Jeeps, motorcycles bring joy to area nursing homes

Residents at Hanceville Nursing and Rehab wave as the parade starts to roll in Saturday morning.

CULLMAN, Ala. – Approximately 100 Jeeps and motorcycles showed up Saturday morning for the Cullman County Wranglers' parade of area senior facilities in Cullman, Hanceville and Falkville. Residents of the facilities were able to come outside and wave as the parade came by. They were thrilled to see the outpouring of love and support, as senior care facilities have not been allowed to have visitors for the past six weeks.

The parade was organized by Cullman County Wranglers and Sheila Johnson. The participants met and got in line for the parade at Depot Park in Cullman.

Johnson explained, "I work with USA Healthcare. I'm the director of clinical and education services. The idea got started because I'm a member of several Jeep pages on Facebook. I saw across the U.S., people were doing Jeep parades."

Johnson said she felt this was something that could be done for local residents and reached out to the Cullman County Wranglers.

The call went out on Facebook for Jeep owners in the area and the response was huge. Wranglers from Marshall County, Huntsville, Birmingham and all over north and central Alabama came out to join in the fun. The Saints Motorcycle Club also came out to be a part of the loving gesture.

Smiled Johnson, "It's grown exponentially and exceeded our expectations!"

The Jeep drivers were asked to bring treats and activities for residents to keep them busy and to be used as bingo prizes. The parade traveled to Folsom Center and Cullman Healthcare first. Drivers regrouped at Peoples Bank before visiting Woodland Village, The Sanctuary, Woodland Haus, Hanceville Nursing and Rehab and Monarch Assist- » PAGE 8

Hoover man drowns in pond in Crane Hill

Wendy Sack

CRANE HILL, Ala. – Emergency responders on Sunday night recovered the body of a drowning victim from a pond at a private residence south of the Country Mall store in Crane Hill.

Cullman County Coroner Jeremy L. Kilpatrick identified the victim as Kameron Lee Ford, 21, of Hoover.

A spokesman for the Cullman County Sheriff's Office (CCSO) said the CCSO dive team assisted the Crane Hill Volunteer Fire Department (CHVFD) in the search.

CHVFD Chief Brandon Williams said, "We got the call about 2:30 this afternoon of a possible drowning at a local private pond off of County Road 201, private land, private pond...a pretty good sized pond."

According to Williams, when the CHVFD arrived on the scene, responders found out a person had been underwater for approximately 15-20 minutes.

The body was recovered around 8 p.m., about five and a half hours after the victim went under.

"It took us this long because a pond, you can't see anything, you're going by feel," said Williams.

"The sheriff's department arrived on scene, Cullman EMS arrived on scene, and of course the coroner, the Cullman County coroner.

"The sheriff's department dive team, along with myself and fire department team members, we all dove together to look for the body."

Williams said it is unclear why the victim went under.

He said there were four people swimming together.

"We don't know if he had a cramp," said Williams. "We're unsure of what happened."

He said the other swimmers attempted to help, but by the time they got to the victim, he had gone under.

Williams said the water is about 12 to 15 feet deep.

SBA: Alabama banks approve nearly $1.42B in Paycheck Protection Program loans

Shelley Hildebrand
Contributor

MONTGOMERY, Ala. – The U.S. Small Business Association on Sunday released data from round two of the Paycheck Protection Program. The data shows in just the first five days of the second round of funding, Alabama banks approved nearly 27,000 loans totaling $1.42 billion.

The report details PPP activity through Friday and shows that on a national level Alabama ranks 27th in terms of number of loans issued and 28th in overall dollar value.

Alabama's average loan size during the second round of funding was $53,170 as opposed to the national average of $79,000.

Since Congress passed this CARES Act in late March, the PPP has funneled nearly 55,000 loans valued at $6.28 billion into the state of Alabama keeping small businesses running and Alabamians at work.

"During the first wave of lending the average loan size approved for Alabama banks was more than three times higher than in the second round," ABA President and CEO Scott Latham said.

"The decreased average loan size during the second round of funding shows that sole proprietors, independent contractors and even smaller businesses received much-needed funding during this critical time.

