CULLMAN COUNTY, Ala. – On Mar. 30, the Alabama State Board of Education is set to release instructions about the schedule for the remainder of the semester, particularly the possibility of a return to school on Apr. 6. In the meantime, considering the very real possibility of extended school closures, teachers and administrators around Cullman are using online resources to stay connected to students and provide a little normalcy through continuing instructional curriculum.

Cullman High School Principal Kim Hall
Hall told The Tribune that teachers are utilizing and expanding online resources already in use by the system.

HOMEWOOD, Ala. – On Tuesday, Milo's Hamburgers informed The Tribune that it has recently launched the "Alabama Strong" campaign to support the communities where its restaurants are located across Central and North Alabama.

In a statement, public relations specialist Hanlon Walsh wrote, "Alabama residents have supported Milo's for nearly 75 years – and now Milo's wants to be there for fellow Alabamians."

To support the Cullman community, Milo's Alabama Strong campaign will offer the following:

• From now through May 15, Cullman kids can enjoy a free breakfast, lunch or dinner at Milo's with the purchase of any adult combo meal (also available in Montgomery, Jasper, Tuscaloosa, Jasper, and Decatur locations). [Patrons will need to show a paper or online coupon- see page 7 - to show when they get their meals. According to the local Milo's, one coupon will be good through the end of the promotion in May.]

• To ensure our children stay happy and healthy, Milo's will provide 150 meals per week to local kids in need across its 16-store footprint in Alabama. [This is in addition to the free meals mentioned above. The Tribune contacted Milo's and was informed that the chain will distribute these meals in Cullman through The Link.]

• For a limited time only starting in early April, Milo's will give their customers the opportunity to purchase their coveted signature sauce and $2 for every bottle sold will be donated to feed a hungry child in need.

Milo's CEO Tom Dekle wrote, "Milo's has always been focused on being a strong partner and trusted advocate in every Alabama community we serve.

"With many parents juggling family and work priorities at home, the last thing they should have to worry about is finding time to feed their » PAGE 8

NWTF donates almost $168,000 for wildlife management

Ala. Dept. of Conservation and Natural Resources

The Alabama Chapter of the National Wild Turkey Federation (NWTF) recently allocated $167,685 in Hunting Heritage Super Funds for wild turkey projects in Alabama. Of that total, $76,770 was donated to the Wildlife and Freshwater Fisheries Division (WFF) of the Alabama Department of Conservation and Natural Resources (ADCNR) to fund projects including wildlife habitat management and the publication of the annual wild turkey report, Full Fans & Sharp Spurs.

Approximately $91,000 was approved for other projects statewide, including funding to improve wild turkey habitat on public lands as well as to help launch outdoor education programs in schools.

This funding supports the enhancement of turkey habitat, increases access opportunities, funds educational programs and is an excellent fit for the NWTF "Save the Habitat, Save the Hunt" initiative.

MAGGIE DARNELL/THE CULLMAN TRIBUNE

Most of the WFF dollars will be used on Wildlife Management Areas throughout the state to support habitat management and other wild turkey programs.

Some of the grant money will also be used to purchase much-needed wildlife habitat management equipment.

"More than $57,000 of this generous donation offers us access to federal matching dollars, which makes the donation go even further," said Chuck Sykes, WFF Director.

"Since federal matching dollars play such a major role in how our division is funded, contributions like this are extremely important."

WFF is primarily funded by money generated through the sale of hunting and fishing licenses.

That money is then matched nearly three to one by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

WFF does not receive an appropriation from the state's General Fund.

"We thank NWTF and the Alabama Chapter Board of Directors for helping to support the conservation of wild turkey in Alabama," said Christopher Blankenship, ADCNR Commissioner.

"With their assistance we will continue working to ensure the future of this resource for generations to come."

In addition to the monetary donation, the Alabama NWTF chapter provides financial support for prescribed burning projects that help restore longleaf pine habitat, the Adult Mentored Hunting Program, the Archery in the Schools State Championship (an annual event for school students across the state), and the Becoming an Outdoors-Woman program, which introduces women to a wide variety of outdoor activities.

The Alabama Department of Conservation and Natural Resources promotes wise stewardship, management and enjoyment of Alabama's natural resources through four divisions: Marine Resources, State Lands, State Parks, and Wildlife and Freshwater Fisheries. Bassmaster Elite Series event at Lake Eufaula postponed

Emily Harley
B.A.S.S. Communications

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. – B.A.S.S. officials announced they will postpone the Bassmaster Elite at Lake Eufaula in Eufaula, Ala., originally scheduled to be held April 2-5, in keeping with the advice of both medical professionals and federal officials to limit gatherings to reduce the spread of the Coronavirus. Anglers, sponsors, staff and the local hosts were informed of this decision on Monday afternoon.

