Respiratory therapists: Unsung heroes of the pandemic

Cullman County resident and respiratory therapist Lana Mann prepares to leave for a shift at UAB Hospital in Birmingham.

CULLMAN COUNTY, Ala. – On the front lines of the battle against COVID-19, doctors and nurses are getting a lot of headlines, and deservedly so. Hidden away in the medical matrix, though, is a group of professionals whose role places them squarely- and literally- in the face of the pandemic. Most of the mechanical ventilators that news people keep talking about are being run by respiratory therapists (RTs).

Ashley Lancaster, Respiratory Therapy program director for Wallace State Community College, told The Tribune in a message:

"There are so many people that had never even heard of Respiratory Therapists until COVID-19 hit our nation, or there was a common misconception that the only thing RTs can do is give » PAGE 3

How has COVID-19 affected local law enforcement?

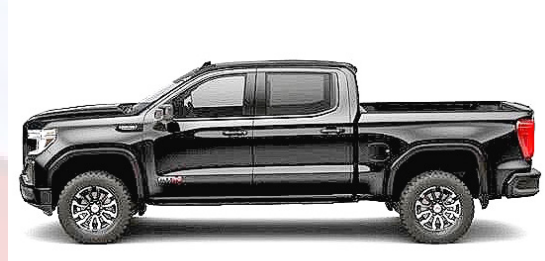

Heather Mann
heather@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN, Ala. – With a sharp rise in domestic violence calls and a quarantine order that needs to be enforced, The Tribune reached out to local heads of law enforcement to see how officers are protecting themselves while performing their duties, as well as how the outbreak has affected those duties. We contacted Chief Kenny Culpepper from the Cullman Police Department, Sheriff Matt Gentry from the Cullman County Sheriff's Office and Chief Bob Long from the Hanceville Police Department.

How are the officers being protected from the disease?

Chief Culpepper: "We'd had a stockpile of PPE before all this happened, so we were able to issue it early on - gloves, masks, face shields, suits, and even rubber boots if they have to go out somewhere. We've also told the officers to, if possible, stay on the porch and talk to people through the door when they go check on a residence.

"At the station, we make all employees spray and rinse their shoes, sanitize their hands and sanitize the door handles when they come in, and we now have two live-in trustees who mop and sanitize the department every day. Finally, we do temperature checks for everyone in the department - we've already sent two employees home and had them tested, but fortunately they were negative - and we try to segment the officer shifts so that one shift coming back doesn't come in contact with the next » PAGE 8

Ivey launches new COVID-19 search engine tool

Office of Gov. Kay Ivey
Contributor

MONTGOMERY, Ala. – Governor Kay Ivey on Thursday announced the launch of a COVID-19 search engine tool that enhances the state's official resource site, altogether-alabama.org. Through a public-private partnership between Yext and the state of Alabama, this innovative platform will provide real-time answers to questions about everything from the virus itself, through a symptom checker that was developed at UAB, to upcoming COVID-19 testing site locations.

This service is free of charge and can be accessed either through altogether-alabama.org or directly at www.covid19.alabama.gov.

"My priority as governor is making sure every Alabamian has the most accurate, up-to-date information about COVID-19, so we can keep our families safe," Ivey said. "To help with this, we've partnered with our friends in the private sector, Yext, to build this search engine tool that works in conjunction with our official resource site Altogether Alabama."

"We are indebted to Yext for generously offering its resources and innovative technology to support the crucial job of keeping our state informed during this pandemic.

"Simply put, current information can be lifesaving and this resource will prove invaluable to all who use it," Ivey said.

Using this search engine, someone can type a question about COVID-19 and get instant results directing them to answers from our local, state and federal partners.

"During a global crisis like the COVID-19 pandemic, accurate answers can be a matter of life and death," said Howard Lerman, founder and CEO of Yext. "With Yext Answers, we can help every government organization deliver that critical information and save as many lives as possible."

The search engine provides factual information regarding this new virus and will provide additional information that complements the work of the Alabama Department of Health.

State Health Officer Dr. Scott Harris said, "I want to express my gratitude to Yext for donating services and support for the covid19.alabama.gov information hub. This further enables the Alabama Department of Public Health and the state of Alabama to provide our residents with vital resources to health information during this COVID-19 pandemic."

Dr. Regina Benjamin, former U.S. Surgeon General of Bayou La Batre, served as an expert health care consultant in the site development and provided valuable insight of information most needed by the public.

"The information hub covid19.alabama.gov puts real-time, up to date information at the general public's fingertips, including the latest health stats, a UAB-symptom checker, and test site locations," said Benjamin. "You can ask 'Natural Language' questions and be directed to answers from trusted sources such as the ADPH, CDC, and the Federation of American Scientists."

ADOL begins paying federal $600 stimulus benefit

Tara Hutchison
Contributor

MONTGOMERY, Ala. – Alabama Department of Labor Secretary Fitzgerald Washington announced today Alabama has begun paying the Federal Pandemic Unemployment Compensation (FPUC) benefit that was established with the passing of the federal CARES Act on March 27, 2020.

ADOL began paying the FPUC benefits on April 8, 2020. Claimants whose claims have processed should expect to see the funds within 2-3 days, if not sooner. ADOL paid $40,060,495 in FPUC benefits to 60,848 claimants yesterday.

Under the legislation, anyone receiving unemployment compensation benefits is eligible for the additional $600 a week stimulus payment.

The payment is added to the recipient's state weekly benefit amount (maximum of $275/week). The payments will be made for eligible weeks beginning on March 29, 2020 through July 25, 2020. This does not refer to the date the original claim was filed, but to the weeks being claimed.

For example, if someone filed their initial claim on March 16, 2020, and remains out of work, they will not receive the additional $600 for the weeks beginning March 15 or March 22, but would receive it for the week beginning March 29, and all weeks going forward.

