BRINGING OUT THE BEST

Friends, family, even total strangers respond to storm victims

W.C. Mann
craig@cullmantribune.com

WALTER, Ala. – The little Walter community in southeast Cullman County is no stranger to meteorological phenomena. The EF-2 tornado that passed through Hanceville during the April 27, 2011 outbreak also passed through Walter, causing property damage. On March 19, 2018, the current Alabama state record hailstone was collected in a North Walter yard that had been in the path of the 2011 tornado. Only a few days before, on March 6, 2018, the northeastern edge of the community was even the site of an admittedly not very non-disastrous earthquake, a mild 1.7 magnitude that was only detected by seismometers.

On Easter Sunday, April 12, 2020, another EF-2, part of a storm that had just struck Good Hope and Johnson's Crossing, dropped into Walter along County Road 703.

ccording to National Weather Service investigators, the tornado ran 2.5 miles through the community, uprooting and splintering trees, and removing roofs from houses, barns and chicken houses along a path of destruction up to 350 yards » PAGE 2

Disabled American Veterans establishes COVID-19 Relief Fund

Help for vets affected by layoffs and business closures

DAV/FACEBOOK

COLD SPRING, Ky. – Marc Burgess, national adjutant of Disabled American Veterans (DAV) announced Monday that the organization has created a COVID-19 relief fund for veterans with service-connected disabilities. The organization is seeking both applicants for aid and donors to help fund the program.

Burgess' release to DAV officers reads:

As COVID-19 continues to affect communities around the country, it's having a devastating impact on many of our nation's veterans. On top of the additional health risks our wounded, ill and injured veterans face with the coronavirus, thousands of veterans with service-connected disabilities are being laid off or have had to close their small businesses due to this pandemic.

In response to this unprecedented event, DAV has established a COVID-19 Relief Fund to provide financial aid to service-connected disabled veterans who have lost employment or income due to COVID-19. » PAGE 4

Editorial: I miss my senior friends

Christy Perry
christy@cullmantribune.com

The COVID-19 pandemic has interrupted everyone's lives in many ways. Those of us in the media are no exception. There are those, especially on social media platforms, who seem to believe that the media is enjoying this pandemic or even perpetuating it. This is simply not true. The last several weeks have been challenging, and although I typically welcome a challenge, I want nothing more than for this pandemic to be a distant memory.

As a lifestyle and human interest reporter, my days are normally spent meeting interesting people and visiting the many amazing senior centers, assisted living and nursing homes in Cullman County. The seniors of Cullman County are by far the most fascinating and enjoyable folks I know. I would rather tell everyone about them and share their stories than anything else.

On hard days, and as a single mom there are many, I find comfort and joy in stopping by to have lunch or visit with my senior friends. Thanks to COVID-19, my most cherished friends seem a world away. I know they are missing their families and friends as they are not able » PAGE 8

Is my takeout food safe from COVID-19?

Justin Miller
Contributor

AUBURN UNIVERSITY, Ala. – It is no surprise that townspeople across Smalltown, USA are making efforts to continue supporting their favorite local businesses during the COVID-19 pandemic. To safely serve customers, many restaurants have switched their business models entirely by offering curbside takeout food or delivery options. However, many people are wondering if this method is truly safe.

Takeout food safety
Alice Moore, an Alabama Extension food safety and quality regional agent, said the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), the Federal Drug Administration (FDA) and the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) all say no current evidence indicates the transmission of COVID-19 by food or food packaging.

"There is no current information that says takeout or drive-through meals will increase the likelihood of illness," Moore said.

"High-risk populations, including the elderly, can use this option to maintain social distancing and reduce their risk."

Having food delivered helps maintain social distancing guidelines and also reduces the number of touch points between the preparation and serving of food. Many restaurants have incorporated no-touch forms of payment to further protect their customers and employees.

Even with the low risk of transfer from food packaging, Moore said washing hands is the best way to ensure staying healthy.

"To further reduce your risk, wash your hands properly for at least 20 seconds," she said.

"If desired, people can use a hand sanitizer after handling food packaging."

