CULLMAN COUNTY FAIR

Cool (senior) kids hit the fair

Christy Perry
christy@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN, Ala. – Cullman area seniors took full advantage of the crisp fall weather as the fairgrounds opened Wednesday morning for Senior Day. They enjoyed the many exhibits, were delighted to ride the carousel and Ferris wheel and cheered the outstanding entertainment at the Coca-Cola Theatre.

Senior Day at the Fair is sponsored by Comfort Care and welcomes seniors from Cullman and surrounding areas to participate in the yearly event. This year's crowd was treated to a rocking performance by the Senior Spirit Kickers.

The talented dance team from the Donald E. Green Senior Center performed six amazing high-energy routines.

Cullman County Sheriff Matt Gentry came out and had a great time with everyone.

He said to the crowd, "Thank you so much for all you do for the community and all you do for us.

"It really makes our hearts warm when we go out and we get to be with y'all and just fellowship, and I enjoy and love each and every one of you."

The exquisite Ann Trucks, Ms. Alabama Nursing Home 2019, was in attendance.

The Woodland Village resident had a message for her fellow seniors at the fair.

"Stay open-minded, positive and always be ready to participate," she said.

Trucks also praised the staff of Woodland Village for all the activities it provides to its residents and urged everyone to participate in new activities.

While many relaxed at the theater and took in the planned activities there, others toured the different exhibition halls to see the colorful displays and fair entries.

Several of the seniors had entries in the fair and were able to show them off to their friends.

Calvin Wright and Linda Murray enjoyed a ride on the Ferris wheel before making their way to the carousel.

There they met up with other couples having a great time and reminiscing about visiting the fair throughout the years.

Freeda Dockins and Donald Tucker, Calvin Stansell and Sue Livingston, Lora Garnett and Huey Ray had a splendid time as they enjoyed this year's fair and rode the carousel.

For Garnett and Ray, the fair was an opportunity to spread the news of their recent engagement.They said they hope to come back next year to Senior Day when they are officially "Mr. and Mrs."

CHRISTY PERRY/THE CULLMAN TRIBUNE

Lora Garnett and Huey Ray show off Garnett's engagement ring. The couple plans to get married before next year's Senior Day.

Despite years of warnings that older adults shouldn't take sedative drugs that put them at risk of injury and death, a new study reveals how many primary care doctors are still prescribing them, how often and exactly where. Mapped out county by county, the study shows wide variation in prescriptions of the drugs, called benzodiazepines. Some counties, especially in the Deep South and rural western states, had three times the level of sedative prescribing as others. The study also highlights gaps at the level of individual prescribers – some primary care providers prescribed sedatives more than six times more often than their peers. These high-intensity prescribers of drugs such as Xanax, Ativan and Valium also tended to be high-intensity prescribers of opioid painkillers.

A drug first identified 150 years ago and used as a smooth-muscle relaxant might make tumors more sensitive to radiation therapy, according to a recent study published in the Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences. The researchers found that the drug, called papaverine, inhibits the respiration of mitochondria, the oxygen-consuming and energy-making components of cells and sensitizes model tumors to radiation. They found that the drug does not affect the radiation sensitivity of well-oxygenated normal tissues. The study "represents a potential landmark in the six-decade-old quest to eliminate hypoxia as a cause for radiotherapy treatment failure."

PREP FOOTBALL

Addison, Cold Springs, West Point, Good Hope hitting the road for region matchups

Nick Griffin
nick@cullmantribune.com

With over half of the regular season in the books this football season, its time to start thinking about the postseason and we have several local teams still very much in the playoff hunt. Addison will try to follow up a huge win over Colbert County on the road at Tanner this week, Cold Springs is coming off a bye week and will head to Winston County for a region game, West Point will try to shake off last week's loss to Jasper on the road against Dora and Good Hope will be looking to bounce back at Haleyville after dropping its first game of the season against Northside last week.

(5-2) Addison (2A Region 7) at (1-5) Tanner (2A Region 7)
The Bulldogs stomped Colbert County 44-12 at home last week to work their way up to 10th in the Class 2A rankings and collect an important region win but they still have a few games in front of them before they worry about any potential playoff opponents, starting this week with Tanner.