ADOL will make payments retroactively for weeks already claimed since March 29, 2020.

"We understand the frustration of many Alabamians who are out of work due to the COVID-19 outbreak, and we know that they need these benefits to stay afloat," said Washington.

"We are working as hard as we can to make sure that everyone gets the benefits they need as quickly as they can. We are one of the first states to begin distributing these funds. We continue to urge patience as the department works to implement this vital legislation."

Programs included in the legislation:

- Pandemic Unemployment Assistance (PUA) - provides unemployment benefits to those not ordinarily eligible for them. This includes individuals who are self-employed or contract employees. This benefit is retroactive to January 27, 2020.

- Federal Pandemic Unemployment Compensation (FPUC) - provides $600 per week to any individual eligible for any of the Unemployment Compensation programs. This benefit begins March 29, 2020.

- Pandemic Emergency Unemployment Compensation (PEUC) - allows for an additional 13 weeks of benefits added to the end of regular unemployment benefits. This means claimants may collect unemployment benefits for a longer period of time than under normal circumstances.

ADOL is encouraging anyone who believes they may be eligible for these programs to file a claim at www.labor.alabama.gov or by calling 1-866-234-5382. Online filing is strongly encouraged.

Those who already have an active claim, or who have already filed a claim, DO NOT NEED TO REFILE to be eligible for these benefits. ADOL will begin processing PUA and PEUC claims as soon as administratively possible.

Important note: None of the benefits described above, nor unemployment benefits of any kind, are available to employees who quit without good work-related cause, refuse to return to work, or refuse to receive full-time pay. Refusing to return to work could result in a disqualification for benefit eligibility. Attempts to collect unemployment benefits after quitting a job without good work-related cause is considered to be fraud. The CARES Act specifically provides for serious consequences for fraudulent cases including fines, confinement, and an inability to receive future unemployment benefits until all fraudulent claims and fines have been repaid. Employers are encouraged to utilize the New Hire system to report those employees who fail to return to work.

Ivey awards grant for Auburn Training Connection program to assist entrepreneurs

Russell Sellers
Contributor

MONTGOMERY, Ala. – Gov. Kay Ivey has awarded an $80,000 grant to assist in the expansion of a program that aids startup entrepreneurs.

The Auburn Training Connection is using grant funds to help with business guidance as well as aiding in developing prototypes for Alabama entrepreneurs.

The ATC will review applications from Alabama entrepreneurs for the program and select those who meet the criteria for participating.

"We need to continue strong innovation and entrepreneurship in our state, especially to help us regain our economic momentum in the wake of COVID-19," Ivey said.

"I am pleased to award this grant to Auburn Training Connection as it seeks to find and support Alabamians with new, big ideas for moving the state forward."

The Alabama Department of Economic and Community Affairs (ADECA) is administering the grants from funds made available by the Alabama Research Alliance.

ADECA administers a wide range of programs that support law enforcement, economic development, infrastructure upgrades, recreation, energy conservation and water resource management.

"ADECA shares Gov. Ivey's support of programs designed to help innovators in our state see their ideas come to fruition," ADECA Director Kenneth Boswell said.

"ADECA's partnership with organizations like the Auburn Training Connection helps entrepreneurs with big ideas learn the ins and outs of running a business so that they have a better chance for long-term success."

Ivey notified Amy Brabham, ATC's workforce development director, that the grant had been approved. Matching funds of $80,000 will supplement the grant.

AG Marshall announces Coronavirus Response Teams to answer questions about compliance, enforcement of State Health Order

Mike Lewis
Contributor

MONTGOMERY, Ala. – Alabama Attorney General Steve Marshall announced today the establishment of response teams within the Attorney General's Office to provide authoritative answers to law enforcement, public officials, businesses, employees and residents of Alabama concerning enforcement and compliance of the State Health Order relating to the coronavirus pandemic issued by Governor Kay Ivey and State Health Officer Dr. Scott Harris.

"Beginning today, the Alabama Attorney General's Office has assembled response teams dedicated to answering questions of a legal nature from local law enforcement, city and county officials, business owners and management, employees and the general public about how to comply with the State Health Order concerning the coronavirus pandemic," said Attorney General Marshall.

"The State stay-at-home order, as well as additional local health orders, have raised questions about local enforcement and compliance. My office has established a dedicated toll-free phone line to take questions during business hours so that officials, businesses and the public have access to authoritative information."

Those with questions may call 1-800-232-8520 and select from five response teams depending on the nature of your inquiry. The choices include: Law Enforcement Response Team, Local and County Officials Response Team, Consumer Response Team, Business Response Team, and General Constituent Response Team.

None of the guidance is intended to constitute private legal advice, rather, it is offered to assist officials and the public with reaching a timely resolution to their issues, if possible. We hope this service will be of assistance to state residents during the COVID-19 pandemic. Consumers with complaints about price gouging and or fraud related to the COVID-19 pandemic are still encouraged to file their complaints using a special link on the Attorney General's website: www.alabamaag.gov/consumercomplaint

The Attorney General's website also contains recent COVID-19 related guidance to law enforcement and business. You can access the Attorney General's website by visiting www.alabamaag.gov/.

Attempted murder (from Front)

GOOD HOPE, Ala. – A Wisconsin man was arrested Wednesday in Good Hope after allegedly stabbing someone.The Cullman County Sheriff's Office (CCSO) said Isadore Turner, 47, of Superior, Wisconsin was taken into custody at the Econo Lodge located at 1655 County Road 437 in Good Hope. "Deputies and investigators were called to the Good Hope Econo Lodge in the early morning hours of Wednesday, April 8, 2020 to a female who had been stabbed," said a media release from the CCSO. "Once deputies and investigators arrived on scene, they made contact with the suspect in the parking lot of the Econo Lodge where he resisted arrest. CCSO deputies tased the suspect and placed him under arrest. The suspect and victim have an association with each other. The victim was transported to an area hospital."

