WASHINGTON, D.C. – The Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) is warning people that the rise in fear due from the COVID-19 pandemic is also giving rise to increased efforts on the part of scammers to steal your money through fraudulent donations or schemes to get personal information that would give them to your bank, credit card, PayPal or other financial accounts.

A recent release from the FBI advises:

Month (from Front)

Leanne West
Contributor

CULLMAN, Ala. – Cullman Mayor Woody Jacobs on Tuesday officially proclaimed the month of April 2020 "Child Abuse Prevention Month" in the city of Cullman. In the proclamation, Jacobs challenged all citizens to get involved in the fight against child abuse and neglect and to "take on the risk of improving the quality of life for all children and families in our community."

Javon Daniel, executive director of Cullman Caring for Kids, requested that the mayor issue the proclamation, but a proclamation presentation ceremony was not possible due to the current Order of the State Health Officer Suspending Certain Public Gatherings due to Risk of Infection by COVID-19.

Certain activities that are normally planned to bring awareness to this issue are also affected by the order.

However, despite the current conditions in our community and throughout the world, there are still things we can all do to play a role in making Cullman a better place for children and families!

A community can have a great influence in families' lives. Families are more likely to thrive in supportive communities.

Features of supportive communities include safe places for children to play; availability of food, shelter, and medical care for families; and a culture that encourages neighbors to get to know and help one another.

So we can meet and greet our neighbors, attend parents' meetings at our children's schools, participate in local community activities, and even attend local government meetings to highlight the importance of parks, strong schools, and accessible services are for families.

"Finding ways to connect with families is the best thing we can do as a community to strengthen families and prevent child abuse and neglect," said Jacobs.

"We can also familiarize ourselves and others with the signs and symptoms of child abuse and neglect, and report suspected cases to the proper authorities."

In children, signs and symptoms of abuse or neglect may include:

PHYSICAL OR EMOTIONAL ABUSE

- Sudden changes in behavior or school performance;
- Not receiving help for physical or medical problems;
- Learning problems or difficulty concentrating that cannot be attributed to specific physical or psychological causes;
- Showing extremes in behavior such as being overly withdrawn, compliant, passive, or watchful as though preparing for something bad to happen OR being overly demanding or aggressive;
- Lacking adult supervision;
- Coming to school or other activities early, staying late, and/or not wanting to go home;
- Being either inappropriately adult (parenting other children, for example) or inappropriately infantile (rocking or head-banging, for example);
- Exhibiting delayed physical or emotional development;
- Having unexplained burns, bites, bruises, broken bones, or black eyes;
- Having fading bruises or other marks noticeable after a school absence;
- Seeming frightened of the parents or other adults;
- Reporting injuries by a parent or another adult caregiver.

NEGLECT

- Lacking needed medical or dental care, immunizations, glasses, etc.;
- Begging or stealing food or money;
- Being consistently dirty or having severe body odor;
- Lacking sufficient clothing for the weather;
- Abusing alcohol or other drugs;
- Stating that there is no one at home to provide care.

SEXUAL ABUSE

- Has difficulty walking or sitting;
- Suddenly refusing to change for gym or to participate in physical activities;
- Reporting nightmares or bedwetting;
- Experiencing a sudden change in appetite;
- Demonstrating bizarre, sophisticated, or unusual sexual knowledge or behavior;
- Becoming pregnant or contracting a venereal disease, particularly if under the age of 14;
- Running away;
- Reporting sexual abuse by a parent or another caregiver.

Abusive or neglectful parents may exhibit signs such as:

- Showing little concern for, or appearing indifferent to, the child and refusing to consider offers of help for the child's problems;
- Denying the existence of, or blaming the child for, the child's problems in school or at home;
- Asking teachers or other caregivers to use harsh physical discipline if the child misbehaves;
- Seeing the child as entirely bad, worthless, or burdensome;
- Demanding a level of physical or academic performance the child cannot achieve;
- Looking primarily to the child for care, attention, and satisfaction of emotional needs;
- Constantly blaming, belittling, or berating the child;
- Overtly rejecting the child;
- Seeming apathetic or depressed;
- Behaving irrationally or in a bizarre manner;
- Abusing alcohol or other drugs;
- Being unduly protective of the child or severely limiting the child's contact with other children, especially of the opposite sex;
- Being secretive and isolated;
- Being jealous or controlling with family members.

If you do suspect a child is being harmed, reporting your suspicions may protect the child and get help for the family.

For information about where and how to file a report in Cullman, contact local law enforcement (Cullman Police Department – 256-734-1434 | Cullman County Sheriff's Office – 256-775-4700 | Hanceville Police Department – 256-352-9811) or the Cullman County Department of Human Resources (256-737-5300).

You may also contact the National Child Abuse Hotline at 1-800-4ACHILD (800-422-4453).

Also, by ensuring that parents have the knowledge, skills, and resources they need to care for their children, we can prevent child abuse and neglect by creating strong and thriving children, youth, and families in our community.

