For Goodness Cakes: New bakery opens in SW Cullman

CONTRIBUTED

Take-home cupcake kits have been a big hit for new business, For Goodness Cakes. Thursday's cupcake kit theme was "spaghetti and meatballs."

Christy Perry
christy@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN, Ala. – April 1 was supposed to be the ribbon cutting and grand opening at For Goodness Cakes in Cullman. Jazz Johnson is the owner and baker of the new custom cake shop, and COVID-19 put her entrepreneurial skills to the test. With weddings, graduations and other special events put on hold, she wants everyone to know, she is still open for business.

The pandemic and Stay at Home Order put an immediate halt to many of the orders Johnson was already planning to do.

"I had started contracting out cupcakes for some of the schools for their graduations," she said. "Instead of giving flowers, they would give cupcakes. I came across an order I had placed for the individual cupcake boxes. It just hit me that it's several thousand dollars I lose right off the bat because I don't have those graduations this year."

Johnson said people are still purchasing birthday cakes but doing smaller cakes at the last minute rather than larger cakes planned for weekend parties. As a new business owner, Johnson had a creative way to bring customers to her cake shop.

"We came up with the cupcake kits," she smiled.

Thursday, the cupcake kit was "spaghetti and meatballs."

"I do a new one every day," said Johnson. "I make a video tutorial on how to do it. For $25, you get all the materials you need to make the kit, and then the tutorial, we email it to you. You can either teach your kids how to do it or let them watch the video on how to do it. It's been a huge hit."

On Wednesday, Johnson offered Earth Day cupcake kits and during Easter she put together bunny cupcake kits.

"Easter was huge," she said. "I couldn't tell you how many we sold, but it was a lot. We bought every bag of marshmallows at both Wal-Marts, Warehouse Grocery and the Dollar General right here had. Every single bag."

Johnson said she knew she had to think of something to offset the cost of opening her new business and the income she was losing.

STATE

AL counties can apply for COVID-19-related election expense reimbursement

Grace Newcombe
Contributor

MONTGOMERY, Ala. – This week, Alabama received $6,473,612 from the coronavirus stimulus package recently appropriated by Congress. The Alabama Secretary of State's Office will match 20% ($1,294,722) of this funding to prepare for and respond to election activities on July 14 as well as November 3.

In order to keep polling places safe and sanitary, the Office of the Secretary of State intends to reimburse counties for various preparation and election expenses including, but not limited to, masks, gloves, disinfectant spray, hand sanitizer, alcohol wipes and professional cleaning services to return the polling places back to their sanitary pre-election condition.

"Protecting the health and well-being of our voters is of paramount importance. We will continue to maintain close communication with the local election officials in all 67 of Alabama's counties to safeguard the opportunity for voters to appear at the polls in-person on Election Day," stated Secretary of State John H. Merrill.

Funds will be set aside to reimburse Absentee Election Managers for the added work completed due to the lengthened absentee voting period as well as to compensate poll workers with additional pay.

"Poll workers and Absentee Election Managers are being tasked with an increased workload during these trying times, and it is important that they are compensated accordingly," continued Merrill.

"We greatly appreciate their commitment and dedication to ensuring the electoral process continues in a safe and healthy manner."

Reports of state spending will be submitted to the U.S. Election Assistance Commission for public inspection.

All resources must be expended for these purposes no later than Dec. 31, 2020.

Hanceville refunding parks and rec ball fees

Becky Miller
Contributor

HANCEVILLE, Ala. – The Hanceville City Council held its regularly scheduled meeting Thursday afternoon, where Mayor Kenneth Nail gave an update on the mayors' meeting that took place at Cullman City Hall Tuesday.

"We don't think we will be able to salvage the park and rec ball this year," said Nail. "We pretty much all agreed at some point we might be able to salvage the travel ball tournaments and that sort of thing."

The mayors agreed to get together again in the near future to make a collective decision.

"I think that's the fair thing to do," he continued. "We wouldn't need Hanceville down here wide-open having tournaments and Good Hope not and Cullman not or visa-versa."

One problem he did point out was with refunding money.

The City of Hanceville already ordered uniforms with players' names on them, making them unusable for next season.

The council voted to refund the registration fees for T-ball ($45) and baseball and softball ($55). Checks will be sent through the mail.

A safe system for jersey and cap pick-up is still being worked out. Hanceville Fire and Rescue was awarded a grant from Firehouse Subs for $33,180 last week. The money will be used to replace hydraulic tools (jaws of life).

Work is nearing completion for the city's new dog park that was made possible by a $5,000 grant. The dog park was moved from the lower portion of Veterans Park to the upper portion near the pavilion.

Nail asked everyone who still has a Hanceville City garbage can to please set those at the curb for pick-up.

Beginning May 4, the County will not pick up garbage unless it is inside the new County provided cans.

Nail explained, "They will not pick up garbage set on the side of the road in a garbage can.

"If it's not in their can where their automatic operator driver can pull up, grab it with that arm, and the can goes back, they aren't going to get it."

The next Hanceville City Council meeting will be held May 14 at 4 p.m.

COMMUNITY COLLEGE MONTH SPOTLIGHT

Chris Green's passion for music aided by Wallace State degree

Mary Amelia Taylor
WSCC

HANCEVILLE, Ala. – Chris Green is fueled by multiple career passions.

