Alabama Extension offers drought resources

Katie Nichols
Contributor

AUBURN, Ala. – Conditions in Alabama are hot and dry. Strings of days with record-breaking heat have made September 2019 one of the hottest Septembers on record. The heat and drought are nothing new, though.

While only .2% of the state is in extreme drought according to the U.S. Drought Monitor's latest release, nearly 83% of the state is experiencing droughty conditions.

Producers in the Wiregrass area have now had moderate and severe drought for eight weeks. A portion of Shelby County is experiencing extreme drought, after dealing with little to no rain for an extended period. Current forecasts indicate a statewide cooldown is on the way; however, there does not look to be any significant chance of rain in the forecast.

Drought Resources Available

Dry weather creates a diverse set of problems for farmers and producers. To help them make the best decisions possible, Alabama Extension has launched a new website focusing on drought related issues. Resources including livestock management, lawn and garden management, pond management and income management are available at www.alabamadrought.com. The website is adding new content daily as Alabama Extension professionals develop information to help homeowners and producers cope with the effects of drought on business and home life.

For additional information, or questions not addressed on the website, contact your local Extension office. The office can direct you to the appropriate person to address your needs.

Report Drought Conditions

The USDA, in partnership with the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration and the University of Nebraska in Lincoln has updated the U.S. Drought Monitor to include a reporting feature.

Citizen scientist reports can help U.S. professionals understand the effects of drought on specific areas. The reported information can assist in triggering drought response through USDA disaster relief and IRS tax provisions. These reports will also help state agencies make decisions regarding health and safety-related issues.

ALABAMA COOPERATIVE EXTENSION SYSTEM

The data collection opportunity will allow farmers and homeowners to report conditions in their area. Access the reporting tool for to record the effects of the drought at the following link: http://droughtreporter.unl.edu/submitreport/

Alabama Extension professionals are also compiling reports for U.S. Drought Monitor officials. Alabama producers can email Kim Mullenix, Kent Stanford or Leanne Dillard with the following information.

- Rainfall totals by week or month from a particular location.
- Evidence of hay feeding.
- Cost of feeding hay per head/day or farm totals.
- Reports of alternative water sources being utilized.
- Number of days since measurable rainfall.
- Delayed planting of winter annual forages due to drought.

Swim for MS going strong in 2nd year

Bo Shirey
Contributor

CULLMAN, Ala. – My mom, Judy Shirey, was diagnosed with Multiple Sclerosis (MS) over 20 years ago and I wanted to do a fundraiser in honor of her. Dr. Chris Lagank has always said you need to exercise on a regular basis if you have MS. I have participated in the Walk for MS for several years and I had an idea to do a Swim for MS at the Cullman Wellness and Aquatic Center (CWAC). I have been swimming at CWAC since it opened and we have some great swimmers that swim there on a daily basis.

So, in November 2017 I asked several of them about doing a Swim for MS and they were all on board. We did our first Swim for MS in January 2018 and this year we did it in September because we would have access to swim in the outdoor pool as well. In 2018 we raised almost $4000 and we met our goal of swimming 500 miles in 31 days in January.

This year our goal is $5000 and swim over 500 miles in 30 days.

Our swimmers were:
Alan Weatherly, Arnold Caylor, Betty Payne, Bo Shirey, Bob Moeller, Clark Farley, Fran Edmondson, Frank Preston, Glenn Pilcher, Gordon Blanton, Jeff Taylor, Jerry Welch, Kathy Lee, Michael Thomas, Mike Hall, Robin Hall, Robyn Crawford, Ruth Anne Knight, Fabian Holland, Victor Crawford, Betty Klocek, Bill Schgier, Claire Pilcher, Frank Odell, Philip Murray, Stephanie Johnson, Gay White, Sandy Blake, Wescoat Free and Michael Sullins.

After each swim the swimmer would record their laps in a notebook. I would tally them each week and send out a notice on our pace. The swimmers really enjoyed seeing the results each week and it kept them motivated to keep on swimming and some case increase their normal amounts.

One lap in the pool at the CWAC is 50 yards. It takes 36 laps to swim a mile. Our team swam over 550 miles, 968,000 yards, which is 19,360 laps.

So far, we have raised just over $4000. We need another $1000 to reach our goal. If you want to donate please contact Bo Shirey at bamaboshirey@gmail.com or go to: https://secure.nationalmssociety.org/site/TR?fr_id=30728&pg=team&team_id=597459&fbclid=IwAR021--83E1uKgD9AQ-fyFG05is4dPlvlfl2djiMglbR9O17jVkO9oGW0nIU#/.XYj2mlVeIe4.twitter

Broncos, Bearcats, Tigers, Eagles preparing to travel for region matchups

Nick Griffin
nick@cullmantribune.com

Vinemont, Holly Pond, Meek and Cullman will all travel for region games this week and as we move into the latter portion of the regular season, each week becomes more and more significant for teams across the state. Regional standings are starting to take shape and the playoff contenders are creating separation from the rest of the pack.

