HANCEVILLE, Ala. – Laurelwood Equine Assisted Discoveries, LLC (LEAD) opened April 1, 2019, offering unique services to Cullman County- Equine Assisted Growth and Learning Association (Eagala) Model counseling and personal development sessions.

"LEAD offers Eagala Model counseling sessions for adults, children and teens who have experienced trauma, suffer from mental illness, ADHD, grief and loss and/or are involved in the foster care system or have been adopted," said LEAD Executive Director and Eagala-certified Therapist Ashley Lee. "We specialize in trauma and working with at-risk youth and see many who suffer from anxiety, PTSD and depression. We can also provide traditional counseling in an office, or outside in nature without the horses if a client desires, or do a combination of office therapy and Eagala Model therapy."

She continued, "We offer personal development in the form of Eagala Model equine-assisted learning groups for corporations, small businesses, youth groups, sports teams and any group wanting to improve upon leadership skills, teambuilding and communication. These groups are offered » PAGE 7

CULLMAN, Ala. – The Cullman County Animal Shelter's Donna Ruttkay reported good news: Han Solo, this week's first featured canine friend, has been adopted! So now, she shares a bonus Cullman Tribune Pet of the Week:

Jujube is a 1-year-old yellow Lab mix. He's a lively-but-not-hyper medium-energy pet with great leash skills, who cherishes human company but has a good appreciation of his people's personal space. He's athletic and enjoys challenges. Jujube likes walks and is accustomed to wearing a backpack when out and about.

LIFESTYLE: Do You Remember? The Globe

christy@cullmantribune.com

It was "the place to be" back in the 50s and 60s to meet your friends, take your date, show off your car or celebrate a victory after the big game. Young people flocked there to cruise and gab after grabbing a cherry coke, a cheeseburger or a piece of Boston cream pie. The place local businessman Doug Bennett described as "Cullman Graffiti" is no longer here, but the memories are.

We're talking about The Globe, of course! The drive-in restaurant was the hot spot for Cullman's younger crowd.

The restaurant was owned by Big Ed Burrow, whose daughter Paige Greer explained, "My dad opened the original Globe soon after he returned from the Army where he was a cook. Not sure what year. I do know he helped a lot of people and kept a lot of people out of trouble."

The Globe was located off of U.S. Highway 31 near where The Shrimp Basket is today. There was no access road in those days so there was plenty of room to cruise around The Globe, named for its round shape. There were parking spots around the building, a circle for driving around and more spaces outside of that.

Greer, who was given the childhood nickname of Little Ed said, "My dad would leave at 5 a.m. in the morning to make the biscuits, then work the lunch rush, return home, have an afternoon nap and then back to The Globe for the supper rush. He had this work schedule as long as I remember."

PAIGE GREER

Artist's rendering of The Globe

"It was the center of the social scene! There were carhops that brought out the food, kind of like Sonic, but I only recall getting cherry cokes," Brenda Wynn Perry, Cullman High Class of '62, recalled. "The boys would go inside to eat sometimes, but that was a big no-no for the girls."

Susie Rainwater Parker shared, "I wish we still had it for the young people. While your order was being made, everyone would just » PAGE 8

Trent Nairemore named ACF Student of the Year, John Wilson named ACF Instructor of the Year

Russell Moore
WSCC

HANCEVILLE, Ala. – Wallace State Community College's Academy of Culinary Arts program was a big winner recently at the Alabama Chapter of the American Culinary Federation (ACF) banquet.

Trent Nairemore was named the ACF Postsecondary Student of the Year, and Chef John Wilson was named the ACF Postsecondary Teacher of the Year.

Nairemore, 47, is enrolled in his final semester in the program. He's pursuing a culinary career after spending 17 years in the telecommunications field.

"I about lost it when I realized I was winning the award. I'm sure I had big alligator tears.

"It means a lot and makes me feel good. I try to attend every event the program is a part of, but not for the recognition.

"I think it's a great opportunity to meet new people and showcase what our program is about," Nairemore said.