"I am thankful for Alabama bankers who have remained steadfast and diligent in working around the clock to serve their customers' needs."

The report also shows that more than 2.2 million loans totaling more than $175 billion have been made across the country through the PPP during the second round of funding.

Nearly 500,000 loans made during the second round of funding were made by lenders with less than $1 billion in assets.

The Alabama Bankers Association represents 126 banks. Banks in Alabama have combined deposits of more than $100 billion and have 1,466 locations across the state.

ADOL: $503M in unemployment benefits disbursed; Payments represent 84% of claims paid

Tara Hutchison
Contributor

MONTGOMERY, Ala. – Alabama Department of Labor (ADOL) Secretary Fitzgerald Washington announced Monday that ADOL has disbursed more than $503 million in COVID-19 related unemployment compensation benefits. Alabama is now paying benefits under all three programs covered in the CARES Act: Federal Pandemic Unemployment Compensation (FPUC), Pandemic Unemployment Assistance (PUA), and Pandemic Emergency Unemployment Compensation (PEUC).

$503,011,424 has been paid to 206,694 claimants over the period covering March 16 – May 1, 2020. This represents 511,594 weeks paid.

$247,872,000 of those funds are FPUC, the $600 stimulus benefit added to weekly unemployment compensation benefits.

$5,201,412 represent PUA funds, and $826,734 represent PEUC funds.

ADOL has issued payments to 84% of those filing COVID-19 related active claims since March 16, 2020. "Following last week's release of the new PUA app, we were able to get a good deal of those benefits out in a faster manner," said Washington. "Additionally, those who have exhausted their unemployment claims are now seeing payments."

He continued, "We continue to work on a daily basis to improve the systems to make them more efficient and to streamline payments. We hear the complaints and take them seriously. ADOL is working around the clock to ensure that everyone who is entitled to these funds receives them. Even though we've made payments to 84% of those who have filed, we know there are many still waiting, and you have not been forgotten."

Claimants can track their claims status by using the UI Claims Tracker, which can be located at https://uiclaimstracker.labor.alabama.gov/. Additionally, information and FAQs can be found at ADOL's COVID-19 resource page at https://labor.alabama.gov/newsfeed/News_CovID19.aspx.

ADMH hosts 15th annual Capitol Showcase

ADMH
Contributor

MONTGOMERY, Ala. – Since 2005, the Alabama Department of Mental Health (ADMH) has hosted the Capitol Showcase, a consumer art show at the Alabama's Capitol. People from around the state with mental illnesses, developmental disabilities, substance use disorders and co-occurring disorders have their abilities showcased throughout the month of May, in observance of Mental Health Month.

However, due to limitations of COVID-19, this year the showcase will be online only. Unfortunately, the need for physical distancing to ensure we all stay healthy and safe has caused the department to cancel the in-person show. Our priority is the health of the artists and attendees of the exhibition.

"We are proud to present the 15th Capitol Showcase and to offer the artistic contributions of over 120 citizens of our state. We regret deeply that we cannot meet in person to thank the artists and help show everyone the power of treatment and recovery." said ADMH Commissioner Lynn Beshear.

An online gallery at https://mh.alabama.gov/capitol-showcase-art-exhibition-2020 showcases the unique artwork and personal story of each artist. Artwork will be posted daily on ADMH social media accounts. The artists will be recognized with individual posts, demonstrating their expression of mental health and their life experiences.

Art can offer a sense of accomplishment, meaning and engagement when it is hard to express or put into words what a person is struggling with. Creating visual forms of art can help to decrease anxiety and stress and offers a refuge from intense feelings and emotions. Many of our artists have remarked on the care and support they received from local mental health centers and how their art was encouraged and celebrated through their therapy and recovery.

To learn more about the Capitol Showcase and the Alabama Department of Mental Health, call the Office of Public Information at 334-242-3417 or email peggy.olson@mh.alabama.gov.