(2-3) Vinemont (3A Region 5) at (4-1) Fultondale (3A Region 5)
The Eagles dropped a physical matchup at home against the Addison Bulldogs last week but the loss wont effect Vinemont's current playoff standing as it prepares to travel to Fultondale this Friday. The Wildcats are currently on top of the region 5 standings with a 3-0 record and at 1-1, the Eagles could gain a lot of ground in the region with a win this week.

Since the season opening loss to Maplesville, Fultondale has won four straight and is holding its opponents to just 12 points per game. The Wildcats defense will certainly be a challenge for a Vinemont offense currently scoring just under 19 points per game and things appear to be headed for another physical matchup in which points will be at a premium.

(1-5) Holly Pond (3A Region 5) at (3-3) Locust Fork (3A Region 5)
The Broncos came out on the losing end of a shootout in Danville last week in which the Hawks outpaced Holly Pond 45-36 but with another road trip coming up Friday, the Broncos will have to bounce back and prepare for Locust Fork. The Hornets are currently 1-1 in region 5 and with Holly Pond sitting at 1-2, this week's regional showdown could be a turning point for both teams this season.

The Broncos need a win to try and stay alive in the playoff hunt and Locust Fork could climb up the standings with a win as well.

Holly Pond won last year's meeting at home 36-10 but this year's Hornets team is scoring just under 30 points per game offensively and is coming off a 35-13 win over Southeastern with the Broncos coming to town this week.

(0-6) Meek (1A Region 6) at (2-3) Brilliant (1A Region 6)
At 0-3 in region 6, the postseason seems far away for the Meek Tigers right now but this week's trip to Brilliant will be critical if they want to change that. Brilliant is currently sitting in 0-3 in the region as well so both teams are starving for wins this week and Brilliant will be looking for revenge. The Tigers won last year's matchup 36-14 but Brilliant has already matched its win total from a season ago.

Defensively, Brilliant has gone from allowing 40 points per game in 2018 to just 20 points per game now so Meek will have its hands full on the road this week.

(3-3) Cullman (6A Region 7) at (4-1) Athens (6A Region 7)
Cullman's three game win streak was snapped by undefeated Hueytown last week, but the Bearcats still control their own destiny in the playoff hunt. With a 2-0 record in the region, Cullman is in good shape right now in region 7 with a road trip to Athens coming this Friday.The running back duo of Jayden Sullins and Jaylen Hughey has been effective all season but they along with the rest of the Bearcat offense will get another test this week from the Golden Eagles.

Athens also holds a 2-0 record in region 7 and a defense that is holding opponents to just 15 points per game this season.

Cullman's running game has been explosive the last several weeks and the defense is allowing just over 16 points per game but something will have to give in Athens this week as both teams try to stay atop the region standings.

Cullman County students attend Alfa Leadership Conference

Alfa Leadership Conference helps students sharpen skills

Marlee Moore
Contributor

COLUMBIANA, Ala. – Two days of learning at the Alfa Youth Leadership Conference should help launch a lifetime of leadership success for 119 ninth and 10th graders.

Held in Columbiana at the Alabama 4-H Center Sept. 30-Oct. 1, the annual conference was sponsored by the Alabama Farmers Federation, Alabama Farmers Agriculture Foundation and county Federations.

"These students aren't the leaders of tomorrow; they're the leaders of today," said Wiley Bailey, the Federation's Area 2 Organization director who helped coordinate the conference. "It's important to energize young leaders and get them involved in agriculture at an early age so they can advocate for the industry and serve their communities."

Attendees hailed from 49 counties and worked to pinpoint potential, develop talents and discover a passion for service.

Agenda items included team-building activities at the 4-H Center's challenge course; ag advocacy training with former National FFA officer Brennan Costello; high-energy leadership development with nationally renowned speaker Kelly Barnes; a political overview with Sen. Cam Ward, R-Alabaster; and an interactive personal growth workshop with leadership consultant Nicole Pinkham.

Bailey, also a former National FFA officer, said the network students formed will last through college and into their careers. That includes students like Alana Barnes from Crenshaw County, who created connections with fellow leaders from across the state.

"I wanted to gain more leadership skills and learn how to encourage others to become leaders, too," said Barnes, a ninth-grader at Brantley High School.