Nairemore, a Fayette native, initially became interested in the program during a visit with his wife to campus when she was enrolled in Business Education courses.

"I came with her to get her books and the entire college piqued my interest. I've always loved to cook and I was ready for a new challenge," Nairemore said.

Wilson believes Nairemore serves as a father figure to his fellow students.

"That's exactly why I nominated him. He's a great example for all. He's the first student to arrive and the last one to leave.

"He's willing to go the extra mile and doesn't have 'no' in his vocabulary," Wilson said. "Every program could use someone like Trent."

Nairemore is the second Wallace State student in three years to earn ACF Student of the Year recognition.

Meanwhile, Wilson is the ACF's Postsecondary Teacher of the Year, a year after being named the ACF Chef of the Year in Alabama.

Wilson has worked in the culinary industry for 36 years, serving as the program head of Wallace State's Academy of Culinary Arts program for the past six.

"It's very humbling and exciting to be voted on as the top instructor by your fellow peers. I was shocked to hear my name called. I couldn't have been recognized if it wasn't for our fantastic students. They inspire me to be here," Wilson said.

Wilson, a Boston native, has worked as a chef in Alabama for 16 years, including his time at Wallace State.

Under his direction, the Wallace State program serves lunch to the public and campus each Wednesday during the fall and spring semesters and provides meals for special occasions on campus and throughout the community.

Xtreme Allstars sweep Victory Valentine Cheer Competition

Nick Griffin
nick@cullmantribune.com

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. – Last weekend was another success for Cullman Gymnastics & Cheer Academy's Xtreme Allstars. After a strong showing at the JAMfest Bam JAM at the BJCC Jan. 25 in which two of their squads took home first place, the Allstars made the trip to Huntsville's Von Braun Center last Saturday for this year's Victory Valentine Cheer Competition and swept the top prizes. The Mini Majesties, Empresses and Queens all earned first place finishes in their respective divisions and the Tiny Tiaras went home with a rating of Excellent.

Allstars Head Coach Ashley Wilbanks is proud of the way each team performed and credits the theme for last weekend's competition for helping push them over the top.

"Every competition we try to come up with a theme for the girls to hold on to and this time we used a scripture and they all put it in their shoes and stood on the word.

"It was Luke 18:27 and it says, "Jesus replied, what is impossible with man is possible with God.". As a result of that firm foundation for them to stand on, we had a clean sweep," Wilbanks said.

"All our teams were grand champions at their level and each team was offered a full paid bid to the Emerald Coast Finals."

The Xtreme Allstars will be back on the road to compete at the Cheersport Nationals Feb. 15 and 16 at the Georgia World Congress Center in Atlanta.

Hanceville holds off J.B. Pennington 65-54 to advance to area tournament finals; area tournament scoring recap

Nick Griffin
nick@cullmantribune.com

HANCEVILLE, Ala. – The Bulldogs returned home Tuesday night to host this year's Class 3A, Area 12 Tournament and Hanceville is on to the championship game after eliminating J.B. Pennington 65-54 in the opening round.

The Bulldogs got off to a 6-2 start early in the game and Raiden Morgan knocked down a pair of free throws to make it 8-2.

Morgan scored a basket inside to give Hanceville a 12-6 advantage midway through the first and Brodie Malcom laid one in late in the period to keep the Bulldogs in front 16-12 at the start of the second quarter.

Another Morgan basket made it 18-17 early in the second but Malcom converted an and-one play at the free throw line to put Hanceville up by four.

A quick steal and basket from Zach Campbell gave the Bulldogs a 23-20 lead with five minutes remaining in the quarter and Malcom drilled a jumper to put Hanceville up by seven midway through the period.

Tyson Bellmon then knocked down back to back three-pointers to stretch the lead to 35-24 with two minutes to play in the half and after Cainon Moore put one in with 30 seconds on the clock, the Bulldogs went to the locker room with a 39-28 lead at the break.