Research shows that protective factors are present in healthy families.

Protective factors are conditions or attributes of individuals, families, communities, or the larger society that mitigate risk and promote healthy development and wellbeing.

Promoting the following protective factors is one of the most effective ways to reduce the risk of child abuse and neglect:

- Nurturing & attachment;
- Knowledge of parenting and of child and youth development;
- Parental resilience;
- Social connections;
- Concrete supports for parents;
- Social and emotional competence of children.

"Cullman is fortunate to have people and organizations who work to bring awareness to this issue and who help children and families dealing with abuse and neglect," said Jacobs. "Cullman Caring for Kids, Brooks' Place, Cullman County CASA, DHR, and others do a great job of providing these much-needed services in Cullman and throughout Cullman County."

Cullman County Schools Superintendent Dr. Shane Barnette said, "We'll start back April 6. It'll be the same as what we've been doing: Monday, Wednesday and Friday each week."

Barnette added, "We would like to brag on our Child Nutrition workers, because of how hard they've been working.

"Last week, one day we fed over 12,000 meals, which is phenomenal, and we're going to start back on April 6. We're regrouping this week while we put together our plans to roll out instruction and so forth.

"We're doing a lot of planning this week but, beginning April 6, we'll continue feeding three days a week. And each of those days, we'll be giving them two breakfasts and two lunches.

"Our lunchroom ladies have really worked very diligently in having it all prepared. We really appreciate them and couldn't brag on them enough.

"Going forward, all of our employees will be rotating in and doing different things.

"I know our bus drivers will be helping hand out meals, and then our teachers will be back and offering instruction and so forth, as well, beginning April 6."

Hunt (from Front)

W.C. Mann
craig@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN, Ala. – Bear hunting fever is sweeping the Cullman community! Young hunters, armed with cameras and getting a little grown-up help behind the wheel, are breaking the quarantine monotony by searching neighborhoods around town and across the county for plush teddy bears of all shapes and sizes, then posting their finds to the Cullman Bear Hunt Facebook page (www.facebook.com/groups/2857657737685105/).

Directions on the page instruct:
"Join the fun! If you'd like to participate, simply place a stuffed bear in a window of your home so when families go for car rides or walks during this quarantine, they can hunt for bears! Communities around the nation are participating in bear hunts for the little ones to enjoy! Have some fun with your family while you practice social distancing!"

Tonya Hall saw friends participating in similar activities in other parts of the state, and decided to give it a try.

She set up the social media group just last Friday, and by Monday, saw the membership skyrocket to almost 600.

On Sunday evening, Hall told The Tribune, "Between my senior getting the news that we don't know when graduation will be, and my 11-year-old finding out sixth grade is over, and my oldest having to drive cross-country back from law school, last week has been kind of a rough week.

"I just said I'm either going to have to get off social media or I'm going to have to do something to see some joy.

"I started that group Friday afternoon, and I just added a few friends. And today (Sunday evening) there's like 470-something people in it.

"Buena Vista's got a bear, Southern Eats has got a bear in the window, Frio's has got a bear in the window. It's just been funny just to see, over the weekend, people that have driven by our house- we live over by the high school- and that have taken a picture here.

"You may not be able to go 'out-out,' but it's definitely a creative way to get the kids out!"

"You know, everybody's always saying that kids are- too much screen time, too much TV- and I think, if anything, this social distancing has caused us to look for other ways to engage the kids, keep them active.

"We live by the high school, and there's always people walking, but I have seen so many families walking that I feel like I've never seen before. I feel like they've been in quarantine for the two years that we've lived here; I've never seen them before: dogs that I've never seen out being walked.

"Since it is based on the book '(We're) Going on a Bear Hunt,' maybe the kids will read the book or find some other activity besides TVs or screen time during this time, that it doesn't always have to be a gadget or a $50 outing."

Bears are appearing in windows and on porches, hanging out by mailboxes and in front of local businesses.

While most of the bear hunting is happening around Cullman, bears are also beginning to turn up across the county in places like Hanceville, Good Hope, West Point, Welti and Baileyton.

Hall shared, "My family thought I was nuts! They were like, 'What are you doing?' because I went and stuck a bear between our storm door and our front door, and I said, 'We're having a bear hunt in Cullman.' They literally thought I was nuts!

"That's okay. It's been a welcome distraction. The little girl that found 24 bears today, when they stopped (here) today, my husband was in the driveway, and he said, 'Tonya, there's somebody out there taking a picture of your bear!' I said, 'See, that's cute!'"

Scams (from Front)

Fake CDC Emails
Watch out for emails claiming to be from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) or other organizations claiming to offer information on the virus.

Do not click links or open attachments you do not recognize. Fraudsters can use links in emails to deliver malware to your computer to steal personal information or to lock your computer and demand payment.

Be wary of websites and apps claiming to track COVID-19 cases worldwide. Criminals are using malicious websites to infect and lock devices until payment is received.

