Rock the South 2020 canceled due to COVID-19

Wendy Sack
wendy@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN, Ala. – Rock the South will not be happening this year, organizers announced early Thursday morning, saying, "In the best interest of our fans and our city, Pepsi Rock the South and the City of Cullman have decided to cancel this year's event scheduled for May 29-30, 2020."

The popular annual event was canceled due to COVID-19 and public safety.

"We have worked through the option of rescheduling, but have determined that the best decision is to cancel 2020.

"We are actively shifting our focus to building Pepsi Rock the South 2021 bigger and better than ever," said Nathan Baugh-partner/Pepsi Rock the South.

Cullman Mayor Woody Jacobs added, "We appreciate Pepsi Rock the South putting the safety of our city and Rock the South fans at the top of its decision-making process.

"Cullman will be an incredible place to be in 2021 for Pepsi Rock the South."

Those who have already bought tickets for Rock the South 2020 can use those tickets for Rock the South 2021 or receive a refund.

Organizers said donated ticket funds will be used in conjunction with Pepsi Rock the South's donations to local food banks, including Cullman Caring for Kids and the Community Food Bank of Central Alabama.

In addition, Rock the South is donating thousands of masks to the Cullman County Commission on Aging to distribute to the high-risk community in Cullman County.

Rock the South 2021 will be held June 4-5, 2021 in Cullman. Visit www.rockthesouth.com for the latest information.

NEXT STEPS:

1. If you would like to apply your 2020 tickets to 2021, don't do anything at all. If we don't hear from you before May 30, 2020, your tickets will automatically be valid for 2021.

2. If you would like to donate the funds from your ticket OR receive a refund for your tickets, go to www.

CULLMAN, Ala. – Pastors and other ministers from across the Cullman community on Thursday will host "One Cry Cullman," an online prayer event to mark Holy Thursday/Maundy Thursday, Christianity's traditionally recognized night of the Last Supper.

Northbrook Baptist Church Pastor Keith Warden told The Tribune, "It's several of our pastors that were able to just get connected during all of this and wanted to come together to pray over our community and just stand with one another through all this."

The event's hosts include Warden and other local pastors John Richter of St. John's Evangelical Protestant Church, Tom Richter of First Baptist Church Cullman, Andy Heis of Desperation Church, Jason Murphree of CULLMAN, Ala. – Northbrook Baptist Church has, for a long time, maintained an outreach called The Caring Center at 1629 Second Ave. NW (Highway 31) in Cullman, to meet community needs.

The church says of this ministry, "The Caring Center is the local mission arm of Northbrook Baptist Church. We believe our call is to the less fortunate of Cullman and Cullman County.

"We attempt to do this by introducing all others to the love and lifestyle of Jesus Christ. All Others include those who are both young and old, sick and disabled, cold and hungry, the discouraged and the disengaged. All

Cullman Caring for Kids: Child Abuse Awareness Month on hold, child abuse is not

craig@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN, Ala. – As Cullman settles into a quarantine routine, April's status as Child Abuse Awareness and Prevention Month is easy to overlook, but the recently countywide (and worldwide, for that matter) spike in quarantine-fueled cases of domestic violence means that awareness is more important than ever, right now.

Cullman Caring for Kids (CCK) Assistant Director Nancy Bryant, who heads up the agency's Child Abuse Awareness and Prevention Month activities, told The Tribune, "I do want people to know we're sitting on 'go.' We were ready for April; Tonja (Grace) and I worked very, very hard and we had things ready; of course, it's on hold now.

"But we are going to be putting up bows through the town, as soon as we get the opportunity.

"What we're going to do is, hopefully when all this is over, then we're going to do a Child Abuse Awareness Month, whatever month it's going to be. We're going to do the things that we already had planned, because we don't want anyone to ever forget that child abuse is happening every day.

"Everyone needs to open their eyes and their ears, and they need to be listening for these children because, right now, as we all know, the domestic violence rates are higher.

"There's a lot of things happening that we don't even want to think about, but we have to.

"As much as possible, we all need to be listening for our neighbor kids and know the signs. If you have your neighbor kids trying to eat out of your garbage cans, if you hear screaming, if you see bruises, if you suspect some child is being abused, then everyone should call DHR.

"If we feel it, if we see it, we need to call and report that, because child abuse does not stop."