It helps me express how I'm feeling whenever I need to and it also helps me cope with my symptoms. I use art to help myself express my emotions in a positive way. I taught myself how to draw and paint. Art has been a special interest of mine since middle school, and I have been spending my time learning how to do different styles of art." Former Bearcat Kolby Robinson joining All Star Sports Training staff

nick@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN, Ala. – After several standout years on the baseball field with the Cullman Bearcats, the Wallace State Lions and the Alabama Crimson Tide, Kolby Robinson is ready to help groom a new generation of young players. Robinson is the newest addition to the All Star Sports Training Staff but it won't be his time working with them. Robinson has already been part of lessons in the past and has a good relationship with the people working there.

"They originally reached out to me over Christmas break because they do these "Sunday Swings" where they bring in a guest coach and stuff and I went over there a couple times over Christmas break to work with some kids," Robinson said.

"I played at Wallace for Chad Shannon and he's one of the owners up there so me and him have known each other for a while now and once I finished up this season, I reached out to him and told him I'd be interested in coming back to work for him and keep working with kids up there. So, he was excited about it."

Kolby's father, Kelly Robinson, is the varsity girls basketball coach at Mortimer Jordan High School so coaching is in his blood but he's always known this is something he was interested in.

"I've always considered it," Kolby said. "As far as coaching at the high school or college level I don't know if that's something I'm going to do but being able to coach younger kids and give back to the community with some of the stuff I've learned throughout my career and help kids reach their dreams is something that I've always wanted to do."

Robinson learned a lot from watching older Cullman players while he was growing up and since his older brother, Kristian, started at second base for the 'Cats for two years, Kolby has been close to the program for a long time. Now, he'll be working with young athletes who have been watching him play.

"It's definitely a cool feeling because I remember growing up watching guys like Ben Moore, Keegan Thompson, my brother and guys like that," Kolby said.

"I wanted to learn from them and how they went about their business on and off the field so its definitely going to be a cool opportunity to teach some of the kids that have watched me and get to know them better."

Cullman seems to produce an unusual amount of baseball talent for a relatively small community and Robinson credits the community itself for those results.

He was one of many kids who grow up in Cullman wanting to play for the Bearcats and not only did he make it happen, he's now excited to help contribute to the next generation of local ball players.

"I just think the community as a whole is very supportive of the baseball program. Whenever you're little and growing up, the big thing to do is go watch Cullman baseball and kids get that in their minds. You want to be able to play for Cullman and play in front of a big crowd every game and so I think that helps instill a good work ethic from a young age," Robinson said.

"Kids train harder because they want to perform at a high level to keep the winning tradition alive that Cullman has and will continue to have.

"Obviously, the coaches Cullman has had with Coach (Bryan) Bowen a while back and Coach (Brent) Patterson now have done a great job building and coaching players."

Kolby brings some very valuable experience to All Star's staff, having played at the division I and junior college levels and knowing what it takes to play in both.

"I think that experience will help me relate to kids because a lot of times people see these players at Alabama or other SEC schools and think, 'Wow they must have so much God-given talent and everything 's been easy for them to get where they're at.' So, having played in JUCO and gone kind of under the radar my whole career allowed me to humble myself and just work even harder. I wasn't just handed to me, I had to go out and earn it so I feel like that will help me relate to these kids more because they'll know if I was able to do it they can do it as well."

Little League World Series canceled for the 1st time in event's history

nick@cullmantribune.com

SOUTH WILLIAMSPORT, PENN. – For the first time in 75 years, there will not be a Little League World Series this summer. Little League International made the decision to cancel this year's event as well as several other tournaments due to the spread of coronavirus. The organization elaborated on the decision on its website littleleague.org,

"After a thorough assessment of the impact the devastating COVID-19 pandemic has had on 6,500 community-based Little League programs in 84 countries and based upon the direction of governmental and public health authorities, and in consultation with medical professionals and our Board of Directors, Little League International has made the difficult and disappointing decision to cancel its seven World Series tournaments and their respective regional qualifying events.

"This is a heartbreaking decision for everyone at Little League International, but more so for those millions of Little Leaguers who have dreamt of one day playing in one of our seven World Series events," said Stephen D. Keener, Little League President and CEO.