Turner is being held in the Cullman County Detention Center on a $105,000 bond. He has been charged with attempted murder, possession of drug paraphernalia, public intoxication and resisting arrest.

breathing treatments, but we are so much more than that!

"RTs care for a variety of patients from all different walks of life. We provide life-saving treatment to a wide range of patients – from individuals suffering from trauma, COPD, asthma, stroke and heart attacks to premature infants born with heart or lung defects. We work closely with all members of the healthcare team and can specialize in different areas of healthcare.

"A therapist's daily responsibilities depend on what area of healthcare they are employed: adult, pediatric or neonatal care, critical care transport, home health, PFT labs, pulmonary rehabilitation, etc.

"In a shift at a hospital, we may perform breathing treatments and provide oxygen to relieve shortness of breath or coach a patient through breathing exercises to prevent pneumonia or a collapsed lung. We obtain arterial blood gases to check how well a patient is ventilating and oxygenating and EKGs to check heart rates and rhythms.

"We respond to all Code Blues (cardiopulmonary arrest) throughout the hospital and may need to intubate someone and put them on a ventilator to keep them alive. We manage patients who are already on a ventilator and/or extubate someone to take them off a ventilator. The list is endless.

"Respiratory therapists can work in a pulmonary function testing (PFT) lab performing tests to assist a physician in diagnosing a patient with lung disease or at a pulmonary rehabilitation facility creating a plan to improve the quality of life for a patient suffering from cardiopulmonary problems. We can be found on helicopters, planes, or ambulances taking critically ill patients to different facilities if we work in critical care transport.

"We may be employed with a home healthcare company and bring medical equipment to your house, perform regular physical assessments to help you stay out of the hospital, and teach you and your family different ways to cope with your health problems."

Oscar Goodwin, a Wallace State RT graduate who is the night shift RT supervisor at Decatur Morgan Hospital, told The Tribune, "You see a lot of politicians and a lot of people on TV or the internet that praise doctors and nurses, and we love those doctors and nurses; we work side by side with them, but you barely ever hear about respiratory therapists who manage these ventilators.

"And they talk about having ventilator shortages. I looked at the most recent federal prediction for Alabama (available at https://covid19.healthdata.org/united-states-of-america); right now it's showing that we shouldn't have a shortage of ventilators, but even if we don't have a shortage of ventilators, we might have a shortage of respiratory therapists who run those ventilators, setting them up.

"It's life support, and we're the ones having to manage that, deal with that, and so we're right there up with them getting the tube put in their mouth, which is like the most vulnerable spot, if they're COVID positive, to be right there in their face to stick the tube down their throat. And so, you know, that's a lot of danger we're putting ourselves in."

The medical world is short on RTs right now, and many RTs work full-time-three 12-hour shifts per week- and put in part-time shifts at other hospitals on their days off. WSCC is working to help ease the burden, both by graduating a class on time this semester despite the disruption, and by providing student therapists who will work while continuing their studies.

Lancaster said, "WSCC's Respiratory Therapy Program has 31 students that are currently working in the field at hospitals across Alabama.

"Our students are able to take care of the patients in areas that still need respiratory therapy but aren't as critically ill as those diagnosed with Coronavirus.

"This allows more experienced therapists to be available for COVID-19 patients. A lot of patients diagnosed with COVID-19 are being placed on ventilators to breathe for them. After they are on the ventilator, it's not just about pressing buttons and writing numbers on a chart.

"The ventilator has to be managed by an expert on the modes of ventilation, how changes to the ventilator will affect the patient due to their underlying disease process, and much more.

"We have 38 students who will be graduating in May. The program accepts 44 applicants each Fall and we are accepting applications now through June 1st. Students can graduate in 5 semesters. After graduation, students are eligible to take the Therapist Multiple Choice Examination (TMC) given by the National Board for Respiratory Care (NBRC). If they pass with the low-cut score, they are a Certified Respiratory Therapist (CRT). If they pass with the high-cut score, they are a CRT and eligible to sit for the Clinical Simulation Examination (CSE) to become a Registered Respiratory Therapist (RRT). After passing the boards, the newly designated CRT or RRT will apply for a license from the Alabama State Board of Respiratory Therapy (ASBRT).

"During this unprecedented time, both the NBRC and ASBRT have been working diligently to support the RT community. The NBRC has waived fees to obtain immediate access to credential verification and automatically updated credentials that were set to expire March 31, 2020 to a new expiration date of December 31, 2020. The ASBRT has allowed emergency licensure classifications for reinstatement of licenses, licensure by reciprocity, and temporary licenses."

The final word

Goodwin shared, "Respiratory therapists: they are the experts in cardiopulmonary with the lungs. And we have the same education as nurses do; we go the same amount of years for associate, for bachelor's, for master's. We have the same education as nurses, and we deal with every type of patient, from premature babies born to end of life support on the vent. We're the ones who put them on that, manage their life support; if they get better, we're the ones who take them off, and if they don't get better, we're the ones who terminally extubate them- 'pull the plug'- that's us.

"So, not a lot of people know that it's us who do that, respiratory therapists. So we have a lot of stress, a lot of burdens on us, and I just want the world to know we exist."

Lancaster concluded, "Most of us never have to even think about the act of breathing. It's one of the scariest feelings in the world when you can't breathe and that's where RTs come to the rescue. We are by your side, fighting right there with you, encouraging you the whole time, and hopefully able to provide some relief.

"When you have someone in front of you that feels like they are drowning, so desperate for just one breath, and you are able to help, it gives you such a feeling of satisfaction. Just seeing that look of relief finally pass across their face is one of the most rewarding parts of the job for me."