Child abuse claimed 24 lives in Alabama during 2019. CCK's Court Appointed Special Advocate (CASA) program's 31 current volunteers were actively working 100 Cullman County cases involving abused or neglected children at the time of the recent COVID-19 shutdown, and CASA was in the process of training eight new advocates.

CCK food pantry needs help

Tuesday was a slow day for the CCK food bank, the first one in two weeks. Bryant reported that the agency saw 88 families last Friday, and served a total of 635 families in March, 131 of which were new clients. The increase is taking its toll.

On Monday, CCK Director Javon Daniel and staffer Tonya Grace posted photos of bare shelves in the food pantry, and Bryant reported on Tuesday that supplies are "extremely low."

While CCK accepts a wide variety of donations, the pantry's greatest needs right now include:

- Peanut butter
- Jelly
- Canned goods

While those might be the most crucial shortages, Bryant said, "We just need a little bit of everything, because kids are out of school and people are home from work. We just need food. Pastas would be great, cereal is great, mac and cheese is always great. We need any kind of protein that people can give. Peanut butter is always great, because you can make peanut butter and jelly sandwiches."

If you come to get food from the CCK pantry

CCK's food pantry will be closed Friday in observance of Good Friday. Food distribution will resume next Monday, Tuesday and Friday.

If you visit CCK to get groceries from the food pantry, you will pull your car outside the building and pantry staff will bring food bags out to the curb. Once staffers return to the building, you will then be able to get the bags and take them with you.

It is imperative that you remain in your vehicle until the bags have been brought outside. Daniel emphasized that staff and volunteers cannot hand off bags face to face or bring bags out if a person is standing outside their car.

Daniel said, "We cannot, for the safety of the staff and the people coming to the food bank, we cannot have them getting out of their cars while we are outside. They need to stay in their cars until they're instructed to come out and load their food."

Where to donate

Coca-Cola is coordinating a United Way of Cullman County (UWCC) food drive this week, April 6-10, at area stores. Collection sites for this drive include:

- Warehouse Discount Groceries on Highway 157 and at Town Square in Cullman
- Hoppers Family Markets in Fairview
- Dollar General Market in Hanceville

On social media, UWCC encouraged, "While doing your grocery shopping, pick up some items to help support local food pantries."

Additionally, UWCC will sponsor a one-day food drive on Thursday, April 9 at Cullman Middle School, 800 Second Ave. SE, from 9 a.m.-4 p.m.

Bryant said that food donations can also be dropped off at the CCK office, 402 Arnold St. NE, on weekday mornings, though donors will not be able to bring items inside the building. Items should be dropped off at the curb. Staff on duty can give receipts if requested.

Bryant reported that the Food Bank of North Alabama, while it has modified its pickup procedures for organizations like CCK coming to its warehouse, still has sufficient supplies of food. CCK can purchase pallets of food for 14 cents per pound, so monetary donations are also needed and very welcome.

Bryant concluded, "I do want to brag on my staff, because they're here every time the doors are open for us to help this community, and I just think they're awesome people. And we've had wonderful volunteers that have came and helped us every day. We've had some great volunteers: Desperation Church and Walmart Distribution has been sending people for us, and United Way's been helping us, and it's all working out. We're serving a lot of families, helping a lot of families and children not be hungry.

"We can't stand the thought of someone being hungry, so that's why we are here, willing to be on the front line in a terrible time for us.

"We just need people's prayers and monetary donations, and we need people to not forget about Cullman Caring for Kids, because we need support."

Grace added a note of appreciation for Bryant, who has put in many hours coordinating food distribution.

Said Grace, "I can't tell you how blessed Cullman Caring For Kids is, having her to guide us through these tough times, and she has done not only a phenomenal job as a boss, but as my friend as well. Pray for us, and God bless this community."

Jacobs proclaims Public Safety Telecommunicators Week in Cullman

Leanne West
Contributor

CULLMAN, Ala. – Cullman Mayor Woody Jacobs has proclaimed the second full week of April (April 12-18) as National Public Safety Telecommunicators Week. This week honors the thousands of men and women who respond to emergency calls, dispatch emergency professionals and equipment, and render life-saving assistance to our citizens.

"We appreciate our dispatchers and the work they do to make sure that our police and fire personnel can quickly respond to emergency situations," said Jacobs.