"After exhausting all possible options, we came to the conclusion that because of the significant public health uncertainty that will still exist several months from now, and with direction from Pennsylvania Governor Tom Wolf and Secretary of Health Dr. Rachel Levine, as well as senior public health officials and government leaders from locations where our other six World Series are held, as well as the their qualifying regional tournaments, it will not be possible to proceed with our tournaments as we've hosted them for nearly 75 years."

"As we assessed the feasibility of including these tournament opportunities as part of that resumption of play, a number of factors went into the decision to cancel the World Series and Regional Tournaments, including:

• The inability to play qualifying tournaments in many of our U.S. and International regions, coupled with direction from federal officials regarding the complexity of international travel restrictions and immigration requirements.

• An indication from teams from around the globe that they will be unable to participate or travel to these tournaments.

• The testing and mitigation protocols that would need to be in place at these significant public events should an individual participating or attending an event be diagnosed with COVID-19."

Little League International is doing what it can to support as many of its players, teams and leagues as possible during this time.

To help Little League programs as they continue to assess their local operations, Little League International will be crediting all chartered programs with the affiliation fees paid for their chartered teams in 2020, which totals approximately $1.2 million in support to local leagues.

As 2021 was originally supposed to be the playing of the 75th Little League Baseball World Series, that celebration will now take place in 2022.

More information about World Series locations and future dates can be found at LittleLeague.org.

Auburn's Michelle McKenna delivers virtual NFL Draft: 'reality TV at its best'

Jeff Shearer
AU Athletics

AUBURN, Ala. – Michelle McKenna knew before the rest of America which picks would soon be announced during the 2020 NFL Draft.

Monitoring communications between the league office and each franchise, McKenna, the NFL's Chief Information Officer, kept the scoop to herself - sort of - revealing more of a tell than a yell. When it comes to her alma mater, McKenna's poker face needs work.

"Any time I got excited, people could see me on the video calls and they would say, 'I'm pretty sure that must have been an Auburn player,'" McKenna said. "'I see Michelle getting excited.'"

Twice in the first round and six times during the three-day affair, McKenna celebrated the selection of Auburn Tigers.

"I love Auburn, Auburn was home for me," said McKenna, a student recruiter and tutor during the Pat Dye era while she earned her accounting degree from Auburn University's Harbert College of Business.

"It was where I was able to grow my love of football and learn to keep fighting all the time for what you believe in. Here all this many years later the things you learned back then come home to roost."

Applying a principle lifted from the opening line of the Auburn Creed - I believe in work, hard work – McKenna directed a team that pulled off a logistical triumph: a virtual draft of 255 selections, all made remotely instead of in Las Vegas as originally planned.

"We closed our offices mid-March," said McKenna, recalling the decision to go to Plan B when the coronavirus pandemic rendered Plan A implausible. "Our first planning meeting was March 24 and the title of that meeting was "Draft Contingencies."

McKenna and her team had one month to prepare and execute those contingencies - to plan, coordinate, acquire and distribute the hardware required to make it happen.

"That went from idea to implementation in very short order, which meant we had to ideate quickly, design quickly," she said.

"We started having to purchase and procure all of this equipment because we knew items were running out. All of a sudden, everybody was doing this from home. You couldn't get web cams, things were sold out around the world.

"We couldn't gather together, so we had to figure out logistically how we were going to make these kits to send to the prospects without getting together ourselves.

"There for a stretch, we were working 20 hours a day, and sleeping four or five hours, getting back up and doing it again."

In a typical onsite draft, McKenna's primary responsibility would be to make sure the clock functions properly and the phones connect with the head table.

This draft was atypical.

"This time, we had to figure out a way to create the content for the broadcast," she said. "I went from tech support to a massive coordination of content flowing over the internet and up to Bristol, Connecticut, for ESPN to put on the air."

Like a head coach conducting a walk-through on the eve of a big football game, McKenna and her team spent the day before the draft preparing for worst-case scenarios.

"During our dress rehearsals and our rehearsals with coaches, we actually simulated some failures, which turned into a Twitter nightmare with people saying that it didn't work," she said.

"In good disaster planning, you need things not to work. We had power go down, we had people have to go on to generators, we had it all happen.

"We were watching the weather, we had weather advisories, we knew where storms were; we had a hotline with every internet service provider around the country open should we start to see issues. I figured we would recover if we had an issue."