Auburn S&D has 19 named to CSCAA All-American Team

Greg Ostendorf
AU Athletics

AUBURN, Ala. – The Auburn swimming and diving team had 19 All-Americans selected by the College Swimming and Diving Coaches Association of American (CSCAA) on Wednesday. The group consisted of 11 from the women's side, eight from the men's side, and there was a total of 39 All-American honors combined between the two.

Due to the cancellation of the NCAA S&D Championships, the CSCAA Board adjusted the selection criteria for this year's All-American teams.

Those recognized were either individuals who qualified individually for this year's NCAA Championships or any member of a relay team that achieved NCAA A-cut time standards.

Seniors Claire Fisch and Julie Meynen led the way for Auburn with five All-American honors each.

The duo earned two individual and three relay accolades.

Senior Robyn Clevenger and freshman Abbey Webb received three honors each – one individual and two relays.

On the men's side senior Santiago Grassi was named an All-American in two individual events and one relay, making it three total. It's the third straight year he's been recognized as an All-American.

Auburn also had two divers make this year's CSCAA All-American Team with Alison Maillard and Conner Pruitt both receiving three AA honors (1-meter, 3-meter, platform) apiece.

Here's a look at all 19 of Auburn's 2019-20 CSCAA All-Americans.

22 Alabama swimmers and divers earn All-America honors

COLORADO SPRINGS, Co. – A total of 22 Alabama swimmers and divers earned a combined 57 All-America honors, the College Swimming and Diving Coaches Association of America (CSCAA) announced on Wednesday, including 11 men and 11 women.

It is the highest number of All-Americans for the UA men since 1990 and the most for the women since the 1985 season.

"We're really very proud of the work these men and women did this season and what they were able to achieve through the dedication and drive they displayed throughout year," UA head coach Coley Stickels said. "Under these unprecedented circumstances I'm very pleased that our coaches association found a way to recognize these men and women for the seasons they were having."

Junior Flora Molnar and sophomores Rhyan White and Morgan Scott led the women's team with five honors each. White was named an All-American in three individual events and as part of two relays, while Molnar and Scott each earned two individual and three relay accolades.

Seniors Alexis Preski (2) and Allie Surrency (1), junior Kaila Wong (2), sophomores Kalia Antoniou (4), Kensey McMahon (2), Morgan Liberto (1) and Julia Wolf (1) along with freshman Tanesha Lucoe (1) also earned All-America recognition on the women's side.

Molnar bumped her career total to eight while Scott is up to three. McMahon also has three career honors after earning first-team accolades in the 1,650 freestyle in 2019.

"Our women put together an amazing season and the success they had at the SEC Championships combined with having 11 All-Americans really speaks to the kind of NCAA championship run they were verge of having," Stickels said. "The same can be said for the men's team and the momentum these 11 men had heading into the national championships."

Senior Zane Waddell and junior Tyler Sesvold led the UA men with six All-America honors a piece, with both earning three individual and three relay spots.

Junior Sam DiSette (2), sophomores Jonathan Berneburg (3), Nico Hernandez-Tome (1), Kevin Li (2), Nicholas Perera (1) and Colton Stogner (1) along with freshmen Liam Bell (3), Derek Maas (2) and Matt Menke (1) also earned All-America accolades for the Tide men.

Waddell closed his Crimson Tide career with 21 total All-America certificates. Berneburg bumped his career total up to five while DiSette's tally stands at three.

All-America recognition is normally based on finishes at the NCAA Championships with A finalist earned first-team honors and B finalists named honorable mention. Due to the cancellation of the NCAA Swimming and Diving Championships, the CSCAA adjusted the selection criteria for the 2020 season with all relays achieving an A standard and individuals selected to the NCAA Championships being named All-America.

CULLMAN, Ala. – WoodmenLife continued its practice of donating flags to local organizations, churches and businesses Thursday afternoon, when Cullman's Woodmen Chapter 1850 unfurled a new flag at the Cullman County Public Library downtown.

Cullman Chapter Field Associate Ken Bates shared, "We donate a lot of flags, and with the virus going on, during this time I thought we could do something patriotic. In this county, our flag is a constant reminder of the courage required to maintain freedom, the liberty we enjoy and the spirit of patriotism which unites us. We are happy to take the lead in bringing people together to show our respect to this time-honored symbol of freedom."

Bates said he also had flags to donate to Catoma Baptist Church and the Gold Ridge Volunteer Fire Department.

He continued, "We buy more flags than anybody; that's including anybody in the United States in the world as far as that goes, because they don't buy flags much out of country much, you know?

"We give those flags to schools, churches, civic organizations. We have presented a flag to I'm sure every school in Cullman and I'm sure Cullman County for their flag poles.

"We give out American flags and Christian flags for churches. Sometimes if we can afford to buy someone a flag pole, we occasionally donate flag poles, also."

He noted WoodmenLife has been around since 1890.

"We do a lot of other things, as far as what Woodmen's all about," said Bates. "We help out volunteer fire departments with different equipment and help out with things like that. We have teacher appreciations and different projects we can work with."

He continued, "Woodmen, we're defined as a fraternal-benefit-society. We are an insurance organization, but we're not for profit.

"I've been with the Woodmen for 44 years, and I've given out a lot of flags. The organization gives back to its nearly 700,000 members, who join together in a shared commitment to family, community and country.

"It's just something, we're very patriotic, we just want to donate to schools, churches and civic organizations and occasionally we'll donate to an individual group, but it's just something that we've always been doing since I believe 1959 or something like that.

"They made contact with me saying that they need the flag and of course there's lots of locations in Cullman (that need flags). They just call us when we need one.

"And once the flag starts wearing out, they'll call again asking for a flag because they know it won't cost them."

He also shared the most recent mission the organization: an impact campaign in support of Feeding America's COVID-19 Response Fund.