Green's love of music led him to Wallace State Community College, where he graduated from in 1997 with an associate degree in music education and option in church music.

As a proud alum, Green, a Blountsville native, uses his music degree today, while also serving as the Blount County Probate Judge.

"I always worked bi-vocationally in church music and my Wallace State education equipped me to use my skills to the fullest potential," said Green, who enrolled at Wallace State in his 30s.

Like many non-traditional students, Green had to juggle many responsibilities as a Wallace State student.

"I was a full-time poultry and cattle farmer and part-time church music director at the time. It was very challenging to attend school and work, and I could have never done it without the help of my wife, Pam. It was a team effort, for sure. I took classes in the morning and rushed back home to work in the afternoon and evening," Green said.

After graduating from Wallace State, Green's music career led him to serve six years as the bi-vocational music director at First Baptist Church in Hayden. He has spent the past 14 years at Cleveland First Baptist Church in the same role.

Green has also served Blount County in various government roles for two decades. He was elected as the Blount County Probate Judge in 2012 and is currently serving his second term. Prior to that, Green spent 10 years as the county administrator and three years as the county revenue commissioner.

Green has been among the top supporters of Wallace State's presence in Oneonta since the first site was established in 2016.

"My Wallace State education gave me the confidence to try and experience new things.

"I realized I could set an educational goal and achieve it even though I pursued my education later in life than most students," Green said.

Green credits former Wallace State Music Education employees Robert Bean and Michael Sparks for inspiring him to pursue a degree in the field.

Chris Green

"Both men were both great encouragers for me during my time at Wallace State," said Green, who also still farms.

"Further education always broadens your horizons and my time at Wallace State certainly did that for me. My classes at Wallace State definitely inspired me to work hard and be of service to others."

Green's daughters also attended Wallace State and both pursued educational degrees.

EDUCATION

Wallace State Health Science graduates working on the front lines

Gail Crutchfield
WSCC

HANCEVILLE, Ala. – Practicing medicine during a pandemic was probably something most health care providers in America never thought they would experience, yet that is exactly what they've been facing for the past several weeks. Countless graduates of Wallace State's Health Science programs are on the front lines from emergency responders, nurses, respiratory therapists and more.

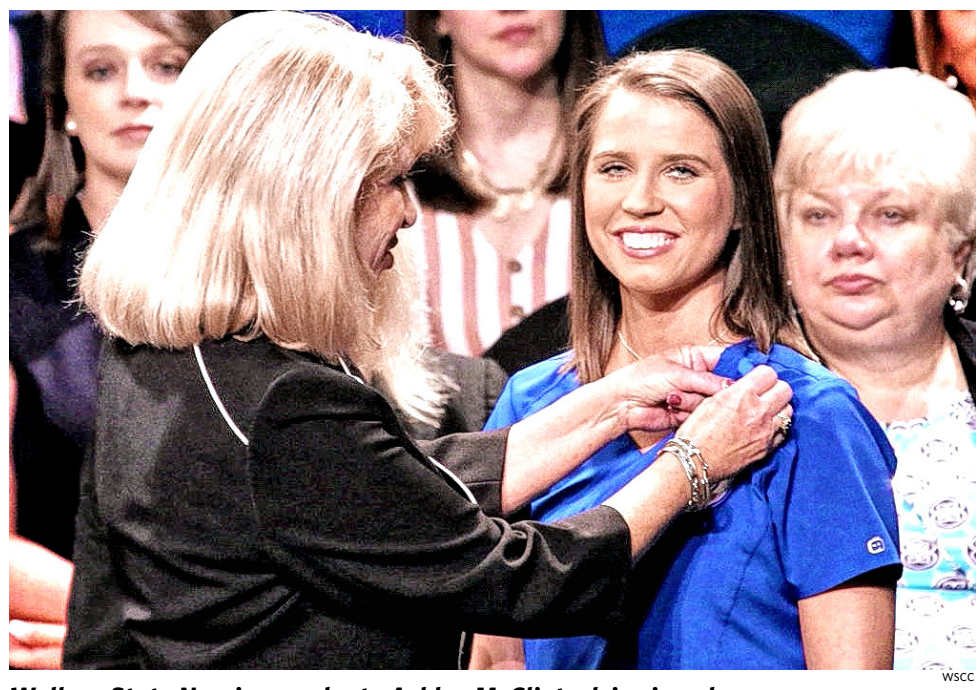

Ashley McClintock, 2019 Nursing graduate, is one of those working on the front lines. A nurse serving in UAB's Medical Intensive Care Unit, she's working in the state's epicenter for Covid-19. The unit is dedicated to caring specifically to positive Covid-19 cases as well as those who have been tested for coronavirus.

Working a 12-hour shift, McClintock said after clocking in and getting reports from the nurses leaving their shift, the rest of the night is spent caring for her patient or patients to whom she's been assigned for the night. Depending on the patient's condition, McClintock said she can spend anywhere from one hour to three or four hours at a time with her patients. That's to reduce multiple exposures to the virus and to conserve personal protective equipment (PPE).

Since visitors aren't allowed, McClintock said she's very aware of the fact that she is one of the few if not only person her patient will see during their shift.