With much of America quarantined, the 2020 NFL Draft found a huge audience, 55 million viewers over three days over multiple networks and digital channels, including 15.6 million watching Thursday's first round, a 37 percent increase from 2019.

"It took a huge effort and it was just amazing that so many people had a hand in it," McKenna said. "That's why it worked."

More than just the innovation and information – which team drafted which player – the 2020 NFL Draft also provided a rare glimpse of coaches working from home and players celebrating with loved ones in their living rooms.

"We knew it was going to be a special moment," McKenna said. "We didn't stage any of that; that was all reality TV at its best."

During the draft, the NFL hosted a fundraiser for COVID-19 relief, raising more than $100 million for six national nonprofits.

For a nation of sports fans suffering from cabin fever, the 2020 NFL Draft offered a comforting, three-day return to normalcy.

"We recognized that not only were we putting on a draft, but we had a really amazing opportunity to give America a little bit of a break from what has been a very bleak, challenging and sad time for us," she said.

McKenna's team sent kits to 58 top prospects, each containing two phones to be used as cameras.

She monitored each feed, observing that signals became unstable when prospects were livestreaming or FaceTiming with their personal phones, sapping bandwidth.

"We were staying on top of all those feeds throughout the entire time," she said. "That was one of the biggest worries."

On Saturday, when the last pick was announced, McKenna turned down the feeds in her ear so she could hear Leslie Odom Jr. sing "You'll Never Walk Alone."

"I was so relieved, and so moved by it, next thing you know I hear someone on the Zoom call asking, 'Are you crying?' 'Yes, actually I am crying,'" she said. "It was a sigh and it was a cry."

On Sunday, McKenna crashed on her couch at home in South Florida, streaming some of the shows friends had been telling her about while Michelle was in draft prep mode.

By Monday, she was back to the grind, planning for the upcoming NFL season. When conditions are favorable, she plans to celebrate in person with the team that helped pull off the virtual draft, then take a vacation at some point.

"My victory lap is going to hopefully take me to the Bahamas, that's what I told myself anyway," she said.

Approaching her ninth season in her high-profile position, Michelle McKenna, NFL executive, remains a faithful Auburn football fan.

Each season, Michelle makes several pilgrimages to the Plains, often bringing her daughter, who's graduating this spring from Providence College in Rhode Island.

"We always bring some other friend from up North who has never experienced SEC football, and of course, they go back saying there's nothing like it," McKenna said. "Every year we bring a new person to the Auburn family.

"I love Auburn, and War Eagle, and I hope to see everybody in the fall."

AHSAA Principals/AD Conference to merge with AHSAA Summer Conference in July; 30th Alabama High School HOF Banquet moving to Sept. 21

MONTGOMERY, Ala. – Due to the ADPH recommendations concerning social distancing and large group gatherings, the Alabama High School Athletic Association (AHSAA) and its coaching wing Alabama High School Athletic Directors and Coaches Association (AHSADCA), have postponed the upcoming Principals & Athletic Directors Conference and will merge the professional development for member school administrators with the 2020 Summer Conference in July.

The AHSAA and AHSADCA are dedicated to keeping the health and safety of all concerned at the forefront and must continue to plan to avoid large gatherings at the current time.

Most of the 800 to 1,000 attendees for the Principals & Athletic Directors Conference were already planning to attend the Summer Conference as well. "With some rearranging, it will be a natural transition to merge the two important conferences that supply much needed training and professional development for our administrators," said Jamie Lee, Director of the AHSADCA, Monday.

Lee said the All-Star Games during All-Star Sports Week, which have been a highlight of the Summer Conference since its inception in 1997, are close to having all teams finalized.

"The football, volleyball, cross country, boys' and girls' basketball all-star teams have already been selected and announced," said Lee.

"The all-star teams for baseball, softball, boys' and girls' soccer, tennis and golf will be chosen and announced later this month. We are still evaluating our Summer Conference and the all-star games. We hope to have a decision made soon upon more information from the ADPH and the Governor's office."