The Rattlers fell on the road to Hatton last week and will be anxious to face Addison on their home turf Friday night.

Tanner is allowing just under 33 points per game right now while the Bulldogs have been getting stronger on the defensive end with each passing week. Addison allowed a combined 58 points in its first four games but has given up just 24 points in the last three. With a deep group of running backs and a defense firing on all cylinders, the Bulldogs are playing some of their best ball of the year and have a chance to pick up another important win at Tanner this week.

(3-3) Cold Springs (2A Region 5) at (2-4) Winston County (2A Region 5)
The Eagles have had a week to rest up and regroup after an impressive comeback effort fell short against Appalachian two weeks ago. Now, Cold Springs will travel to Winston County Friday for a regional matchup against the Yellow Jackets.

The Eagles have had some success moving the ball this season, averaging just under 30 points per game, but they've been a little less consistent on the defensive side of the ball.

Opponents are scoring 25 points per game against Cold Springs but this week, the Eagles will face a struggling Winston County offense that has scored just 12 points in its last three games.

The Yellow Jackets are also allowing 25 points per game so it'll come down to which defensive unit can create the most turnovers and get off the field in this one.

(2-4) West Point (5A Region 7) at (2-4) Dora (5A Region 7)

NICK GRIFFIN/THE CULLMAN TRIBUNE; MARTHA NEEDHAM/THE CULLMAN TRIBUNE

The Warriors ran into top-ranked Jasper last week and took a tough loss to the Vikings but with three region games still in front of them, they'll have to put that loss behind them and finish strong. Dora is coming off a 28-0 loss to Corner so both of these teams will be anxious to get last week's taste out of their mouths and collect a win.

West Point started the season with some success on the offensive side of the ball but in its last two games against Russellville and Jasper, the offense has been held to a combined 13 points. The Bulldogs have some recent struggles as well. After starting the season 2-0,

Dora has lost its last four games and has been outscored 159-35 in that stretch. Both defenses are allowing over 30 points per game this season so this matchup could turn into a shootout and come down to which defense can be the most opportunistic.

(5-1) Good Hope (4A Region 5) at (3-3) Haleyville (4A Region 5)
The Raiders fell to eighth in Class 4A after last week's loss to Northside but still have four games left to play in the regular season, including three regional matchups. Haleyville is coming off a 15-6 win over Curry and even though they have a 3-3 record overall, they have the same region record as Good Hope at 2-1 so the Raiders can definitely gain some ground with this win.

The Lions are allowing fewer than 19 points per game this season but are only scoring 17 per game on the offensive end. Good Hope is scoring over 31 points per game this season so it should be an interesting matchup when the Raiders offense and Haleyville defense are on the field.

Something will have to give between those two units and the Lions actually have a better record on the road than at home this season so that could bode well for Good Hope traveling this week.

AGRICULTURE

High heat, minimal moisture hurt yields, bottom line

Marlee Moore
ALFA Farmers

ALFA FARMERS

Talladega County farmer Whit Lovelady said he had to feed his cattle hay in July because pastureland wasn't producing enough grass in the dry weather. Rains greened up fields for a while, but he had to resume feeding hay again in September.

Zero. Zip. Zilch. That's how much rain Terry Wyatt's 500-acre cotton crop received in September.

"Cotton likes hot weather, but you have to have some rain," said Wyatt, whose non-irrigated cropland in Harpersville was in the heart of Alabama's most persistent drought based on the U.S. Drought Monitor. "We got in a pattern early. The heat index got extremely high at the end of May and stayed that way. We got intermittent showers in the summer and a 2-inch rain at the end of August. We didn't have a drop the whole month of September."

Record-breaking heat and minimal moisture meant some cotton struggled to grow. In cotton that did take root, underdeveloped and knotty bolls became an issue. Wyatt said he expects to harvest around 600 pounds per acre, 400 pounds less than 2018.

The Oct. 3 Drought Monitor report showed 3.54% of Alabama in extreme drought, 11.99% severe drought and 35.36% moderate drought. The remainder was abnormally dry.