"We are committed to putting the health and safety of our anglers, fans, staff, sponsors and volunteers — and their families — first," said Bruce Akin, B.A.S.S. CEO. "It has become clear that postponing the upcoming tournament at Lake Eufaula is in the best interest of everyone involved, as well as the community of Eufaula.

"B.A.S.S. believes it is imperative to heed the advice not only of the CDC but of our elected officials as our country navigates this national crisis."

B.A.S.S. has postponed five March and April events, and is evaluating upcoming tournaments based on precautions and advice from the CDC and public officials as well as local mandates regarding public spaces and events.

"B.A.S.S. has represented core American values since Ray Scott founded the organization," said Chase Anderson, Chairman of B.A.S.S.

"So, in light of the very real national threat of COVID-19, it was a simple decision for B.A.S.S. to postpone events, follow the advice of our elected leaders and medical professionals, and be responsible citizens to assist in curbing the spread of this virus."

Currently, the CDC recommends avoiding group events, while the White House's Coronavirus Task Force issued guidelines asking citizens to avoid discretionary travel and gatherings of more than 10 for another seven days.

Those guidelines extend to the timeframe when practice days were scheduled to begin on Lake Eufaula.

As more states adopt "shelter in place" recommendations and continue to limit operation of nonessential businesses, B.A.S.S is also considering the impact that potential logistical issues and travel restrictions, including Canadian border closures, may have on the Elite Series anglers' ability to travel to Alabama.

B.A.S.S. is working alongside the local hosts to identify a new date for the tournament later in the year.

"Although we are truly saddened that the Bassmaster Elite event will be postponed, we respect the decision B.A.S.S. has made," said Ann Sparks, Tourism and Main Street Executive Director for the City of Eufaula.

"They are assuring that the safety of the public, anglers and staff is of the utmost importance, and we look forward to rescheduling and pulling those big bass out of Lake Eufaula!"

Fans of fishing and the Bassmaster Elite Series anglers can find live Q/A videos, inspiring stories, helpful tips and more at Bassmaster.com.

During this national crisis and pause to the tournament season, B.A.S.S. is encouraging people to adhere to local guidelines and, where possible, use this unexpected time to fish smart and enjoy recreational fishing in a safe and responsible way — especially with their families.

"Our ultimate goal is to be good citizens and good stewards of our sport," B.A.S.S. Chairman Chase Anderson said.

About B.A.S.S.

B.A.S.S. is the worldwide authority on bass fishing and keeper of the culture of the sport, providing cutting edge content on bass fishing whenever, wherever and however bass fishing fans want to use it. Headquartered in Birmingham, Ala., the 515,000-member organization's fully integrated media platforms include the industry's leading magazines (Bassmaster and B.A.S.S. Times), website (Bassmaster.com), television show (The Bassmasters on ESPN2 and The Pursuit Channel), radio show (Bassmaster Radio), social media programs and events. For more than 50 years, B.A.S.S. has been dedicated to access, conservation and youth fishing.

The Bassmaster Tournament Trail includes the most prestigious events at each level of competition, including the Bassmaster Elite Series, Basspro.com Bassmaster Opens Series, TNT Fireworks B.A.S.S. Nation Series, Carhartt Bassmaster College Series presented by Bass Pro Shops, Mossy Oak Fishing Bassmaster High School Series presented by Academy Sports + Outdoors, Bassmaster Team Championship, new Huk Bassmaster B.A.S.S. Nation Kayak Series powered by TourneyX presented by Abu Garcia and the ultimate celebration of competitive fishing, the Academy Sports + Outdoors Bassmaster Classic presented by Huk.

Watson, Gobourne earn All-America honors

Kendra Willard
AU Athletics

AUBURN, Ala. – Following another successful season of competition, junior Drew Watson and sophomore Derrian Gobourne were named Women's Collegiate Gymnastics Association (WCGA) All-Americans, the organization announced Tuesday.

The honors marked the first time since 2015 that a pair of Tigers were recognized in the same season.

"Having two regular season All-Americans in one year is a phenomenal accomplishment for this young team," head coach Jeff Graba said.

"I think the future is extremely bright as we will now have a lot of experience to go along with such a dedicated team."

Watson picked up first team recognition for her performances on vault this season. The Tyler, Texas, product finished with an NQS of 9.92 in the event to finish in a tie for seventh nationally.