Izayah Glenon scored inside to make it a 41-28 game early in the third and Bellmon buried another three to add to the lead midway through the quarter.

Bellmon was fouled on his next three-point attempt and drilled all three shots from the line to give Hanceville a 47-32 lead but the Tigers managed to cut the lead to 11 by the end of the third period.

Back to back buckets from Morgan made it 54-43 with just over five minutes to play but back to back scores by Malcom extended the lead to 12. J.B. Pennington began to chip away midway through the final frame until a three-pointer cut the lead to five with three minutes remaining. Moore netted a pair of free throws to put the Bulldogs back up by seven with just over a minute to play and Bellmon followed him with two more from the line that extended the lead to nine with less than a minute remaining and all but iced the game.

Hanceville held on to win it 65-54 and will play either Susan Moore or Glencoe in the Area 12 Tournament championship game Friday night at 6:30.

Morgan and Malcom each posted 16 in the win for the Bulldogs and Bellmon finished with 15. Moore added nine and Glenon scored six.

FAIRVIEW, Ala. – Fairview Theatre Works (FTW) director Mark Dobbs' students asked for a musical, and he listened. This April, a countywide cast and crew featuring 29 students from five of the seven Cullman County Board of Education (CCBOE) high schools will take on the Broadway production "Little Shop of Horrors" from the legendary team of Alan Menken and Howard Ashman, best known for their collaboration on the Disney films "The Little Mermaid" and "Beauty and the Beast."

But this is no fairy tale show. "Little Shop," a stage version of the 1960 low-budget but cult classic motion picture spoof of 1950's science fiction and horror movies, is the darkly comedic story of an inept florist who finds himself raising a plant that has a taste for human blood. The music stays true to the period of the movie, drawing from doo-wop and early rock and roll genres, as well as the classic Motown sound.

Dobbs told The Tribune that the move to musical theater was an anxious one for him. He wants, both as a director and as a coach, to do things that are high-quality, but his own lack of musical background made him question his chances of success.

According to Dobbs, "We've had several of the Fairview kids each year ask and ask and ask, 'Can we do a musical?' I don't have a music background, so I was always leery of it, because I knew- and I can't sing at all- so I knew I wouldn't be able to help anyone sing. But I finally heard some kids sing outside, in other venues and stuff, and I didn't realize how many kids that we had just at Fairview that actually could sing. I began to think, 'Maybe we can do this.'"

Hannah Crider came on board with Dobbs to handle vocal coaching and choreography, and the director said that she "is doing an incredible job."

Why "Little Shop?"

Dobbs said, "'Little Shop of Horrors' has always been one of my favorites, so we decided to go from there. We talked about doing it just in Fairview, and then we decided to go ahead and do it for the countywide (show). Enough kids from the other schools are excited about it, too, so we ran with it.

"I tried to think of the audiences that we typically have where we are, and it needed to be a high-interest something to keep audiences' attention, something they could sing along with if it's the songs. There are just some musicals that I wouldn't like, a lot of people wouldn't like. It's just-I don't know-maybe not a great story or not that many songs that you'll sing the next day, or something like that.

"But 'Little Shop,' I think it's funny enough, it's entertaining enough, and parts of it are scary enough. I think it'll entertain.

The "wow" factor

Dobbs said, "One of the main characters is the Audrey II, which is the plant that makes it the little shop of horrors. We've rented four different sizes of puppets to portray the plant throughout the thing. It starts off as like a seedling in a coffee can and, by the finale, it fills the entire stage. So it grows; as the show goes, it gets bigger and bigger.

"I think people are going to be really, really entertained with both the music and the choreography. There's a couple of big cast numbers; there's a couple of duos and solos that are really, really good. All the songs are catchy. I've seen some musicals that, frankly, bored me, and I'm like, 'I wish they'd quit singing and just finish this talking,' you know. This isn't like that: they're fun, they're catchy, there's enough spoof of those 50's horror movies and science fiction movies that it's fun. And it moves quickly; I don't think anybody will get bored. I don't think anybody will lose interest.