Wyatt's story shares a common thread among Alabama growers, said the Alabama Farmers Federation's Carla Hornady.

"September and October are usually our driest months," said Hornady, the Federation's Cotton, Soybean and Wheat & Feed Grain divisions director. "Last year, farmers had a great growing season, but a wet harvest lowered yields. This year, yields will vary greatly. Some crops benefited from sporadic showers, but overwhelmingly, drought will lower yields again."

In the Wiregrass, problems persisted for producers like Ed White. The Henry County farmer and Alabama Peanut Producers Association board member planted 900 acres of peanuts. Once prolonged heat and drought caused peanuts to separate from the shells, the clock was ticking to dig the legumes — which are packed in hard, parched earth.

"I can add about $15 an acre to production costs because of the added expense of using so many plow points (long blades that cut dirt from beneath peanuts)," said White, who changed plow points nearly every 5 acres.

"But we can't wait on a rain. The peanuts are finished growing, and we need to get them out of the ground as quickly as possible."

White said his cotton fared better than peanuts, but the plants are shorter than normal.

"That can make picking cotton a challenge since machinery has to get so low to the ground," said White.

In northeast Alabama, Clay Hastings and his father, Billy Gullatt, harvested soybeans in early October. Drought dealt a blow to the late-planted beans, Hastings said.

"We're probably harvesting 50-60% of what we normally gather," said Hastings, a Jackson County farmer who serves on the State Soybean Committee. "Our soybean yields this year are anywhere from 30-40 bushels per acre."

They had a "decent corn crop," but yields were below average, he said.

"Our corn average is usually about 175 bushels an acre, and it's down to 150 or lower," he said.

Hastings' Scottsboro operation measured no precipitation in September. He said they plan to plant wheat following rain this fall.

While drought caused some farmers to delay planting winter vegetables, conditions urged cattle producers to take action.

On Whit Lovelady's Talladega County farm, ponds dried up, and prime hayfields produced just half a bale an acre — a steep decline from the usual 3-bale average.

"I fed our first roll of hay the second week in July," said Lovelady, who has 350 acres of hayfields in Alpine. "We caught a little rain shower or two, which spruced things up, and quit feeding. We started back the end of September."

Feeding hay this early could cause a shortage this winter and affect farmers' bottom line. Lovelady, who has 175 head of cattle, usually sells 400-500 rolls of hay. He said he will most likely keep all the hay for his own herd.

"I usually sell enough hay to help with feed costs, but I won't be able to this year," said Lovelady. "It won't affect us right now, but it will in January or February when hay gets scarce."

Drought conditions parched timber across the state, causing the Alabama Forestry Commission to issue a Fire Alert, urging delays in outdoor burning. Over 470 wildfires burned nearly 6,000 acres in September alone. That's greater than the last three Septembers combined, including drought-ridden 2016.

Despite the challenges, farmers like White remain optimistic.

"This has been a bad year for us; there's no question about it," he said. "But it's not the end of the world. Bad years will happen if you stay in farming long enough."

NFPA: With Halloween on the horizon, halt hazards with these tips

Lorraine Carli
Contributor

Halloween has become a hugely popular time for fun and festivities, but with it comes the potential for a variety of fire hazards. The National Fire Protection Association (NFPA) encourages everyone to take these simple precautions to stay safe without sacrificing that fun.

"Halloween brings an opportunity to wear fun costumes, decorate our homes, and eat too much candy," says Lorraine Carli, NFPA's vice president of Outreach and Advocacy.

"However, without proper safety precautions, we run the risk of turning good times into the wrong kind of scary ones."

According to NFPA research, between 2012 and 2016, decorations were the item first ignited in an estimated average of 800 reported home structure fires per year, resulting in an average of two civilian deaths, 34 civilian injuries and $11 million in direct property damage.

The decoration was too close to a heat source such as a candle or equipment in almost half of these fires.

NFPA offers these tips to stay safe during the spooky season:

- Costumes: Avoid fabric that billows or trails behind you, as these can easily ignite. If you are making your own costume, avoid loosely-woven fabrics like linen and cotton, which can be very flammable.