Phishing Emails
Look out for phishing emails asking you to verify your personal information in order to receive an economic stimulus check from the government.

While talk of economic stimulus checks has been in the news cycle, government agencies are not sending unsolicited emails seeking your private information in order to send you money. Phishing emails may also claim to be related to:

- Charitable contributions
- General financial relief
- Airline carrier refunds
- Fake cures and vaccines
- Fake testing kits

Counterfeit Treatments or Equipment
Be cautious of anyone selling products that claim to prevent, treat, diagnose, or cure COVID-19. Be alert to counterfeit products such as sanitizing products and Personal Protective Equipment (PPE), including N95 respirator masks, goggles, full face shields, protective gowns, and gloves.

More information on unapproved or counterfeit PPE can be found at www.cdc.gov/niosh. You can also find information on the U.S. Food and Drug Administration website, www.fda.gov, and the Environmental Protection Agency website, www.epa.gov. Report counterfeit products at www.ic3.gov and to the National Intellectual Property Rights Coordination Center at ipr center.gov.

If you are looking for accurate and up-to-date information on COVID-19, the CDC has posted extensive guidance and information that is updated frequently. The best sources for authoritative information on COVID-19 are www.cdc.gov and www.coronavirus.gov. You may also consult your primary care physician for guidance.

The FBI is reminding you to always use good cyber hygiene and security measures. By remembering the following tips, you can protect yourself and help stop criminal activity:

- Do not open attachments or click links within emails from senders you don't recognize.
- Do not provide your username, password, date of birth, social security number, financial data, or other personal information in response to an email or robocall.
- Always verify the web address of legitimate websites and manually type them into your browser.
- Check for misspellings or wrong domains within a link (for example, an address that should end in a ".gov" ends in .com" instead)

If you believe you are the victim of an Internet scam or cybercrime, or if you want to report suspicious activity, please visit the FBI's Internet Crime Complaint Center at www.ic3.gov.

Do not respond to anyone seeking bank account information by phone or email for your stimulus check
It has been reported that some people have been contacted by a supposed IRS representative, asking for bank account information in order to direct deposit stimulus checks. You should not give that information. The real IRS issued this statement on Monday about stimulus payments.

The Treasury Department and the Internal Revenue Service today announced that distribution of economic impact payments will begin in the next three weeks and will be distributed automatically, with no action required for most people.

However, some seniors and others who typically do not file returns will need to submit a simple tax return to receive the stimulus payment.

Who is eligible for the economic impact payment?
Tax filers with adjusted gross income up to $75,000 for individuals and up to $150,000 for married couples filing joint returns will receive the full payment. For filers with income above those amounts, the payment amount is reduced by $5 for each $100 above the $75,000/$150,000 thresholds. Single filers with income exceeding $99,000 and $198,000 for joint filers with no children are not eligible.

Eligible taxpayers who filed tax returns for either 2019 or 2018 will automatically receive an economic impact payment of up to $1,200 for individuals or $2,400 for married couples. Parents also receive $500 for each qualifying child.

How will the IRS know where to send my payment?
The vast majority of people do not need to take any action. The IRS will calculate and automatically send the economic impact payment to those eligible.

For people who have already filed their 2019 tax returns, the IRS will use this information to calculate the payment amount.

For those who have not yet filed their return for 2019, the IRS will use information from their 2018 tax filing to calculate the payment. The economic impact payment will be deposited directly into the same banking account reflected on the return filed.

The IRS does not have my direct deposit information. What can I do?
In the coming weeks, Treasury plans to develop a web-based portal for individuals to provide their banking information to the IRS online, so that individuals can receive payments immediately as opposed to checks in the mail.

I am not typically required to file a tax return. Can I still receive my payment?
Yes. People who typically do not file a tax return will need to file a simple tax return to receive an economic impact payment. Low-income taxpayers, senior citizens, Social Security recipients, some veterans and individuals with disabilities who are otherwise not required to file a tax return will not owe tax.

How can I file the tax return needed to receive my economic impact payment?
IRS.gov/coronavirus will soon provide information instructing people in these groups on how to file a 2019 tax return with simple, but necessary, information including their filing status, number of dependents and direct deposit bank account information.

I have not filed my tax return for 2018 or 2019. Can I still receive an economic impact payment?
Yes. The IRS urges anyone with a tax filing obligation who has not yet filed a tax return for 2018 or 2019 to file as soon as they can to receive an economic impact payment. Taxpayers should include direct deposit banking information on the return.

I need to file a tax return. How long are the economic impact payments available?
For those concerned about visiting a tax professional or local community organization in person to get help with a tax return, these economic impact payments will be available throughout the rest of 2020.