Lee and AHSAA Executive Director Steve Savarese also announced the 30th Alabama High School Sports Hall of Fame banquet, which was scheduled for June 22 at the Montgomery Renaissance Hotel and Convention Center, has been moved to September 21.

"This date gives us plenty of time to get back to as normal as possible," Savarese said. "We annually have 500 to 800 attend each year. We appreciate the Renaissance's cooperation in making the accommodation adjustments.

"We are humbled to have the opportunity to honor such outstanding inductees as the Class of 2020 and look forward to the banquet in September."

Savarese said the Summer Practice, Fall Sports and Football Committees, comprised of member school coaches and administrators, will meet again virtually next week.

"Currently, we are collaborating with the ALSDE, AHSAA Medical Advisory Board and our coaches to develop best practices for when our schools are allowed to return," he said. "The committees will discuss best practices as well as the latest information from medical professionals regarding COVID-19 issues. Those are not likely to be set until Gov. Kay Ivey's current "safer-at-home" order expires on May 15."

Savarese added, "I'm confident our coaches will comply with all guidelines thus providing our students the safest environment based on current information."

In accordance with AHSAA bylaws, summer practices, including workouts and conditioning, are not mandatory and are supervised by the local schools. While the AHSAA governs all competition and championship play, summer activities are recommended but left up to the local school.

The Queen at War

Princess Elizabeth of England was only 13 when World War II broke out, but this new documentary — airing some 75 years after that conflict ended — examines how the Second World War set the future queen on her path to becoming a truly legendary monarch. She and her sister Margaret became symbols of hope to their nation as its citizens were assailed by the violent terrors of the Blitz, the trauma of relocating over a million children, and other physical and psychological assaults from that horrific war.

Bless This Mess

A violent storm strike in Bucksnort just makes several of the locals even more aware of their already fraught personal situations in the Season 2 finale, "Tornado Season: Part Two." Things between Beau and Mike (David Koechner, Dax Shepard) remain tense over which egg business will land a contract with Dolores' (guest star Celia Watson) restaurant, and a mix-up in pregnancy tests has Rio (Lake Bell), Kay (Lennon Parham) and Jacob's (JT Neal) girlfriend all wondering whether the stork is on the way.

In the Season 1 finale, "You Got It All," Paul and Alicia (Mark-Paul Gosselaar, Tika Sumpter) are excited when they receive offers to work on Jesse Jackson's presidential campaign — but Alicia's firm counters with a tempting offer to stay put. Meanwhile, Rainbow (Arica Himmel) struggles yet again with her identity when she must complete a form that requires her to specify either "black" or "white." Christina Anthony and Gary Cole also star.

8 p.m. on HBO
Movie: Natalie Wood: What Remains Behind

Actress Natasha Gregson Wagner is both a producer and a key on-camera presence in this poignant remembrance of her mother, Natalie Wood, as told by some of the people who knew her best. The documentary incorporates previously unseen home movies, photographs, diaries, letters and artifacts, along with intimate interviews with friends, family, co-stars and colleagues of the actress, who died in 1981 at the age of 43. Pivotal to the program is a candid conversation with Robert Wagner, who married Wood twice.

9 p.m. on ID
Reasonable Doubt

Season 3 wraps up with "It Wasn't Me," which chronicles the case of small-time drug dealer Roosevelt Myles, convicted of murdering a teenage boy on the West Side of Chicago in 1982. Years later, Myles' sister and fiancée reach out to retired detective Chris Anderson and defense attorney Fatima Silva to investigate whether Myles is serving time for a crime he never committed.

Queen Elizabeth II is the focus of "The Queen at War" Tuesday on PBS.

OPINION

Evangelism- part 1

Tom Fillinger
Tribune Columnist

As I write this article, we are immersed in the COVID-19 lockdown. I want to begin by stating an important theological principle. The Great Commission commands Christ's disciples to make disciples. There is no exception clause. Making disciples begins with evangelism. Therefore, regardless of the obstacles that this virus presents we are still responsible to make disciples.

I challenge my readers to consider the church that you attend. Is your church making disciples? Is your church consistently declaring the Gospel? Are you consistently declaring the Gospel? Answer these questions with integrity.

Evangelism is declaring the whole counsel of God to lost people around us with accuracy, compassion, integrity and consistency.