Takeout food safety at home
In addition to avoiding COVID-19, people must take steps to avoid foodborne illnesses as well. With takeout and delivered food becoming more and more common, people must know the proper food safety guidelines for this food.

Keep hot foods hot
"The FDA says that hot foods should never be left out on the counter or in a car for more than two hours without refrigeration," Moore said.

"If you are not immediately eating the food you picked up or had delivered, there are two safe options."

- Option One- Hold the hot food in a preheated oven. Use a calibrated food thermometer to check the internal temperature of the food to ensure it maintains 140°F or above.
- Option Two- Store the food in the refrigerator and reheat to an internal temperature of 165°F before serving.

Properly reheating food is extremely important. The FDA recommends that people should reheat foods containing meat, poultry, eggs or seafood to an internal temperature of 165°F. Bring sauces, soups, and gravies to a rolling boil to reheat.

"Do not reheat food in a slow cooker or chafing dish," Moore said. "Through these methods, foods stay in the temperature danger zone (40°F to 140°F) for too long."

Keep cold food cold
Moore said that people should store all cold foods at 40°F or below.

"Refrigerate foods as soon as possible but within two hours after pickup or delivery," she said. "If outside temperatures are above 90°F, including your car temperature, you have one hour to refrigerate the food." When picking up food on a day with high temperatures, consider using a cooler with ice or gel packs if the food will not be refrigerated within two hours or one hour if above 90°F.

CULLMAN, Ala. – Alabama Lt. Governor Will Ainsworth visited the HomTex, Inc. manufacturing facility in Cullman Wednesday to view the production of the company's DreamFit face masks. Ainsworth wanted to see first-hand the production that was underway and to gauge the ability of the company to produce annually the 400 million disposable face masks that could ultimately be made in partnership with the State of Alabama.

Gudger invited Ainsworth to tour the facility.

HomTex is undertaking a $5 million expansion expected to create 100 new jobs.

Gene Mayfield recounts tornado impact and response
Gene Mayfield's home at the intersection of County Roads 703 and 768 took a direct hit, losing its roof and sending debris hundreds of feet away. The interior of the house suffered severe damage, exposed to wind and rain.

Mayfield recounted the events of Sunday evening:
"I had this eerie feeling all day Sunday. And when it came, the second tornado warning was the one that really got to us, because they said the first one was going north. But then the second one: they said it was coming right this way. We got in the bathroom, and I asked my wife: I said, 'Where's your raincoat at?' She said, 'What'll I need that for?' And I said, 'Well, we may need it.' And sure enough, we did.

"We went into the bathroom and she was sitting in a chair, and I had my back against the bathroom door. And when it started coming to us, it started raining real hard; then, all of a sudden, the house went to whistling. You hear an old house, how it whistles through the windows, around the doors and windows? Well, it started whistling, and it just got louder and louder and louder; magnify that thousands of times. And the whistle was so eerie, it just hurt your ears.

"But as far as a roaring sound, we never heard a roaring sound. And then, all of a sudden, the roof just went to peeling off. And I leaned over and grabbed the back of the chair arms, and had her between me and the chair, but we never lifted off the ground or anything. But the roof just started peeling off, little by little, more and more and more. And in a matter of, it seemed like, five seconds or more, it was over and done with."

Within minutes, the community response began with Mayfield and a neighbor yelling across the yard to check on each other. A short time later, the Berlin Volunteer Fire Department arrived, followed by a large number more to come over the next two days.

Said Mayfield, "The majority of them was kinfolks: brother-in-laws, sister-in-laws, nieces and nephews, our Pastor at Duck River Baptist Church and his father, and some of the church members.

"Then- I'm in the volunteer fire department at Walter- and some of the volunteer fire department came. We are a close-knit family, and we've always helped each other any way we could."

After consultation with his insurance company, Mayfield will not repair his severely damaged house. Already preparing for a major renovation of the old one, he will instead build a new house even better than before, with accessibility features for family members and, as might be expected, a storm-proof safe room.

Etsel Riddle commends friends and strangers
Rev. Etsel Riddle, pastor of Oak Level Baptist Church and former pastor of Walter Baptist Church, and his family live next door to the Mayfields; their roof was damaged, but held in place, preserving the interior of their house. They found their vehicles penned in by fallen trees and pieces of the Mayfields' roof, and substantial damage to a storage building.