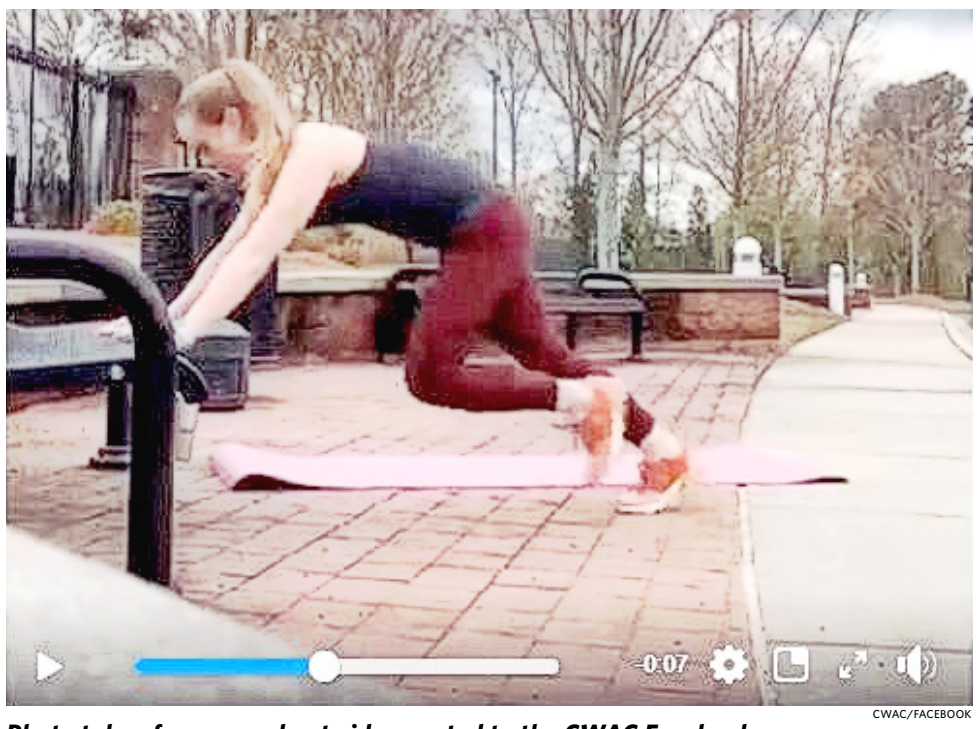

Where can I get more information?
The IRS will post all key information on IRS.gov/coronavirus as soon as it becomes available.

The IRS has a reduced staff in many of its offices but remains committed to helping eligible individuals receive their payments expeditiously.

Check for updated information on IRS.gov/coronavirus rather than calling IRS assistors who are helping process 2019 returns.

AG Marshall announces partnership with eBay to combat coronavirus-related price gouging

Office of Attorney General Steve Marshall

MONTGOMERY, Ala. – Attorney General Steve Marshall announced Tuesday a partnership with eBay to stop unconscionable online price gouging of Alabamians during the current pandemic. The partnership is part of Marshall's initiative to partner with the nation's largest retail and technology companies to enable a more proactive and vigilant approach to protecting the people of Alabama from coronavirus-related price gouging.

"I am pleased to welcome the cooperation of eBay in assisting my office in locating and shutting down online price gouging related to the coronavirus pandemic," said Marshall. "While unscrupulous operators too often prey upon the public during times of disaster, e-commerce businesses like eBay have the ability to identify bad actors and stop their illicit businesses from claiming more victims."

eBay officials have agreed to work with the Alabama Attorney General's Office in targeting any online price gouging aimed at Alabama customers.

eBay has a policy in place that prohibits price gouging.

The site recently announced it would temporarily prohibit the sale of certain masks and hand sanitizers, while placing additional restrictions on the sale of baby formula, baby wipes, diapers, tampons, and toilet paper, due to concerns that inflated prices for these products may violate applicable price gouging laws. In addition, it added a price gouging reporting tool, allowing users to directly report concerning listings to eBay representatives for review.

"At eBay, our priority is to ensure the safety of our customers and employees around the world. We have been closely monitoring the coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic and have taken significant measures to block or quickly remove items from our marketplace that make false health claims or offer products at inflated prices in violation of applicable laws," said Aaron Johnson, eBay vice president of Legal. "We share Attorney General Marshall's concerns about protecting consumers from price gouging and look forward to continuing to collaborate on this important issue."

Marshall announced that Alabama's price gouging law is now in effect with the issuance of a State Public Health Emergency by Governor Kay Ivey on March 13.

Although what constitutes an unconscionable price is not specifically set forth in state law, a price that is 25 percent or more above the average price charged in the same area within the last 30 days — unless the increase can be attributed to a reasonable cost in connection with the rental or sale of the commodity — is a prima facie case of unconscionable pricing.

The penalty is a fine of up to $1,000 per violation, and those determined to have willfully and continuously violated this law may be prohibited from doing business in Alabama.

The people of Alabama are encouraged to report suspected price gouging to the Consumer Interest Division of the Alabama Attorney General's Office using the online form available at www.alabamaag.gov/consumercomplaint, or by calling 1-800-392-5658 to receive a paper form by mail to complete and return.