Watson led the Tigers all season on vault, scoring a 9.9 or higher seven times over 10 meets competed. Highlighting the year was her 9.975 at Arkansas (Feb. 21) as she set both her career high and tied a program best in the event.

Overall, Watson finished with six titles on vault. Her selection marked the first All-America honor for a Tiger in the category since 2016.

"Drew has been steadily improving her vault each year she's been here," Graba said.

"It's rewarding for us to see that she is finally getting the recognition she deserves for all of her dedication and hard work. I'm proud of her and am excited to see what she will do next year!"

Gobourne was placed on the second team for her efforts on bars in 2020. Her All-America honor in the event is the first for any Tiger on bars at the conclusion of the regular season. Gobourne finished tied for 14th nationally with a 9.905.

"I believe Derrian was focused all summer on improving all of her events," Graba said.

"Being the returning national champion on vault gave her confidence and she definitely took that to the uneven bars this year.

"I'm very proud of all the hard work she put in all year and am looking forward to another year with her pushing for greatness."

The Sarasota, Fla., native had five scores of 9.9 or better on bars for the Tigers this season.

This included three 9.925s, setting a career best with those scores.

Her first 9.925 came against Alabama (Jan. 10), helping the squad top the Crimson Tide and giving Gobourne SEC Specialist of the Week honors.

Overall, Gobourne came away with four titles on bars this season.

Alabama gymnast Makarri Doggette named All-American

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio – Alabama gymnast Makarri Doggette was named a Women's Collegiate Gymnastics Association All-American on the uneven bars it was announced Tuesday.

"We're so very proud of Makarri and all she accomplished during a stellar freshman season," UA head coach Dana Duckworth said.

"She was at her best in the biggest meets and we were all looking forward to seeing what she would do at the championship meets, but I know this is just the start to an amazing career."

Doggette is the 75th Alabama gymnast to be recognized as an All-American since Julie Garrett earned the Crimson Tide's first honor in 1982.

Overall, UA gymnasts have brought home 357 All-America accolades.

There are usually two All-America lists – regular-season honors, which are based on national rankings at the end of the regular season, and championship honors, which are based on individual scoring at the NCAA Championships.

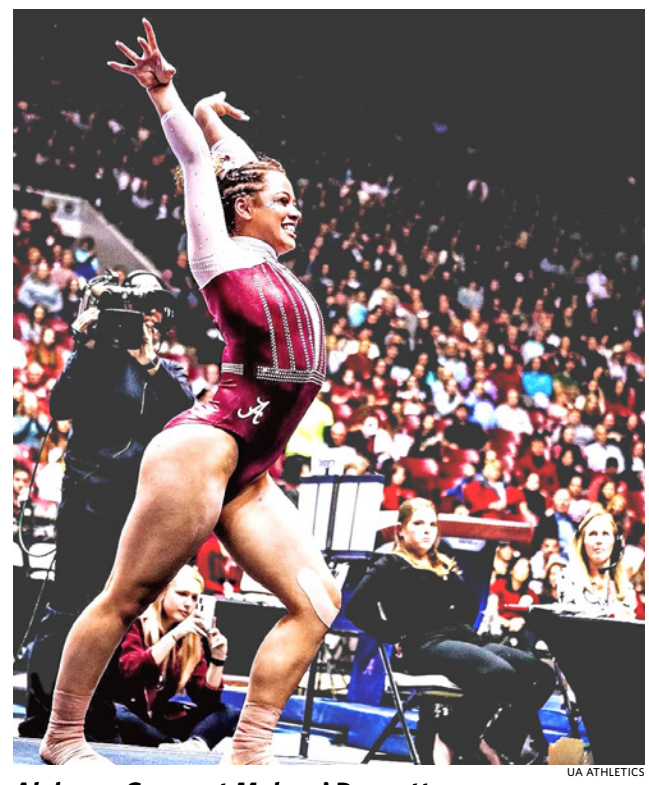

This year, with competition curtailed two weeks shy of the scheduled end of the regular season and well ahead of the NCAA Championship meets, the regular-season list is based on rankings at the point the season ended and there will be no championship honors.

Doggette finished her rookie season with a 9.905 national qualifying score on the uneven bars. She is the first UA freshman to earn All-America recognition since Mackenzie Brannan in 2015.

The Pickerington, Ohio, native led Alabama on the uneven bars seven times, a tally that included four wins on the event.

She was named the Southeastern Conference Specialist of the Week on Jan. 21, after tallying a trio of 9.9-or-better scores against Oklahoma, including a 9.95 to win the uneven bars, a score she matched at Florida, where she also earned the win.