"It's always important to have a good relationship with your patients, but right now, we're all they've got. We're their family for them right now," she said. "So, it's important to spend time with them and let them know it's going to be OK and that we're there for them."

While she said she wasn't sure if there would have been any way to prepare her for a pandemic, she said Wallace State's Nursing program did prepare her for taking care of her patients. "Wallace State absolutely prepared me to know how to handle things, how to be a nurse and to take care of my patients," she said.

WSCC

Wallace State Nursing graduate Ashley McClintock is pinned by program Director Deborah "Pepper" Hoover during the May 2019 pinning ceremony. McClintock served as president of her graduating class and was also a Nightingale Award winner.

"It was an adjustment, but I felt prepared for it," said Jed Hardman, another 2019 Nursing graduate. Hardman works in the Madison Hospital Emergency Department. There, the nurses rotate shifts between the traditional ER and a special section set up specifically for patients confirmed or suspected as the coronavirus.

"If they have symptoms, we treat them as if they are positive," he said, adding it's gotten a bit easier with rapid testing that provides a diagnose in a matter of hours rather than in days.

Both McClintock and Hardman take special precautions when leaving to come home at the end of the day. McClintock said she takes a change of clothes to change into before leaving work for the day. Hardman said his hospital provides them with scrubs they wear while on duty, allowing him to change in and out of those before leaving the hospital.

Both keep the shoes they wear in the hospital in their cars and immediately change clothes upon entering their homes and head straight for the shower. They each separate and launder their work clothes separately from their families.

Both are also ready for life to get back to normal but realize that may take several more weeks and they encourage others to maintain the social distancing guidelines.

"Listen to the people who are in the business," Hardman said. "The CDC and the World Health Organization who study this and do this for a living. It's not fun for anyone, but I would take their advice."

"I know you want to get out and go places, I do too," McClintock said. "But stay home and protect yourself."

The college and its alumni are supporting those on the front lines with both physical and emotional support.

The College's health science division donated its supply of personal protective equipment (PPE) to UAB hospital when it reached out for support. The Agriculture/Horticulture Production program donated hundreds of Easter lilies to brighten the day of residents and employees of Hanceville Nursing and Rehab.

Employees and students are volunteering in their communities to offer support where they can, making masks, delivering meals, donating food and other necessities. Alums are working on the frontlines in healthcare and on the supply lines in fields like culinary arts, agriculture, transportation and logistics.

Nursing alum Jay Terry posted a video for current nursing students and alumni to share some encouraging words and how they're taking preventative measures to protect themselves and their patients during this time.

"These are very unpredictable times," said Terry, a 2018 graduate of Wallace State's Nursing program and a registered nurse at Children's of Alabama. But he encouraged everyone to keep their eye on their goals.

"Keep your mind focused and keep those goals and accomplishments that you have set...and for most of you that's finishing nursing school," Terry added. "Keep your mind fixed on that. Write down those goals and those accomplishments and make sure those things are done even in unpredictable times like this. We need to be adaptable to change."

The Wallace State Nursing program has been designated as a Center of Excellence in Nursing Education by the National League for Nursing. The program is accepting applications through May 15. For more information, visit www.wallacestate.edu.

With this feature series, The Cullman Tribune is highlighting everyday individuals all around Cullman County who make our community a great place. #IAmCullman

Although Jay Jones isn't originally from Cullman, he now calls it home and says he would not want to live anywhere else. Jones was instrumental in creating Grace Place, a ministry at Grace Episcopal Church in Cullman that helps individuals with memory loss as well as their caregivers.

Jones is originally from Little Rock, Arkansas and years later moved to Cullman when, he smiled, "a group of friends threw a beautiful woman at me and I decided I fell in love with her and had to marry her. I thought it would be a good idea to live with her if I was going to marry her."

Jones' background is in theater, and was extremely active in the arts while still in Arkansas.

He explained, "I was in something called Sigma Delta Chi. It's the honorary literary fraternity newspaper, copywriters and people who write for a living are in. We did something in Little Rock every two years called the Farkleberry Follies. It was a show designed to spoof our seriousness about ourselves."

The show raised money for scholarships for journalism students. Many high-ranking elected officials and leaders participated in the Farkleberry Follies, Jones said.

It was through a relationship made during this time that Jones found himself in the health care industry.

This put him on a journey to South Carolina and several other stops before he landed in Vestavia Hills in 1994. The company he was with was absorbed by HealthSouth. He left to start his own business prior to HealthSouth's legal troubles.

He said, "My business was basically association management and worked with a group of large individual physical therapy groups in Georgia, Alabama and Tennessee."

Several years later he was given an opportunity to work for Home Instead Senior Care in Birmingham, where he still works today.

So how did Jones find himself in Cullman? It began with his close friendship with Grady Smith, former CEO of the Cullman Electric Cooperative.

"One particular Easter he had invited me to come up here and go to church with him and have lunch," said Jones. "At the exact same moment, I had invited myself to come up here and take them out to lunch. We literally traded texts back and forth."

That Easter Sunday at Grace Episcopal Church, Kathryn Callaway was sitting just a few feet away from Jones and a love story soon followed.

He said, "That following Tuesday she popped up on my Facebook feed as somebody you might know and she is just a drop-dead gorgeous woman. I clicked on it and sure enough, she had all the same friends that I have. I thought, 'How come I don't know this woman?'"

