The effects of the coronavirus outbreak are being felt all over the world and school systems are no exception. Last week's decision from Gov. Kay Ivey and State Superintendent of Education Dr. Eric Mackey has brought the 2020 school year to an early and unexpected halt and this year's class of seniors are still dealing with the fallout. Some local students have shared their thoughts on the unprecedented situation as well as messages for their fellow classmates as they prepare for the next stage of their lives. If you are a local senior who would like to share your thoughts on the school year's end, you can send them and a photo of yourself to christy@cullmantribune.com.

Sayra Milne – Cullman High School

"Pray for the seniors. pray for the seniors who don't get to finish their last sports season. Pray for the seniors who don't get to put on that last show they've been working the past months on. Pray for the seniors who don't get to have that last competition. pray for the seniors who don't get their last award banquet. Pray for the seniors who don't get to have their favorite teachers' class one last time. Pray for the seniors that will miss so much. Pray for the seniors that can't get their yearbook signed. Pray for the seniors that don't get to have their prom. Pray for the seniors that don't get a senior trip. Pray for the seniors that don't get to walk down those halls one last time. pray for the seniors who will never see their classmates again. Pray for the seniors that never got to say goodbye. Pray for the seniors who have worked so hard for so long » PAGE 5

CULLMAN, Ala. – With so many people stuck at home for most of the day and restaurants limited to carry-out options, more and more people are faced with the task of cooking for themselves and their families for every meal every day. Some people may be used to this and have a variety of recipes and ingredients to rely on, but many people unused to the experience may be resorting to simple meals of cereal, sandwiches, frozen meals and boxed noodles over and over again. To help break out of the monotony and provide people with the chance to expand their cooking skills, The Tribune reached out to gather family-favorite recipes that anyone can try.

ALEA driver's license changes and STAR ID deadline extensions

ALEA
Contributor

MONTGOMERY, Ala. – The U.S. Department of Homeland Security, at the direction of President Donald J. Trump, is extending the REAL ID enforcement deadline to Oct. 1, 2021, in response to the Coronavirus (COVID-19). Alabama's version of the federal REAL ID program is STAR ID, which stands for Secure, Trusted and Reliable Identification.

ALEA Secretary Hal Taylor said, "We began modifying the Driver License Division operations Monday, March 16, and continued to serve customers on a more limited basis to reduce potential exposure to the virus.

"Starting today, March 26, ALEA Driver License offices will close all public access, and staff will remain on-site to answer phones and assist with online services.

"As always, we are dedicated to serving the citizens of this state, but we must make the health and safety of our customers and our personnel a priority.

"This deadline extension should relieve some of the wait time at ALEA's DL offices to obtain a STAR ID during the next several months."

During this closure, ALEA's Driver License personnel will be making contact with customers who scheduled appointments for services prior to the pandemic.

Please see below a summary of what services Alabama citizens will or will not be able to do at this time:

Customers will NOT be able to:

- Obtain first-time issuance of DL/CDL or ID card
- Take knowledge test (Learner's License, Motorcycle, CDL)
- Take road test
- Transfer out-of-state license
- Obtain foreign national/renewal
- Register vessel – first-time registration or transfer
- Obtain Ignition Interlock License

Customers will be able to:

- Renew DL/CDL/ID online
- Renew by mail – for Alabama drivers out of state for military, employment, missionary work, under a physician's care or other issues on a case-by-case basis
- Request a hearing online or by mail/fax. We will not take any law enforcement actions until hearing can be held.
- Change address by mail/email/fax. Address change document available online.
- Change name by mail/email. Contact ALEA DL for instructions.
- Renew hardship license
- Have license reinstated by mail/email/phone. May use credit card.
- Order MVR (driver history) by mail/email/phone. May use credit card.
- Order crash reports by mail/email/phone. May use credit card.
- Submit medical cards by fax/email
- Submit medical unit forms – fax/email
- Handle Mandatory Liability Insurance – online/mail
- Renew vessel registration online

Once ALEA's Driver License Division resumes normal operations, customers may schedule an appointment on the agency's website to obtain a STAR ID and conduct other driver license business.

In addition, Secretary Taylor would like to remind the public of the 60-day grace period for driver licenses (Code of Alabama, 32-6-1), but customers who would like to renew during the pandemic are encouraged to do so online.

Individuals whose driver licenses must be reinstated may contact the Driver License Division to handle it by phone.

For more information on STAR ID, online renewals and other services, and the latest on Driver License Division office closures, please visit www.alea.gov.

Jacobs proclaims April 'Sexual Assault Awareness Month' in Cullman

Leanne West
Contributor

CULLMAN, Ala. – Cullman Mayor Woody Jacobs on Thursday officially proclaimed the month of April 2020 Sexual Assault Awareness Month (SAAM) in the city of Cullman. In the proclamation, Jacobs challenged all citizens to observe #SAAM by joining advocates and communities across the country in playing an active role in the prevention of sexual assault and violence. A proclamation presentation ceremony was not possible due to the current Order of the State Health Officer Suspending Certain Public Gatherings due to Risk of Infection by COVID-19.

Carol Horstman, executive director of Victims Services of Cullman, Inc. (VSOC), requested the proclamation. VSOC was established in 1991 and began providing services to victims of sexual violence in 1996. Sexual violence refers to any sexual activity when consent is not obtained or given freely. VSOC's mission is to break the cycle of family violence and sexual assault, preventing future acts of abuse through education and outreach. They also help empower sexual violence survivors through support and advocacy.

The goal of Sexual Assault Awareness Month is to raise public awareness about sexual violence and educate communities on how to prevent it. While it's just one month out of the year, the attention April generates is an opportunity to energize and expand prevention efforts throughout the year. This year, SAAM is celebrating its 19th anniversary with the theme "I Ask" to empower everyone to put consent into practice because consent is a clear, concrete example of what it takes to end sexual harassment, abuse, and assault. This year's campaign shares the message that asking for consent is a normal and necessary part of sex.

Many of the customary SAAM events and observances also cannot be held due to the COVID-19 pandemic, but there are many resources available on the Victim Services of Cullman Facebook page (facebook.com/victimservicescullman) and various other places online and on social media that provide information on the issue of sexual violence.

"Sexual violence is a serious problem in our nation, and even in our community," said Jacobs. "We appreciate the services that Victims Services and other local organizations do to help victims of sexual violence and to help prevent sexual violence before it occurs."