Yarbrough named to Softball America's Top 100 Players of 2020

Taylor Shirey
AU Athletics

AUBURN, Ala. – With the season coming to an unexpected end, Softball America released its Top 100 Collegiate Players of the shortened 2020 campaign. Auburn softball sophomore Samantha Yarbrough checked in at No. 67 in the publication's rankings.

Over her debut season with the Tigers, Yarbrough appeared in 13 contests, primarily as a relief pitcher. The right-hander earned a starting role over the final two weeks of her sophomore season with three starts in the circle, two of which were complete-game efforts.

Yarbrough posted an unblemished 6-0 record and was credited with one save. She allowed just eight earned runs over 48.2 innings pitched to lead the team with a 1.15 earned run average. Her ERA was the sixth lowest among all Southeastern Conference pitchers and ranked 28th nationally.

The transfer from South Alabama allowed just 24 hits, holding opponents to a .147 average at the plate to rank seventh in SEC. Her 4.35 hits allowed per seven innings average ranked fourth in the conference and 10th among all Division I pitchers. Yarbrough also led Auburn's staff with 53 strikeouts, the 12th most in the SEC, and averaged 7.6 strikeouts per seven innings.

Her breakout season performance came over the 2020 Tiger Invitational as Yarbrough tossed a one-hit effort against No. 18 Minnesota to lead Auburn to a 5-1 victory. It was her first start of her sophomore season. She continued the weekend earning a save against Binghamton after striking out seven over three innings of relief before earning a victory later that afternoon with a one-hit effort against Georgia Southern. The performance earned Yarbrough SEC Co-Pitcher of the Week honors.

In her SEC debut at No. 7 Florida, Yarbrough held the Gators to one run over a career-high 10 innings. She struck out eight in the contest. The run snapped a streak of 16.1 consecutive scoreless innings tossed by the sophomore. Yarbrough closed the season with a complete-game performance at Jacksonville, striking out a career-high 10 Dolphins.

Kira Lewis Jr. picks up NABC All-District honors

Aaron Jordan
UA Athletics

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. – Alabama sophomore point guard Kira Lewis Jr. earned yet another award following the completion of the 2019-20 season when he garnered Second Team All-District honors by the National Association of Basketball Coaches (NABC), the organization announced on Monday.

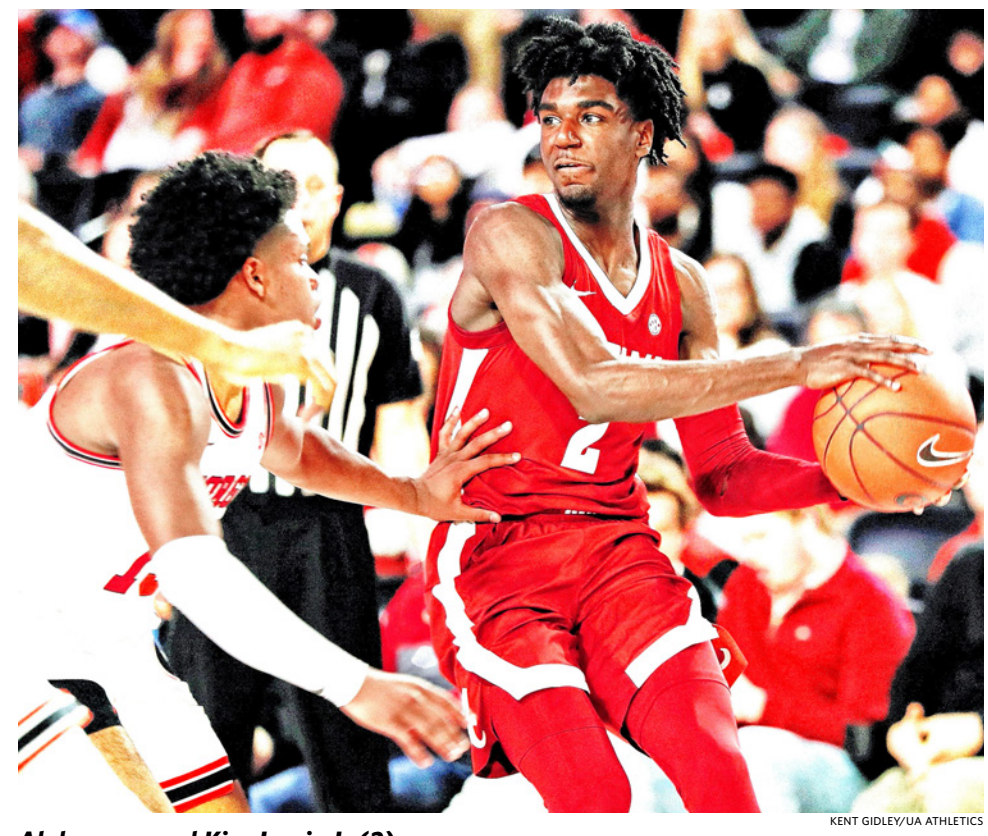

Lewis adds to his postseason accolades with the recognition after having picked up First Team All-Southeastern Conference and First Team United States Basketball Writers Association (USBWA) honors earlier in the month.