Across the nation in times of intense personal crises and community-wide disasters, the first access point for those seeking all classes of emergency services is 9-1-1. The public safety telecommunicators who receive these calls are the first and single point of contact for persons seeking immediate relief during an emergency. They are the voices we hear when we call for help. They provide critical assistance and calm reassurance during our worst moments, and they exhibit compassion, understanding, and professionalism while performing their jobs.

Emergency response personnel also rely on public safety telecommunicators for their own safety. The safety of our police officers, firefighters, and other emergency personnel is dependent upon the quality and accuracy of information obtained from citizens who call 9-1-1 for help.

Also, by monitoring their activities by radio and providing them with additional information as it is received, dispatchers further ensure the safety of emergency responders.

National Public Safety Telecommunicators Week, sponsored by the Association of Public-Safety Communications Officials (APCO) began in 1981.

The story goes that Contra Costa County (California) Sheriff Richard Rainey decided to acknowledge his administrative staff by treating them all to lunch. So at 11am one day, the administration staff auto-forwarded all of their calls to dispatch, as was their normal procedure after business hours.

But they failed to notify the dispatchers who were surprised when their call volume suddenly increased. Patricia Anderson, a longtime tenured dispatcher, complained about this to Sheriff Rainey. At about 2pm that same day, Sheriff Rainey and Under Sheriff Warren Rupf walked into dispatch with a giant beautifully-decorated cake that said "Happy Dispatcher Week." And with that gesture, they started an initiative that eventually became what is now known as "National Public Safety Telecommunicators Week."

"Public safety telecommunicators are vital in our city, county, state, and nation," said the mayor. "We depend upon the professionalism and skill of our local emergency dispatchers to keep our community and our citizens safe, and I am proud to recognize them and the work they do by proclaiming April 12-18, 2020, 'Public Safety Telecommunicators Week' in Cullman."

ALEA dispels rumors during Stay at Home Order

Derek Campbell
Contributor

MONTGOMERY, Ala. – The Alabama Law Enforcement Agency is receiving a high volume of inquiries from motorists concerning enforcement along Alabama roadways, particularly since Governor Kay Ivey announced Friday, April 3 the Stay at Home Order in response to COVID-19.

Questions include whether law enforcement will set up checkpoints at Alabama state lines and/or ban motorists from entering the state.

"These are rumors," said ALEA Secretary Hal Taylor.

"ALEA State Troopers continue to patrol roadways daily, to promote public safety and to enforce the law.

"There are no plans to shut down our state borders."

According to the Stay at Home Order in effect until 5 p.m. April 30, every person is ordered to stay at his or her place of residence except as necessary to perform "essential" activity.

There are exceptions, all of which are listed https://www.alea.gov/covid-19-response.

EDUCATION: COMMUNITY COLLEGE MONTH SPOTLIGHT

4 generations of local family have attended Wallace State and its programs

Gail Crutchfield
WSCC

HANCEVILLE, Ala. – When it comes to the Millican family, they've made Wallace State a part of their lives since the very beginning of the college more than 50 years ago. As Margaret Millican explains, she and her husband Howard, their children, grandchildren and even Howard's late mother May Millican, have taken classes or participated in programs offered by the college.

"We've been up there ever since they had the first building," Mrs. Millican said. She and Mr. Millican were both college graduates and teachers at Garden City Elementary at the time but decided to take classes at the college at night in subjects of personal interest to them. Mr. Millican took classes in both auto mechanics and collisions repair.

"In fact, Fred Schockley, who taught auto mechanics at that time and for whom those facilities are now named, was once Mr. Millican's student, Mrs. Millican said. He also took science and horticulture classes. She took sewing and upholstery classes and they've both taken computer classes.

Mrs. Millican also took exercise classes at the college at night before she retired from teaching and began taking classes in the daytime at the Wellness Center. Mrs. Millican's mother-in-law started exercising at the Wellness Center when she was 88 and continued until she was 98 years old.

"When I first started carrying her up there, she would just kind of shuffle her feet and I would have to let her out at a store or building and I would go park and go back to her," Mrs. Millican said.

After her mother-in-law started working out, she improved enough that she wouldn't have to be dropped off but was able to walk from the parking lot.