Sexual violence impacts every community and can affect people of any gender, sexual orientation, age, and socioeconomic status. Statistics from the Centers for Disease Control (CDC) show that the majority of people who perpetrate sexual violence are known to their victims – friend, current or former intimate partner, coworker, neighbor, or family member. According to the National Sexual Violence Resource Center (NSVRC), nearly 1 in 5 women and 1 in 71 men in the United States have been raped at some time in their lives, and roughly 1 in 10 children will be sexually abused before they turn 18. Sexual violence can lead to serious short-term and long-term health consequences including physical injury, poor mental health, and chronic physical health problems. Sexual violence is also linked to negative health behaviors such as smoking, alcohol abuse, drug use, and risky sexual activity.

Anyone can be the target of sexual violence. It can occur in any situation, and is never the fault of the victim regardless of the circumstances. However, there are steps you can take to reduce your chances of becoming a victim of sexual violence, such as:

AT HOME:

- Make sure all windows and doors are locked securely and entrances are well-lighted.
- Check the ID of any sales or service people before letting them in.
- If you live in an apartment, avoid being in the laundry room or garage by yourself, particularly at night.
- If you come home alone and find a door or window open or signs of forced entry, don't go in. Contact local law enforcement.

WHILE WALKING:

- Be alert to your surroundings.
- Stay in well-lighted areas.
- Walk confidently at a steady pace on the side of the street facing traffic.
- Walk close to the curb and avoid doorways, bushes, and alleys.
- If you feel you're being followed, walk into a store or knock on a house door.
- If you find yourself in trouble, attract help any way you can.

WHILE DRIVING:

- Keep your vehicle in good working order and the gas tank at least half-full.
- Park in well-lighted areas and lock the doors.
- When you return to your car, have the key ready and check the front and rear seats before getting in.
- Drive with the doors locked.
- Never pick up hitchhikers.
- If you have a flat tire, drive until you reach a safe, well-lighted and well-traveled area.
- Exercise extra caution when using enclosed parking garages.
- If you are being followed, don't go home. Go to the nearest business or to the local police station.

WHEN DATING:

- Keep your cell phone charged and nearby.
- Tell a friend where you're going.
- Meet in a public place.
- Don't rely on your date for transportation.
- Don't leave your food or drink unattended.
- Limit alcohol consumption.
- Don't give out your personal information.
- Consider carrying pepper spray or Mace, just in case.
- Trust your instincts. If you feel uncomfortable, feel free to leave a date or cut off communication.

ON SOCIAL MEDIA:

- Adjust your privacy settings and select options that limit who can view your information.
- Turn off geolocation.
- Use a private Internet connection, and avoid public Wi-Fi connections.
- Do not click on or respond to suspicious messages received through social media.
- Report harassment or inappropriate content.

WHILE ONLINE DATING:

- Use different photos for your dating profile than what you have on your social media accounts.
- Avoid connecting with suspicious profiles or profiles with very limited information.
- Check out your potential date on social media.
- Block and report suspicious users.

AS A BYSTANDER:

- Give someone in trouble a safe ride home from a party.
- Confront someone who is engaging in threatening behavior toward someone else. Enlist a friend to help, if possible.
- Create a distraction to give a person at risk a chance to get to a safe place.
- Talk to a security guard, bartender, or other person in authority – or even call 911 – if you think someone is at risk or sexual violence.

AS A PARENT:

- Show interest in your child's day-to-day lives.
- Get to know the people in your child's life.
- Choose caregivers carefully.
- Know the warning signs of sexual abuse in children.
- Closely monitor your child's online activity.
- Teach your child about boundaries.
- Teach your child how to talk about their bodies.
- Let them know they won't get in trouble for telling you if someone is abusing them.

Prayer (from Front)

Heather Mann
heather@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN, Ala. – As hospitals around the country and around the world are ravaged with cases of COVID-19, a group of Cullman residents decided to let their faith give hope and inspiration to the staff and patients at Cullman Regional. With less than 72 hours of preparation, the group worked with Ron Mosley, Jr. from 92.1 WKUL and Jay Fuller from Cullman's Live 95.5 to record some messages and prayers so that people who attended could tune in on their radios and participate from their cars without breaking social distancing protocols.

The turnout was estimated to be around 50 cars in the front parking lot and over 100 in the rear lot, where speakers were broadcasting the music and messages for people inside the hospital without access to a radio.

Karen Campbell, one of the event's organizers, said the idea was inspired by a similar event she and Denise Hunter, another organizer, saw in Georgia where people played music for the hospital workers and patients.

"What better way to give back to our loving community hospital than to come together and pray," Campbell commented.

She also said that despite the short planning period, the radio broadcasters really helped to smooth everything out so that all people had to do was just tune in.

Due to the sheer number of people who showed up and the important social distancing protocols to prevent the spreading of disease, attendees were required to stay in or near their cars for the duration of the service.

However, participants were still able to give visible signs of their support to the staff and patients by putting on their hazard lights and honking their horns, so anyone in the hospital could hear them or look out nearly any window and see them.

After the service concluded, Hunter offered a few comments about how she felt the whole thing went.

"It was just beautiful seeing God's glory magnified the way it was. He was most definitely there last night with us.

"It was such a blessing to work with Karen and everyone else that was involved. God brings us together for a reason and this was definitely a win for His kingdom."

Recipes (from Front)

cheddar cheese

While the spaghetti is boiling, cook the beef and season with salt and pepper. Drain the fat and add the chopped onion, cook until slightly translucent (about 2 minutes) then add the garlic. Add the tomato juice and bring to a simmer. Add a couple dashes of Worcestershire sauce, cinnamon, and chili powder to your preference, and about a tablespoon of apple cider vinegar. Finally, this is a sweet kind of chili, so add the chocolate and stir in until melted and combined. Some people like it sweeter than others, so you may want to break the pieces into smaller bits and add gradually. Spoon it out onto a plate of spaghetti and top with shredded cheese while it's still hot.

BUTTERMILK PANCAKES
Contributed by Marissa Swimmelar, Walmart Distribution employee

My family's favorite pancake recipe. I made this when my friends in high school would spend the night.

- flour - 1 cup
- salt - 1 tsp.
- baking soda - 1 tsp.
- egg - 1
- buttermilk - 1 1/8 cups (If you don't have buttermilk, mix 1 tbsp. of vinegar with each cup of milk and let sit for 10 minutes)
- butter - 2 tbsp. (about 1/4 of a stick), melted

Preheat and lightly grease the pan/griddle. Mix the dry ingredients (flour, salt, and baking soda) together, then add the wet ingredients (butter, buttermilk, and egg). Stir together lightly but keep it lumpy. The batter should look spongy and puffy. Ladle about 1/3 cup onto the griddle and cook until lightly brown on each side. Serve with syrup or honey.