A short time after the storm, a Berlin firefighter arrived at Riddle's home to check on the occupants. Later, with the initial round of urgent calls behind them, a crew returned to cut some larger fallen trees and clear a path for a family vehicle to the road.

On Monday, as Riddle and his family sat down to take a break from cleaning up, Gary Baker, a former member of Walter Baptist Church who has remained a family friend over the years, appeared in the driveway, chainsaw in hand, asking simply, "Where should I start?" Riddle retrieved his own chainsaw, and the two went to work.

Additionally, Riddle related, a young lady he could only remember as "Britney" stopped by the house to ask if there was anything she could do. She went to the store and bought a battery for Riddle's tractor, so he could use it to haul debris.

A little while later, though, Mitch Duke, another member of the Walter Baptist Church family, arrived on his own tractor fitted with a grapple to pick up large loads of debris and move them to the street. In an afternoon, what would have been days of labor for the family was finished.

Riddle told The Tribune Tuesday, "I did not know that either one of them was coming over yesterday to help me out; they just showed up. That's the kind of people they are: just wonderful, caring, sharing people.

"I tried to pay both of those men for their labor, and they would not have it. So, what they were doing was community spirit giving. They gave to me, and I hope that in some way I can pass it on, pay it forward to someone else. Not a whole lot I can do, but I can do some things. I was real pleased with them. I wish that there was some way I could repay them. They're just good men."

Daystar Church arrives in Walter
On Wednesday morning, a volunteer crew from Daystar Church arrived in Walter with chainsaws and gloves, after two full days at Johnson's Crossing, to cut up and clear downed trees just down the road from Mayfield and Riddle. Between Monday and Wednesday, more than 30 members of the church came out to help in various locations.

Daystar Global Outreach Director Chris Hopper, who was a member of the crew, told The Tribune about his team, "I love them! They're selfless. Their servants' hearts (are) something that challenges me to live up to. They're the hope of the world, man. 'Love God, love others:' that's their motto and they live it out. They walk it out every day."

Let us know!
What have you seen? If you were a storm victim helped out by someone, or if you were a member of a group responding to the storm anywhere in the county, let us know. We know people don't do selfless things to get attention and praise, but we want to give it to them anyway!

EDUCATION: COMMUNITY COLLEGE MONTH SPOTLIGHT

Lois White's care and concern for others led to Wallace State degree in her 60s

Russell Moore
WSCC

HANCEVILLE, Ala. – Lois White has served many roles in her life – sharecropper's daughter, wife, mother, grandmother, great grandmother, beautician and social worker, among others.

White's also a Wallace State alum. Her persistence and hard work in life is an attribute of many successful community college students, highlighted in April during Community College Month.

White, 82, is a 1998 Wallace State graduate, earning an associate degree in human services in her 60s.

White graduated from Fairview High School in 1958 and initially pursued a cosmetology career, working as an apprentice to Jesse Mayo, who was the father-in-law of Betty Mayo – Wallace State's cosmetology instructor at the time. White eventually ran her own beauty shop for three years before beginning a family.

Before enrolling at Wallace State, White worked at Automatic Electric, which later became GTE. She joined Automatic Electric after her sixth child entered school.

She worked there for 11 years, working night shift, while also raising six children.

While caring for family members with various illnesses, she wanted to learn more about understanding people's actions through a human services degree. White began classes at Wallace State in 1990, enrolling in one or two classes per quarter.

In order to pay for college, White sold cattle.

"It seemed that when it was time to pay tuition, it was the same time cows were ready to sell," said White, who made the Dean's List at Wallace State.

White did all of this while also raising her big family. She only had two children at home during this time, but she was having to care for a son who had been in a construction accident, her mother-in-law and father, who were both ill, and her daughter Margaret, who had lupus.

As a Wallace State student, White shadowed and learned from social work professionals with the Alabama Department of Human Resources (DHR) and Cullman Regional Medical Center.

"One of the most beneficial or rewarding things about attending Wallace State was learning background information on why people act and react the way they do. It helped me learn how to talk to people more effectively," White said.