The 18-year-old Lewis, who has started all 65 games during his two-year Alabama career, led the Crimson Tide in scoring (18.5 ppg), assists (5.2 apg), steals (1.8 spg), minutes (37.6 mpg) and field goals made (206) and attempted (449). He also led the conference in minutes, ranked third in assists and steals, and finished fourth in scoring average.

Nationally, Lewis finished 13th in minutes per game and was 44th in assists per game. He also ranked among the top transition players in all of college basketball, ending the year at 5.1 transition points per game which ranked fourth in the nation.

Against Auburn on Feb. 12, Lewis became only the second player in program history to record a triple-double with 10 points, 10 rebounds and 13 assists. He was twice named the SEC Player of the Week this past year and led the team with 28 games in double figures and 10 games of scoring 20 or more points.

Businesses (from Front)

maggie@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN COUNTY, Ala. – After the recent public health order from Governor Kay Ivey, local businesses around the county have shown they're going through trials and tribulations to continue to serve customers during the coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic. The Tribune spoke with several local businesses to see how they have been impacted and what they're doing to continue business as best they can.

Cullman's local chain Frios Pops' co-owner Kristy Keiffer shared, "Coming out of the winter season as a specialty dessert ice cream and smoothie shop, obviously our sales were reduced. With recent COVID-19 recommendations, we're feeling additional crunch.

"All our events are cancelled through April. Our plan is to keep on poppin' with our drive-thru, takeout and special deliveries. Now more than ever, our goal is to encourage other and bring smiles. As a faith-based business, we want to remind folks there is reason to hope for tomorrow."

Fairview's Brindley Mountain BBQ Co-Owner Anthony Garlowich added, "We are working hard to stay on top of the health guidelines, which have been changing frequently.

"Early on, even before the mandate, we shut the dining room down and started operating with the drive-thru only.

"My wife is a nurse, and she knew that's what we needed to do to be as healthy and safe as we could for our customers and our staff. Of course, business has been impacted significantly.

"We are still operating, but we've had to cut back on our staffing. Our customers are loyal folks and have tried to support us as they could, but many of them are older so they are having to be careful about being out and about. I expect things will continue to slow down in the days ahead as we all stay in more. But as long as we are allowed and able to do it safely, we will continue to serve. We are fortunate to already have a drive-thru service So that has helped our particular situation some."

Other restaurants have had to close their business down entirely due to not enough business or inability to offer drive-thru or curbside services.

Cullman's Busy Bee Café posted to their Facebook page on March 20 at 7:08 a.m., "Good Morning Cullman. We're here dine out only.

"Today is our trial if it doesn't work, we will have to close until the Government lets us reopen." The restaurant then posted the next day (March 21), "Closed till virus is over. See everyone once we open back up. Will miss everyone."

Busy Bee Café Co-Owner Kitty Spears shared on the closing, "I am sorry to say that we are temporarily closed due to the COVID-19 pandemic. We attempted to do the curbside/ to-go orders but just was not able to remain open.

"We have ridden this business through a devastating storm and a loss of a family member. We never would have thought that a virus would shut us down. We pray that all of this will pass soon; so that we can reopen, get back to working and serving our community again. We will be back, make no doubt about it!"

Cullman's Wacked Out Weiner (WOW) location also closed, the business posted, "After much consideration, we have come to terms to close WOW of Cullman until further notice. Pray for our Cullman Small Business Owners and the rest of the Country. We shall overcome."

Cullman's Valley Tavern and Grille has also shown to close, the business posted March 19, 2020 at 3:51 p.m., "Per Gov. (Kay) Ivey, our doors will be closing at 5 p.m. this evening until further notice. Make sure to stay on the lookout for future posts. We can't wait to open back up and have more fun with you guys! Praying for protection over each family."

Holly Pond Café has also reported to be closed, the business posted to its Facebook page, "I want to let everyone know we are going to close for now. Hopefully this will pass soon, and we can get back to serving our wonderful customers! Everyone stay safe."

family during this difficult period.