Jones planned a date with Callaway just three days later. He picked her up at the church, where she does flowers, and they eventually headed to Sweet Peppers for lunch.

"The date essentially lasted 13 hours!" Jones said. "She was having something she called game night at her house and she would love for me to stick around and see some of the people we know from church."

Their first date finally ended at 11 p.m. that Friday night. Jones and Callaway continued dating.

"We had so many mutual friends and once the friends started talking about it they thought it would be a good idea for us to get to know each other," he smiled. "So. six months later, we were married."

Jones and Callaway were married in 2010 and in 2011 the tornado hit and they moved to their new home near Cullman Middle School. They are very active at Grace Episcopal Church. It was through his business that the idea for Grace Place came to be.

He explained, "The business I am in is non-medical home care and about half of the clients that we have are individuals with memory care issues. At a certain point when an individual is able to come and go as much as they want, their short-term memory is compromised. So, getting lost is easy and not remembering where they've been. Home Instead Senior Care has been around for almost 25 years in Birmingham doing this. It's one of the things we specialize in and my job is more of a community educator."

Jones said he knew Cullman needed a program to help people with memory loss and cognitive decline.

"It took us about a year and a half to pull it all together, but we decided this would be a ministry we would get involved in," he said. "The purpose of the program is to provide creative engagement which is a different approach than a lot of places have that just basically babysit."

Grace Place opened its ministry in January of 2018.

When not volunteering with Grace Place or commuting back and forth to work in Birmingham, Jones enjoys participating with the Cullman Community Theater.

He and Kathryn both performed in the recent production of the dinner theater "Rumors." They also have a program at their church called Cursillo that he and Kathryn are active in. He is also a member of the Arnold Street Band.

"I play the guitar poorly," he laughed, "but love it and they are willing to tolerate me so we do the music together and it's a lot of fun."

Jay and Kathryn Jones have not had a game night recently, but he says they hope to get that started back up later in the year, perhaps after the COVID-19 pandemic. They enjoy spending time with their three dogs and cat: Bourbon the elderly Boykin Spaniel, total opposite siblings Buck and Penny and the "hair salon cat" named Sidney (named after the psychiatrist on MASH).

Jones said, "Kathryn got a haircut and a cat."

Jay Jones fell not only fell in love with Kathryn, but also the city of Cullman.

"This is one of the safest places that I have ever lived," he said. "I have never ever felt any perceived threat the entire time I have lived here. I have watched this town come together through the tornado and I have watched people support and help one another.

"When I had a tree fall through my house, I had a whole group of folks show up with tarps, chainsaws and all sorts of stuff. I'm not sure I would have found that in Vestavia Hills."

He joked, "I believe the number 25 is on our car tags simply because that's the average speed that most people drive. I find that comforting sometimes because nobody is in that big of a hurry, and when we get there, we get there."

Rumors (from Front)

craig@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN, Ala. – Dr. Ginger Holt, a surgeon in Nashville, often visits her hometown of Cullman and makes regular stops to treat herself at Rumors Deli. On a recent visit, though, she was the one doing the treating, presenting owner Annette Harris with a check for $7,500 to support the local business and to help Rumors provide meals to others around the area.

Harris said of Holt, "One day she texted me and just said she wanted to help and she wanted to give back to Cullman, and she wanted to help a small business- she wanted to help us- and what could she do.

"She wanted to start by giving a donation, and she wanted to leave it up to me to figure out who to help. But she did specify that she would like to help the elderly and people, maybe, that are not really getting help."

Harris is calling the food giveaway the "Ginger Project" because "One: Ginger Holt, and two: both Ginger and I are 'gingers!'"

Harris set about to find groups and organizations across the community. This week, she started delivering meals to workers at Comfort Care Hospice, Kindred Hospice and Econo-Med Pharmacy.

Said Harris, "I thought, 'Well, you know, who thinks about hospice? Hospice, they are medical care, and people need to think about them, too."

She added a commendation to the pharmacy for the care its staff takes in safely providing medications to the seniors in area nursing homes.

Upcoming plans include feeding weekday night shift workers at Cullman Regional.

Harris said, "(Holt) did mention Cullman Regional and some of the medical people there. And I thought, 'Well, you know, while they certainly do deserve to get help, what groups are not getting help from there?' is what I was thinking. I called and talked to Lindsay Dossey and Amanda Satterfield over there, and they told me that the weekly- through the week- night shift was not really being fed, so I thought, 'Hey, I'll see about that!' So, Monday, Rumors is going to feed the entire night shift at Cullman Regional, thanks to Dr. Ginger Holt. So that's one project."

Harris also plans to distribute Rumors gift cards through Cullman's Donald E. Green Active Adult Center, and wants to offer free meals for seniors 60 and older at the restaurant, once restrictions on in-house dining are lifted.

With help from C.H. Harris Contracting and the Cullman Area Chamber of Commerce, Rumors also recently fed officers of the Cullman Police Department.

Additionally, the restaurant has been able to provide even more meals with the support of local financial institutions.

Harris is also seeking other opportunities to help, like offering gift cards to families who have lost income because of "non-essential worker" layoffs.