"I think, with the quick movement and the plant itself and the puppet, and the fact that there's a little bit of horror movie to it. I think the kids will be entertained. I think the adults will be entertained with the sheer entertainment value of it. The set's going to be great again. Of course, (set builder) Mr. (Justin) Miller, our agriscience teacher, he works wonders with what we have. I know last year's set was good, and this one will be even better."

Get involved

Fairview Theatre Works is seeking sponsorship and support from businesses throughout Cullman County for this countywide production and is also looking for a few props.

Dobbs recently posted to social media, "I'm in search of four old rotary style phones (desk type, not wall-mounted), an old, non-electric typewriter and an old cash register (doesn't have to work)."

Pop culture journalist Andy Greenwald created this stylish new blend of crime drama and pulp fiction, an anthology series that will feature one 10-episode close-ended story each season. Adapted from a novel by Ross Thomas, this freshman outing stars Rosario Dawson as tough private eye Allegra Dill, who returns to her hometown on the Texas-Mexico border to investigate her sister's murder. Jay R. Ferguson, Edi Gathegi, Brian Geraghty and Kim Dickens also star, with "Mr. Robot" creator Sam Esmail among the show's executive producers.

Steven Weber and Fran Drescher star in "Indebted" on NBC.

Murder (from Front)

W.C. Mann
craig@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN, Ala. – Kimberly Police Officer Nick O'Rear was killed in the line of duty late Tuesday evening, and a Cullman County man is charged with capital murder in the officer's death.

Preston Cheyenne Johnson, 37, of Good Hope is being held in the Jefferson County Jail. At the time of the shooting, Johnson was out on bond in two active Cullman County cases.

Johnson was arrested by the Cullman County Sheriff's Office (CCSO) Oct. 31, 2019 on the charge of receiving stolen property when he was found in possession of a 1998 Chevrolet Corvette that had been reported stolen. At the time of his arrest, deputies found drugs and paraphernalia, and Johnson was also charged with unlawful possession of a controlled substance (suboxone), possession with intent to distribute methamphetamine and possession of drug paraphernalia. The drugs and stolen vehicle were charged as separate cases.

Johnson was released on an unsecured (no payment required) bond in the drug case, consistent with court practices since the Sept. 13, 2018 federal court injunction currently in place against the CCSO (www.cullmantribune.com/2019/06/06/out-on-bond-what-has-free-bail-meant-for-cullman-county/). The suspect, who has failed to appear in court in certain previous cases, was required to agree to pay the assigned bond amount of $19,300 if he did not show up for his assigned court date.

In the stolen vehicle case, the CCSO said it requested Johnson be held without bond. However, the Cullman County District Court assigned Johnson a $40,000 secured bond. The amount was divided between a property bond signed by a family member and a surety bond issued by A-1 Bail Bonds of Bremen.

Wednesday morning, motions were filed to revoke Johnson's bond in both cases. At the time of his 2019 arrest in Good Hope, Johnson, a convicted felon, was found in unlawful possession of an AR-15 rifle, but has not been charged.

Johnson has an adult criminal history going back to 2000, with cases in Cullman, Morgan and Winston counties.

Johnson was arrested in Cullman in December 2016 on two counts of unlawful distribution of a controlled substance when he sold methamphetamine to Cullman Police Department narcotics investigators (www.cullmantribune.com/2016/12/02/winston-county-man-arrested-for-meth-distribution/). He was listed in the arrest report as a Winston County resident. He had just been released from Talladega Federal Correctional Institute two weeks earlier.

In June 2017, Johnson was arrested between Jones Chapel and West Point by the Cullman County Sheriff's Office (CCSO) for possession of drug paraphernalia and possession with intent to distribute a controlled substance.

