Fire Danger Advisory issued for Alabama

Alabama Forestry Commission

The Alabama Forestry Commission (AFC) has issued a Fire Danger Advisory for all 67 Alabama counties effective immediately until rainfall is received. Current drought conditions and persistent high temperatures have combined to create a high probability of fuel ignition and an atmosphere favorable for wildfires. In the last 30 days, AFC wildland firefighters have battled 192 wildfires burning approximately 2,221 acres of land across the state. This number includes three fires » PAGE 2

'I just want everyone to know that I love our police officers'

Vincent Furniture storefront lights changed to blue in honor of police

CULLMAN, Ala. – If you drive by the storefront of Vincent Furniture in Cullman, you will notice a change in color. The lights were changed to the color of blue in honor of police and first responders. Store owner Betty Jo Vincent shared the reason behind the change. "I just want everyone to know that I support our police officers. I'm proud they're out there taking care of us every day. I just think every once in a while, they need to know they're appreciated too." She continued, "I don't have any hopes in doing anything as far as doing anything, I just want everybody to know that I do appreciate what they're out there doing and I think it would be wonderful if everybody let them know they're appreciated. That's my only motive, is just for them to know that they're appreciated around here."

Aside from showing appreciation, Vincent shared with a smile what inspired her to change her storefront lights. "What inspired me? I don't know, it just happened one day! All of sudden, I knew I wanted to do it.

"I know we've done it once before and it's just one of those things that when you want to do it, you want to do it. That was my only motive, that was my only reason. I just want them to know I appreciate them."

Vincent wants to say to police officers and first responders, "I think the blue lights say it all, that I'm thankful they're out there, I'm thankful the first responders are there, I'm thankful the police responders are there, I'm thankful they're all out there joining forces to keep our town safe and a good place to live.

"In my heart, I feel like that's what my situation is, I just want them to know that I am thankful and that they're all important to us. Without them, we couldn't do anything, we wouldn't be worth anything.

"I'd hate to know that I lived in a town that didn't have police officers and rapid responders and I'm thankful that they're out there. I just want everyone to know that I love our police officers.

"They're not mean, I think they've earned their badges and I think that everyone should appreciate them."

Vincent lastly added a quote that touched her, "When a police officer is killed, it's not an agency that loses an officer, it's an entire nation."

Hanceville and Vinemont gearing up for regional showdown, Aggies, Raiders, Warriors hitting the road

Nick Griffin
nick@cullmantribune.com

(2-2) Vinemont (3A Region 5) vs. (1-2) Hanceville (3A Region 5)
Both the Eagles and Bulldogs are coming off tough losses from Friday night but with a county rival and region foe on the schedule this week, they have a great chance to bounce back and regain some momentum.

Despite falling behind early against Midfield in its last game, Vinemont finished the game strong and hopes to carry that second half momentum into this week's matchup. After shutting out JB Pennington on the road two weeks ago, Hanceville made its way to Holly Pond last week where the Broncos managed to topple the Bulldogs 36-20. The losses moved the Eagles to 1-2 in the region and Hanceville to 1-1 so this week is critical for both teams if they have postseason aspirations.

Running back Dallin Dinkle has been the go-to guy for the Vinemont offense through the first few games and he'll be facing a Bulldogs defense that gave up some big yardage to Holly Pond on the ground a week ago. However, Hanceville has been able to move the football more consistently this season and if the defense can play another great game this week, it'll be tough for either side to create separation in this one.

(2-2) West Point (5A Region 7) at (3-0) Russellville (5A Region 7)
The Warriors put on a show for their home crowd last week when Lawrence County came to town, racking up 42 points in a convincing region victory. The win makes West Point 1-1 in the region with a lot of critical games left to come, starting this week on the road against Russellville.

The Golden Tigers are 3-0 on the season and have won their last two game over Corner and Hayden by a combined 62 points. Russellville is one of just three undefeated team remaining in the region, but the Warriors would like to change that Friday night. West Point fell in last year's matchup 53-20 so it'll be up to the defense to hold its ground and compete when the Warriors hit the road later this week.