Upon graduating from Wallace State, White thrived in a role as a Court Appointed Special Advocate (CASA) volunteer. White's husband, Carroll, joined her through the volunteer efforts until he passed away in 2012.

"Growing up in Gold Ridge as sharecropper's daughter, college wasn't an option, so I pursued a college degree later in life to learn more about myself, my family and others. I gained skills at Wallace State to be a better caretaker and as a professional. It helped me better understand what others were dealing with," White said.

White, who has six grandchildren and eight great grandchildren, retired from CASA last year.

"I have many more 'grandkids' through CASA," White joked.

White attended Wallace State simultaneously with her Margaret, a dental assisting and nursing alum.

White's son Jason is also on the Wallace State Future Foundation Board of Directors.

The issued grants are meant to help veterans pay bills, obtain food and provide for their families during these difficult times.

The application for this relief can be found at www.dav.org/COVIDrelief/. Veterans will need to fully complete the application and provide documentation verifying their status as a service-connected disabled veteran who has lost employment as a result of the pandemic.

Disabled veterans who are small business owners or who work independently and have been negatively impacted financially as a result of the virus may also be eligible for this assistance.

We humbly request your assistance in getting this information out as widely as possible so that we may help these disabled veterans who are desperately struggling and no longer able to make ends meet during this unprecedented time.

Like you, we don't know when this crisis will end. But we do know that together we can make a life-saving difference for our fellow veterans and their families.

If you would like to donate to this campaign, go to DAV.org/relief or text RELIEF to 484848.

On its website, DAV says:

"The devastation caused by COVID-19 is catastrophic. As the commerce of our nation grinds to a halt amid the coronavirus pandemic (COVID-19), many are finding themselves suddenly unemployed and unable to provide for themselves and their families.

"Veterans with disabilities are disproportionately more vulnerable to the impact of COVID-19.

"For our nation's 4.7 million disabled veterans, the coronavirus creates a set of unique challenges-not only do service-connected illnesses place these individuals in higher-risk categories, but many now also face a dire financial situation due to lost income.

"There are thousands of disabled veterans in need, and DAV is here to help."

From DAV

Who is eligible?

"Service-connected disabled veterans who have lost employment as a direct result of the COVID-19 pandemic are eligible.

"This includes veterans who are self-employed as contractors or small business owners."

What documentation is required?

"To verify your status as a service-connected disabled veteran, you will need to submit a copy of a valid VA identification card or any other proof of service connection from eBenefits."

"To verify your hardship, you will need to submit proof of unemployment such as a termination letter or proof that you've applied for unemployment benefits. If self-employed, you will need to submit proof of lost income."

Do I need to be a DAV member to receive benefits?

"No. Being a member is not a requirement to receive any of the no-cost services DAV provides veterans, but you are always welcome to join our ranks."

HANCEVILLE, Ala. – Wallace State men's golf sophomore Carter Goodwin was named to the National Junior College Athletic Association (NJCAA) Division I PING All-District IV Team by the Golf Coaches Association of America (GCAA) on Tuesday.

Goodwin, a Spain Park graduate, tallied seven Top 10 finishes during his Wallace State career, capping it with a fifth-place finish at the Coastal Alabama Invitational in February.

He was an All-Tournament selection in the inaugural Dan York Memorial Tournament last September, placing third overall.

Goodwin, who has signed to golf at Appalachian State next season, was among the golfers to help Wallace State finish ninth nationally last spring at the NJCAA Division I National Championships.

4 Trojans named in D1 Baseball's Sun Belt Conference Wrap

Troy Athletics

TROY, Ala. – Four Trojans were mentioned in D1 Baseball's Sun Belt Conference Wrap as part of the prestigious publication's look back at the shortened 2020 season. Among those mentioned, Levi Thomas was named the most impressive pitcher while Drew Frederic was listed as the most impressive senior.

Thomas posted a 0.39 ERA to go along with 42 strikeouts compared to just six walks. The junior held opposing batters to a .117 average in his 23 innings pitched on the year. Thomas was thrust into the national spotlight after tossing six scoreless innings at No. 1 Florida.