His past criminal history includes:

- Multiple charges of unlawful possession of a controlled substance
- Multiple charges of possession with intent to distribute a controlled substance
- Multiple charges of possession of drug paraphernalia
- Multiple charges of first-degree receiving stolen property
- Giving a false name to a law enforcement officer
- Carrying a concealed weapon
- Second-degree forgery

Local law enforcement, others react to O'Rear's death

A social media post by the Hanceville Police Department Wednesday afternoon offered condolences to the O'Rear family and Kimberly Police Department, and called the federal injunction against the CCSO "an asinine procedure and a slap in the face to all law enforcement officers in Cullman County," and added, "How many more police officers or innocent citizens have to be injured or killed due to one federal judge's ruling?"

Hanceville Police Chief Bob Long told The Tribune, "It's a terrible thing, and never should have been allowed to happen."

Cullman Police Chief Kenny Culpepper did not comment on legal aspects of the case, but told The Tribune, "Every one of us, at some point in our careers, has been in that situation where it could have been us, so we can really put ourselves in that place and understand-from what I understand-what happened. I don't know all the details, but it's just a tragedy for the family, but it's also a tragedy for that department and law enforcement in general."

Alabama Attorney Gen. Steve Marshall said on Twitter: "We have lost yet another hero: Officer Nick O'Rear of the Kimberly PD, who was assisting in a vehicular pursuit when he was ambushed by the car's driver. Officer O'Rear was the father of two children, with another on the way. Pray for his family and fellow officers. #ThinBlueLine"

Alabama Gov. Kay Ivey said in a statement: "I am profoundly grieved to hear of the passing of the Kimberly Police Officer who was shot in the line of duty last night.

"The safety of our citizens and the rule of law is forefront on the minds of our officers who willingly risk their lives on behalf of ours. His sacrifice will never be forgotten."

"The Alabama Association of Chiefs of Police sends our sincere condolences to the family of Kimberly Police Officer Nick O'Rear, who was murdered in the line of duty. Officer O'Rear, 33 years old was a father of two with a third child on the way.

"Please keep Officer O'Rear's family and the Kimberly Police Department your prayers," posted AACOP President Bill Partridge.

O'Rear leaves behind a wife and two children, with one more on the way.

LEAD (from Front)

in two-, four- or six-hour formats and are tailored to meet the needs of the group."

According to www.eagala.org, "The Eagala Model is a team approach that includes a licensed, credentialed Mental Health Professional, a qualified Equine Specialist, and horses working together with the client in an arena at all times. When inside the arena, all the work is done on the ground with the horses front and center, deliberately unhindered and never ridden, and allowed to interact with the client as they wish. This creates the space for the client, with the support of the professional facilitators, to reflect, project, and make deep connections."

"Eagala holds its practitioners to the highest of standards and code of ethics," said Lee. "They require extensive training and experience for initial certification as well as in-depth ongoing continuing education to maintain certification."

She continued, "The Eagala Model is so effective because it embraces the science that humans learn best by doing. The model prescribes a hands-on approach where clients are given the space to project and analyze their situations, make connections, and find their own solutions. Since the solutions are personally experienced in conjunction with intellectual understanding, they tend to be deeper, more profound, and longer lasting. All the work is done on the ground with the horses front and center, deliberately unhindered and never ridden, and allowed to interact with the client as they wish. This creates the space for the client, with the support of the professional facilitators, to reflect, project and make deep connections. No horse experience is ever required."

Working with Lee are Equine Specialists Donna Bolton and Michelle Moody.

What makes LEAD unique in the Cullman area?

"LEAD is the only Eagala program in the Cullman area," said Lee. "We differ from other local equine programs in that our services are provided by a licensed professional counselor and equine specialist team. Our goal is not to teach horseback riding or horsemanship skills, but instead, we work to provide healing and coping skills for people that may need help emotionally for various reasons. We also teach valuable skills to those looking to improve their professional worth and development. Our horses help our clients find solutions to their problems, and we help to facilitate change."

LEAD has partnered with different organizations in the community.