(4-0) Good Hope (4A Region 5) at (1-3) Oak Grove (4A Region 5)
The Good Hope Raiders are the only undefeated team left in Cullman County and they plan on extending that win streak when they travel to Oak Grove Friday night. Good Hope is coming off a 42-27 win at Tanner last week in which the Raiders had a little trouble early but pulled away from the Rattlers as the game went on.

Oak Grove lost its first two games of the season to Walter Wellborn and Corner by a combined score of 84-7 but lost a tight matchup with Haleyville 7-0 and collected its first win of the season at Curry last week 48-20. The Tigers clearly found something against the Yellow Jackets offensively, but they'll be facing a stout Good Hope defensive unit this week.

The Raiders are holding opponents to just under 20 points per game right now and after stomping Oak Grove 50-0 a season ago, this Good Hope roster is full of players that will be excited to try and repeat that performance this week.

(3-1) Fairview (4A Region 7) at Priceville (4A Region 7)
Ever since falling to West Point at home in this year's Brandin' Iron Bowl, the Aggies have won three straight and they've done it with some big-time numbers offensively. Fairview has averaged just over 42 points per game since that season-opening loss including a 62-point burst at D.A.R. two weeks ago.

The Priceville Bulldogs started the season 0-1 after falling at Good Hope but have won back to back games to get to 2-1. They've scored 43 and 42 points in their last two outings, so things appear to be clicking into place for the Bulldogs offensively. The Aggies blasted Priceville 35-0 last year and with the offense firing on all cylinders, they'll be aiming for a repeat performance on the road this year.

First responders learn to effectively communicate with dementia sufferers in difficult circumstances

Jerry Jacob
Contributor

CULLMAN, Ala. – Jay Jones, President of Grace Place Board of Directors, presented the Cullman County Association of Volunteer Fire Departments with ways to effectively communicate with dementia sufferers in difficult circumstances at their September 12 meeting.

Jones covered the five most prevalent types of dementia and how people with them may act or react in crisis situations. He then showed the attendees methods to calm and comfort those suffering from the various diseases and how to try to get as much needed information as possible.

Volunteer fire department members, as first responders, may encounter people with dementia in traffic accidents, fires, storm damage, medical emergencies and numerous other instances. Because of the effects of the different diseases, it is vital for the responders to determine as much of their condition as they can.

Jeff Byars, the association's EMS Officer, was very pleased with the information Jones shared. He said he would be recommend having this presentation for next year's state-wide convention.

Governor Ivey issues statement following death of Tuscaloosa Police Officer Dornell Cousette

Office of Governor Kay Ivey

MONTGOMERY, Ala. – Governor Kay Ivey on Tuesday issued the following statement regarding the incident in Tuscaloosa Monday evening, which fatally wounded Dornell Cousette, a 13-year veteran of the Tuscaloosa Police Department.

"Monday evening, I was devastated to learn of the news that Alabama lost our fourth law enforcement officer to a senseless act of violence this year. Two beautiful children lost their father. A soon-to-be bride lost her fiancé. The Tuscaloosa community lost a protector and 13-year veteran to the force. Truly, Alabama has lost one of her heroes, Dornell Cousette.

"We cannot take for granted the tremendous sacrifices our men and women in law enforcement make each and every day in order to keep us safe. Because of Officer Cousette's brave call to action, the felon he pursued now remains in custody. Officer Cousette laid down his life in service to the people of Tuscaloosa.

"Our deepest prayers remain with Officer Cousette's two children, his fiancé, the Tuscaloosa Police Department, the city of Tuscaloosa and all of our brave men and women who put their lives on the line to ensure the protection of our communities. The ultimate sacrifice of Officer Dornell Cousette will never be forgotten."

The governor has issued a statewide directive to fly flags at half-staff on the day of interment to honor this fallen hero.