He shared this released statement on supporting the cause:

WoodmenLife launched an impact campaign in support of Feeding America's COVID-19 Response Fund. The need is immense, and you can help us reach our goal of $1,000,000 for this important cause.

More than 10 million Americans have lost their jobs due to the COVID-19 outbreak, and many already lived paycheck-to-paycheck. Still others will face unexpected medical expenses and struggle to feed children out of school indefinitely.

That's why we need your help. Feeding America – the largest hunger relief organization in the country – works with a network of 200 food banks and 60,000 food pantries and meal programs.

They serve more than 40 million people each year and established a fund specifically to meet this challenge.

This campaign will run through April 24, and we will be posting updates on our progress towards the goal as we go along. WoodmenLife has kicked things off with a $30,000 donation – a thousand for each floor of the WoodmenLife Tower! Please consider adding your donation today.

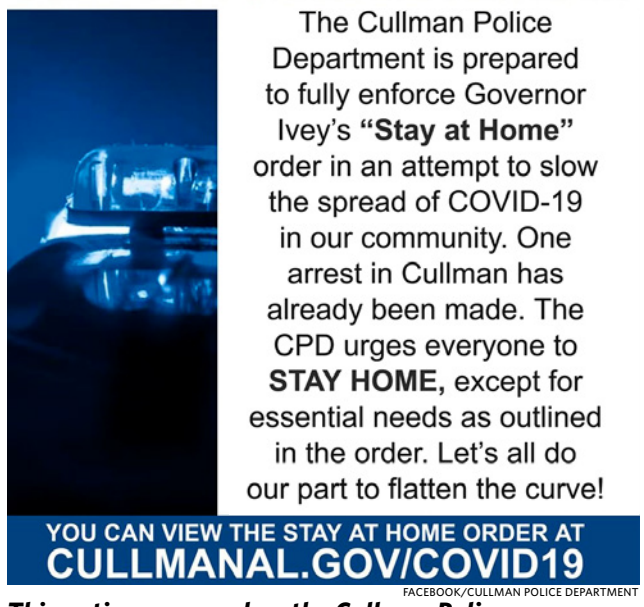

For more information and to make your donation, go to WoodmenLife.org/Impact. Please share the story on your social media so we can spread the word. Thanks for helping us make a difference.

Order (from Front)

craig@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN, Ala. – After Gov. Kay Ivey and State Health Officer Dr. Scott Harris issued a statewide "stay-at-home" order March 27, some people immediately began to question the validity of the order, arguing that the U.S. Constitution, Alabama Constitution and/or state law prohibit such orders and their enforcement. The Tribune took a look at pertinent documents of the federal and state governments to see what they actually say.

This notice appeared on the Cullman Police Department Facebook Page Monday, April 6.

What is a stay-at-home order?
While certain differences might exist between a "stay-at-home order," "shelter-in-place order" and a "quarantine," depending on who is using the terms, the State of Alabama seems to view them as somewhat interchangeable.

In an opinion issued about Birmingham's shelter-in-place order, issued before the state's stay-at-home order, Alabama Attorney General Steve Marshall cited the state's quarantine laws and noted that "The Alabama Administrative Code defines 'quarantine' as 'the forced isolation or restriction of free movement of a person or persons to prevent the spread of a notifiable disease or health condition.

Quarantine may refer to the restriction of access to or egress from any building, place, property, or appurtenance.'"

U.S. Constitution
The Commerce Clause of the Constitution authorizes Congress to regulate "commerce" between the U.S. and foreign nations, and between states.

According to the National Institutes of Health, the clause has often been interpreted by the federal government and federal courts in ways that allow Congress to take action on matters of public health if those matters can impact travel or economic relations between states.

Use of the clause for health issues by federal authorities has often been reversed in court, though.

The clause has been successfully used to vest authority to act for the benefit of public health in the Secretary of Health and Human Services.

The day-to-day operations of the Secretary's office are carried out by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC).

According to information available from the CDC, the federal government:

- Acts to prevent the entry of communicable diseases into the United States. Quarantine and isolation may be used at U.S. ports of entry.

- Is authorized to take measures to prevent the spread of communicable diseases between states.

- May accept state and local assistance in enforcing federal quarantine.

- May assist state and local authorities in preventing the spread of communicable diseases.

As the line of authority descends to more local levels, and since the Commerce Clause is vague- to say the least- on issues of public health, one of the most important federal level statements is the 10th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution:

The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people.

The Constitution's vagueness on matters of public health, by default, offers greater authority to individual states in that area.

State authority
According to the CDC, states have authority to "Enforce isolation and quarantine within their borders."

The agency also notes that "Public health authorities at the federal, state, local, and tribal levels may sometimes seek help from police or other law enforcement officers to enforce a public health order."

Alabama Constitution
Section Seven of the State Constitution provides that "That no person shall be accused or arrested, or detained, except in cases ascertained by law, and according to the form which the same has prescribed; and no person shall be punished but by virtue of a law established and promulgated prior to the offense and legally applied."

This essentially means that the authority to enforce any regulation, when that enforcement involves the arrest of violators, lies in existing law at the time of the violation.

Existing state law: The Code of Alabama
Ivey has called on the 1955 Alabama Emergency Management Act, which forms Title 31 in the Code of Alabama.

The Act allows the declaration of a state of emergency in a variety of conditions including a "state public health emergency," which it defines as:

"An occurrence or imminent threat of an illness or health condition that does all of the following:

a. Is believed to be caused by any of the following:
1. Bioterrorism.
2. The appearance of a novel or previously controlled or eradicated infectious agent or biological toxin.
3. A natural disaster.
4. A chemical attack or accidental release.
5. A nuclear or radiological attack or accident.

b. Poses a high probability of any of the following harms:
1. A large number of deaths in the affected population.
2. A large number of serious or long-term disabilities in the affected population.
3. Widespread exposure to an infectious or toxic agent that poses a significant risk of substantial future harm to a large number of people in the affected population."