BANANA SUSHI
Also contributed by Marissa Swimmelar

- flour tortilla
- banana
- peanut butter
- honey (optional)

Spread peanut butter on the tortilla, lay down the banana and drizzle with honey. Roll the whole thing up and slice into rounds like sushi.

SAUSAGE PINWHEELS
Contributed by Allie Smith, Judson College student

- sausage of your choice
- cream cheese
- pizza dough (either fresh or canned)

Cook the sausage (you can add other fillings if you want) and mix with the cream cheese when it's cooked all the way. Roll out the pizza dough flat and spread the mixture all over it. Roll the dough into a log and slice into rounds. Bake for 10 to 15 minutes at 375 F.

ITALIAN PORK CHOPS WITH HOMEMADE FRIES
Contributed by Teresa Hunt, Cullman resident

A simple yet elegant home dinner.

- boneless pork chops
- egg - 1
- breadcrumbs
- Italian seasoning
- Parmesan cheese
- salt and pepper to taste
- skin-on potatoes - 2-3, thinly sliced

Toss the potato slices in olive oil, salt, and pepper. Bake at 350 F for 30-45 minutes until crispy. While the fries bake, prepare the chops by beating the egg in one dish and combining the breadcrumbs, Italian seasoning, Parmesan cheese, salt and pepper in another. Coat the chops in the egg, then the seasoned bread crumbs. Bake at 375 F for 15-20 minutes.

Halls (from Front)

Maggie Darnell, W.C. Mann

As school facilities officially close for the year, and teachers and administrators prepare to finish the year via distance learning methods, a few area teachers share their views on academic life in the pandemic.

Good Hope Primary School First Grade Teacher April Bowen German
"The day Governor Ivey made the announcement was a sad day for those of us in education, as well as the students. Although I understand the reason, because the kids' safety comes first always, I wasn't ready to say goodbye.

"It's always hard to say goodbye at the end of the year, because you become a family. But at least you have time to prepare yourself; I wasn't prepared for this.

"I'm extremely thankful for the use of technology right now, because I have been able to communicate with my students that way, but it still isn't the same as seeing them face to face, or getting those sweet hugs that I looked forward to everyday!"

Cullman High School Principal Kim Hall
"I am so encouraged by the teamwork exhibited by our school system and our teachers. I am broken-hearted for all those personally impacted by this horrible pandemic and I pray for those workers fighting this battle on the frontlines. My heart aches for the Class of 2020 and we miss all of our students tremendously. I pray that everyone does their part to mitigate the spread of this virus so we can be with each other again soon."

Cullman High School Choral Director Sarah Jane Skinner
"My administration has been wonderfully supportive in this time and have provided ways through our one-to-one technology plan to continue instruction. I already miss my students terribly, especially my seniors, but I completely agree with all of the safety decisions made.

"With the fine arts, especially choral music and theatre, it is more about the process than the product. Although the choral and theatre productions we have been working on will not occur, I am incredibly thankful for the memories we were able to create in the rehearsals we were able to have.

"We are now focusing on honing individual skills through Google classroom assignments, and although we would much rather be singing and performing together, I am so glad that we are taking these measures to stay safe."

Cullman High School Theatre Director Wayne Cook
"We were looking forward to presenting Bright Star, but I told students that their health and well-being is much more important right now. It has stopped many of us in our tracks but at CHS and CCS - the planning has been tremendous. Our principal put things in place before we left the campus, so that we were in a much better place than most. We also have tremendous access to technology, and my classes, along with a large percentage of others on our campus, were already using online learning. I took my Google classroom format and adjusted to our needs at this time.

"I'm also blessed with professional organizations that support Theatre Education. I have more options for teaching than I could ever consider using.

"The biggest loss for us is the financial support we rely on when we do a show. This support keeps us going from year to year. I'm not sure how we will handle that but, we will make adjustments and get creative. I feel as if the community will rise up and help at the appropriate time."

West Point English Teacher, Scholars' Bowl Coach Lee Henry
"Personally, I know how hard my students worked and how much they learned this year. I'm not so concerned about them falling behind in education. Instead, I mourn for their lost experiences and the unfair denial of their rites of passage.

"I teach a lot of seniors. My heart hurts for them so much. The idea that they ate their last lunch together, played their last games together, performed their last concerts together, etc. and never even realized it was their last is what hurts the most. I'd do anything to give them those experiences back. Academically, they will be fine. But we can never replace those experiences. And that's a tragedy."

Cullman Area Technology Academy Principal Billy Troutman
"CTE (Career & Technical Education) courses are centered around hands-on activity and formative assessment. Learning how to weld requires practice and then building upon that practice. This is the case for all CTE programs in general. With the current conditions, CTE teachers will shift these last few weeks of instruction around theory. We will be preparing online assignments and paper packets for those students. CTE instructors will spend time communicating with students via phone or email. Our biggest push now will be offering credentials to students through digital platforms and/or hands-on assessment maybe in June before the end of SY 2020.

"The biggest impact is probably the things we took for granted. Seeing students each day, shaking their hands, seeing them smile and the hustle and bustle of day to day school. CATA students have found a niche at our school and are excited to be working and building a platform for future success. These few weeks or even months not at school will be a setback, but nothing that we won't overcome and be better off in the end.

"We are dedicated to following the COVID-19 safety protocols and will be ready and waiting for next fall!"

Cold Springs High School Principal Eric Dickerson
"It is hard to believe that it has only been two weeks since the schools were dismissed, as it has seemed like two years. The hardest part of this has been not being able to see the kids every day, the school buildings are still here but the energy and spirit that is lacking without the students and staff is undeniable. However, we are going to do everything can during this time to make sure the students receive the best education possible under these circumstances. Our system has developed a plan for how we will proceed and we will begin introducing that next week to our parents and students. We will make the best out of this situation that we have been given and we look forward to returning to normalcy in the near future."

Fairview Elementary Principal Marty Hardman
"Like everyone else, it's one of the saddest situations I've ever had to deal with in education. We have been in the planning stages of finishing this school year under Dr. (Shane) Barnette's leadership and like everyone else, it feels it changes every day, it seems like due to unforeseen consequences, but we do have a plan in place that we will be getting out to folks on Wednesday, April 8, 2020. Obviously, when we do return to school, we will be doing a lot of remediation and reviewing to make up for this time that we missed. We just hope that all the kids are safe and well and we ask that if they need anything that they can call us, starting on Monday (April 6, 2020) from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the school, they can go on our website if they do not know our email address and email us with any concerns, and I will be doing an all-call eventually with plans for what the next few days, weeks and months are going to look like as far as school."