Governor awards grants to assist immigrant victims of domestic violence, abuse

Office of Governor Kay Ivey

MONTGOMERY, Ala. – Gov. Kay Ivey has awarded $1.1 million in grants to support a nonprofit agency that provides aid tailored specifically for victims of domestic violence from other countries who now live in Alabama.

The grant funds will help AshaKiran Inc. provide training to help domestic violence shelter programs and first responders across the state provide services in a culturally sensitive manner. The agency also makes translators available to ensure that a language barrier doesn't separate a victim from needed assistance and resources. Additionally, AshaKiran provides emergency shelter and operates a 24-hour crisis line for victims.

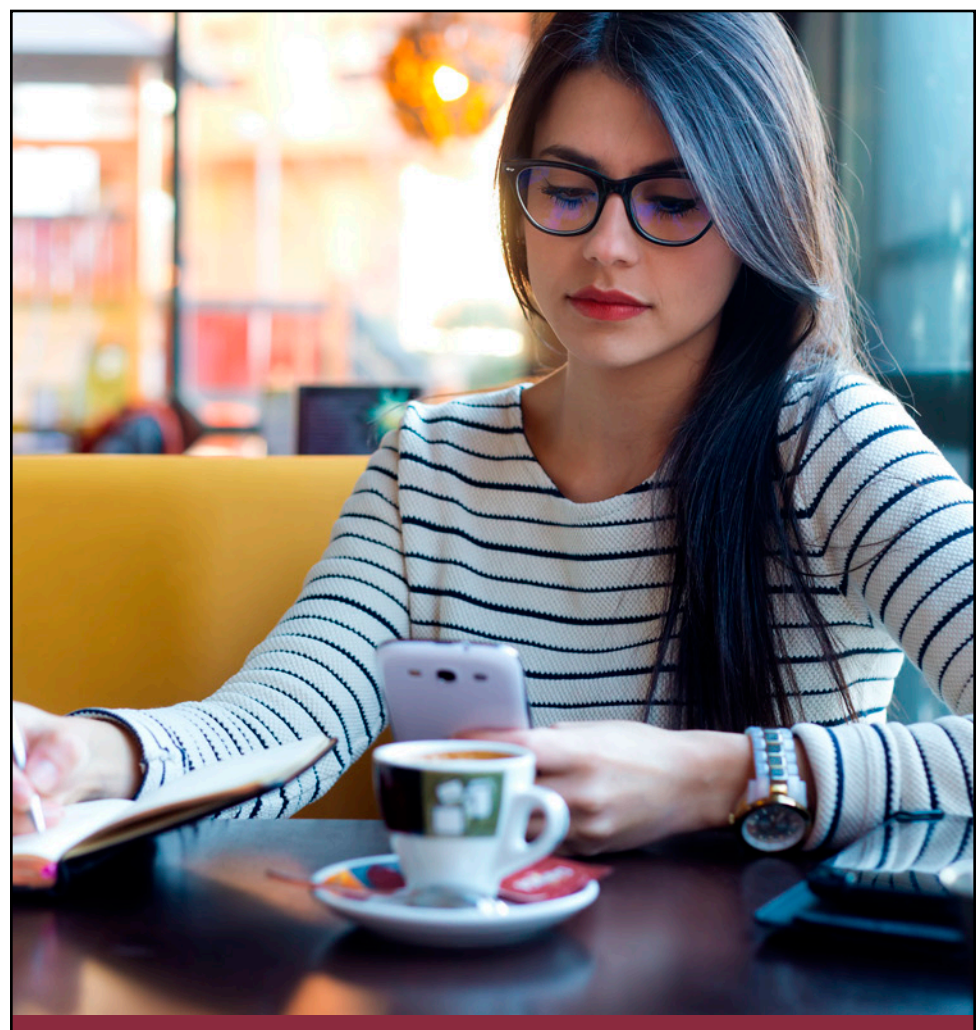

"Victims of violence in our state deserve caring and professional assistance, regardless of their background," Gov. Ivey said. "I commend AshaKiran for its efforts to support our first responders and assistance programs through cultural education and outreach."

