, this week's matchup will be critical if they want to remain in playoff contention this season.

The Lions have scored just 20 points this season, but Meek's offense has gotten off to a slow start as well. It'll be the team that finds a way to break through offensively and put pressure on the opposing defense that likely walks away with the region win in Hubbertville.

(1-1) Vinemont (3A Region 5) vs. Midfield (3A Region 5)
After knocking off Falkville 32-21 to kick off the season, the Eagles fell to Westbrook Christian on the road to fall to 1-1 but have a chance to get back in the win column this week and start region play on the right foot.

Midfield is coming off a win over Holly Pond that gives the Patriots an early lead in the region and a win at Vinemont would cement that fast start.

Eagles running back Dallin Dinkle didn't have quite as much success on the ground in week two as he did in the season opener but he's still off to one of the best starts of any tailback in the county. It'll be critical for Vinemont to find its rhythm on offense again after being shut out last week, but a good start defensively may be even more important. The Patriots jumped out to a 30-0 lead against Holly Pond last week and despite bending in the second half defensively, their early lead was enough to outlast the Broncos.

If Vinemont can bounce back offensively and prevent a fast start from the Midfield offense, the Eagles will have a chance to start region play 1-0 on their home field.

we can reach out to who would want a tag."

The $50 fee is added to your tag fee each year. That is a contribution of $4.17 per month or 14 cents a day to support the Laura Crandall Brown Foundation.

Crandall said, "The impact it will make is so much more. All these funds will be used for patient support. It has to be used toward the purpose of your mission. We do a lot of support of patients going through treatment."

The foundation helps women statewide with transportation and other financial hardships.

About Laura Crandall Brown
Laura Crandall Brown graduated from John Carroll High School. She attended the University of Alabama at Birmingham for two years before transferring to Auburn University, from which she earned a degree in hotel and restaurant management. Two years after graduation, she was working in Auburn at the Nixon Conference Center and living in Opelika.

She was an artist and loved to paint. Her artwork and prints are currently displayed at a church in Birmingham and available for purchase.

She loved writing, music and reading. Her father said she was never seen without a book in her hand or nearby. She loved Auburn and attending Auburn football games

Brown was just 24 years old when she was diagnosed with ovarian cancer in early September 2008. She had been having some pain and thought she had some type of virus when she decided to see a doctor. The urgent care doctor did an ultrasound and sent her to the emergency room.

Said her father, "The gynecologist came in and he just said, 'You've got a large cyst on your ovary and we're going to take that out tomorrow and you'll be fine.' Two days later, she had surgery and (when) he walks in, he has a picture of it and he says, 'Oh, it's just a benign cyst. We'll send it off like we always do and you'll be up and going in no time.'"

A few days later, when the tests came back, Brown learned that things were not normal and she had a very aggressive type of ovarian cancer.

Crandall said, "I understand when a young person has something that, most of the time, it's not going to be cancer. It usually hits women in later years, but that doesn't mean it doesn't happen.

"There was a little girl in Birmingham that was diagnosed right after my daughter and she was 6. She is 16 now and what she had to go through was incredible, the treatment she had to endure."

He added, "It happens, and we can't stress enough to women to pay attention, and if doctors are not listening to you, I mean, who knows better than you if something's not right. Go find somebody else and keep knocking on doors until they do listen."

Brown was engaged to be married when she received the diagnosis. She went through surgery and got married in November before starting chemotherapy.

Crandall said, "The doctors were not hopeful. The tumor type was extremely rare so she started in November and by February the cancer had spread quite a bit.

"The chemo was not working. We went to MD Anderson (in Houston, Texas) to see what they could offer. We went through some clinical trials that seemed to be working and hold promise. Like anything, some of those drugs are just too toxic and she couldn't continue taking them."

Brown passed away Dec. 14, 2009.

"She had been married just a little over a year," said her dad. "A couple of months prior to her passing away, we talked about starting a foundation. Everything we heard was there is no screening test for ovarian cancer."

Together, Brown and her father hoped to raise money for treatment and research into early detection. She was excited about their work prior to her passing.

The foundation received its nonprofit paperwork and officially formed in January 2010. Over the last 10 years, it has funded research totaling close to $500,000 for eight different organizations.

Crandall added, "We have funded direct support to women in treatment at about $175,000 and we have a support group for women. We meet with these women monthly and they offer emotional support and spiritual support."

The foundation also has a women's mentoring program. It holds numerous events to help raise awareness of GYN cancers.

"We feel like having this car tag will give us some sound financial footing, at least for the support side of things.

"We have seen how any cancer diagnosis can financially devastate a family- 100% of the car tag money will go out for women and their families in treatment."

To pre-order the specialty car tag, go to www.thinkoflaura.org/cartag. To request assistance from the foundation, patients should speak to the social worker at the facility where they are being treated.