Frederic was also on pace for an outstanding season after leading the Trojans with a .409 average, the second-best mark in the conference. The senior also stole a league-best 11 bases on just 13 attempts. Frederic scored 18 runs through the first 17 games, bringing his career total to 171, the most among active NCAA Division I players.

D1 Baseball also listed first baseman William Sullivan among the league's best freshman, citing his .396/.468/.547 slash line to go along with six doubles, including four in one game against Northern Kentucky.

Rigsby Mosley was named the Sun Belt's seventh-best 2020 MLB draft prospect, while Thomas was listed as the eighth-best prospect.

Mosley was hitting at a .351 clip and scored a team-best 20 runs before the season was abruptly halted. Ten of Mosley's 26 hits went for extra bases, highlighted by a grand slam in the Saturday contest at No. 1 Florida. The junior notched seven doubles in just 17 games, which tied for second in the Sun Belt and was the 34th-most in the country.

With the next pick: Auburn DL Marlon Davidson

Greg Ostendorf
AU Athletics

AUBURN, Ala. – When former Georgia quarterback Jake Fromm was being introduced at last month's Academy Sports + Outdoors Celebrity Fishing Tournament in Gadsden, Alabama, Marlon Davidson raised his hand. Like Fromm, Davidson was competing in the tournament.

"Hey, I sacked Jake Fromm," Davidson told the crowd. It was his way of having fun but also a way to remind everybody of his talents, too.

Davidson is about as competitive as they come, and it was no surprise the former Auburn defensive lineman won the fishing tournament, beating the likes of Fromm and the others who participated. It doesn't matter if it's fishing, playing pool with his teammates or getting to the quarterback, he always wants to be the best.

"I have a lot of dog in me. I really do," Davidson said prior to his workout at the NFL Combine. "I'm not one of the type of guys who's going to sit there and get beat all game. The offense is winning one or two no matter what, but I'm going to come out and whoop their tail, and then I'm going to come back and whoop it again, then I come back and I'm going to do it again. It's going to keep coming with repetition.

"At that point, they're like, 'Man, I got to go against Marlon Davidson every play.'"

That relentless effort has vaulted Davidson into the conversation of going on Day 2 of the NFL draft, in the second or third round. At this time last year, he could've left Auburn early and likely been drafted in the later rounds, but he wanted to come back for his senior year and prove to people just how dominant he can be.

TODD VAN EMST/AU ATHLETICS

Auburn defensive lineman Marlon Davidson.

As a senior this past fall, Davidson recorded career-highs in tackles (48), tackles for loss (12.5), sacks (7.5) and fumbles forced (2) on his way to becoming a First Team All-SEC selection.

"Coming into my senior year, I was trying to show people that I'm real," he said. "A lot of people thought I wasn't that good or that I was just like a third or fourth-round guy, but when you turn the tape on this year, you see No. 3 and you're going to see No. 3 all game because I'm coming regardless.

Davidson is currently at home in Greenville, Alabama, anxiously awaiting to find out where he's going to go next.

In less than two weeks, he's going to get a phone call from an NFL team and realize a dream he's had since he was a kid growing up in Greenville.

"It's really scary," Davidson said. "You don't know where you're going to go. You don't know where you're going to be at. It's not like you're choosing a school all over again. The organization is choosing you. But it's a dream come true, it's a rush, and I love it."

NFL Combine

- 40-yard dash: 5.04 seconds
- Bench press: 21 reps

Draft analysis

"Davidson made the right decision by bulking up to over 300 pounds to sell himself to NFL teams as an interior defensive lineman. He used his hands well on the edge, and assuming his pass-rushing plans continue on the inside, he has what it takes to be a valuable inside pass rusher early in his NFL career.

"Moving positions could lead to a steeper learning curve for Davidson, and it may take time for him to become a sturdy run defender. But instead of being a lower-level athlete for the edge spot, he's a high-level athlete kicked in to defensive tackle." – Chris Trapasso, CBS Sports

Signature moment

Fans might point to Davidson's strip, sack and fumble recovery against Arkansas this past season or when he beat Georgia's Andrew Thomas to sack Fromm. Both were game-changing plays that turned heads among NFL personnel. But if you ask Davidson, his signature moment came in 2017 at LSU when he chased down wide receiver Russell Gage to prevent a touchdown. It only showed up as a tackle in the box score, but Davidson, who prides himself on effort, never gave up the play and ran 65 yards to make the stop.