Cullman City Primary School Principal Tricia Culpepper
"We always want to keep our families safe and protected, so this was a necessary closure, but that doesn't mean it doesn't hurt, but we have a really good method for delivering instruction and our teachers have worked night and day the last two weeks in order to come up with a good plan. It's brought us, we have always been a close-knit faculty, but this even though we're apart physically, it's really brought us together, and we're just committed to our families and to our students."

World Health Organization, gaming industry launches #PlayApartTogether campaign to combat COVID-19

Nick Griffin
nick@cullmantribune.com

It was just a year ago that the World Health Organization (WHO) classified video game addiction as a mental health disorder but today, with seemingly everything across the globe being postponed or canceled due to the spread of coronavirus, the WHO is changing its tune. As health experts continue to put out more recommendations for people to avoid leaving the house whenever possible, the WHO is encouraging people to stay home and play video games.

The WHO is supporting a game industry initiative dubbed #PlayApartTogether, which is designed both to encourage people to play video games and to educate them about social distancing practices designed to slow the spread of the novel coronavirus.

The plan involves a long list of major gaming companies, including Activision Blizzard, Riot Games, Unity Technologies, Amazon, Twitch, and YouTube Gaming.

Some of the major names in the industry have introduced special events and content in their games during the pandemic to help satisfy the massive number of gamers playing at home and help keep them there.

Some of the leaders of the industry's biggest companies have shared their support of the new campaign.

Activision Blizzard - Bobby Kotick, CEO
"It's never been more critical to ensure people stay safely connected to one another. Games are the perfect platform because they connect people through the lens of joy, purpose and meaning. We are proud to participate in such a worthwhile and necessary initiative."

Big Fish Games - Jeff Karp, Managing Director and President
"There has perhaps never been a more pivotal time than present, for solidarity around a cause, such as the one facing us now with COVID-19. Together, with our global community of games publishers and the technical guidance of the World Health Organization, we hope to reach millions of players across our titles with the #PlayApartTogether campaign. Through games like Cooking Craze, Gummy Drop, Decurse and Fairway Solitaire, we can share WHO's important message of safety while letting our community know that they are not alone. We are all in this together, even if we are apart."

Dirtybit - Anette Staloy, VP of Business and Marketing
"Our mission is to let people create memorable moments together, and our focus has always been on creating social game experiences. Our players all over the world have been sharing heartwarming stories about how much it means to them to be able to connect with and keep in touch with friends and family through our Fun Run games. We appreciate the opportunity to take part in the #PlayApartTogether initiative, to help encourage people to follow the guidance of the WHO and local health authorities."

Glu Mobile - Nick Earl, President and CEO
"Games have the power to not only entertain people but bring them together in difficult times. We are proud to join arms with the games industry to support the World Health Organization as we encourage a global community of players to #PlayApartTogether. Across multiple games in Glu's portfolio, we are actively encouraging players to follow WHO guidance and that of local health authorities for the health and safety of their families and communities."

Jam City - Chris DeWolfe, Co-founder and CEO
"Jam City knows that many are turning to games for stress relief and a little joy during these perilous times. As a game company with tens of millions of players, we call on everyone to #PlayApartTogether to flatten the curve and put an end to COVID-19."

Kabam - Tim Fields, CEO
"At Kabam we entertain the world. And the role of entertainers is never more important than in hard times. Kabam supports the #PlayTogetherApart initiative; by following the wise guidance of the World Health Organization we can ease the burden on healthcare professionals and save lives. What better time to catch up on some of your favorite games or try some new ones? You can be a hero by playing with your friends, together but apart."

Maysalward - Nour Khrais, Founder and CEO
"Everyone must do their part to fight this pandemic and reduce its spread. Staying home is an important way to protect ourselves and society from its danger. At Maysalward we are committed to fighting the spread with our, therefore, we are joining #PlayApartTogether and launching new games with more online gameplay capabilities. Stay Home, Stay Safe."

Playtika - Robert Antokol, CEO
"At Playtika, we believe that play is an integral part of life, even in the toughest of times. We are proud to promote messages by the World Health Organisation and to join this coalition of games industry leaders to support the #PlayApartTogether campaign. As part of this important response to the COVID-19 pandemic, Playtika is fully committed to helping people worldwide stay safe and feel connected."

Pocket Gems - Ben Liu, CEO
"Games can provide needed entertainment while fostering connection. In these challenging times, Pocket Gems is supporting the #PlayApartTogether campaign together with our fellow developers to amplify key messages from the WHO. We hope players enjoy some added content and bonuses in our mobile games like Episode and War Dragons, while also getting important reminders from the World Health Organization."

Riot Games - Nicolo Laurent, CEO
"Physical distancing shouldn't mean social isolation! Let's stay physically apart – and take other public health steps such as hand hygiene – to help flatten the curve and #PlayApartTogether to help power through this crisis. For Rioters, playing games is more than just a game; it's a meaningful life pursuit. And now, for the billions of players around the world, playing games could help the pursuit of saving lives. Let's beat this COVID-19 boss battle together."

SciPlay - Josh Wilson, CEO
"Here at SciPlay, we're all driven by the joy our games bring to the global community. In these challenging times, we must all come together to fight the virus and flatten the curve of transmission. One of our core values is #playTOGETHER, which is ingrained into every action that we take in order to serve our players. We are honored that we can evolve this core value into the #PlayApartTogether initiative, which we believe in so strongly, and magnify live-saving messages from the World Health Organization. So, let's all #PlayApartTogether to stay healthy, both mentally and physically!"

Snap - Will Wu, Head of Snap Games
"It's so important that young people take staying at home seriously — they have a key role to play in helping stop the spread. Snap Games has always been a way for Snapchatters to connect and play with their friends even when far apart, so we're game to support the #PlayApartTogether initiative. We're committed to helping Snapchatters stay home by offering new games to play and creative tools that raise awareness for our community to protect themselves, their loved ones, and the greater public."

Twitch - Michael Aragon, SVP of Content
"Games are a huge part of what brings the Twitch community together each day. The #PlayApartTogether initiative is a reminder that even while it's crucial we keep our distance from one another, we can keep enjoying the games we love and stay connected with people online. We're pleased to share key messages from the WHO alongside other members of the initiative to continue providing a place where people can come together, play games, and create community."