I recently participated in a worship service in a local church. We sang the hymn "I Love to Tell the Story."

I wanted to stop the service at that point and pose this question to every person in attendance – In the past six months how many times did you declare the gospel message to a lost person? My role as a pastor and church consultant has equipped me with the answer to this question.

Research has shown that fewer than 5% of professing Christians ever share the gospel with anyone in an entire year.

Is it any wonder that the American Church is in unrelenting decline? Let's consider this issue using the analogy of warfare and an army.

If only 5% of the soldiers engage the battle would you expect that army to win the war? Of course not. Then why does the church tolerate such a dysfunctional profile in the realm of evangelism, the first phase of making disciples? We are commanded to make disciples. If we are not reaching lost people, we are failing in this most vital responsibility. That folks, is flat out rebellion and disobedience to the LORD we claim to love and serve.

What are some reasons for this failure? I offer the following and ask you to honestly evaluate them. Do these factors describe your conduct regarding evangelism?

1. Life begets life. It is estimated that 70% of those who attend services each week are themselves not regenerate people. If you are not redeemed you cannot call others to repentance and faith.

2. Biblical illiteracy. The state of biblical literacy is tragic. People do not share the gospel because they know that if they are challenged by an unbeliever, they will not have credible answers to their questions.

3. Unconfessed sin. Sin seals our lips. If you have unconfessed sin in your life you know intuitively that it is hypocritical to confront others with the TRUTH of the gospel.

4. Pure and simple disobedience. One of the characteristics of sin is rebellion. You know that you are commanded to share the gospel. Your rebel sin nature reigns and you openly and defiantly refuse to obey.

So, how did you do in evaluating your active and consistent role in evangelism? How will you modify your current behavior?

You may contact me by calling 803-413-3509 or emailing info@igniteus.net. I am available for pulpit supply or to serve as an interim pastor.

CULLMAN, Ala. – Cullman County Sheriff Matt Gentry on Monday announced that the lobbies of the Cullman County Sheriff's Office and Cullman County Detention Center have been re-opened to the public.

Both had been closed due to COVID-19 restrictions.

The sheriff said in a statement, "Today, Monday, May 4, 2020, I have re-opened the Cullman County Sheriff's Office (CCSO) lobby as well as the Cullman County Detention Center (CCDC) lobby.

"We will maintain social distancing in each lobby area for (the) foreseeable future allowing no more than four people in each lobby at one time.

"We will also be sanitizing each lobby throughout the day as well as a deep cleaning after hours before the next morning."

He continued, "As I have said many times, the safety of our citizens is our top priority here at the CCSO, whether that's taking criminals off the street, or keeping our office as sanitary as possible during these uncertain times."

CULLMAN, Ala. – The Cullman County Revenue Office on Monday morning opened a tent outside the Cullman County Courthouse in an effort to begin servicing the citizens of Cullman County again in person.

Revenue Commissioner Barry Willingham said, "We are out in the parking lot. I told the commission a couple of weeks ago if they wouldn't be opening up, I was about ready to set up a tent outside, so that's what I did."

All services handled by the revenue office are available at the outside tent.

"Tag, title, property tax; you name it," said Willingham.

"Tomorrow we will be under the pavilion at the south entrance. People can get out of their cars and walk up."

The commissioner does remind citizens to remain mindful of social distancing.

The satellite offices in Baileyton and Dodge City also opened Monday morning, but only two people can enter the offices at a time and there will be someone at each location to monitor traffic in and out of the buildings.

Willingham added, "We are stopping people before they come in the door and checking paperwork and telling them to wait in their car if they need to."

The satellite offices are open from 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m. and closed for lunch.

The tent at the Cullman County Courthouse went up Monday morning at 8 a.m. and will remain open until around 4 p.m. daily through Friday, weather-permitting.

Said Willingham Monday afternoon, "We will likely have to shut down early today because some weather is coming in. We will be shutting down, even on a good day, around 4 just so we can take down all the equipment and stuff."

Jeeps (from Front)

ed Living, before heading north to Falkville Nursing Home.