"She lived to be 104 and seven and a half months," Mrs. Millican said, crediting her mother-in-law's longevity in part to her exercising at Wallace State.

Mr. and Mrs. Millican still exercise regularly at the Wellness Center and are currently members of the Wallace State Lifelong Learning Institute (WaLLi) program, along with their brother-in-law, Alton Grigsby.

The next generation of the Millicans attended Wallace State as well. The Millicans' son, Jeff, took auto body classes at the same time as his father.

Their oldest daughter, Joyce Ivey, took her basics at Wallace State before transferring to Calhoun to become a registered nurse (before Wallace State had an RN program).

Their youngest daughter, Kayla Palmer, took her first two years of college at Wallace State before transferring to Athens to earn a bachelor's degree in accounting.

The most recent generation of the Millican family to attend Wallace State is the Millicans' grandchildren. Grandson Wesley Ivey took Electronics Technology at Wallace State and is now working for a medical supply company in Birmingham. Granddaughter Karessa Palmer completed two years at Wallace before transferring to the University of Alabama at Huntsville where she is pursuing an engineering degree. Another granddaughter is expected to attend Wallace State after graduating next year from J.B. Pennington. Extended family members include a nephew who took drafting at Wallace State.

Margaret and Howard Millican

They have seen the college facilities grow from those first few buildings to more than 30. They've encouraged family and friends to attend for their education or for programs offered through the Wellness Center and programs like WaLLi. "We've gotten a lot of people to come up there and we've met so many people," Mrs. Millican said.

"We really do love Wallace State," added Mrs. Millican, whose maiden name just happens to be Wallace (no relation to George C. Wallace).

CULLMAN, Ala. – We at Good Samaritan Health Clinic hope that you and your family are safe and healthy.

For those we serve, the consequences are devastating. Many were already behind the curve and these uncertain times have caused them greater anxiety and distress. Many are dealing with job insecurity as a result of COVID-19 which further depletes their already limited resources.

Thankfully, our patients are still receiving their much-needed health care at Good Samaritan Clinic via telehealth and curb-side prescription pick-up. For just over two weeks now, our patients have been able to keep their appointments by speaking with our Nurse Practitioner on the phone during their scheduled appointment time. While this can't replace a face-to-face visit, it allows for assessment and treatment while hopefully keeping them out of the emergency room.

Will you consider making a gift of $25 to supplement the cost of care for our patients?

Please help us continue to provide these much-needed services to our patients by donating today. Every dollar and every day counts. Your gift today will have an immediate impact on our patients in a desperate situation.

When most of our world is in turmoil, help us be a constant reassuring force in the lives of our patients.

Can our patients count on your support today?