"While times are challenging for us as well, it is our duty and honor to give back and take care of our local customers, team members and community partners as we overcome these challenges together."

Walsh shared, "Milo's returned to Cullman in 2017 at its Patriot Drive location and has since frequently partnered with a variety of local schools, churches and nonprofit organizations through community outreach initiatives including Student of the Month, Points for Purpose, Milo's Art, Milo's Math, and community give-back nights. Headquartered in Birmingham, Milo's currently operates 16 total locations in Birmingham, Prattville, Montgomery, Tuscaloosa, Jasper, Cullman and Decatur."

CARTS (from Front)

christy@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN COUNTY, Ala. – Among the many challenges that come with slowing Covid-19 (coronavirus) from spreading is making sure Cullman County's homebound residents are able to obtain the essential items they need. Many of those residents rely on CARTS (Cullman Area Rural Transportation Services) for access to shopping, prescriptions and doctor's appointments. The Cullman County Commission recently announced at a press conference changes to the operating procedures at CARTS.

The following operating procedures was recently implemented by CARTS:

- Individuals with needs such as dialysis or oncology will travel one at a time and are allowed an attendant when required.
- No buses will carry more than two (2) passengers at a time.
- Passengers are advised to stay at home if sick and limit travel unless absolutely necessary.
- Passengers will be advised to stay at least six (6) feet apart while riding a transit vehicle.
- Drivers are continuously disinfecting vehicles.

There is still no clear timeframe for when the measures to combat the spread of Covid-19 will be lifted. This has many concerned for homebound residents as their food supplies and prescription medicines begin to run out. CARTS Director Joyce Echols stated, "We are following emergency guidelines and those five rules. We are trying to care of people the best we can, and things are changing day by day."

Cullman County Commission Chairman Kenneth Walker added Monday afternoon, "We know they all don't have family members, but we are trying to get these buses disinfected and we are supposed to meet with Joyce to see what we can do. We haven't done that, but we are going to so when I get that question answered, I will let people know. We are trying to work through issues like that right now. We started last week but it's getting pretty critical today. We're having to address a lot of issues."

The Cullman County Commission on Aging has implemented several programs to assist homebound seniors of Cullman County including a Senior Citizen Medication Delivery.

The Commission on Aging released the following statement explaining the service:

"The Cullman County Commission on Aging will now deliver medications to senior citizens of Cullman County free of charge. There is no obligation and the only requirements are to be 60 or older. Certain medications will be unavailable for pick-up and payment arrangements must be made with your pharmacy. It is encouraged that you contact your pharmacy first. We look forward to continuing to serve Cullman County and its senior citizens any way possible. For more information, contact the Commission on Aging at 256-734-1241."

Commission on Aging Director Dusty Baker explained that there are challenges that come with providing grocery delivery.

"Unfortunately, we don't deliver groceries because of the lack of supply. We don't know what's in stock where and then we have the whole money issue." Baker is currently preparing for short term and long term plans, adding, "We are preparing to provide two weeks' worth of shelf stable meals, if we can get them, so they will have if we are unable to deliver every day." Meals on Wheels programs are still being provided to seniors despite the closure of the area's senior centers.

Baker suggested that residents in need of assistance currently outside of their scope to call 211 or The United Way with help in possibly connecting them with available resources and added "As always, the COA will try to help anyway possible if we can."

United Way Executive Director Becky Goff and the United Way Board were in an ongoing meeting Tuesday afternoon to discuss crisis response.

"We are working to address needs in three particular areas: funding for food pantries, emergency assistance and distressed nonprofits through our Community Relief Fund," Goff said. "We are addressing individuals on a case by case basis." Goff recommended that homebound residents begin by calling 211 for resources.

The City of Hanceville took steps to service its citizens when Mayor Kenneth Nail delivered a Facebook Live message Monday morning.

"The sky's not falling but we are going to have to do some things differently." He reminded everyone that the third Saturday of every month, the Hanceville United Methodist Church has a food bank and for more information they can call 256-352-5536.

Nail continued, "Guys, let's just use this right here if we really need it. I would like to put this out for our elderly people or people with disabilities. If you have underlying medical issues and you are older, you need to stay home. Possibly, even if you don't have that situation, you probably need to stay home anyway. If you are at home and you are afraid to get out or can't get out, what I want you to do is call Hanceville City Hall 256-352-9830 extension 23 and Kim will answer your call."