Unity Technologies - John Riccitiello, CEO
"At Unity, we believe the world is a better place with more game creators and game players in it. Whether you're playing your favorite game with friends on the internet or learning how to make your first game with some of our now-free all-access coding initiatives, #PlayApartTogether can galvanize players to protect themselves and their families. We look forward to working with the global games industry to do our part as global citizens to flatten the curve."

YouTube - Ryan Wyatt, Global Head of Gaming
"For 15 years, YouTube has been a community where people do things alone but together through #withme videos — but it's more important now than ever to #StayHome and #PlayApartTogether. Some of the most impactful moments on YouTube have been creators virtually engaging with fans and other gaming creators halfway around the world via livestreams. Gamers know how to come together, even when we're apart, so let's be safe during this time and do our part as an industry to flatten the curve."

Zynga - Bernard Kim, President of Publishing
"Our mission at Zynga has always been to connect the world through games, and it has taken on a new dimension as we face this global crisis. We are honored to support the important work of the World Health Organization and provide our players with a support system during this period of physical distancing. The #PlayApartTogether initiative activates positivity and community that can help us commit to the urgent task at hand."

With schools and nearly all recreational activities canceled for the foreseeable future, the WHO's latest recommendation may be a small silver lining for the most active gamers within the community.

'Biggest blessing': How Auburn kicked its way into NCAA history

Greg Ostendorf
AU Athletics

AUBURN, Ala. – From 2010 to 2013, Cody Parkey made 136 extra points. It was almost automatic. Every time Auburn scored a touchdown, whether it was a 13-yard run from Mario Fannin against Chattanooga in 2010 or a 39-yard pass from Nick Marshall to Sammie Coates in the 2013 Iron Bowl, Parkey was there to tack on the PAT.

"From 20 yards, it's pretty cut and dry," Parkey said. "Really, unless it gets blocked, it's hard for someone to go out there and screw it up too bad. That being said, I've done it before."

Parkey missed two extra points in his Auburn career. The first came in 2011 when he was a sophomore, and the second time it was his senior year against Tennessee.

"Some big guy in the middle came up, got a little push and just swatted one of my extra points down," Parkey said. "I was like, Come on, man.' So, it happens. It happens to the best of us. Sometimes the snap and hold is difficult, the conditions – it's definitely not automatic."

This past season, 85 FBS teams missed an extra point. The season before that, it was 82.

However, that blocked PAT at Tennessee in 2013 was significant because Auburn didn't miss another one for 76 straight games.

It's a streak that spanned six seasons, included five different kickers, and when Anders Carlson stepped up and drilled his third extra point against Arkansas this past year, it marked 303 straight PATs made by Auburn kickers – setting the new NCAA record for consecutive PATs made.

"It's the biggest blessing and an honor just to be a part of a culmination of a lot of work put together," Carlson said. "It's a really cool thing to look back on, and to play a small role in that, it's pretty impressive."

Immediately after the game and setting the NCAA record, Anders called his older brother, Daniel Carlson. "I just want to say congrats to you," he told him.

"Daniel played the biggest role in all of it," Anders said.

Unlike Anders and Parkey, Daniel Carlson never missed a PAT in his four seasons at Auburn.

He made the first one he ever attempted against Arkansas in 2014, the last one in the fourth quarter of the 2018 Chick-fil-A Peach Bowl and 196 straight in between.

That's not to say every kick was flawless. Daniel remembers one, in particular, that got tipped and barely snuck over the crossbar. There were a handful of others that he didn't hit as clean. But they all found their way through the uprights – 198 in a row for the SEC's all-time leading scorer.

"That's a huge part of being a field goal kicker," Daniel said. "Obviously, a field goal is three points. That's a big part of it. That's what fans see and what the team sees a lot of the time.

"But those points after touchdowns, those are huge points toward the end of the game a lot of times. You have a lot of games that are one-score games, and one or two PATs may be the difference.

"One PAT may not be the hardest thing, but to say however many we made in a row, that's a little tougher. There are bound to be some mistakes in there whether it be someone missing a block a little or me mishitting the ball or someone messing up the snap or a hold."

When Daniel graduated and moved on to the NFL, the PAT streak was up 225. Next in line was Anders who took over the kicking duties as a freshman and made his first 71 extra points to set the NCAA record.

For Daniel, who better to break the record than your little brother?

"That's awesome," he said. "I'm just so proud of all his accomplishments he's had so far in his young career. I think he's hopefully going to have a chance to break a few more of my records and continue the kicking tradition we've had the last few years at Auburn."

"You have to be detailed in everything you do, and you have to understand it doesn't matter what kick it is, it's important to the team." - Anders Carlson

Ian Shannon was laying in bed this past October watching the Auburn-Arkansas game on TV when Anders broke the record. "I was a part of that," he thought to himself.

Not only did the former punter hold for Anders during the 2018 season, he attempted and made five extra points that year. Had he missed any one of those, there would be no record.

"Every time you go on the field, it's special," Shannon said. "People say the cliché: 'It's so special playing for the school.' But it does feel different.

"It feels like you're doing something for everyone in the stadium whenever you get to go out there and do something to help the team win. I didn't make any extremely critical PATs, but it was still points on the board to help us win games."

This past season, Sage Ledbetter took over the place-holding duties. Like Shannon, Ledbetter was sent out to attempt an extra point two different times in the Kent State game. At the time, the streak was up to 285. Auburn was just 18 PATs away from setting the record.

The junior wasn't nervous, though. He didn't even know about the streak. He stepped up and calmly knocked both attempts through the uprights, and now he's forever part of history.

"It's just a big honor," Ledbetter. "To be in the line with such great kickers that have been in this streak, it's just such an honor to even be considered to be included in that."

Five kickers. 78 games. 303 extra points. One record.

"I think it's just the emphasis we put on the small details," Anders said. "As a specialist, that's how you operate. You operate on details because you get one to five tries a game maybe, and so how are you going to operate when those five tries come up?

"You have to be detailed in everything you do, and you have to understand it doesn't matter what kick it is, it's important to the team. That's how we think."

but don't get to walk across that stage.

Pray for the senior class of 2020. We are strong but we are not okay."

Payton Overton – West Point High School
"So, I've kind of pushed this off in disbelief as to what's going on in the world around me. I know some parents are in awe of how this has affected us after saying how ready we are to leave and may couldn't come fast enough but that's because we thought we had time to make friends and make memories so Hold our hands. Let us process what has been taken away, Of course we know it could be worse.