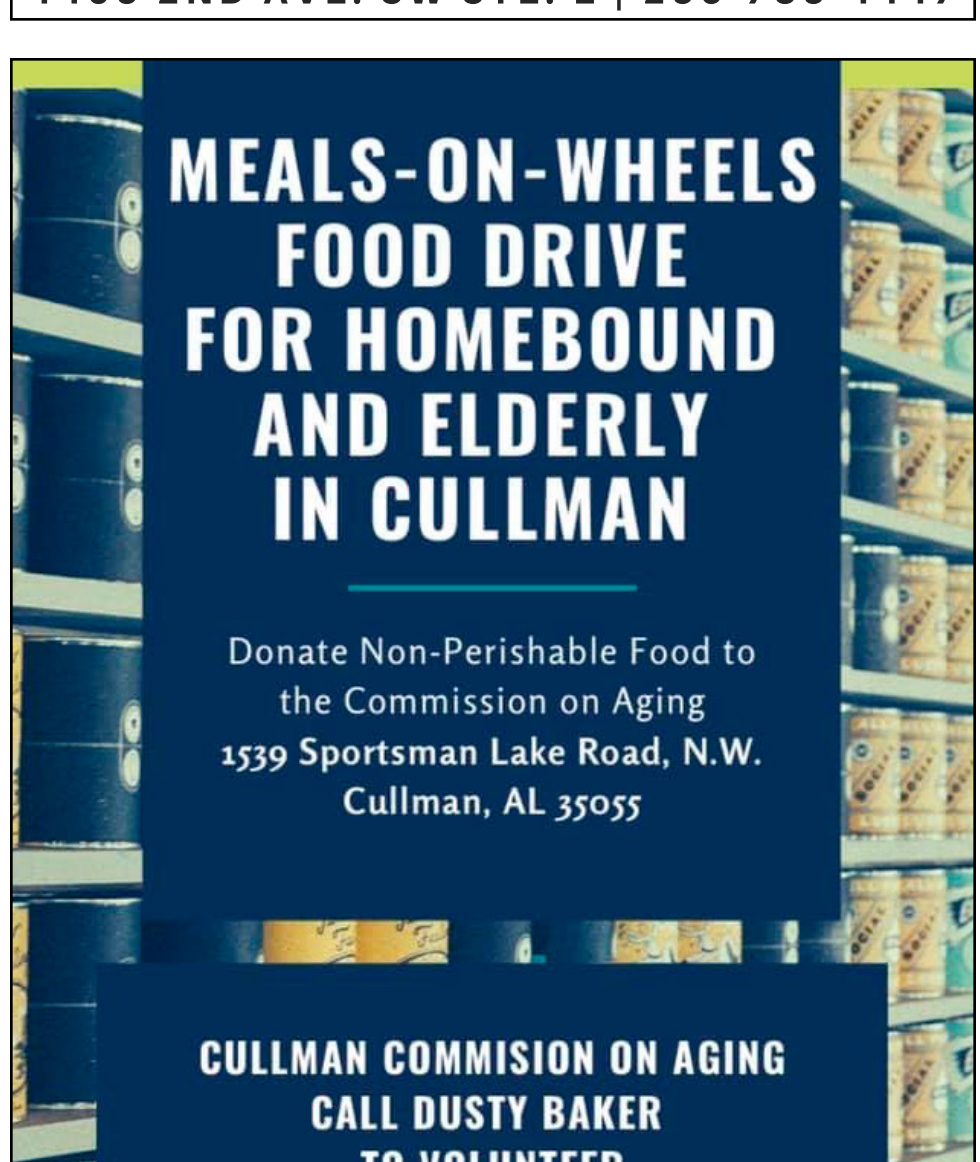

"The Good Samaritan Clinic recognizes the challenges that COVID-19 brings to the health care system and we are proud to successfully continue our commitment to the uninsured patients in our area.

"For the safety of our patients, we have implemented a telehealth system to manage our patients' ongoing and arising health care needs. We have developed safe methods for delivering the much-needed medications our patients require.

"We will continue to make ourselves available to all those who have entrusted their care to us.

"We are honored to be part of this community and are proud to be a crucial piece of its health care system as it quickly evolves to meet our changing needs," said Good Samaritan Medical Director Jeremy V. Stidham, M.D.

Local seniors reflect on their favorite games, moments from their careers, volume 2

The spread of COVID-19 has brought an abrupt and unsatisfying end to the careers of senior athletes all over the state. This time of year should be full of sporting events to attend ranging from track meets and baseball games to archery tournaments and soccer and everything in between. With schools closing their doors for the remainder of the year, many athletes had their careers cut short and some of them have shared their favorite games and moments from their playing days.

If you are a senior athlete whose season was affected by the coronavirus and would like to share some of your favorite moments from your career, you can email them to confersammy@yahoo.com.

Logan Rice (Cold Springs Baseball)
"My favorite game was the last one this season and my favorite moment was my first playoff game as a sophomore."

Dylan Gable (Cold Springs Baseball)
"There are so many games and moments that I have memories about but if I had to pick a favorite game it would probably be evidently the other day vs Good Hope. All through the time I've been playing, it hasn't mattered how good we played; we have just always choked when playing them but me and the other seniors told ourselves before that game, we have had enough of that. We ended up beating them 11-1 in 5 innings. Another would be the area series we had against West End last year, they were supposed to be the best team in the area or at least that was what we had been told. Well, we didn't listen, and we played our game and ended up sweeping them in that series. But all the small talk during practice will probably be the thing I miss most about baseball, joking around with everyone while just having fun doing the thing we love, there isn't anything like it."

Callie Humphries (Fairview Softball)
"One of my greatest moments throughout my career was definitely the Holly Pond game in the Umpires Tournament. The livelihood of every player in the dugout is something I will never forget. Of course, making good plays is definitely a reassuring factor, but seeing good plays and watching my team work together on the field has made this season unforgettable."