She commends high-profile essential personnel like law enforcement, emergency responders and others, but noted, "I want to give to somebody that is not always thought of, and that's like, if somebody had thought of them, they'd be like, 'Oh, I wish I'd thought of them!'"

Harris said of the experience of giving, "I almost feel a little guilty, because I feel so good by doing this. I'm getting something out of it, by taking these things. Even though my money itself is not donating- she's letting me choose who gets it- and I get to pick who gets this, and I'm so excited because they are so happy and grateful to have it. I've been happy to do that.

"I thought that was pretty neat, that she trusted me with such a sizable donation to not only help the community, but to help me and my business.

"I've been really excited about it, and I just feel so good every time I take a box. I love to do it because it makes me feel good. It's a positive, with all the negative you see, and there needs to be that."

Harris took a moment at the conclusion of the interview to commend Rumors Deli's loyal customers, telling The Tribune that the restaurant is seeing increased tipping, and that customers are even donating cleaning products to help the staff keep everything clean and healthy in the kitchen.

"We've had a lot of really good support from the community, just to help us.

"Customers have been tipping really big, a lot more than usual, for us to give, spread out among our customers and to help us with bills or whatever we needed. We've seen such a generous part of the community that you don't think about it."

Bakery (from Front)

the kits planned for the next several weeks including rainbow cupcakes, sprinkle cupcakes, mermaids and unicorns, apple pie and Taco Tuesday for Cinco de Mayo. She has cupcakes planned for the boys, too, such as galaxy and fishing cupcake kits.

"We haven't been able to have our official grand opening. It's just been, well, 'Here we are,'" Johnson said.

"People who are stopping by have just seen the sign or they have seen how hard we've been working to turn this place into this. They'll stop by and buy something."

Johnson has cookies and pre-made cakes available, as well as the kits she makes for each day except Monday. Normally she would be booked to make wedding cakes every weekend, but with weddings on hold she hopes the Stay at Home Order and rules on gatherings can soon be lifted. She is still taking special order cakes. Her plan to put her display case in the store has been put on hold as a safety precaution.

Prior to opening For Goodness Cakes, Johnson worked for six years at her father Ron Foust's business, Stone Bridge Farms.

"Dad gave me a kitchen and allowed me to work there in a place outside of the house to make cakes," she said. "I worked under him and it was a five-year goal for me to have a storefront. The Lord provided that."

Although it's a tough time for those in the wedding business, Johnson said the wedding business is a fun business.

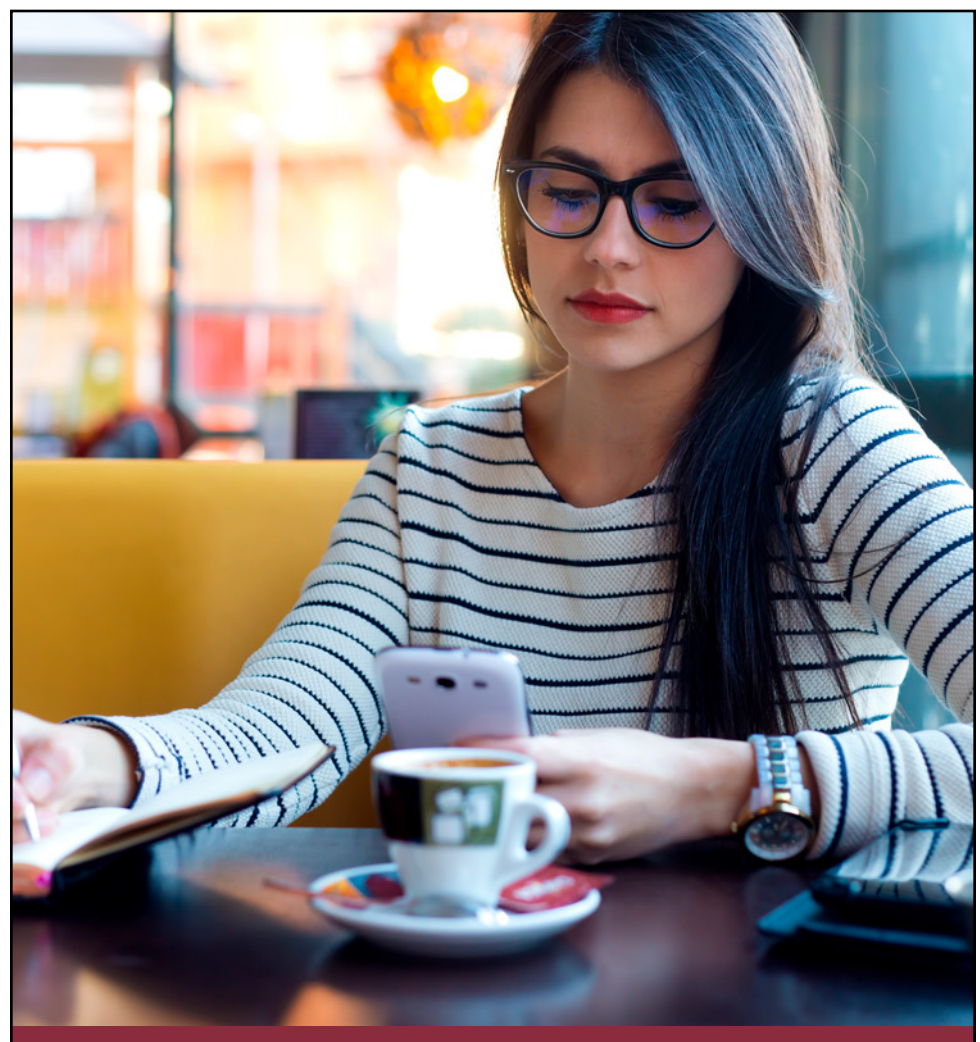

In the meantime, she said, "I get the question a lot about whether we are still making cakes right now. If it wasn't for my food permit, I wouldn't be allowed to, but I am a category 3 which allows me to stay open. A lot of bakers, in-house bakers, baking from their house are covered under the cottage food law which is not essential so a lot of people weren't able to stay open.