"We have partnered with Brooks' Place, the Child Advocacy Center of Cullman and I3Cares out of Huntsville to provide services to children at Brooks' Place last summer," Lee said. "Although LEAD is a for-profit business, I work part-time at Brooks' Place, and have a passion for serving those in our community who have suffered tragedy. I am always looking to provide further assistance and for ways to partner with agencies whose clientele will benefit from our services. We work with Cullman County DHR as a vendor and are currently seeking other partnerships in the community that will enable us to serve at-risk youth. We are also looking to grow in our personal development services and welcome inquires related to equine-assisted learning with your group or team."

LEAD accepts cash, Blue Cross Blue Shield insurance, PEEHIP, ALL Kids and SEIB) and offers a sliding fee scale for services.

Jujube (from Front)

"He's so fun!"

Jujube has the makings of a great companion, therapy or hiking dog.

Jujube's adoption fee is $100 which includes: DHLPP vaccine, Bordetella vaccines, rabies vaccine, wormer, general exam at the vet, neutering, microchip, free 30-day health insurance policy issued by 24PetWatch (with valid email only) and a free bag of food from Cullman Pet Depot (you must pay sales tax).

Animal shelter staff and volunteers work with their dogs to make sure they are accustomed to being around people, walking on a leash and practicing good behavior.

Several of the shelter's canine friends have even been "hired" to work as therapy and special needs service dogs.

Please consider adopting, to give a rescued pet a chance at a happy and healthy life.

Contact the Cullman County Animal Shelter at 256-734-5448 or cullmancountyanimalshelter@gmail.com.

Visit the shelter at 935 Convent Road NE.

Globe (from Front)

exchange and go from one car to another and talk. It was a social place to get to know people and meet your friends. I ate every time I went. They had the best cheeseburger I've ever put in my mouth."

She continued, "Sometimes, not often, Big Ed would have trouble with kids drinking. Sometimes kids would get to drinking and have a skirmish with someone they were mad at. One or two times I saw that. Usually when we saw that about to happen, we would crank up and leave. We didn't want to get up in trouble and we knew the police were going to come and send us all home."

Parker said she made sure to stay out of trouble because, she laughed, "My mother would have killed me!"

To get a boys' perspective on a night at The Globe, Bennett was happy to reminisce about what he remembers. He refers to those days as "Cullman Graffiti" due to movie "American Graffiti" that he claims captures the times perfectly.

"It was round but wasn't paved around it but we'd cruise," he said.

"After your date, the men would congregate up there. During the dates, you'd cruise. It was the era of showing off your car and hot rods."

Bennett recalled a carpet golf course nearby but said it was mostly open space around The Globe for plenty of cruising and parking.

"We showed out some. Especially if you had a hot car!" Bennett laughed.

The era of super stock cars came about in the early 60s and when Bennett was just 14, he had a 1962 "406 Ford with 3 deuce carburetors."

He said, "I had a 456 rear-end under it and that made it go from 0-100 quick!"

Bennett admitted to a bit of "showing out and dragging," but said the boys would meet at The Globe. He laughed about running into a bit of trouble drag racing back in the day.

The Globe was torn down and Big Ed Burrow opened up a more family-oriented sit-down restaurant in 1969 named Big Ed's.

"It didn't relate to what we were looking for and it lost its appeal," Bennett said.

With their hangout gone, he said, Bennett and his buddies relied on other places such as the Mug and Cone.

"When I watch 'American Graffiti,' tears come to my eyes," he said. "They do because of the times. The congregation and camaraderie of everyone meeting up there at The Globe with your date.

"After the date at the movie, going to the Ritz, the 31 drive-in or the Cullman theater, then you took your date home. The boys would go up and BS, and I'm sure there was a lot of BS going on."

The Globe was definitely the place to be.

Bennett asked, "Those times, do they exist anymore?"

Parker said she wishes she had enough money to open a new Globe for kids today.

One thing is for sure. Cullman teens, especially those from Cullman High School during the 50s and 60s, had a great time down at The Globe.

"I wouldn't trade my seat in time with anyone," said Bennett.