Last week, as part of the same initiative to partner with major retailers and technology companies to combat coronavirus-related price gouging, Attorney General Marshall announced partnerships with Amazon (press release- www.alabamaag.gov/Documents/news/AG%20Marshall%20and%20Amazon%20Partner%20to%20Combat%20Price%20Gouging.pdf) and Facebook (press release- www.alabamaag.gov/Documents/news/AG%20Marshall%20and%20Facebook%20Partner%20Against%20Price%20Gouging.pdf).

The Masked Singer

The finalists from all three groups come together for a mega-competition as the Super Nine in the new two-hour episode "The Super Nine Masked Singer Special: Groups A, B & C." That keeps host Nick Cannon and judges Ken Jeong, Jenny McCarthy, Nicole Scherzinger and Robin Thicke busy as they sift through the challenging clues and try to discern which celebrity is under each mask.

7 p.m. on MTV
The Challenge

Credited in some quarters as the franchise that spawned the reality-competition genre, this long-running series returns to a solo game format for Season 35, following a successful season of "War of the Worlds 2." In this new rivalry, 28 players will confront strenuous challenges, plus a shocking twist, as they pursue a million-dollar grand prize. This season's Challenge rookies include familiar faces from "So You Think You Can Dance," "Big Brother," "American Ninja Warrior," "Survivor" and "The Amazing Race."

7:30 p.m. on WABM2
Schooled

Urged on by Coach Mellor (Bryan Callen), Lainey (AJ Michalka) decides to reach out to her estranged mother (guest star Megyn Price) with a chance to reconcile in the new episode "Lainey's Mom." Meanwhile, after seeing "Good Will Hunting," Wilma (Haneefah Wood) gets the idea to add a very unorthodox new member to the robotics club. Tim Meadows and Brett Dier also star.

8 p.m. on WBIQ
NOVA

Cancer kills an estimated 600,000 people in the United States annually, but while new immunotherapy drugs can be effective, they also are prohibitively expensive for most patients. The new episode "Cuba's Cancer Hope" explores how some frustrated Americans are taking matters into their own hands by defying a federal embargo and seeking treatment in Cuba, where physicians are developing promising, less costly vaccines.

9 p.m. on FOOD
Tournament of Champions

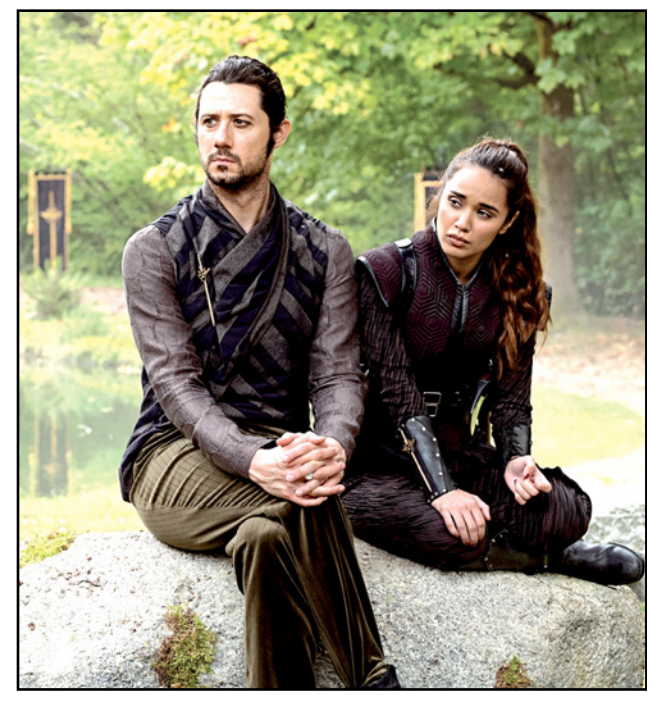

This culinary competition started last month with 16 of the world's finest chefs, but a series of cutthroat head-to-head battles steadily winnowed down the field of rivals. Tonight's tournament finale, "A Champion Is Crowned," finds the last two chefs ready to throw down in an epic confrontation. When the figurative dust settles, host Guy Fieri crowns the new champion.

9 p.m. on FXX
Dave

The gang stays with Dave's (Dave Burd, who also wrote this episode) parents while he's in Philadelphia for his first-ever concert in the new "Talent Shows." After taking time to reunite with his overnight camp friends, Dave takes a reflective moment to ponder the roots of his artistry. GaTa, Taylor Misiak and Andrew Santino also star.