Volunteers formed the organization in 2006 to offer culturally specific social services and support to South Asian ethnic minorities who, according to organization officials, tend not to utilize social services due to cultural and language barriers. AshaKiran has since expanded services to assist victims with origins in China, Africa, the Middle East, South America and Europe.

The Alabama Department of Economic and Community Affairs is administering the grant from funds made available by the U.S. Justice Department. ADECA administers an array of programs supporting law enforcement and traffic safety, economic development, energy conservation, water resource management and recreation development.

"ADECA supports Gov. Ivey's commitment to the work being done by organizations like AshaKiran that provide important resources for those who have suffered abuse and those who are first to help them," ADECA Director Kenneth Boswell said. "Providing up-to-date, culturally-specific education to service providers can eliminate barriers and provide victims with the help they need."

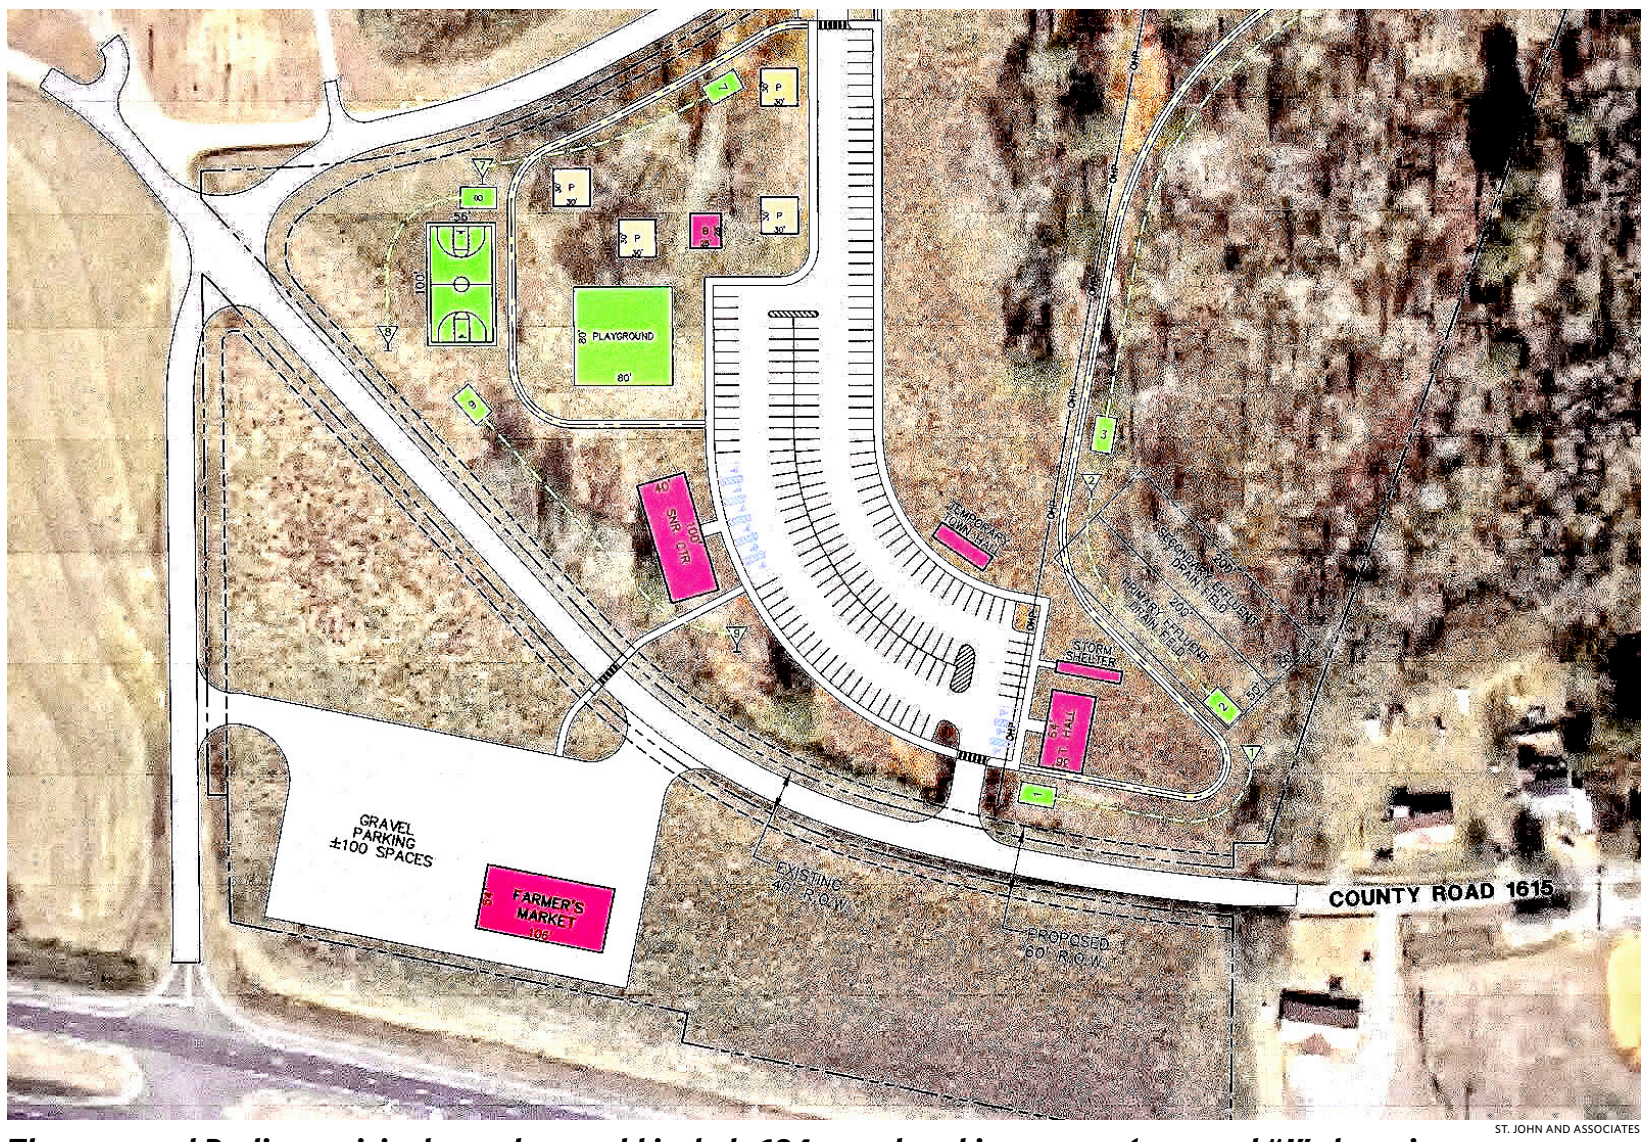

Gov. Ivey notified Michael Conrad, chair of the organization's board, that the grants has been approved. Matching funds of $60,377 will supplement the grants.

Berlin Town Council passes 2020 budget, talks new municipal complex

ST. JOHN AND ASSOCIATES

The proposed Berlin municipal complex would include 184 paved parking spaces (reversed "J" shape in center); playground, basketball court, pavilions and 100-seat senior center west (left) of parking lot; farmer's market and 100 gravel parking spaces (lower left); town hall and storm shelter at lower end of paved parking lot; temporary town hall location in bend of parking lot. Berlin Community Center at lower right.

BERLIN, Ala. – The Berlin Town Council approved the town's 2020 fiscal year budget at Monday evening's meeting. According to Mayor Patrick Bates, all revenue estimates represent an amount at least 10% below 2019's budget, while expenses may be estimated slightly higher. These intentional under-and over-estimations were "just to be safe," according to Bates. The budget includes estimated revenues of $195,500 plus a carryover of $62,521.74 from 2019 for a conservative total of $258,021.74. That amount will fund an estimated $256,000 in expenses, including $60,000 in road paving and $10,000 in road patching, along with $48,000 for bond payments and $30,000 for the purchase and setup of a temporary portable town hall building that should leave the town an anticipated $2,021.74 surplus on Sept. 30, 2020.