"I am so thankful for the people who have supported me. I am just blown away by how well it has taken off. Just the support that, I can speak for Cullman and not anywhere else, but us Cullmanites rallying together and taking care of each other.

"I see people sharing on Facebook all the time saying, 'I want to support small business today. Drop your business name and I will do a drawing.' I am just so grateful for all the Cullman people supporting. It's just great."

For Goodness Cakes is located at 1101 Swafford Road SW in Cullman. Find the store online at www.forgoodnesscakesjazz.com/ or www.facebook.com/forgoodnesscakesjazz/.

With the next pick: Auburn DB Noah Igbinoghene

Jeff Shearer
AU Athletics

AUBURN, Ala. – Either path he chose, Noah Igbinoghene figured, he would succeed.

Return to Auburn for his senior season to lead the secondary in 2020 or make the jump to the NFL.

"It definitely was hard," said Igbinoghene, who chose the latter and figures to have a short wait before hearing his name called in next week's NFL Draft. "I love Auburn. Auburn is the reason I'm here. Auburn let me change positions, allowed me to grow into myself playing this position, and so it was very hard to leave. Auburn gave me everything.

"I was really debating if I wanted to come back and be the leader of this team. Decided to leave, felt like it was the best thing for me and my family."

A receiver as a freshman, Igbinoghene switched to cornerback during spring practice before his sophomore season, becoming a two-year starter who's projected to be picked in the second round and perhaps even in the first (see below).

"I've only been playing the position for two years," he said. "if I would have been playing the position a little bit earlier, who knows what could have happened? It's a blessing.

"I didn't plan to come here and play cornerback. It just shows God's plan for me, and so I'm very appreciative of Him, and I'm thankful for Auburn.

"I'm still raw, so just my overall knowledge of this game. I don't know everything. I'm still a student of this game, becoming more knowledgeable, learning new things, new systems. We've a very man team here, so learning off man and zone."

A two-sport athlete on the Plains, Igbinoghene displayed his athleticism at the NFL Scouting Combine, running a 4.48 40-yard dash while seeking to equally impress during his meetings.

"Interviews all day," he said. "The most I've ever talked in my life honestly. It's a job now, it's a business, and that's how I looked at it. I know how to talk; I know how to talk about myself as well. It was a fun experience. "

NFL COMBINE

- 40-yard dash: 4.48 seconds
- Bench press: 15 bench reps
- Vertical jump: 37 inches
- Broad jump: 128 inches

DRAFT ANALYSIS

"Igbinoghene is one of the biggest risers during the pre-draft process because as more people got to his film it became a consensus opinion that he's a ridiculous athlete for the cornerback position, and despite only playing there for two years, he's pretty polished when mirroring in man and finding the football as it's arriving. Sure, he can be a little grabby, but you have to be physical as a man-to-man cornerback.

"The sky is the limit for Igbinoghene, and don't be stunned when he's picked near the end of the first round." – Chris Trapasso, CBS Sports

SIGNATURE MOMENT

It was, as Auburn coach Gus Malzahn calls it, a house call. Igbinoghene described it as 'a surreal moment."

In his final Auburn game, Igbinoghene flashed his track speed by returning a kickoff 96 yards for a first-quarter touchdown in the 2020 Outback Bowl, the first kickoff return touchdown in Auburn bowl history.

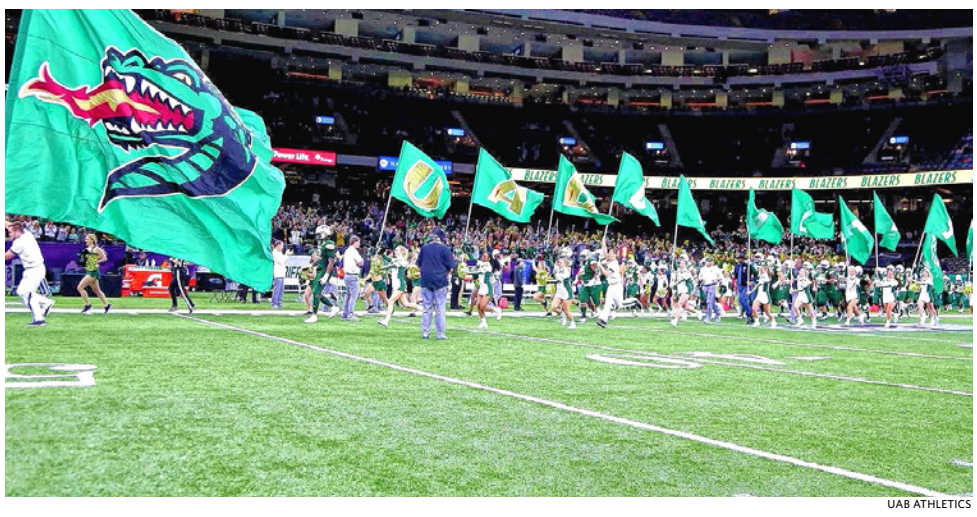

"One cut, and I just ran," he said. "It was easy. I credit it out to them. It was a big hole. That was all on them. I just ran and it was a pretty easy touchdown."