He explained that Hanceville has use of the White City van and people ready to help those in need of groceries or medication. He said, "I've got some people on standby that will come out to your residence and they will pick up the funds and they will go pick your medicine or groceries up for you. We will take all appropriate precautions for that also." This service is only for those services by the Hanceville police and fire departments.

In the Town of South Vinemont, Mayor Radginal Dodson is working to have the Town Hall's number capable of rolling over to the town clerk, who is now working from home.

"If push comes to shove, call me," Dodson said. "I can probably get in touch with somebody and get the situation handled." The South Vinemont Town Hall number is 256-737-5411.

Good Hope Mayor Jerry Bartlett feels confident that the senior and other homebound residents are being taken care of by family or area churches. The city sent a message to all of its seniors asking if they were in need of any help and so far, they have received no calls for assistance.

"I think with the phone calls and the churches and family that it won't become an issue for us at all." Bartlett acknowledges that the current situation could stretch on and added, "We are just taking things day by day.".

Bartlett encourages Good Hope residents to reach out to friends, neighbors and churches if they are in need.

Schools (from Front)

teachers have what's called Learning Management System. And they can use that through Google Classroom, Edmodo; they can use Canvas, they can use Schoology. Or our math teachers already use MathXL," Hall said.

"So, we already have all of that in place that we were using. Even with our live instruction, teachers could upload their PowerPoint presentations, they could upload assignments, they could have discussion boards on those programs. So those things, for us, were already in place.

"Before we left, we went ahead and communicated that we would be providing online lessons during this time, because we wanted to make sure that we were working through the kinks, and that we had a plan in place just as things progressed through this, so that's one stable force in the lives of our students."

Hall continued, "The other thing is we wanted to make sure we were, as much as possible, staying in communication with our students.

"And you know, it's difficult right now, because everyone is isolated and separated, but we know how important that communication is between a teacher and their students. So, we wanted to make sure that we had a way to keep up with them."

"We did a survey prior to getting out of school, to find out which students did not have internet access at home, or wifi access that they could reach some way. And based on that survey, we have a partnership with a company called Leanstream for T-Mobile hot spots.

"That company worked with us to send us hot spots that we needed for our middle school and high school students.

"We were able to distribute those over the past week to anyone who didn't have internet access. So that way, we know we've provided the internet access, if they needed it. We've provided the Chromebook for every student. And we have the Learning Management System in place."

"Zoom"-ing ahead

Hall touched on another online tool some of the instructors have been taking advantage of as well.

"Now, one thing that we're really trying out right now- and I think it's all over the country- is an online program called Zoom. And some of our teachers were already using Zoom for online meetings, but what we're doing right now is, we're having small group meetings with teachers as departments, so that our teachers can see what the Zoom meetings are like, so that I can work with them on that and they can help each other. So, right now, we're just doing trial runs with Zoom meetings. Some of our teachers are already doing Zoom meetings with their students, and they can meet with them face to face. They can share their screen access, so if they have a presentation or a test, or notes, or anything like that, they can show that to their students."

"The other great thing about this is that they can record the lesson and they can do this through Google Hangouts. There are other programs too but when they have the class meeting or the tutorial, they can record the lesson, so that if we have teenagers who are having to help with younger siblings or they're having to work. We're hearing from a lot of them that work fast food that they're really having to work extended hours right now so they can access the recorded lesson at a later time that works better for them."

"Some resemblance of normalcy"

Hall shared, "Obviously, I don't believe anything can replace the face-to-face instruction provided by a highly qualified teacher. And these circumstances are just forcing us to try to come up with ways that we can imitate that as much as possible. So, I definitely believe face-to-face instruction with a highly qualified teacher is irreplaceable, and I think parents are feeling this, right now, and students are feeling this and they're missing their teachers."

"I've received several emails from parents who were very thankful for the assignments that our teachers have provided. They've said that, even in these trying times, it's provided some resemblance of normalcy and stability and structure in their lives. And so, I have received a lot of positive response from parents about how appreciative they were. Even though it's hard- it's very difficult- they want their children to learn. They have high expectations and high hopes for their children, and so they're just really thankful."

Need help with your tech?

Students or parents having technology issues can ask for assistance from the school's tech department by emailing help@cullmancats.net. Through this account, the department will advise on software or connectivity problems, and set up times to bring in hardware for needed repairs.

Cullman City Primary School Principal Tricia Culpepper

Cullman Primary Principal Tricia Culpepper, who also heads up the system's Head Start program, told The Tribune, "We went ahead at the Primary School and had our leadership committee meeting on that Friday before the Monday we were closed, just in case this might happen.