Section 31-9-8 (excerpt)
"The existence of a state of emergency may be proclaimed by the Governor as provided in this subsection or by joint resolution of the Legislature if the Governor in the proclamation or the Legislature in the resolution finds that an attack upon the United States has occurred or is anticipated in the immediate future, or that a natural disaster of major proportions or a public health emergency has occurred or is reasonably anticipated in the immediate future within this state and that the safety and welfare of the inhabitants of this state require an invocation of the provisions of this section.

"If the state of emergency affects less than the entire state, the Governor or the Legislature shall designate in the proclamation or resolution those counties to which the state of emergency applies.

"The emergency, whether proclaimed by the Governor or by the Legislature, shall terminate 60 days after the date on which it was proclaimed unless the Governor extends the emergency by proclamation or the Legislature extends the emergency by a joint resolution."

Section 31-9-14
"The law-enforcing authorities of the state and of the political subdivisions thereof shall enforce the orders, rules, and regulations issued pursuant to this article."

Section 31-9-15
"A peace officer, when in full and distinctive uniform or displaying a badge or other insignia of authority, may arrest without a warrant any person violating or attempting to violate in such officer's presence any order, rule, or regulation made pursuant to this article.

"This authority shall be limited to those rules and regulations which affect the public generally."

Specific Quarantine laws laid out in Title 22

Section 22-12-4
"The Governor, whenever he deems it necessary, or the State Board of Health, shall proclaim quarantine, and when proclaimed, said Board of Health shall enforce such quarantine under such regulations as may, from time to time, be prescribed."

Section 22-12-26
"Any legal quarantine officer or guard may, without warrant, arrest a person who attempts to violate a quarantine regulation and carry such person either to a designated place of detention or before an officer having jurisdiction of such offense."

Conclusion
In this case, the "law of the land," from the federal level down, does permit the state government to issue stay-at-home, shelter-in-place or quarantine orders in the event of a public health emergency, and does permit local law enforcement agencies to enforce those orders, including the arrest and detention of violators.

Best Bets

6:50 p.m. on MAX
Movie: Mortal Engines

After languishing in development limbo for several years, Christian Rivers' 2018 adaptation of Philip Reeve's post-apocalyptic literary thriller finally made it to cinemas with a screenplay penned by Fran Walsh, Philippa Boyens and Peter Jackson, who had collaborated on Jackson's blockbuster "The Lord of the Rings" film trilogy. This project, set in a world wherein entire cities have been mounted on wheels and motorized, was notably less successful at the box office. Hera Hilmar, Robert Sheehan, Hugo Weaving and Patrick Malahide appear in the large cast.

7 p.m. on WVTM
The Blacklist

As the team investigates a mysterious disappearance in the Alaska Triangle, this Blacklist case takes a decidedly personal turn for Agent Park (Laura Sohn) in a new episode called "Twamie Ullulaq." Elsewhere, Aram (Amir Arison) turns to Red (James Spader) for help with finding out what really happened to Elodie's (guest star Elizabeth Bogush) husband. Diego Klattenhoff and Megan Boone also star.

7 p.m. on WIAT
MacGyver

In the new episode "Code & Artemis & Nuclear & N3mesis," Mac's (Lucas Till) friends all surround their teammate during his time of grief, but soon the real world inserts itself via a fresh crisis. The Los Angeles power grid is taken hostage in a ransomware attack that results in a citywide blackout. As the crew springs into action, they're stunned to discover that the code used in the attack was written by Riley (Tristin Mays) several years ago. Tate Donovan reprises his recurring role.

7:30 p.m. on SHOW
Movie: Sword of Trust

An excellent cast of comedy pros helps elevate director and co-writer Lynn Shelton's amiable, character-driven 2019 comedy, which stars Jillian Bell as Cynthia, who receives a bequest from her late grandfather as the film opens. It turns out to be a valuable sword that her eccentric departed relative always believed was hard evidence that the South actually won the Civil War. With her friend Mary (MIchaela Watkins), Cynthia meets with a pawn shop owner (Marc Maron) to find a buyer. Jon Bass and Dan Bakkedahl also star.

8 p.m. on WIAT
Magnum P.I.

It's definitely do-or-die time for this reboot of the fondly remembered 1980-88 Tom Selleck crime drama as this remake returns to finish out it second season in a time slot recently vacated by another, more successful reboot: "Hawaii Five-0," which ran for 10 seasons. In tonight's midseason premiere, "Say Hello to Your Past," Magnum and Higgins (Jay Hernandez, Perdita Weeks) launch a frantic search for Kumu (Amy Hill) after she is kidnapped by an injured man accused of killing his wife.

8:30 p.m. on WBIQ
Somewhere South

In a mouth-watering new episode called "Dumpling Dilemma," host Vivian Howard's trip to the Mississippi Delta and farther south soon turns up evidence proving that not all dumplings are the same. Regardless of whether these doughy delights are filled with ground meat, chopped veggies or nothing at all, they are invaluable when it comes to stretching ingredients, not to mention the imagination.

9 p.m. on MAX
Strike Back

The penultimate episode of this action drama finds Chetri (Varada Sethu) on the run and Carolyn (Lorraine Burroughs) in hot pursuit of them, forcing Novin, Wyatt and Coltrane (Alin Sumarwata, Daniel MacPherson, Jamie Bamber) to weigh personal loyalty against duty and self-preservation. Since the team is still blacklisted and left with few resources, S20 seeks help from some Russian allies to fight Russian foes, while the hunt for Zayef's (Alec Secareanu) hard drive continues.