The council also discussed preliminary plans presented by St. John and Associates for a municipal complex to be located on adjacent land west and northwest of the current Berlin Community Center, that will include:

- paved parking for 184 cars
- farmers' market fronting on Highway 278 with another 100 gravel parking spaces
- 100-seat community storm shelter
- playground, basketball court and covered pavilions
- senior center to accommodate up to 100 people
- temporary and permanent town hall building sites

The council took no action on the plan but did allot up to $1,000 for site testing to prepare for the temporary town hall, which Bates hopes to have in place before the census on April 1, 2020. The Berlin Town Council meets on the third Monday of each month at 7 p.m. in the Berlin Community Center. The public is invited to attend.

West Point passes $312,000 budget for FY 2020

The Town of West Point passed its budget for the FY2020 at Monday night's council meeting.

WEST POINT, Ala. – The Town of West Point passed its budget for the FY2020 Monday night. The $312,004 budget is very similar to last year's budget according to Mayor Gerald Schafer.

Schafer said, "The town of West point is debt free. We are working on building up our reserves after completing the deceleration lane project last year."

The town expects an income in the next year of $372, 612 giving the town a net income of $60,607.

The West Point Senior Center will soon be getting an upgrade.

The council agreed to begin looking into purchasing new tables and chairs for the center.

In addition, they plan on replacing the outdated countertops and repainting the bathrooms.

The council were all in agreement that round tables would be a better choice for the center and approved $4,000 toward the improvement projects.

After hearing several presentations over the past few months from website developers, the council voted to hire "A man with a Mac" (Larry W. Riley) to begin building a website for West Point.

Council member Ashlee Phillips was impressed with the other websites Riley was responsible for creating.

She said, "I looked at the list and looking at them, the one I liked most was North Shelby Fire and the layout."

Mayor Gerald Schafer reported that the town's sewer system is running at 75% capacity and wanted the town to begin proactive measures toward a future upgrade.

An upgrade would give the system an additional 20% in capacity.

Schafer would like to go ahead with the paperwork required for a permit to upgrade the system.

He said, "There's no telling how long that can take."

The council took no action on the sewer system.

They agreed to discuss the upgrade more after Schafer had an opportunity to discuss the situation further with Living Water Services.

Garden City town votes on payroll projections, changes water rates

The Garden City town council as seen at its regularly scheduled meeting Sept. 16, 2019

GARDEN CITY, Ala. – The Garden City town council had a light agenda but voted on several important items at its September meeting Monday night. Mayor Tim Eskew brought it to the council's attention that the town received a letter from the Blount County Water Authority saying that the cost of operation is going up for the water authority. The current rate is the minimum of $21 per 2,000 gallons. The council then voted to increase the water rates all "across the board" by a dollar.

Eskew said "I think a dollar across the board on all of them (rates) will cover it."

Because of this vote, the council will have to amend the water rates for the FY 2020 budget.

Maintenance Manager Eric Allred also noted for the council that water meters should be replaced soon around the town, and that it's recommended to go with the same brand and type of meter for easy readings when readings need to be performed.

The council took no action on the replacement of water meters.

The Council then discussed payroll projections for the FY 2020 budget.

The Council voted to go into executive session to discuss "character" factors on the matter. After the council returned from executive session, Eskew asked, "On the raise, what is the wish of the council?" In response the council then voted for the payroll projection to be 3% for all town employees.

With nothing else on the agenda, the council adjourned. The Garden City town council meets on the third Monday of every month at 6 p.m.

Meanwhile, Keri (Bethany Joy Lenz) makes a decision about her future.

CULLMAN, Ala. – On Friday morning, precision machining students at the Cullman Area Technology Academy (CATA) were treated to a rare surprise and unique learning opportunity as Joe Hayden, a world record holding machinist and lappist who has been referred to as the "Rembrandt of precision machining," came by for a visit.