"I have three representatives from each pod. I have 26 kindergarten and first grade classrooms. So, my leadership committee consists of six grade level teachers, resource teacher, my media specialist, and we decided who was going to be handling the communication via Facebook and Twitter, and that was going to be my media specialist Hilary Nix."

"We decided what platforms our teachers are going to use. And teachers like to use different platforms. So, I have some teachers doing ClassDojo, which is an app. I have some teachers that have their own YouTube channels, and some teachers are using the Remind app in order to give instruction to their students."

"So, we also met with our resource teachers, and those are the teachers that work with our special needs students, and we came up for a plan for our special needs students, because we want to make sure to include everybody at the Primary School during this time."

"Yesterday, I asked PTO if they would help me if I needed to have additional Chromebooks sent out for any student. So, I asked my teachers to reach out to their parents and see who needed a device. So, we're working on that today. We're getting our devices set up, and we're going to have a meeting time when parents can come and get a device if they need one."

The school is drawing up a loan contract for the parents who are taking Chromebooks.

Creative approaches

Culpepper added, "We're doing different videos. We do a lot of communication for our community resources through- a lot goes through our CCPS PTO page. We're doing different video readings and sharing those, I'm doing a "Mrs. Culpepper's Neighborhood." I did a social distancing story, and then I'm going to do another story today about washing your hands and exactly what the Coronavirus is, in kindergarten and first grade terms for them."

"I met with my leadership team today, and we discussed a plan of action if we have teachers that get sick, and how we're going to cover those classes, as far as lessons go. So, we have that worked out. And then also, if a parent or a caretaker gets ill and somebody needs to access our resources, we also have a plan of action; we're going to post information on our website."

"I plan on having a wellness Wednesday for faculty and staff where I share an uplifting podcast or devotional, or workout for our students. We even have our PE teacher posting videos. And our art teacher, she has her own YouTube channel, and she's doing art lessons."

"So, I am just so proud of our teachers and staff. They have worked so hard to make sure that they communicate with parents and see anything that we can do for our students during this time. We want to make sure that we can provide the instruction that our students need, so that they can be successful."

"We also want to reach out to our families, because we know that we've got families that will have nurses and doctors, and other medical staff that are working really hard. So we don't want to put any undue pressure on them, and we don't want to make it a requirement to complete the work, but we want to have the resources available when they are able to complete the work."

Head Start

Culpepper told The Tribune, "At the Primary School we also service our Head Start, which is our most vulnerable population. We have five Head Start classes: two three-year-old classes and three four-year-old classes. We're doing a lot of meetings through Zoom, and so I just finished a meeting with them, and we have a course of action for them, too, and we're sharing things through Facebook. It's very similar to what the Primary side is doing."

Elementary schools

In a message to The Tribune, East Elementary Principal David Wiggins described what the elementary schools have been doing.

"We have reading and math assignments that are posted on our website. We wanted to review prior taught concepts in these two weeks leading up to Spring Break. Our students can login with Clever badges and Google accounts to access websites with educational content. Our 6th grade teachers have their assignments on Google Classroom for our students. We, our students, have Edgenuity accounts through Odyssey Learning that allow students to work on skills that were weaker skills on their last Scantron Performance tests."

"(West Elementary Principal) Jay (Page) and I planned the same for each school. In addition, some teachers are promoting reading, ELA, and Math challenges to their class."

County system plagued by lack of internet access in remote areas

The county system does not have an organized curriculum plan underway yet and, according to County School Superintendent Dr. Shane Barnette, a major problem hindering the county system from developing and implementing such a plan is the large number of students across the county who lack internet access.

Barnette told The Tribune, "We have such a problem with connectivity out in our district. I've tried to do as much as I can: we've offered hot spots to every student from seventh grade up, I think it is, and I shared out a link with Spectrum- they'll give them free 60 days of internet, if they have access to it, and things like that. But it's still spotty, at best."

The system uses hot spot devices from T-Mobile. Users have reported issues with internet connections through the devices, especially in outlying spots like Holly Pond and Vinemont. The city system, also using T-Mobile hot spots but in an urban setting with fairly consistent good cell service, is not reporting connectivity issues.

Barnette said of his instructors, "They've shared a lot of books and they've shared a lot of links for people that have internet, but I don't think, right now, there's a whole lot of going back and forth between teacher and student. But that could definitely change after spring break, depending on what direction we go as a state.

"All of the superintendents completed a survey of what we'd like to see done. I even shared in that survey our struggle: if we had some schooling online, there'd be a lot of our students that wouldn't have access. So, I don't really know what we'd do."