Jay Hernandez stars in "Magnum, P.I." on CBS.

LEGALS

STATE OF ALABAMA

CULLMAN COUNTY

NOTICE is hereby given that a bill substantially as follows will be introduced in the 2020 Regular Session of the Legislature of Alabama and application for its passage and enactment will be made:

A BILL

TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT

Relating to Cullman County; to create the Battleground School Historical Board; to provide for immunity from civil liability of the members of the board; to provide for the transfer of the Battleground School property to the historical board by the Cullman County Board of Education; and to provide that the board may only transfer the property under certain conditions.

BE IT ENACTED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF ALABAMA:

Section 1. (a) In Cullman County, there is established the Battleground School Historical Board to own, operate, manage, and preserve the former Battleground School property in the unincorporated community of Battleground, including any ball fields and other historical structures, owned by the Cullman County Board of Education. The Battleground School Historical Board shall be composed of five members appointed by the Cullman County legislative delegation for terms of four years. Members of the board shall continue to serve until a successor is appointed. Members of the board are immune from civil liability for actions taken in the conduct of their duties.

(b)(1) The Battleground School Historical Board may accept title to the former Battleground School property owned by the Cullman County Board of Education and may hold the property for the benefit and use of the public, particularly the unincorporated community of Battleground. The Battleground School Historical Board may receive state, local, and other governmental funding and may accept charitable donations.

(2) The board may not sell or transfer ownership of the property unless approved by majority vote of the board and then by a majority vote of the qualified electors in the unincorporated community of Battleground at a referendum called by the judge of probate and held during the following general election.

(c) The Battleground School Historical Board may be reorganized as an unincorporated nonprofit association or other entity authorized by law by unanimous consent of the board.

Section 2. This act shall become effective immediately following its passage and approval by the Governor, or its otherwise becoming law.

Obituary Announcements April 10

Patricia "Pat" Gail Roden, 68, of Hanceville- In loving memory of Patricia "Pat" Gail Roden, 68, of Hanceville, Alabama. Mrs. Roden passed peacefully at her residence April 8, 2020 in Hanceville. Mrs. Roden is survived by her husband, Kenneth Roden; daughter, Stacey (Mark) Long; granddaughter, Abigail Long; brother, Craig Ashely; sisters, Barbara (Ray) White, Carolyn Puckett, and Lynn Ponder, nieces, Ashleigh Williams and Gabriel Gilliland; and nephews, David Puckett, Jamie Wilbanks, and Brandon Ashley. Mrs. Roden is preceded in death by her parents, Edward and Verla (Gamble) Ashley; sister, Sonya Wilbanks; and a brother, Douglas "Buddy" Ashley.

Joseph Duke, Jr., 69, of Holly Pond entered into the arms of his Lord and Savior, while surrounded by his family, in the early morning hours Thursday, April 9, 2020. He was born Jan. 5, 1951, in Columbus, Georgia, to Joseph Sr. and Katherine Janette Dawson Duke. Mr. Duke was a janitor at West Elementary School for many years. He then worked at Nicholson File until retirement. Referred to as "a jack of all trades" by his family, it appears that Mr. Duke had many talents and skills. He and his wife of more than 51 years loved to visit Amish country, worship their Lord and Savior together at Pan Creek Missionary Baptist church (where he served as a deacon), and loved spending time with their daughters, sons-in-law, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren. Mr. Duke was a loving husband, father, and grandfather. His family grieves for the man they love but they know he will be spending this Easter with the Savior that he loved so dearly, and this brings joy to them in the midst of their heartache. Joseph is preceded in death by his parents and his sister, Diane Barnett. Survivors include his wife, Patricia Price Duke; daughters, Tammy Kritner and her husband, Gary, Jennifer White and her husband, Brett; brothers, Donald Duke and his wife Elaine, William Duke; grandchildren, Cody Kritner and his wife Kari, Isaac Kritner and his wife Kacie, Tarrant White, Lexi White; great-grandchildren, Paxton Kritner, Waylon Kritner; and a host of nephews, nieces, family and friends. The family will say their goodbyes to Joseph Friday, April 10, 2020 at 1 p.m. at Holly Pond Cemetery. All guests are asked to remain in their vehicles for the duration of the services due to the COVID-19 restrictions. We ask that you please obey the order set in place by Governor Ivey in order that the family may comply with the 10-person restriction in place. They family welcomes guests, but ask that you please follow the order for your safety as well as theirs. Holly Pond Funeral Home is honored to serve the Duke family.