The residents at Folsom Center smiled and waved as the parade passed them, prompting one resident to exclaim, "I gotta get me one of those Jeeps!"

The residents at Hanceville Nursing and Rehab waited outside on the warm and sunny Saturday morning.

As the sirens approached, they were noticeably excited.

"That was so much fun," said one resident. "A few of them knew me and it was nice to see them."

Another resident said simply, "It sure was!"

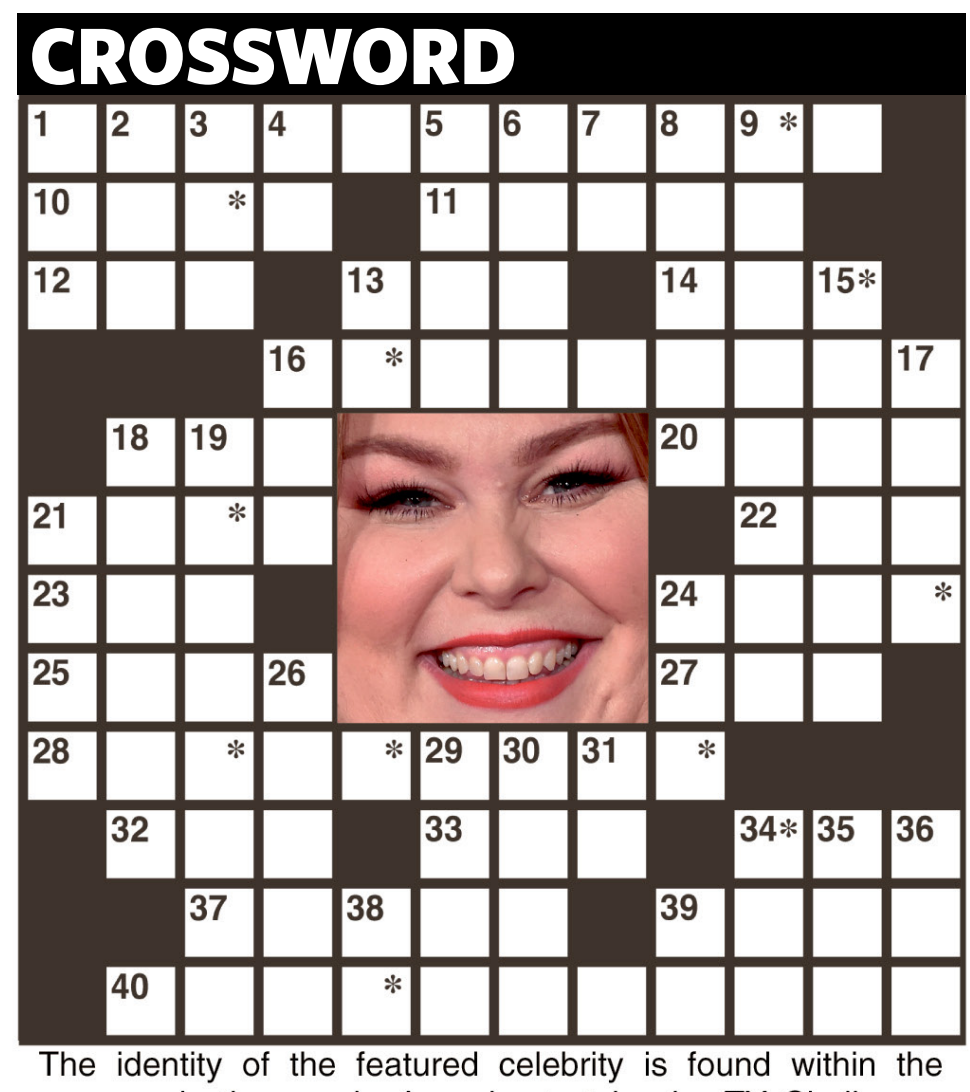

Escorts for the parade were provided by the Cullman Police Department, Hanceville Police Department, Cullman County Sheriff's Office and Falkville Police Department.

CORRECTION

In The Tribune's May 2 issue, in the story "Going farm to table: Dreher's serving up natural goodness," the story originally stated the cattle are "grain-fed." They are "grass-fed." We regret the error.