What in the world is a lappist?

A lappist performs lapping, a type of precision machining that can involve work so fine that it has to be done by hand, shaping and finishing a surface at a microscopic level far beyond what any common belt sander, bench grinder or even standard CNC machine can accomplish.

For a quartz sphere he lapped for a satellite's gyroscopic guidance system, Hayden holds a Guinness record for the world's most perfectly round object, and pieces of his work can be found in items orbiting the earth and even sitting on the moon (Hayden polished the mirrors placed there by Apollo 11, which still today routinely get lasers shot at them to measure distances between the earth and moon).

Making a day of it

Hayden and his daughter Mary Hayden Hovater, a NASA physicist/engineer, had planned to visit with machining students for one hour during the first instructional block, but they were well-received and accepted invitations and requests that would keep them at CATA for the rest of the day, meeting class after class and enjoying lunch and conversation with students and faculty members from across the spectrum of CATA's programs.

Hayden brought a selection of his own custom-made tools, most of his own design, and talked to students about how those tools and others were used to produce some of the satellite and missile guidance components he had brought with him for "show and tell."

Students got to handle tools, components and even a quartz sphere of the type that won Hayden his world record.

Machining instructors Tim White and Jack Capps took the opportunity to become learners again for a little while, sitting at the table and absorbing all the tidbits of knowledge they could draw from master machinist Hayden, right along with their students.

Between classes, the three engaged in excited exchanges with Hayden explaining his work in more technical detail and the CATA teachers showing him around their shop and displaying various projects of their own.

As the day went on and excitement about the visit just seemed to grow, word got out and Hayden and Hovater were joined by Roy Manley, owner of Mach III, Inc., a Vinemont-based precision machine shop that employs CATA graduates, along with a former machining student now employed by the company.

During a break, White told The Tribune, "It means a lot to us for the guys to be able to see and listen to somebody like this talk, with this kind of experience.

"And it meant a lot to me, too. I mean, I've been around machinists all my life--well, for the last 42 years--and I've never seen anybody with stories like that to tell, and that kind of experience."

Hovater, after touring the machine shop with Capps, told The Tribune, "This is the heart and soul of everything else that's done, right?

"You need folks that are going to work the blue-collar jobs and that love it like these folks do.

"You can tell in their eyes, they really love this stuff, and I do, too. And we need that.

"And NASA needs folks that's going to build things, that knows how. Everybody wants to be an engineer, you know, 'Let's be an engineer,' which is fine. You know, I've got a master's degree in physics, so I get it. But Daddy also told me, 'If you're going to be a good engineer, you need to be a good machinist; if you're going to be a good machinist, you better be a good draftsman. So, you've got to start at the basics and work your way up, so you've got to know those things.

"So, this level of workmanship is going to hit anything technical that's going up. I don't care if it's a building or a rocket ship or a road. You know, you need to have some of these basic skills."

The Tribune posed a couple of questions to Hayden:

What is the first piece of advice you would give to a student considering precision machining?

"I'd make sure that he was dedicated and could stand standing by a machine all day long; some people can't stand being inside. They like to get out. They have to love what they're doing. If they don't, they're going to be miserable. And they need to learn all they can learn.

"You never stop learning. I still learn things pretty often. It's an ongoing progress.

"People have got to learn to learn. I mean, you can't go by just a set rule on one thing. There are rules you have to follow, but you've got to use common sense in a lot of things."

You've raised machining from skilled labor to an art form. How do you cross the line from skill to artistry?

"Some people are satisfied just to sit and do one thing all day long. And all they want to do is put in their time, draw their pay, go home, watch TV. Other people want to go a step further; they wonder, 'What would happen if I did this? What would happen if I did this?' They're not satisfied with the status quo; they're always looking for something a little bit more.

"Do it a little bit better. If they've got a tolerance of a thousandth, they'll try to make it half that. It's just a difference in people."