During the conference, students amplified their patriotic pride during a flag-raising presentation with reenactors from the American Village in Montevallo and snacked on s'mores during a fireside cookout.

Cullman County students Jebb Bryan, Kalli Jones, Nikki Tyree and Todd Sears sharpened leadership skills during the Alfa Youth Leadership Conference at the 4-H Center in Columbiana Sept. 30-Oct 1. The annual leadership workshop is for 9th-10th graders. Bryan and Sears attend Holly Pond High School, while Jones and Tyree are students at West Point High School. They were sponsored by the Cullman County Farmers Federation. From left are the Alabama Farmers Federation's Mike Tidwell, Tyree, Jones, Bryan and Sears.

Office of Alabama Gov. Kay Ivey

MONTGOMERY, Ala. – Gov. Kay Ivey and Alabama Law Enforcement Agency (ALEA) Sec. Hal Taylor on Tuesday kicked off the countdown to a federal deadline requiring a more secure identification to fly domestically on commercial aircraft and to enter military bases and certain federal facilities.

During the press conference, Ivey urged Alabama citizens to consider obtaining a STAR ID, which stands for Secure, Trusted and Reliable Identification and is fully compliant with the federal REAL ID Act of 2005.

"One year from today, on Oct. 1, 2020, all air travelers will need a STAR ID for commercial domestic flights and to visit certain federal facilities. Those who hold a valid, unexpired U.S. passport may opt to use it for domestic air travel," Ivey said. "If there is a chance you will need one, I encourage you to obtain this more secure version of Alabama's driver license or non-driver ID card within the next few months to ensure you are prepared by the federal deadline."

STAR ID is Alabama's version of the REAL ID program, developed about nine years ago to comply with federal legislation.

In response to the terrorist attacks of Sept. 11, 2001, and the ongoing threat of terrorist activity, the legislation modified federal law pertaining to security, authentication and issuance procedure standards for driver licenses and non-driver IDs.

STAR ID was first introduced in the fall of 2011, and more than 450,000 have been issued thus far.

Taylor said it is important for everyone to consider obtaining a STAR ID within the next few months. To save time, he said, members of the public may go to the Driver License Division page on ALEA's website, www.alea.gov, to schedule an appointment at one of ALEA's Driver's License Examining Offices.

"License commissioner and probate offices across the state will still offer driver license and ID renewals and duplicates, but you must visit one of our agency's Driver License offices to obtain your first STAR ID," Taylor said, stressing the importance of bringing along required documents proving one's identity.

"Customers will be turned away if they do not present the following paperwork to Driver License examiners: a birth certificate (original or certified copy) or valid, unexpired U.S. passport, a Social Security card and two documents verifying address of principal residence.

"ALEA's website features a list of accepted documents, as well as further information on the STAR ID program.

Tuesday's press conference also included Lynn Weldon, executive director of the Aviation Council of Alabama.

She, too, urged the public to prepare now for October 2020.

"Our council fully supports Governor Ivey and Secretary Taylor's efforts to promote this program. TSA does provide on its website a list of accepted alternative forms of ID but having a STAR ID will simplify your trip through airport security," Weldon said.

As she officially began the countdown, Ivey said, "Let's not wait until the last minute. Obtain your STAR ID today."

Former jailer Brian Buegler reflects on his career

Christy Perry
christy@cullmantribune.com

Brian Buegler first came to Cullman from New Jersey to go to college at St. Bernard. He started school there in 1968 and graduated in 1972 with a degree in mathematics. He worked at Cullman College and Roadway Express in Tarrant, but before long, his career would take a strange turn.

As a member of the Cullman County Sheriff's Office Reserve, he got an offer that would allow him to stay home and not commute to Tarrant each day.

Buegler explained, "Sheriff Roden asked me if I wanted to come home, Wendell Roden did. I said, 'Yeah, why? It depends on how much I get paid.' I gave my notice to Roadway and the rest was history."

Roden asked Buegler to run the jail, which he ended up doing for 27 years before retiring in 2006 due to health reasons.

Buegler said, "It was a very interesting job and I didn't really know what I was getting myself into. It was the 70s and the jails in the state were run differently. I had to go to school and become modern, or up-to-date, on corrections. I had no training in law enforcement. I was not certified, so I went to the academy while I was in charge of the jail."

When Buegler began, he said, the jail was out of date and he had to work hard to get modernized facilities.

"We had lawsuits, but they were frivolous," he said. "I did the best I could with what I had."

According to Buegler, the greatest need in a new jail was the ability to better supervise those in custody. When time came to build a new jail under Sheriff Tyler Roden, he said, he and Roden traveled to Wisconsin and visited a jail with a design they both liked.