Igbinoghene also returned a kickoff for a 96-yard touchdown against Arkansas in 2018.

UAB Football provides updated season ticket order enhancements

Ted Feeley
UAB Athletics

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. – The UAB Department of Athletics will offer additional time and season ticket order enhancements to provide as many accommodations as possible during the novel coronavirus (COVID-19). These accommodations include an extended football season ticket priority deadline, a ticket assurance program, and premium seating payment plans. As a reminder, 2020 UAB Football season ticket holders will also have top priority leading into the 2021 season at Protective Stadium.

Blazer fans have played a vital role in helping establish the nation's fourth longest active home winning streak.

Since returning to action three years ago, UAB has yet to lose a home game in Birmingham (18-0). The Blazers also have the most wins (28) of any team in Conference USA, are 16-2 against West Division opponents and have appeared in two straight C-USA championship games.

"We're ready to build on our unprecedented winning streak in Birmingham and are excited for the 2020 season ahead," said head coach Bill Clark. "The support we receive from our fans is incredible, and we will continue to win as one."

Enhancements to the 2020 season ticket ordering process are outlined below:

Deadline Extension
Originally scheduled for April 1, the renewal deadline and football priority seat deadline has been extended to Friday, May 15. The new priority deadline allows more time for Blazer fans to renew or purchase before the 2020 season's priority allocation.

Ticket Assurance Program
Season ticket holders who have purchased directly through the UAB Athletics Ticket Office will have the option of a refund if for any reason the 2020 football schedule is affected in any way.

Payment Plan Options
Priority seating exists at Legion Field and requires an annual Blazer Scholarship Fund membership to be completed at the time of purchase. Payment plans are available for the scholarship fee associated with premium seating options in 2020.

A reminder that UAB employees also have the option to payroll deduct their 2020 season tickets during the months of May, June, July and August. For questions regarding payroll deduct, please contact your sales rep or the UAB Athletics Ticket Office at (205) 975-UAB1.

Top Priority at Protective Stadium in 2021
As a reminder, 2020 Blazer Boosters members and 2020 season ticket holders will have top priority for seats leading into Protective Stadium in 2021. Build your priority now as both seating and parking will be allocated based on the Blazer Boosters Priority Point System. Priority points are accumulated by giving through Blazer Boosters and purchasing season tickets for consecutive years. These points will establish a ranking system during the allocation process.

2019 football season ticket holders can visit uabsports.com to renew their seats for the 2020 season. Fans interested in purchasing new season tickets leading into the priority seat deadline can do so for as low as $75 with the Family Four Pack season ticket.

If you have specific questions regarding your 2020 UAB Football season tickets, call the UAB Athletics Ticket Sales and Service team at (205) 975-UAB1 or email at tickets@uab.edu.

The UAB Athletics Ticket Office continues to operate remotely, and at this time, we are unable to have any guests visit the ticket office at Bartow Arena in person. Fans can also request more information on ticket options for the upcoming season at uabsports.com.

HGTV Smart Home 2020

HGTV's new "smart home" for this season is a cunning and attractive blend of industrial and Craftsman design that combines comfortable, classic styling with striking iron and metal accents to celebrate the rich history of its location city, Pittsburgh. Among its interior features are a cozy breakfast nook, and warm family dining room and a spacious chef's kitchen that combines a playful mix of patterns and shapes. Viewers can enter an online contest to win the residence starting this week.

Movie: Double Indemnity

A classic that set up an entire genre, director Billy Wilder's 1944 drama established the idea of illicit lovers plotting a spouse's murder. Barbara Stanwyck plays the greedy beauty who preys upon an insurance salesman's (Fred MacMurray) weakness for her, thereby ensuring her husband's demise. Edward G. Robinson also stars. The screenplay is by Wilder and mystery novelist Raymond Chandler, adapted from James M. Cain's novel.

Dateline: Secrets Uncovered

A new episode called "12 Minutes on Elm Street" visits the case of cousins Nick Brady and Haile Kifer, who were to all outward appearances inseparable best friends. To their family, certainly, the pair seemed like typical teenagers. Too late, their loved ones discover the cousins had a secret that would lead to tragedy. Craig Melvin is host.

7:20 p.m. on HBO
Movie: Stuber

Director Michael Dowse's 2019 buddy cop action comedy may have earned mixed reviews overall, but stars Kumail Nanjiani ("Silicon Valley") and Dave Bautista ("Guardians of the Galaxy") earned lots of critical love for the comedic odd-couple chemistry they bring to their respective roles as mild-mannered Uber driver Stu Prasad and his latest fare, hyper-intense Los Angeles Police Detective Vic Manning. On a night when Stu just wants to concentrate on getting his first five-star review, Vic needs a driver to help pursue a brutal drug lord (Iko Uwais).