"We know that some of you missed your graduation because you were being shipped off to a war. We know it because you continue to tell us. And we thank you for your sacrifice, but it's not a contest. And if it is, okay, you win. But the thing is, we are kids, even though we don't always want to admit it. Some of us have led sheltered lives, and this is our first hard-knock-life lesson. Some of us have led miserably hard lives and this is just another disappointment. Regardless, we are upset.

We have spent four years listening to our families and friends tell us how wonderful this year would be. We watched our older friends and family go to prom and walk across the stage at graduation as we all cheered and shed tears for what they had done. We wanted the same. We won't get it. It's okay for us to be sad. Don't scoff at us. Hold our hands. Let us grieve. Show us the way. Now we have to say goodbye to our routines to seeing our friends in class going to sporting events, competing in school contests and for me that was livestock judging and FFA, but now we don't know if we will see our classmates again. If we will get to say goodbye to the teachers who have shaped us into the people we are today.

Saying goodbye will be hard as the great Dr. Suess said, "Don't cry because it's over smile because it happened."

Taylor Jenkins – West Point High School
"This a rough time in life but I know it happened for a reason and I trust everything will be okay. I am looking forward to what my future will hold which includes college and my career path. I will miss all of my classmates and teachers that help me along the way, this is not how I imagined this happening. It has been an amazing journey and I have obtained great knowledge." #classof2020

Brett Patterson – Cullman High School
"I am a senior and the last couple of months, I won't even be there. I might not even get to walk. I have all this free time, but I have fewer hours at work now and nowhere to go. We aren't even able to hang out with our friends and if we could, there are no movies or places for us to go eat. Although I don't play sports and I'm not in the band, I feel really bad for those who won't be able to have their season or play in their final concerts. It's just not how anyone ever imagined their last few months of their senior year to be."

Nathaniel Killion – Cullman High School
"I understand the precautions that everyone is taking to prevent the spread of the coronavirus. I hate that our senior class is missing out of the final moments we have together as a senior class. I hope that we are still able to have our graduation. We have all worked so hard to get to this point, it would be sad for us not to get to experience this very special time in our lives."

Kelsey Griffin – Holly Pond High School
"My name is Kelsey Griffin, I'm a senior at Holly Pond High School. I've been at Holly Pond since preschool. I didn't realize that March 13,2020 was the last day I went to my classes and on March 14,2020 would be my last time getting to play the sport I've fell in love with soccer. This has been difficult for many seniors especially not knowing if we will have our last prom, our senior night at our last home game, getting to see our friends again, even our Graduation is getting questioned, and our senior trips we have planned. We have worked so hard to get to this last year of school and now our lives are basically on pause. All I want is to have a senior year just like the rest of my family members that have graduated before me."

I will not lie that this has really made me upset, but what I've been taught is that you can't let things like this get you down. God has a plan for everyone. We go through rough times and good times. To all the people that know a senior just tell that senior that you are there for them and to remember all the good times you had.

"Think of the future and how good it can be if you just strive for it. Now seniors, I know right now the last thing you want to hear is that everything is okay. We just got to keep our heads up and stay strong and be there for our families at this time. God is good..."

Jordan Bentley – Hanceville High School
"My name is Jordan, I'm a senior at Hanceville high. The COVID-19 disease has gotten to the point where I can't even have the great year I've heard been worked up since I was little. Just to think, my last day of high school has already been made. The fact that the class of 2020 is getting their diplomas in the mail is heart breaking. We gave our all and I mean blood sweat and tears into high school to get to the point to walk through the halls in our cap and gowns; to walk across that stage and accept and smile with our diploma. Just to think that could have been my last high school tourney last month, that could have been my last prom last year, it's really heart breaking. I want to wish every other senior across the country a good rest of the year and our younger classmen to be greatly appreciated for your senior year, because something could possibly happen where u can't walk across either. God bless you all."

Shay Brown – Hanceville High School
"My name is Shay Brown from Hanceville High School. As part of the senior class I can say without a doubt that COVID-19 has taken something from us. It has cut our last year short! Little did we know that March 18, 2020 would be the last time we walked through the halls we swore we hated so much. It would be the last time we complained about having to be there at 7:55 every morning. Little did we know it would be the last time we stood together at break, it would be the last time we got mad at our least favorite teacher. COVID-19 has robbed the class of 2020 of what is supposed to be the best year of our lives. It has taken Prom; it has taken Graduation. The part that hurts the most is that it has taken the laughs, the tears, the time together that we so desperately had begun trying to stock up on. It has taken away the happiness we all knew we had about coming to school, no matter how much we complained, these are just a few ways COVID-19 has affected us Seniors. We are now starting to realize what life after high school will be like."

Kinlee Puckett – Vinemont High School
"Ever since kindergarten my classmates and I would talk about all the cool things that we would get to do as seniors. The excitement for senior year only grew bigger throughout elementary and middle school. Finally, my senior year is here, and I am not sure that I will get to experience everything that I was so excited for. Prom and Graduation, two of the biggest moments in a senior year, are being pushed back rescheduled. All I can think is 'Will the corona-virus outbreak be calmed down enough by then? Will these major life moments even happen?' I know that the coronavirus is a serious problem and is effecting everyone's lives, but the senior class of 2020 may lose life moments that others may have taken for granted."

Morgan Haynes – Fairview High School
"The coronavirus pandemic is the scariest worldwide event that I've ever witnessed. I've never seen such a sheer state of panic in our nation. Being required to stay in our homes for an uncertain amount of time is also something I've never experienced before. I didn't realize how much I would miss my classmates, or how much I took precious time with them for granted. Senior events such as senior class pictures, prom, and even our graduation ceremony have had to either be postponed, cancelled, or are still in consideration for change. We have dreamed of these events for so long. We don't want to see them disappear before our eyes. I understand that our government, local authorities, and school board are trying to protect us from this dreaded disease. I respect them and their decisions. However, it's so disheartening knowing that a culmination of thirteen years of work for these privileges and events is slipping from our grasp."

Devan Fumes – Fairview High School
"My name is Devan Humes, a senior at Fairview High School. I never really would have thought that I would miss school as much as I do right now. I miss my friends and my teachers. I've come to some realization this week that I might miss the things I have worked at for 13 years. My graduation might get canceled, my senior prom probably won't happen, and my last theatre performance probably won't happen either. I wish I could say I haven't been stressed about this, but I have. I feel so bad for every senior that has to go through this. I Don't really know if my senior year is over yet but if it is, I want to let my friends know that they were the only things that kept me happy at school and that I'll miss every moment I had with them."