Jessie Woodard (Meek Softball)
"My favorite moments were definitely the bus rides. We had the best time on the bus to and from games."

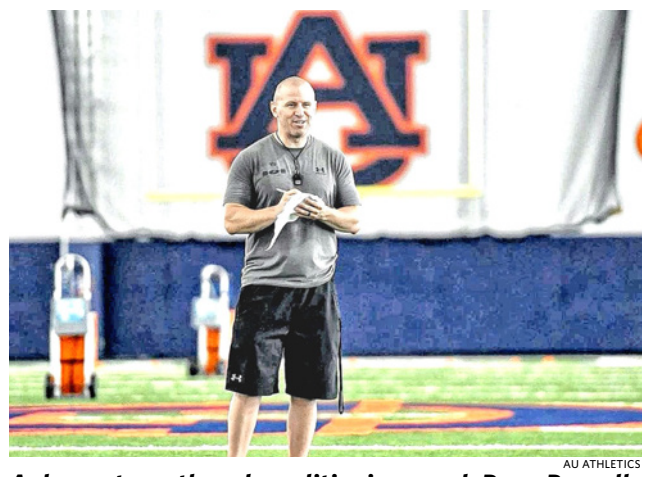

Madison Cothren (Holly Pond Softball)
"My most amazing moment was the last game we got to play together because we came together as team to play the best we did all year because we had no idea if we would get to play another one. We laughed, cried and just had an amazing game. It will forever hold a place in my memories."

Allyson Wooten (Fairview Softball)
"One of my favorite moments was when I hit back-to-back home runs against Cold Springs this season, and my favorite games would have to be the Umpires Tournament because I don't think any team was expecting us to come out and play as good as we did!"

Alyssa Wooten (Fairview Softball)
"The Umpires tournament this season was probably the most fun I've had! Fairview struggled a little bit last year and I think we definitely made a comeback this season! I actually had my personal best batting average that tournament, and our team really bonded!"

'The great ones adjust': Auburn football adapts athletic performance plans

Jeff Shearer

AU ATHLETICS

Auburn strength and conditioning coach Ryan Russell.

AUBURN, Ala. – Using the coronavirus pandemic to illustrate a principle he teaches, Auburn assistant athletic director for athletic performance Ryan Russell navigates a new normal.

"We're in an unprecedented time right now," said Russell, Auburn's executive director of football. "Things are a little bit different, but as we always say - and I'm a firm believer- the great ones adjust. The main thing right now is the health and safety of the student-athletes."

Under normal circumstances, Auburn would be playing its A-Day game Saturday, with post-spring combine-like tests scheduled for April 23.

Instead, Russell records and sends weekly video instructions to Auburn's football team, along with two workouts: one for the 25-30 percent who have access to a weight room, and another for those who don't.

"I'm a big believer in relative body strength movements like pushups, chin-ups and mastering your own body weight before you ever externally load a student-athlete," he said. "Those movements are always in our program in some capacity."

Russell emphasizes speed work and conditioning while practicing social distancing.

"That's the No. 1 quality they're going to lose first if they don't continue to run fast, change directions and do all of their plyometrics," he said. "That's the great thing about having high-character kids. They want to get better. They're looking for ways to get better.

"I tell the guys all the time, 'Culture is what leads when no one is watching.' That's something we've really tried to work on, having a strong culture, not only down in the weight room but throughout the program."

Practicing what he preaches, Russell is adjusting also, working from home and meeting with coaches via videoconference.

"They always talk about getting comfortable being uncomfortable," he said. "That's definitely taking me out of my comfort zone. That's the only way to grow is when your comfort zone is disturbed. It's been good."

In addition to leading Auburn's athletic performance team, Russell oversees the character development program for the Tigers' midyear enrollees.

"Certain things that are going to help them build this elite edge that we talk about in life," he said. "It all comes down to decisions and behaviors."

The cancellation of spring practice created a teachable moment, Russell said.

"Is football who they are or what they do?" he asked. "If it's totally who you are, you're really struggling right now. At some point, this game is going to end for everybody. They've got to have a plan in place and understand that their whole identity is not tied to this game."

Russell encouraged everyone who's quarantining to exercise.

While working from home, he's still practicing a form of two-a-days: morning bike rides and evening interval training, alternating between running and walking.