7 p.m. on WBRC
Last Man Standing

After Rev. Paul (recurring guest star Bill Engvall) manages to recruit Kyle and Mandy (Christoph Sanders, Molly McCook) for his church bowling team, a disgruntled Tim (Tim Allen) is left with two equally unexciting prospects for Team Baxter: Ryan and Jen (Jordan Masterson, Krista Marie Yu), in the new episode "The Big LeBaxter." Meanwhile, an anxious Vanessa (Nancy Travis) waits for the Teachers Association to endorse her as assemblywoman, and Kristin and Chuck (Amanda Fuller, Jonathan Adams) worry they've offended Ed (Héctor Elizondo) with their old-age jokes.

7 p.m. on WIAT
Young Sheldon

Sheldon (Iain Armitage) has a true scientific epiphany while at the dentist's office in the new episode "A Baby Tooth and the Egyptian God of Knowledge." Elsewhere, Dale and Meemaw (Craig T. Nelson, Annie Potts) go to a casino, but Georgie (Montana Jordan) makes a huge mistake while Dale leaves him minding the store. Wallace Shawn, Sarah Baker and Ryan Stiles guest star; Zoe Perry and Lance Barber also star.

8 p.m. on WTTO
In the Dark

As this mystery series returns for its sophomore season, Murphy's (Perry Mattfeld) driving compulsion to solve the Season 1 murder of her best friend Tyson draws her deep into the world of Chicago's underground heroin trade. As her situation grows more complicated, she's forced to turn Guiding Hope, her school for guide dogs, into a front for drug kingpin Nia Bailey (guest star Nicki Micheaux). The resulting sharp rise in revenue piques the attention of the IRS. Brooke Markham also stars.

8 p.m. on HGTV
Flipping 101 With Tarek El Moussa

Lidia and Fernando are ready to sink all their savings into flipping their first home in Rancho Cucamonga, but they're on totally different pages in the new episode "Failing to Plan Is Planning to Fail." Lidia is a dreamer with expensive design tastes, while Fernando worries obsessively about every penny they spend. They also have no contractor and too little money budgeted, so Tarek definitely has his work cut out for him whipping these clients into shape.

8 p.m. on HIST
Swamp People

Season 11 of this hit reality series draws to a close with two back-to-back episodes, starting with "Graduation Day," which finds king of the swamp Troy Landry out hunting with his dad, while Ashley gets sick from the strain as she and Ronnie rush to fill their boat. Then, in the season finale "Final Showdown," Troy and Terral try to tag out in a cursed bayou, but Daniel's airboat breaks down in the middle of the marsh.

8:30 p.m. on WVTM
Indebted

After Deb's (Fran Drescher) Aunt Judith dies, she hands responsibility for hosting shiva to Dave and Rebecca (Adam Pally, Abby Elliott) in the new episode "Everybody's Talking About the Shiva." She regrets passing that torch, however, when the younger couple decides they'll put a "modern spin" on the old traditions. The shiva also increases Joanna's (Jessy Hodges) chronic anxiety about dying alone, prompting her to look some love in some unlikely places — and people. Steven Weber also stars.

9 p.m. on WVTM
Law & Order: Special Victims Unit

Benson (Mariska Hargitay) and her SVU detectives struggle to catch a serial predator who is clever enough to use a date-rape drug that leaves behind no evidence in the new episode "Solving for the Unknowns." On a happier note, however, Rollins (Kelli Giddish) receives some good news. Ice-T and Peter Scanavino also star; Eddie Kay Thomas, Natalie Smith, Daniel London and Madison Ferris guest star.

Perry Mattfield and Brooke Markham star in "In the Dark" on The CW.