Buegler explained, "I had a part in the construction in what I thought was necessary like meeting rooms for substance abuse classes and AA. Preachers would come in. In the jail, it was designed to have cameras and recording devices. Each cell block had a room where employees worked, and they could see everything at a certain angle. It was designed to handle all types of inmates."

He added, "The city joined us, and we had the city inmates and federal inmates. We didn't have them until we had a new jail. We had a better way to watch people and (it was) safe enough for people to work in like myself."

Buegler said drugs and alcohol abuse kept the jail full, and had it not been or that, his job would have been quite dull.

"In the old jail, we would have to parade them through the courthouse to see the judge. Now, they can do arraignments through closed circuit televisions."

Food was another improvement Buegler was happy to see.

"We had excellent food service in the new jail. The sheriff and I would go out and buy bargains. The farmers at the farmers' market would sell us potatoes and things.

"The bread company would sell us bread. We did everything we could to save a buck to help the county commission.

"The cost to feed them at the new jail increased because the number we could house increased."

The one inmate Buegler said he will always remember is Doyle Hamm.

CHRISTY PERRY/THE CULLMAN TRIBUNE

Brian Buegler

He said, "He went to the Anderson Hotel and shot and killed the hotel manager. He was on a shooting spree, but the ABI found him. Dangerous people, and Doyle Hamm was one of them."

Hamm was convicted of the murder of Patrick Cunningham in 1987.

Buegler has also seen how alcohol and drug abuse can destroy families. He recalled a time when he had a father, son and grandson in the jail at the same time. During his time in law enforcement, he said, he saw the implementation of programs designed to help those battling addiction: Rehabilitation, GED classes and other counseling to name a few.

"You've gotta show them a better way of life," he said.

Throughout Buegler's room at Westminster Assisted Living, he has artwork given to him by inmates from his career as a jailer.

Buegler does speak openly about the stress of the job but said his wife Janice was a "godsend." She worked as his clerk. She passed away of cancer in 2010. He admits that he didn't take care of himself like he should have, and he suffered a stroke.

Despite the stress, he said, "I don't regret anything. I'm proud of what I did. It might have caused me to have a stroke or two, but it was worth it. If I had to do it all over again, I think I would."

BETHEL COMMUNITY, Ala. – The Alabama Department of Transportation (ALDOT) on Tuesday morning installed a new safety system at the dangerous intersection of U.S. Highway 278 and County Road 831 in the Bethel community of west Cullman County. The system uses radar to detect approaching vehicles on Hwy. 278, then alerts drivers on both sides of CR 831 using high visibility signage.

ALDOT spokesman Curtis Vincent told The Tribune, "Basically, what you've got are signs on County Road 831 north and south bound, whichever way you're approaching 278, that light up and tell you when traffic's approaching on 278. And it uses radar detection to sense traffic as it's approaching that intersection, and then it lights up on the sign that says 'Traffic approaching when flashing.' So it alerts the motorist on the side road.

"You know, even though they may not see traffic on 278 because of sight distance and the vertical curve, that radar detection will pick up a vehicle as it's moving and these signs will come on."

According to Vincent, drivers are already reporting that the system is working well, and also that drivers were stopping at the intersection to thank the workers who were setting up the equipment. This is the first such system installed by ALDOT anywhere in the state of Alabama.

Said Vincent, "This is the first time we've utilized these devices, and I think it's an ideal application for this location; it's exactly what these are intended for."

Highway 278 to receive alert signage also

Within the next two weeks, ALDOT plans to return to the intersection to install a similar system to alert drivers on Hwy. 278 to approaching traffic on CR 831.

Vincent still advised, "There's no catch-all solution. People still need to slow down, be cautious and be aware of their environment. But this will go a long way, I think."

Official beers: Sam Adams Oktoberfest and Goat Island Colonel's Fest Bier
Local brewery Goat Island returns to Oktoberfest with its award-winning Colonel's Fest Bier, about which it says:

This Bavarian style March beer got a bronze medal in the 2017 Alabama Craft Beer Competition. It is copper to gold, very malty and full of flavor. Ample helpings of Munich malt give it its distinctive toasted malt background. The rest of the malt bill is designed to give it that wonderful body and a hint of sweetness. Did we mention that it is a malty beer? It's very malty! The hop profile is very mild to, you guessed it, allow the malts to shine through. Fermenting with a German lager yeast strain leaves this beer with a clean drinkable taste. Enjoy!

German Food
As always, Cullman will cook up some of its finest German recipes and serve them at places like:
- Busy Bee Cafe