"Break a sweat every day," he said. "Live to fight another day. Don't put yourself in a compromising situation where you're going to get hurt doing something. During this time, it's about staying active. Enjoying time with the family can go a long way."

Man With a Plan

After Andi (Liza Snyder) catches Adam (Matt LeBlanc) in a fib, he solemnly vows never to lie to her again in the new episode "Adam's Big Little Lie." As usual, the universe laughs at this promise and immediately lands Adam in an impossible situation where he must lie to protect his dad, Joe (Stacy Keach). Kevin Nealon, Swoosie Kurtz and Kali Rocha also star.

8 p.m. on WVTM
Will & Grace

In the new episode "We Love Lucy," after Will (Eric McCormack) tells Grace (Debra Messing) that living with her makes him feel like Ricky Ricardo with wife Lucy, Jack and Karen (Sean Hayes, Megan Mullally) each insist that they are the Lucy in this group dynamic. The notion sends Grace, Karen and Jack into little daydreams in which each plays Lucy, with Will as their long-suffering Ricky. Leslie Jordan and Lucie Arnaz guest star.

8 p.m. on HIST
Swamp People

On a sweltering day that is shaping up to be the hottest of this season, Troy Landry and Terral Evans try to lure monster gators into shady areas using cold-blooded beef melt in the new episode "Swamp on Fire." In another area, when the beasts refuse to bite, Willie Edwards teaches his son to hunt with a treble hook, and Ashley Jones tries to fill her boat despite Ronnie Adams' struggles avoiding heat stroke.

Marriage Boot Camp: Reality Stars

Season 16 ends on an explosive note in a finale called "Hip Hop Edition: Put a Ring on It," in which lie detector results turn the house into a battle zone, as tensions boil over. Trying to restore order, Dr. Ish Major ultimately makes a difficult choice in a shocking twist that stuns the campers. It's finally time for the couples to make their final decisions whether to leave together or apart.

8 p.m. on OXY
Mark of a Killer

This harrowing but engrossing true crime series, which examines the disturbing behaviors of serial killers by letting viewers step into the minds of some of the worst mass murderers to date, opens its second season with the premiere "Killer Caller." Minnesota police hunt for a killer who confesses by phone to a string of murders in a chilling, high-pitched voice, begging for forgiveness. None of the investigators is able to identify him, until they get a break via one woman who survives a brutal attack.

9 p.m. on FOOD
Vegas Chef Prizefight

In the finale of this competition, "And the Head Chef Is," the final three chefs are quickly reduced to two semi-finalists after the first test. Those two then move to the Caesars Board Room to plead their case before the Caesars executives, then create a tasting menu for their final dinner service, showcasing their dream restaurant concept. Ultimately, the winner of this "prizefight" is crowned. Next week, a related special covers the first day on the job for this new champion.

9 p.m. on FREE
Siren

The new episode "Survivor" finds Ryn (Eline Powell) looking for someone to help her, in the process learning the secret existence of her unborn child. Elsewhere, Ben (Alex Roe) embarks on a risky path to help his mother (Sarah-Jane Redmond), while Xander (Ian Verdun) tries to jump-start his new career. Meanwhile, Helen (Rena Owen) turns to Eliza (Georgia Waters) for help contacting Sarge (Hugo Ateo).

Eric McCormack stars in "Will & Grace" on NBC.

Survey (from Front)

AlabamaWorks
Contributor

MONTGOMERY, Ala. – AlabamaWorks is pleased to announce a new tool for all businesses, large and small, related to the COVID-19 impact and future focus of workforce in the state. The Alabama COVID-19 Workforce Response Survey is designed to help the state fully understand the impact of this pandemic on the state's workforce as well as provide a clear path forward for businesses, industry and state government.

"I am grateful to the Alabama Workforce Council for developing and deploying this much needed and user-friendly survey," said Governor Kay Ivey. "As we work together to combat COVID-19's impact, this tool will allow us to identify the needs of business and industry, resources that can help them and how we can best support Alabama's businesses owners and hardworking Alabamians and their families." The official survey, which is critical for helping individual industry sectors recover from COVID-19, is available here: http://sm.aidt.edu/alabamaworks-survey. "While these are challenging times, we fully understand that now, more than ever, business and industry leaders must continue to work together with Governor Ivey's administration and various state agencies to move us all forward together," noted Alabama Workforce Council Chairman Tim McCartney. "Rest assured there is an unwavering commitment to do everything we can to minimize the negative impact COVID-19 has on our businesses, our economy, the state and all of its citizens. Using the results from this survey, I know we can all make a difference in combating the challenges from this pandemic facing so many throughout Alabama."