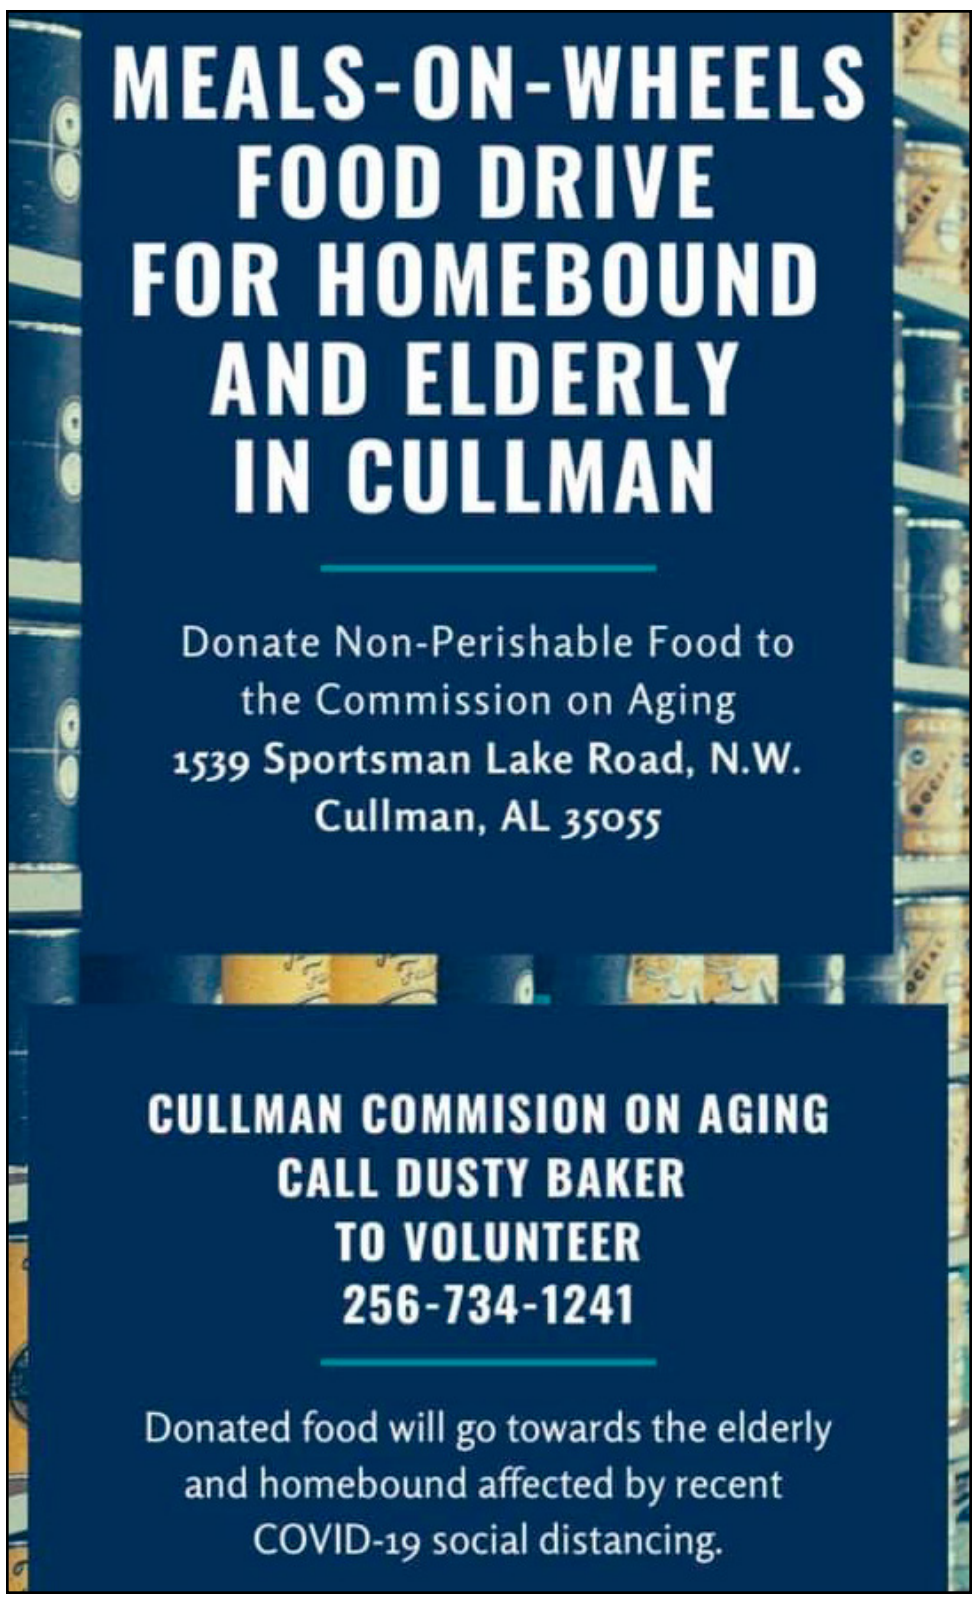

9 p.m. on SYFY
The Magicians

A series of novels by Lev Grossman provided the basic template for this freewheeling and very adult fantasy series, but this irreverent, imaginative and cocky show soon began to plot its own course, pulling from classic myths and legends, pop culture and, just as often, itself. Series star Jason Ralph, whose sweet but neurotic Quentin Coldwater was nominally the main character, left the show last season, but tonight's series finale is sure to be satisfying, thanks to cast MVPs Hale Appleman and Summer Bishil as besties Eliot and Margo.