- Decorations: Many common decorations like cornstalks, crepe paper and dried flowers are very flammable. Keep these and similar decorations far away from any open flames or heat sources, like candles, heaters and light bulbs.

- Candles: Using candles as decoration can be risky if not done correctly. Keep them in a well- attended area out of the path of potential trick-or-treaters. Remind children of the dangers of open flames, and make sure they are supervised at all times when candles are lit. Extinguish candles before leaving an area.

- Jack-o-lanterns: Glow sticks or electric candles are the safest choice when it comes to lighting up your jack-o-lantern, but if you choose to use a real candle, do so with extreme caution. Light a candle inside a jack-o-lantern using long fireplace matches or a utility lighter, and keep it away from other decorations.

- Visibility: Give children flashlights or glowsticks for lighting; these can even be incorporated into the costume. If your child has a mask, ensure the eye holes are large enough for them to see clearly.

- Smoke alarms: This is a great time to make sure your smoke alarms are functional and up-to-date.

- Exits: Exits are NOT an appropriate place for decorations. When decorating, ensure that nothing is blocking any escape routes.

U.S. Supreme Court decisions advance 6 Alabama capital sentences, 2 for murders of police officers

Joy Patterson
Contributor

MONTGOMERY, Ala. – Attorney Gen. Steve Marshall welcomed the U.S. Supreme Court's decisions on Monday not to review several Alabama death penalty cases, including two for the murders of police officers in Birmingham and Montgomery and another that was the State's first prosecution for murder of an unborn child. The Court denied certiorari in the cases of Nathaniel Woods, Mario Woodward, Jessie Phillips, Gregory Hunt, Demetrius Frazier and Cedric Floyd.

"In each of these cases, a life or lives were tragically and viciously taken and a just sentence of death for the killer was handed down," said Marshall.

"Police officers were carrying out their duties to protect citizens, as they do every day, and they paid the ultimate price. A mother and her unborn child, and three more women, were brutally killed. The U.S. Supreme Court this week acted in its role as a last resort of justice, rightfully letting stand the convictions and sentences for these vile crimes."

Nathaniel Woods

On June 17, 2004, officers of the Birmingham Police Department were in the process of arresting and taking into custody Nathaniel Woods at an apartment where he dealt drugs with Kerry Spencer.

Spencer then opened fire, killing three of the officers and wounding a fourth.

Carlos Owen, Harley A. Chisolm, and Charles R. Bennett were murdered in the line of duty; Michael Collins survived.

In 2005, Woods was convicted of capital murder and attempted murder, and was sentenced to death. Spencer also was convicted of capital murder and sentenced to death.

Mario Woodward

Montgomery Police Officer Keith Houts conducted a traffic stop of Mario Woodward on the afternoon of Sept. 28, 2006. Woodward shot Houts as he was walking toward the vehicle, then shot the fallen officer four more times before fleeing. In 2008, Woodward was convicted of capital murder and sentenced to death.

Jessie Phillips

On Feb. 27, 2009, Jessie Phillips held his pregnant wife, Erica Phillips, in a headlock and pointed a gun to her head.

She broke away and ran, but Phillips shot her in the head, killing her.

The crime occurred in Guntersville and was prosecuted by Steve Marshall when he was district attorney of Marshall County.

This case was the first prosecution under Alabama's state law for murder of an unborn baby. In 2012, Phillips was convicted of capital murder and sentenced to death.

Gregory Hunt, Demetrius Frazier and Cedric Floyd

The U.S. Supreme Court also declined to review the cases of three additional Alabama death row inmates: Gregory Hunt, Demetrius Frazier and Cedric Floyd. Hunt brutally murdered Karen Lane in Walker County in 1988. Frazier was found guilty by a Jefferson County jury of the 1991 burglary, rape and murder of Pauline Brown. In 2009, Cedric Floyd murdered his former girlfriend, Tina Jones, during a burglary of her house.

Marshall commended Assistant Attorneys General Lauren Simpson, Richard Anderson, John Selden and Beth Hughes of his Capital Litigation Division for their successful handling of the appeals in these cases.