OPINION

The Sovereignty of God, no. 12

Tom Fillinger
Tribune Columnist

Today we continue in our study of the Sovereignty of God. Their offering was contrary to God's command. "So fire came out from the presence of the Lord and consumed them, and they died before the Lord . . . . And Aaron held his peace." Two of the high priests' sons were slain, slain by a visitation of Divine judgment, and they were probably intoxicated at the time. Moreover, this trial came upon Aaron suddenly, without anything to prepare him for it; yet, "Aaron held his peace." Precious exemplification of the power of God's all-sufficient grace!

Consider now an utterance which fell from the lips of David, "Then the king said to Zadok, "Take the ark of God back into the city. If I find favor in the Lord's eyes, He will bring me back and let me see it and His dwelling place again. But if He says, 'I am not pleased with you,' then I am ready; let Him do to me whatever seems good to Him!" (2 Sam. 15:25, 26). Here, too, the circumstances which confronted the speaker were exceedingly trying to the human heart. David was sore pressed with sorrow. His own son was driving him from the throne, and seeking his very life. Whether he would ever see Jerusalem and the Tabernacle again—he knew not. But he was so yielded up to God, he was so fully assured that His will was best, that even though it meant the loss of the throne and the loss of his life he was content for Him to have His way, "let Him do to me whatever seems good to Him!"

There is no need to multiply examples—but a reflection upon the last case will be in place. If amid the shadows of the Old Testament dispensation, David was content for the Lord to have His way; now that the heart of God has been fully revealed at the Cross—how much more ought we to delight in the execution of His will!

8. The doctrine of God's sovereignty evokes a song of praise.

It could not be otherwise. Why should I, who am by nature no different from the careless and godless throngs all around—have been chosen in Christ before the foundation of the world? Why was I, who once was an alien and a rebel, singled out for such wondrous favors!

There is a great deal of "Strange Fire = corrupt doctrine in many churches today. Mature biblical discernment is essential.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Hanceville opts out of Families First Coronavirus Response Act

Christy Perry
christy@cullmantribune.com

HANCEVILLE, Ala. – The Hanceville City Council held a special meeting Thursday afternoon outside of city hall to consider a resolution to opt out of the Families First Coronavirus Response Act passed by Congress on March 18, 2020. The city council did pass the resolution as well as cuts made by the City during the Covid-19 State of Emergency.

The Families First Coronavirus Response Act creates the Emergency Family and Medical Leave Expansion Act and the Emergency Paid Sick Leave Act.

City Clerk Tania Wilcox explained, "We are allowed to exempt or opt out of coming up under the Families First Coronavirus Response Act, which is divided up into two parts- to provide paid leave to employees under certain situations.

"One of the biggest things about it is the employees would not use their sick or vacation time.

"The city would just pay them, and it's up to 12 weeks.

"By not coming up under this act, the regular FMLA, Family Medical Leave, would still apply; it's just that the employee would have to use their own time and it would be for sickness."

Wilcox continued, "Our fire, rescue and police and the other services we provide is more heightened now than any time for local government.

"It was just felt, if this was out there and available, that it would be where to that the City would not be able to run properly."

Mayor Kenneth Nail pointed out that employees can still use their sick time if they feel sick and that the City of Cullman had already opted out of the Act.

Wilcox also said that no employees had come forward with any legitimate hardship complaint or situation.

Wilcox added, "Companies that have 500 or more employees don't have to come under it anyway.

"They are exempt automatically. Companies under 50 employees are exempt and then all the companies in between are allowed a payroll tax credit.

"So, for every dollar they pay out in payroll to this, they get a payroll tax credit and that would help tremendously except they exempted local government from being able to claim the tax credit on that.

"I don't see how the City of Hanceville could actually, monetarily, fund it."

The council passed the resolution unanimously.

Nail stressed, "Look, we've always worked with our employees.

"I've always said that I don't think we have ever turned anybody down on vacation time or their sick time.

"If there is an issue or a family issue, I say, 'Go, take care of your family.' We didn't want to paralyze the city, but we are kind of afraid that we could get to a situation and didn't do this, it could paralyze the city."

The City does have a sick leave sharing program in the event an employee experiences a "catastrophic" situation.

Nail also met with department heads throughout the week to find ways to cut back on part-time employees in hopes of protecting the City's full-time employees.

One dispatch (36 hours) and one court clerk office (40 hours) positions will remain unfilled through the duration of the COVID-19 emergency.

Nail said, "These are cuts that have hurt, but we felt like we had to do it to save the full-time employees.

Cuts also include:

- 36 hours at the Hanceville Fire Department
- 4 part-time positions at Public Works (92 hours)
- 3 part-time Library employees (55 hours)

The kids' and senior Fish-O-Rama events have been canceled as well as extra equipment and material purchases in additional efforts to cut back on expenses.

The Hanceville City Pool will continue to carry out minimal maintenance to the pool. Right of way mowing will be done on a bi-weekly basis rather than weekly.

The scheduled May 9 concert at Hanceville Civic Center will be rescheduled for later in the summer.

Obituary Announcements
April 2

Private graveside services for Charles "Chuck" Conn, 83, of Cullman were at 2 p.m. Monday, March 30, 2020, at Welti Cemetery with Jimmy Peyton officiating. Cullman Heritage Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements. Mr. Conn passed away Friday, March 27, 2020 at his residence. He was born July 15, 1936 to Clarence C. and Joyce McClung Conn. He was preceded in death by his parents and son Charles "Chuck" Conn, Jr. Survivors include his wife June Conn; stepsons Rodney Bascenburg and Reggie (Leigh) Bascenburg; daughter Cheryl Conn; sons Chris Conn and Cary (Patti) Conn; step-grandchildren Jeremy (Jesica) Crowe, Maeleigha (Danny) Weaver, and Dylan (Mykenzie) Bascenburg; grandchildren Christopher (Savannah) Conn, Jacqueline (JR) McVoy, James Conn, Katie Conn, Kelly Conn, Christy Conn and Danny Conn; and 11 great-grandchildren. A private family visitation will be prior to the graveside service. The family will announce a memorial at a later date. In lieu of flowers please make donations to Welti Cumberland Presbyterian Church or to the cemetery.