Hale Appleman and Summer Bishil star in "The Magicians" on Syfy.

‘I get to finish with the girls I started with’

Alabama’s Claire Jenkins excited for 2021 after NCAA ruling

Nick Griffin
nick@cullmantribune.com

TUSCLOOSA, Ala. – With seemingly endless waves of bad news hitting the sports world day after day, the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) was able to send out a positive headlines Monday. The Division 1 Council voted to allow schools to provide spring-sport student-athletes an additional season of competition and an extension of their period of eligibility.

The Council’s statement reads in part:
“Members also adjusted financial aid rules to allow teams to carry more members on scholarship to account for incoming recruits and student-athletes who had been in their last year of eligibility who decide to stay. In a nod to the financial uncertainty faced by higher education, the Council vote also provided schools with the flexibility to give students the opportunity to return for 2020-21 without requiring that athletics aid be provided at the same level awarded for 2019-20. This flexibility applies only to student-athletes who would have exhausted eligibility in 2019-20.

“Schools also will have the ability to use the NCAA’s Student Assistance Fund to pay for scholarships for students who take advantage of the additional eligibility flexibility in 2020-21.

“Division I rules limit student-athletes to four seasons of competition in a five-year period. The Council’s decision allows schools to self-apply waivers to restore one of those seasons of competition for student-athletes who had competed while eligible in the COVID-19-shortened 2020 spring season.

“The Council also will allow schools to self-apply a one-year extension of eligibility for spring-sport student-athletes, effectively extending each student’s five-year “clock” by a year. This decision was especially important for student-athletes who had reached the end of their five-year clock in 2020 and saw their seasons end abruptly.”

There is at least one former Bearcat out there who will be affected by the ruling. Alabama shortstop and former Cullman standout Claire Jenkins had her senior season taken from her after an ACL injury last fall.

A medical redshirt will allow Jenkins to play her senior season next year and after the NCAA made its decision Monday, her fellow seniors will now be able to return with her.

Jenkins is happy to report that her recovery is going well since her injury and is already seeing daily improvements.

She admits it’s been a challenge to rehab and bounce back but knows she’ll be as ready to play as ever once the time comes.

“It is going extremely well. I have a great group of people that have been helping me recover. It hasn’t been easy, and it’s been a lot of hard work but every day I see little improvements,” Jenkins said. “It has been a test mentally and physically, but I fully believe that I will be stronger when it is all said and done.”