Mama June: From Not to Hot

In the new episode "Family Crisis: Mama's Cry for Help," Mama finally hits rock bottom and no longer can deny that she is in desperate need of professional help. Her family supports her getting treatment but things quickly spiral out of control, as usual. On another front, after her first day back at school, Alana acts out on social media and creates a disastrous scene that quickly goes viral.

Somewhere South

Given that the South is a heavily agricultural region with a long history of growing its own food, it's hardly surprising that natives of the region have a passion for fresh vegetables, especially if they're creatively prepared. At an annual homecoming celebration of the Lumbee Tribe of North Carolina, host Vivian Howard discovers the wonders of a collard sandwich. Later, during a trip to Georgia, she meets refugee farmers who grow greens that remind them of home in the new episode "It's a Greens Thing."

9:30 p.m. on WBIQ
International Jazz Day From Australia

From the iconic Hamer Hall in Melbourne, more than two dozen world-renowned musical artists unite for this one-hour special, a global concert to celebrate jazz. The program spans genres from bebop to bossa nova, from Ben Webster's "Did You Call Her Today" with vocalist Kurt Elling to Wayne Shorter's "Beauty and the Beast" with pianist and Jazz-Day co-chair Herbie Hancock, saxophonist Tineke Postma, drummer Antonio Sanchez and bassist Ben Williams.

Kurt Elling performs on "International Jazz Day From Australia" on PBS.

CULLMAN, Ala. – Patrons may not be able to visit the Cullman County Public Library System (CCPLS) branches in person right now, but the CCPLS has other resources to offer during this time.

"We do still have some services for our users!" exclaimed CCPLS Assistant Director Josie Harrington. "These resources require internet access, and I know not everyone has that at this time. The Cullman County Public Library still has public Wi-Fi available if you visit (though you would have to stay outside while we are closed, of course). The password to that wi-fi is posted on our doors."

The main branch of the CCPLS is located at 200 Clark St. NE, Cullman, AL 35055.

She added, "If you've got a library card that is expired, feel free to call us at 256-734-2720; that number has been forwarded so we can still answer calls. It's also possible to reach out to us through Facebook where we will try to answer questions and solve problems as well."

Harrington also offered the following resources:

Camellia Net, "Alabama's Digital Library" (Free as long as you have a library card)

"Camellia Net offers digital materials (eBooks, magazines, audiobooks and videos) for free so long as you have a library card," she said. "You will need internet access and a device to use: a Kindle, tablet, mobile phone, computer, etc. Camellia Net also has an app, OverDrive, that you can use. You can also use the app Libby with Camellia Net."

Camellia Net is available through the CCPLS website www.ccpls.com or https://camellia.overdrive.com/.

Alabama Virtual Library (AVL)

"I know the K-12 schools are closed at the time being, but should anyone need access to educational material such as online databases, magazines, journals, newspaper articles, etc. for research, studies, or entertainment there is also AVL, or The Alabama Virtual Library," said Harrington. "To access AVL, you don't need an AVL account, you simply need to be in Alabama. AVL uses geolocation technology to determine whether a device is located in Alabama. If it is, then the user is automatically logged in to use AVL resources."

The AVL can be accessed through the CCPLS website or www.avl.lib.al.us/.

More

Harrington hinted at a new outdoor system the library is developing, sharing, "Finally, though it isn't ready yet, we are looking to implement an outdoor locker system so that materials can still be checked out and picked up without actually having to come inside the library. So, hopefully that will be up and running soon!"

LEGALS

STATE OF ALABAMA

CULLMAN COUNTY

NOTICE is hereby given that a bill substantially as follows will be introduced in the 2020 Regular Session of the Legislature of Alabama and application for its passage and enactment will be made:

A BILL

TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT

Relating to Cullman County; to create the Battleground School Historical Board; to provide for immunity from civil liability of the members of the board; to provide for the transfer of the Battleground School property to the historical board by the Cullman County Board of Education; and to provide that the board may only transfer the property under certain conditions.

BE IT ENACTED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF ALABAMA:

Section 1. (a) In Cullman County, there is established the Battleground School Historical Board to own, operate, manage, and preserve the former Battleground School property in the unincorporated community of Battleground, including any ball fields and other historical structures, owned by the Cullman County Board of Education. The Battleground School Historical Board shall be composed of five members appointed by the Cullman County legislative delegation for terms of four years. Members of the board shall continue to serve until a successor is appointed. Members of the board are immune from civil liability for actions taken in the conduct of their duties.

(b)(1) The Battleground School Historical Board may accept title to the former Battleground School property owned by the Cullman County Board of Education and may hold the property for the benefit and use of the public, particularly the unincorporated community of Battleground. The Battleground School Historical Board may receive state, local, and other governmental funding and may accept charitable donations.

(2) The board may not sell or transfer ownership of the property unless approved by majority vote of the board and then by a majority vote of the qualified electors in the unincorporated community of Battleground at a referendum called by the judge of probate and held during the following general election.

(c) The Battleground School Historical Board may be reorganized as an unincorporated nonprofit association or other entity authorized by law by unanimous consent of the board.

Section 2. This act shall become effective immediately following its passage and approval by the Governor, or its otherwise becoming law.