Kelsey Cheyanne Yancey, 21, of Bear Creek was born Feb. 3, 1999 in Russellville and entered into rest Monday, March 30, 2020 at North Alabama Medical Center in Florence. God makes everyone special and unique in His own way. Kelsey was her own person, free spirited. She was a dear friend to everyone and listened to people. She helped give them advice so they would know everything was going to be alright. She was happy, loved life and had a beautiful heart inside and out. She loved unicorns and thought they were awesome. She has always been everyone's peacock because she was full of life and everyone loved her. In her teen years and becoming a young woman, everyone who knew her called her the "Jokester" because she was funny, happy and full of love. The Jokester, so fun to be around, good friend, good person and loved by everyone. Kelsey liked to hang out with her friends, riding around in her car with the music up loud, enjoying life. She loved to sit at home with her friends and play her video game, PlayStation, for hours and hours, sometimes all night long. She loved stuffed animals of any kind, big or small. She loved to cuddle up with them and watch TV and even sleep with them. Most important in her life was her son. She loved her son and would hold him, talk to him, sing to him and sometimes, just look at him. She loved spending time with him and taking pictures of him. She was a great artist and loved to paint pictures and draw things. Drawing pictures is a wonderful talent and she was good at it. As per state and federal guidelines, a private service will be held. Burial will be in Mt. Joy Cemetery in Phil Campbell. Kelsey is survived by her parents Kenneth and Brandi Stevens; son Kingston Yancey; her dog Beanie; sister Starla Wells; brother Jonathon Hardin; grandparents Anita Cromeans "Nanny," Sam and Lesa Heath; aunts and uncles Keith and Frances Barnett, Jon and Joe Yancey, Samuel and Amber Heath, and Justin and Amanda Sartin; nephews Thunder, Jason and Brantley Wells; cousins Timothy Barnett, Jr., Michael and Tiffany Baker, Nik, Eli, Lexxi, and Kloey Yancey, Trever Burrow, Trayven, Caleb and Juno Heath, and Chloe Hill; and a host of other family and friends. She was preceded in death by her grandmothers Jewel McKinney Gentry and Doris Jean Heath and grandfathers Charlie Eugene McKinney and John William Heath.

Helen Farmer Dye, 95, went to rest in Jesus Tuesday, March 31. She was preceded in death by her husband Ed Dye, sisters Estelle Kelly (George), Ima Williams (Troy), Brothers Herschel Farmer (Nina), JT Farmer (Ethelene), sons Jimmy Dye and Lamar Dye. Survivors include Keith Dye (Jane) and sister Shirley White (Bill) and several grand and great grandchildren. In lieu of flowers the family requests donations to Shriners Children or Saint Jude Hospitals. A celebration of life will be held at a later date.

Wallace State student embarking on special project for area families affected by Alzheimer's, dementia

Gail Crutchfield
WSCC

HANCEVILLE, Ala. – When Aaron Holder gave his wife Danielle a hand-drawn portrait of her and her "Granny" for Christmas, he didn't know at the time that it would spark the idea for a special art exhibit project. But that sketch done in pencil was the impetus for "A Memory That Never Fades," an exhibit he hopes to show at The Evelyn Burrow Museum at Wallace State and elsewhere in the future.

Holder, a 2019 graduate of Wallace State Community College's Visual Communications Program, is currently taking classes at WSCC in preparation to transfer to Athens State University to pursue a bachelor's degree in Graphic Design, with a minor in Marketing.

The goal of his exhibit project is to collect photos of a family member with a loved one with Alzheimer's or dementia, from which Holder can sketch a portrait, and help to preserve a memory.

When Holder gave his wife the large-scale portrait of her and her grandmother, he said she was very excited about it and very emotional. "I got to thinking that I could do this for other people and develop a project that would touch more people's lives," Holder said.

Holder is currently looking for subjects who would be willing to let him create a sketch from a photograph or image they submit. He said he's hoping to complete 25 to 30 drawings for a future exhibit. He said he has a few already.

"I've got images from early stage to end stage," he said. "There's a big difference in the aesthetic of what's going on in the picture."

The only restriction for submissions, Holder said, is to limit the number of subjects in each picture to two. Otherwise, submitters can send the image they prefer. "Just any memory that they want to hold on to," he said, adding families are encouraged to provide a background story to go with the image.

Those featured in the exhibit won't be able to keep the original artwork, which will be designated for exhibition, but they will receive a free 8-by-10 art paper copy. Holder said he hopes to make the exhibit an annual event and build onto it each year. Should he receive more submissions than the 25 to 30 he's seeking initially, Holder said he may save the extra for future exhibitions.

"I'm really hoping that when this exhibit gets put on, that the community gets to share the moments that these families are having," Holder said.

Burrow Museum staff are already looking forward to hosting what promises to be a moving, engaging exhibition by a talented alumnus.

"I think it's a great concept," said Adrian Scott, head of the Art Department at Wallace State. "I love it in terms of working with clientele and something so emotional and involved with the people he would be doing the portraits of."

Scott said he's not surprised at Holder's ambition. "He's always shown great initiative," he said. "He's always had big ideas and has a heart for things like that."

Anyone interested in submitting an image for the project can contact Holder via email at designdenal@gmail.com.

Wallace State celebrates the stories of students and alumni in April, which is designated as Community College Month, and all year long. If you would be willing to share your Wallace State story please email communications@wallacestate.edu. Registration for Summer also begins this month on April 14. Visit www.wallacestate.edu to learn more.

Wallace State Community College student Aaron Holder created an 18-by-24-inch graphite portrait of his wife Danielle and her grandmother, sparking an idea for a future exhibit he's calling "A Memory That Never Fades." He is looking for submissions of photographs he can use to create more drawings for the exhibition.

CULLMAN, Ala. – With the school closure and schools turning to online courses for students, many schools are hosting "drive-by parades" to say good-bye to their beloved students one last time. Cullman City Primary School (CCPS) followed the trend Wednesday morning, with a line of cars down Stadium Drive, giving students the opportunity to wave good-bye to their teachers and other CCPS faculty and staff.

CCPS Principal Tricia Culpepper shared, "This was for our CCPS at home campaign and we needed to kind of end the year with our students.

"Our teachers really wanted to make the connection with our families and our students so that we could say good-bye to them and wish them well, and we have a good plan going forward with our online learning, but today really is the start of our online learning, and it was important for our students to see our teachers and for our teachers really to see our students, because we miss them, we miss being at school, we love our students and our teachers threw a great job with them. Today was emotional, but it was a good day."

She continued, "It was for a way for us to connect with our families and for us to end the year, not really end the year since we'll be starting first thing April 6 with our online learning platform, but for us to reassure our families that we're still there for them and that our teachers are going to work with everybody to make this the best that we can do for our students for the remainder of the year. And it was a way for us to say good-bye to our first graders that we may not see again next year, and to just reassure families that we're there for them."