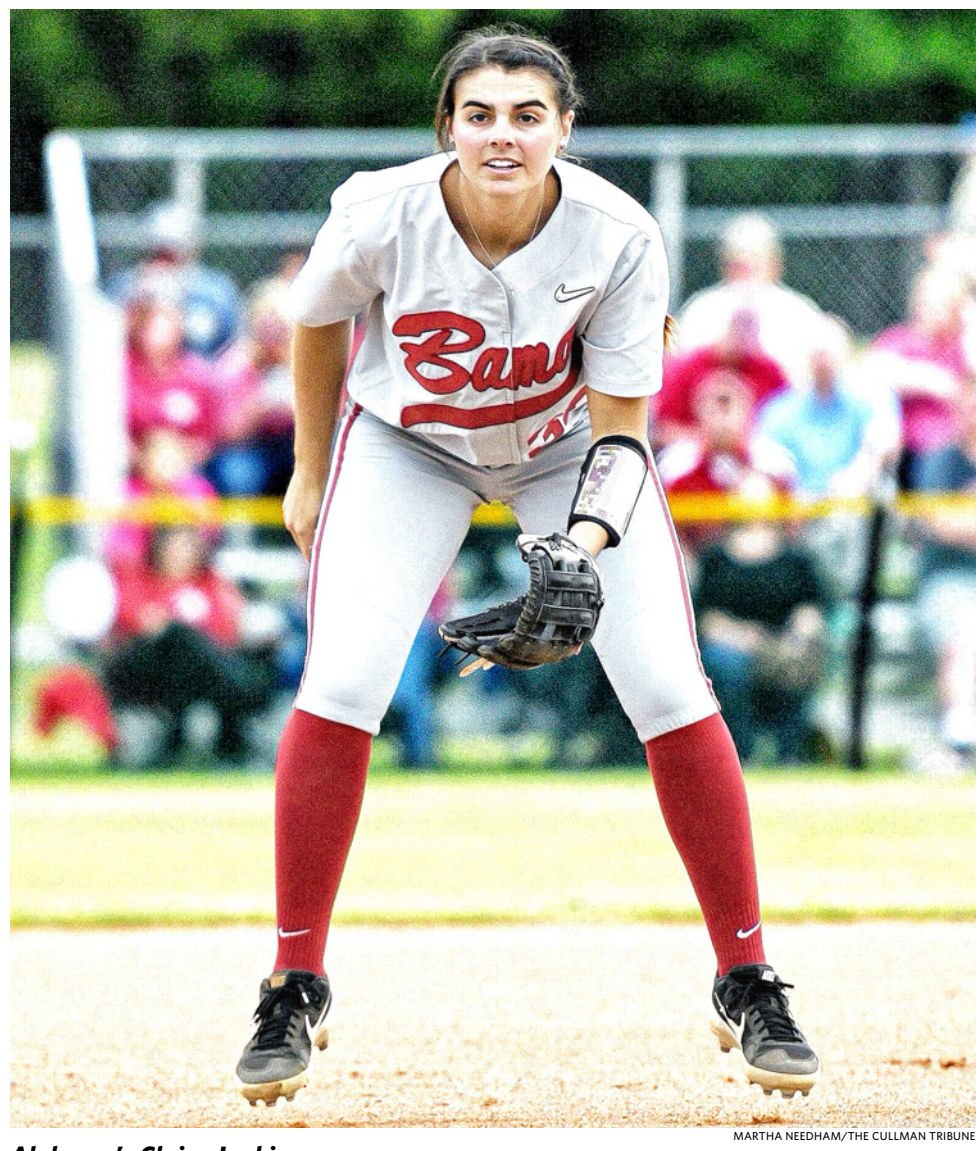

The effects of the COVID-19 outbreak are being felt virtually everywhere and one of the groups hit hardest have been senior spring athletes whose seasons were cut short.

Jenkins would have been able to take advantage of a medical redshirt and get back on the field for her senior season eventually but now, she’ll be able to play that season with her classmates as well.

“It has definitely kept me up at night I would say. For me it was weird because I had a medical redshirt so I knew that even though I may have to wait awhile I would still get my fourth year.

“On the other hand, the girls in my class didn’t have the same opportunity as me and that weighed heavy on me because I knew it would be extremely hard for me if I was in that position,” Jenkins said.

“However now since we all get an extra year it brings me immense joy because they get their fourth year and I get to finish with the girls that I started with.”

Alabama’s Claire Jenkins.

The events of the last few weeks have given us all a healthy dose of perspective and Claire and her teammates are no different. She’s more excited than ever to get back on the field with her team and she knows each of them will be cherishing every moment.

“Everyone is overjoyed and fired up! These events have opened up everyone’s eyes to how things can change in an instant. I know that all of us will enjoy every moment we have together next year and play every game like it’s our last,” Jenkins said. “Everyone should get ready for an amazing season next year.”

Auburn lands 2 golfers on 2020 Arnold Palmer Cup teams

Greg Ostendorf
AU Athletics

AUBURN, Ala. – The 2020 Arnold Palmer Cup teams were announced Friday, and Auburn women’s golf will have two players in the field with the selections of junior Kaleigh Telfer and freshman Megan Schofill.

Telfer, a native of South Africa, was named to the International Team while Schofill will represent her country playing for the United States Team.

“It’s such a huge honor for each of those young ladies or anyone that’s selected to represent their countries,” Auburn head coach Melissa Luellen said. “It also signifies that they’re considered top in the world in the college golf. Since they have had the girls in the last two years, it’s elevated the Arnold Palmer Cup to be one of the top events that all college players want to play in, male or female.”

Telfer ranked among the top six on the international side in the latest Arnold Palmer Cup rankings following a strong junior season that included an individual title at the Northrop Grumman Regional Challenge last month.

It was one of three top 10 finishes for Telfer who shot par or better in 12 of her 19 rounds this season.

Schofill was a coach’s pick for the U.S. Team. The freshman had four top 10 finishes in her first season on the Plains, including her first collegiate victory at the Lake Oconee Invitational in February.

This year’s Arnold Palmer Cup is scheduled to take place July 3-5 at Lahinch Golf Club in Lahinch, Ireland, but that could change based on the current situation with COVID-19. The Golf Coaches Association of America (GCAA) addressed the issue in a press release.

“In these unprecedented times, we do not know if the matches will be held as scheduled, postponed, or canceled. With the pandemic affecting so many lives around the globe, there are certainly more pressing issues than golf. However, we would like to recognize the accomplishments of these college golfers since last summer and during this college season.”

The event itself, co-founded by Arnold Palmer and the GCAA, is a Ryder Cup-style tournament featuring the top men’s and women’s collegiate golfers matching the United States against a team of International players.

Since its inception, over 100 former Arnold Palmer Cup alumni have gone on to earn cards on either the PGA Tour, European Tour or LPGA.

Auburn junior Julie McCarthy played in last year’s event and helped propel the International Team to victory. The United States leads the all-time series, 12-10-1.