Who is Era Montez Henry Hays... she was 95 years young. First, she was a daughter to Oscie Madonias Henry and Cora Elizabeth Manning Henry. Her father was of English/Irish decent, probably from Wales, and some believe the linage of Patrick Henry's brother (remember – "give me liberty or give me death," and I believe some of that flowed down the ancestry chain). He was a frail man, a lifetime of heart issues. Cora Elizabeth Manning we believe was of German/Dutch descent. We always joked at the way we said "M's," milk is pronounced "Mimk," we always blamed our Dutch grandmother for that one! A few days ago, mom asked for her "quill" which we always knew was her drinking straw. Second, she was a sister to her many siblings, Horace, Herschel, Readie, Evel, Mae, Vassie, and Obera. Mom had a sweet gentle side but never underestimate her feisty side which she attributed to having older brothers to pick at her and her sister, Obera, who was 3 years older but due to a heart condition had to wear funny looking shoes (weak legs), and had fainting spells. Mom became her "protector." Walking her to school. Protecting her from the bullies at school. Mom learned "loss" at an early age when she lost her precious Obera at the age of 20 to our family demon of heart disease. In our house it was a cardinal sin to even "think" of making fun of someone for something they couldn't help. You just didn't do it!! She was a friend to the underdog. Mom's co-worker friends were often the battered divorcee, wife of the poorest among us. She was a seamstress by trade, meticulous about her work almost to the point of perfection. She would say," They've got to have so much "quality" to sell their "quantity"." It made me less money but I slept good at night." She was a friend to my friends also. I can remember when she sewed all day and came home and sewed most of the night to make my friend a black chorus dress for the next day, my friend speaks of it to this day. She was a war bride as my Dad was in the Pacific 3 1/2 years in WWII. When he returned, 2 1/2 weeks later they were married when they "found a preacher," it lasted 67 years until my Dad passed away. They were a beautiful couple. Cousins said they thought they were "movie stars" when they saw Dad in his uniform and met Mom in her cute little "trouser" pants, not seen a lot in that day. Mom was ahead of her time in a lot of ways. One of the first to work outside the home to help give us more. One of the first in the community to have her babies in the hospital, which worked well for me as I was transferred to Children's Hospital on day one of my life. The 1st baby to go to Birmingham from Cullman for cleft palate and repair surgery. She recounted how difficult it was to be left behind in Cullman, as Daddy and all 5lbs of me was carried through a fierce thunderstorm to Birmingham. Mom always had a "six Sense" I think when it came to her kids. Knowing, when we were "near" trouble, as she knew and asked the church to pray. When my brother was in Vietnam, we later found out he was packed in ice at that time with malaria. My sister, Kathy, always said when she had a date, Mom gave her some change and said, "in case you need to call me." She was a "child of God," member of New Hope #2 Baptist Church, with a very deep faith that unwavered. She was not one to wear her faith on her sleeve, she just lived it, day by day, step by step. And to us she was Mom, and to the grands she was Mamaw. She was Mom to myself (Wonda), Kathy, and my late brother, Royce. I remember as a child buttercups and honeysuckles on the tablecloth on the table. She would go to the field or woods to get them. I remember we prayed at the table. No T.V. We talked. I remember, on Saturdays she stood and ironed our starched fresh dresses and put long black ringlets in my hair. On Sunday, there were Easter Egg hunts at my house, my friends and cousins from church around the table. Fried chicken, pot roast, cobblers, cake and chicken stew. She lived through childhood family illness, the great depression, World War II, saw penicillin and electricity and indoor plumbing and a man put on the moon. She was truly one of the "greatest generation." Awhile before Mom passed, Mom had us take her to the Funeral home to prepare. She paid for everything and chose "white eyelet" in her casket and that I thought, is "so" Mom, "crisp and clean and ready for you Jesus." We Love You with all our hearts and souls. We will miss you but memories will always be with us, Mom. "Well done good and Faithful servant!!!" Late Husband – Ones Lee Hays (deceased) married 67 years; Children: Royce Hayes (deceased), Wonda (Mike) Martin, Kathy (Kevin) Shabel; Daughter-in-law: Linda (Charles) Cook; Grandchildren: Rodney (Tanya) Hays, Richard (April) Hays, Amy Martin Lewis (Brad), Wade Martin (Magaly), Jonathan Shabel (Mallory), Andrea Shabel Voss (Alex); Great-Grandchildren: Carter Hayes, Callie Hayes, Thomas Hays (Hannah), Gavin Hays (Marissa), Cody Lewis, Austin Lewis, Lydia Lewis, Miller Shabel; Great-Great-Grandchildren: Emie Grace Hays, Sophia Hays, Harper Kate Hays, Hattie Hays; A host of departed friends and family as well as a host of nephews and nieces and cousins she loved dearly. She died of natural causes but due to the COVID-19 pandemic, we will have a limited family graveside service and plan to have a celebration of life memorial after the restrictions are lifted. Mom asked me to tell her family first and then to all that came, "She loved you all." She would joke, "No one will be at my funeral, most of my friends are gone." I would assure her we'd show up, little did I imagine a corona virus pandemic. Like I said, Mom you always had a sixth sense. Love you, Mama.

shift going out."

Sheriff Gentry: "We have quarantined the detention facility and we're checking the employees and inmates there for fevers twice a day. We also deep clean the facility twice a day. The deputies have been provided masks and gloves, and there's a constant supply of sanitizing material - Clorox wipes, hand sanitizer, stuff like that. Also, on certain calls the officers can stay outside while talking to people to minimize possible exposure."

Chief Long: "The officers have gloves, respirators, suits and even gas masks. We've also made sure they've got 60% alcohol hand sanitizer everywhere. The jail cells also get disinfected with a bleach solution every time someone is released on bail."

How has the pandemic affected law enforcement operations?

Chief Culpepper: "We're trying to avoid bringing new people into the jail so they don't spread anything to the people inside, so we've been issuing non-traffic citations to people instead of arresting for misdemeanors. We've also got a rotating shift at the police department that takes information and does reports over the phone. Dispatch will screen for calls that don't require an officer in person - for example, a stolen bike - and the people at the phone will stay on the line with the caller and fill out the report. Mostly, we've just been busy trying to educate people about the quarantine and what they can and can't do."

Sheriff Gentry: "We have also set up a system for people to call in for non-emergency calls and do reports over the phone."

Chief Long: "The officers are still making traffic stops, so they are encouraged to keep 6 feet of distance whenever possible. Our arrest rate has been slightly lower, but we are still making arrests. Believe me, if you break the law in Hanceville, we'll have a place for you."

Chief Culpepper also mentioned the CPD has already made one arrest for quarantine violation, and it will respond to calls regarding concerns about other possible violations. He also said that while the number of domestic violence calls has gone up, they usually involve less hitting and bruises and more loud arguments that concerned neighbors call and report. By contrast, Chief Long stated that HPD has not seen a noticeable rise in domestic violence calls.

For his final comment, Culpepper stated, "I want to encourage everyone to abide by the health order because these next two weeks will be critical to slow the spread of the disease in Alabama."