Responses to the survey will be accepted through Tuesday, April 21 at 5 p.m. All businesses are highly encouraged to participate as the responses will help to protect Alabama's workforce, manage the impact of COVID-19 and guide allocation of various resources.

Additionally, another tool was released earlier this week for hard-working Alabamians from Governor Ivey's office to help connect people to resources and resources to people. ALtogetherAlabama.org is a one-stop shop for all Alabamians meant to connect businesses, nonprofits, and people that need help with the available resources during this time. For more information and resources on Alabama's COVID-19 workforce recovery efforts please visit https://alabamaworks.com/coronavirus/.

Strong (from Front)

Others include those who have a relationship with Jesus Christ and those who do not.

"We also believe in doing ministry the way our Savior taught by showing compassion to people in need.

"In doing so, we are building relationships with the families we serve, being an example in both deed and word, and living our ministry in a very personal way."

Northbrook Pastor Keith Warden reported to The Tribune on Wednesday that The Caring Center has been quite busy of late, saying, "We're serving anywhere from 25 to 30 families every Tuesday and Thursday, providing food for them at The Caring Center; they come by and pick it up.

"That's pretty much what we do all the time, year-round, but we've continued to be able to do it thus far."

The Caring Center typically provides both food and clothing, but is only able to distribute food at this time.

Warden said of The Caring Center's food stocks are holding up, but donations are always welcome.

High demand items include:

- Canned foods and non-perishable food items
- Prepared fruit and pudding cups
- Snacks such as chips, crackers, fruit boxes, single serving drinks, single serve cookies, granola bars, snack cakes
- Soap and shampoo

Donations can be dropped off at The Caring Place or at Northbrook Baptist Church, 3691 Alabama Highway 157 in Cullman.

Warden said of The Caring Center's staff and volunteers, "We run that with volunteers every week, and they're soldiers.

"I mean they work hard and, especially in the middle of all of this, with all the extra precautions that they have to take, it's been so encouraging to still see them show up every week and show love for people. And so, I'm so thankful for them and for how much they love this community, and care about the ones that are most vulnerable in times like this. And so, yeah, they're doing a great job.

"That's been going on for a long time, and I'm really thankful. And we're blessed that we're able to continue doing it, even through all this."

The Caring Center

Service (from Front)

Crosshaven Church and Kip Potter of Daystar Church.

The service will be broadcast via each church's regular online platform at 6 p.m. Thursday. If you watch livestreamed services or Bible study videos from any one of these churches, simply access Thursday's event the same way.

The Tribune asked Warden for his opinion on the state of faith in the Cullman area in the face of the COVID-19 pandemic.

Warden responded, "I think that it's been strengthened, because- we talk about this all the time as a body of believers- that the way that our faith is strengthened is through seasons of testing and through seasons of trial. And what we've been seeing in our people here at Northbrook, and I know even as I've talked with other pastors and connected with other churches, is the Church stepping up and leaning into this challenge, and finding ways to connect with people, finding ways to serve.

"You know, you have to be a church that's really focused and really connected and committed to continue thriving during a time like this when you can't depend on a common location and all those kinds of things that are luxuries. We might not be the Church meeting in one place, but we are the Church that's scattered throughout the community.

"I've just been so blessed. We've had a lot of our people this week that have been recording their testimony and posting it on their Facebook page, on their social media. This Sunday, our Easter celebration is under the theme "In my place," and so you can get on Facebook right now and look at that hashtag "In my place," and you'll find literally just dozens and dozens of testimonies of people that are talking about how Christ has changed their life and what He means to them.

"And so, that's one of the few, if only, ways right now that you can really be a witness and talk about your relationship with God. And I've seen people being more vocal and more engaged in the last few weeks, maybe, than even before all this started.

"So, to answer your question, I would say definitely, I think that the status of faith of people that I'm seeing, through all of this, is that it's really growing and being strengthened."