Birthday parade brings joy to local student

Christy Perry
christy@cullmantribune.com

WELTI, Ala. – Joseph Kanaday thought a couple of his buddies were going to drive by his home to wish him a quick happy birthday Tuesday afternoon. He was in for a huge surprise as a couple of buddies turned into a parade of cars, firetrucks and area law enforcement who showed up to make his 19th birthday one to remember.

Joseph, a senior at Fairview High School, has been at home and unable to see his friends since the week before school was let out in March due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

Although he has chatted with them and stayed in touch through social media, he missed his friends.

His parents, Jeff and Muriel Kanaday, wanted to do something special for their son for his birthday.

Muriel explained she originally just hoped to get a couple of people to come by and leave him a few things.

She posted her idea to Facebook and soon the community and Joseph's Fairview classmates began organizing something a little bigger.

She said, "It just blew up! He has lots of friends, classmates, neighbors, family...it's just a little bit of everybody."

Joseph has gone to Fairview since kindergarten and helps with the basketball team.

Muriel added, "He's very involved at Cullman Park and Rec's Therapeutic (Recreation) Program. They have a little group they call the 'Downs Club.'

"There's about four or five boys and they all go out and do stuff.

"They go to the movies and they are all kind of the same age."

As Joseph patiently waited at the end of his driveway proudly wearing a shirt that read "My 19th Birthday 2020 The One Where I Was Quarantined," the parade was lining up at Welti School.

Joseph was thrilled just to see the first couple of cars stop by, but suddenly, as he saw the Walter Volunteer Fire Department truck round the curve, his smile turned into a full-on happy dance.

Behind the firetruck was a line of cars as far as the eye could see filled with family, classmates and other friends and well-wishers from throughout the community.

They came with signs, balloons and gifts, including a coveted roll of toilet paper. Some even shot off a few fireworks and cans of silly string.

Vehicle after vehicle shared in Joseph's birthday excitement.

They came in cars, patrol cars, tractors and even on hoverboards.

His Class of 2020 classmates made sure to play a few of Joseph's favorite tunes as they made their way to celebrate with him.

Social distancing was difficult, and despite everyone hoping to give a Joseph a birthday hug, they settled for his greeting of choice-elbow bumps.

When asked how the birthday party parade made him feel, he simply smiled from ear to ear as AC/DC's "Back in Black" played, and shouted, "I LOVE IT!"

CHRISTY PERRY/THE CULLMAN TRIBUNE

Joseph received his own yellow hardhat from the Cullman Electric Cooperative, a visit from both Walter and Joppa VFDs, the Cullman County Sheriff's Office and the Arab Police Department.

to gather at their local senior centers, expect a visit from loved ones or attend a church service.

I have learned the hard way that putting off a visit can have heartbreaking consequences.

I had recently met the sweetest man at Hanceville Nursing Home who brought tears to my eyes as he spoke of the love he shared with his wife of almost 70 years.

The recording of him speaking of his "sweetheart" I have listened to countless times since he passed away a few weeks ago.

I had planned on meeting Mr. Virgil Henry's sweetheart Ruth, as he had insisted.

COVID-19 locked the doors to the nursing home before that visit could take place.

I miss sitting with Mr. John Tillman and hearing stories about World War II and Korea.

I miss Mr. Jimmy Davis educating me on the newest book he has read from the library.

I hope to sit and visit with my silly girls from Westminster Assisted Living as they laugh and tease one another at their lunch table.

Mary Ellen Jones, try to keep Ms. Sarah and Ms. Deannie from misbehaving too much- or don't. That's what makes you gals so much fun.

I miss checking in on the Spirit Kickers at Donald E. Green, the bean bag baseball showdowns with the Sizzlin' Seniors of Good Hope and the Recycled Teenagers out in Fairview, the crazy shenanigans of the Rowdy Bunch in Hanceville and the dessert table with my loveable buddies in Baileyton.

I am sad that my new friends at the Dodge City Senior Center and my old friends at Colony aren't playing dominoes and that the amazing guys and gals in West Point aren't able to play Rummikub.

I miss stepping on the feet of the Senior Outreach "Hee Haw" cast as they attempt to teach me how to dance.

Jim Anderton, you are a wonderful teacher. I'm just a lousy student. Gossiping with Ann and the girls at 55 East is more my lane.

The Cullman High School Jazz Band Big Band Dance was held just prior to the pandemic. They honored Cullman's World War II veterans and it was a splendid evening.

Had I known I would not be able to visit with Talmadge Drake, Spud Campbell, Julian Campbell, or any of the other handsome fellas there that night, I would have squeezed in one more dance.

As soon as it is safe, I will be going straight to Morningside Assisted Living to see my pal Spud.

The next time I see my friends, I will hug them a little longer and stay as long as I can. We will swap more stories and joke a little more. We will play one more game and sing one more song. What I won't do, ever again, is put it off until next week. I am not enjoying COVID-19 and I will be rejoicing when it's over, and when it is, I will hit the ground running to bring our readers more stories from "The Greatest Generation" (which just so happens to be the last book Jimmy Davis was reading).

If you are looking for something to do during this time, send a note to a nursing home or assisted living facility and thank those who are keeping our most precious neighbors safe. Check on your seniors who might not have or understand the internet. Help to make sure they, too, can enjoy the online services on Sunday mornings. Call them if they don't have access to these services and pray with them, sing with them or just spend time talking. You will be glad you did.

CULLMAN, Ala. – The Cullman County Bicentennial Committee is pleased to announce that the Wallace State Community College Fine and Performing Arts Department, the Town of Colony and the Cullman County Museum have been honored by the Alabama Bicentennial Commission with Alabama Bicentennial Legacy Commendations. The Alabama Bicentennial Commission announced the Alabama Bicentennial Legacy Awards and Commendations winners this week.

The honor recognizes outstanding projects by communities and organizations that were part of the commemoration of the statehood anniversary. Wallace States Fine and Performing Arts' "Stars Fell on Alabama" Bicentennial Musical Salute toured Europe and featured songs with an Alabama influence, and the special murals the Town of Colony created celebrated their unique heritage as one of the few African-American founded communities in Alabama. The museum was awarded for its Making Alabama Bicentennial Art Contest and Discovering Our Places Bicentennial Adventure- The Making Alabama Bicentennial Art Contest was in conjunction with the Making Alabama Bicentennial Exhibit hosted by the Evelyn Burrow Museum. The Discovering Our Places Alabama Bicentennial Adventure was countywide, a project of the Cullman County Museum and Cullman County Bicentennial Committee with financial support provided by the Cullman County Historical Society. Signs were placed at different historical sites from the Hanceville Drug Company to Good Hope School and the old church in Colony.

"Communities invested time and resources in an amazing range of projects," noted Alabama Bicentennial Commission Chairman Sen. Arthur Orr. "Our successful Bicentennial celebration owes a real debt to their efforts, especially for projects that will be important to the state, its communities and its citizens for a long time to come."

Awards were given in two categories: Commendations for outstanding Bicentennial programs and projects and Legacy Awards for projects of exceptional and lasting impact. Forty-one commendations and 21 legacy awards were given, representing more than 40 municipalities in 35 counties.

Projects ranged from celebration events to city murals to preservation and restoration of sites and structures. Many projects were locally-focused while some were regional or even statewide. Many are especially notable for their long-term relevance and impact.

The awards represented every region of the state and ranged from small towns like Mooresville (population 50) and Lillian (population 117) to major metros, including Birmingham, Montgomery and Huntsville. Stand outs include Baldwin County, which pledged to erect more than 50 new historic markers, and Cullman County, which sustained extensive programming over the three-year celebration.

Alabama League of Municipality Communications Director Carrie Banks, who served as co-chair of the Bicentennial Local Activities Committee, noted that "collaboration and partnership were key. Many communities created bicentennial committees, which brought chambers of commerce, public libraries and tourism offices, among others, to the table."

Each winning project will receive a bronze plaque noting the name of the project and its award. The plaques will be a public reminder of the achievements of Alabama communities during the Bicentennial commemoration.

For more information on the plaques and plans for dedications, contact Drew Green, director Cullman County Museum, at 256-739-1258 or dgreen@cullmanal.gov. For more information about the Alabama Bicentennial Legacy Awards and the Bicentennial commemoration, visit www.ALABAMA200.org or call 334-242-4537.
