Baileyton talks tornado siren, town park

Christy Perry
christy@cullmantribune.com

CHRISTY PERRY/THE CULLMAN TRIBUNE

Baileyton Town Clerk Patricia Gilbert and Mayor Johnny Dyar are seen at Monday night's meeting of the Baileyton Town Council.

BAILEYTON, Ala. – The Baileyton Town Council met Monday night for the first time since early March. The meeting was held at the town's senior center rather than town hall due to comply with social distancing guidelines, and Mayor Johnny Dyar kept the meeting short in an effort to minimize the risk to the council and guests.

Dyar informed the council that Baileyton's tornado siren is scheduled to be repaired after reports from residents that the siren did not sound during the last round of severe weather that produced tornadoes in the county.

He said some residents did report hearing sirens, but they were hearing those located in Fairview and Holly Pond.

The council said it is waiting for representatives from Cullman Electric Cooperative to assess the lights and power lines at the town park. At its March meeting, the council said Cullman Electric Cooperative recently discovered that every four days, the concession stand power is surging during ball season. The lights at the park are on 4% and the park is at 8%.

Dyar said in March, "Somebody, when they opened up the park, they hooked the concession stand up with the ballpark. What they want us to do is run electricity from the old fire station to the concession stand and cut it loose from the ballpark and get it back to 8% instead of 4%."

The council approved the mayor to do whatever needed to remedy the situation.

Dyar said Monday night, "It's got to be fixed, regardless of what it costs."

Preliminary estimates have the cost of repairs between $10,000-$12,000.

The council gave approval to Town Clerk Pat Gilbert to purchase no-touch soap and paper towel dispensers for the new town hall. It also approved the purchase of various locks needed inside the new building.

The next council meeting is scheduled for June 1 at 7 p.m.

Holly Pond Town Council hears speeding issue from resident

Maggie Darnell

MAGGIE DARNELL/THE CULLMAN TRIBUNE

Holly Pond Mayor Bill Oliver is seen at the Holly Pond Town Council meeting Monday evening.

HOLLY POND, Ala. – The Holly Pond Town Council on Monday evening heard from local resident Bo Johnson about a speeding concern on Pond View Drive in the Pond View subdivision.

Johnson said there have been recent incidents in a straight-away portion of the road where drivers are going 50 mph or faster, when the posted speed limit is 20 mph. The road ends in a cul-de-sac and children are known to play in the neighborhood.

He said he feels it a safety issue, saying, "We keep a good watch on them (the kids playing), but you know the one time we don't watch..."

Johnson asked the council to "find a solution," before someone is hurt. He said he has put up a plastic sign to stop drivers, but the U.S. Postal Service will not deliver mail there now due to the sign interrupting its delivery route.

Mayor Bill Oliver said, "We'll think about it and see what we'll do."

Johnson responded, "I just want it on your minds."

In other business, Oliver said the Town's annual summer ball leagues have been canceled. Councilwoman Michele Bell reported that, to the best of her knowledge, league fees have been fully refunded to families who paid.

Oliver gave an update on the Town's continued emergency preparations due to the COVID-19 pandemic, sharing, "We're trying to get everything we can to keep our people safe."

He noted it's been difficult to find Lysol for the Town's buildings, but said he has purchased gloves for all Town employees to use when necessary and that hand sanitizer is in every building the Town owns.

Oliver also gave out HomTex masks he acquired from Cullman County to council members, telling them to use when they're on "official Town business."

The Holly Pond Town Council meets the first Monday of each month. The next regularly scheduled council meeting is June 1 at 7 p.m. at the Guy Hunt Library.

Berlin holds special meeting to discuss town hall, farmers' market, traffic light

Heather Mann

BERLIN, Ala. – At a special-called meeting Monday evening, the Berlin Town Council gathered to discuss the upcoming opening of the new town hall and farmers' market. After updates that the foundation had been poured, the physical building would likely be delivered by the end of the week and preparations made to lay gravel for the parking lot, the council went on to finalize some details ahead of opening. Specifically, Mayor Patrick Bates briefed the council on the possible costs for water, cable and electricity fees for the town hall, as well as electricity fees for the market for lighting and a security camera system.

He also stated that septic hookups were in the works and would probably take place in mid-May. On this point of business, the council voted to not renew the town's P.O. box in favor of purchasing a secure mailbox for the town hall and also to give Bates a $1,000 budget to buy furniture (chairs, tables, filling cabinets, etc.) for the hall.

The council went on to discuss the increased duties of the town clerk with regard to the farmers' market, as the clerk will act as the market manager.

With a planned market schedule of 9 a.m.-1 p.m. every Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday, the council proposed a work schedule of 8 a.m.-2 p.m. each of those four days. With the increased workload (managing both the market and the hall), as well as the Tuesdays that the town hall will be to be open for elections, the council members also voted to give the clerk a 20% pay increase.

The final point of business regarded the transfer of responsibility of the traffic signal at County Road 747 and U.S. Highway 278 from Cullman County to the Town of Berlin. Resolutions 2020-3 and 2020-4 officially made Berlin responsible for the traffic signal and its maintenance, and also established that the Town would contact and pay the City of Cullman to do any work on the signal.

The next regular meeting will be Monday, May 18 at 7 p.m.

Wallace State's Sebastian Arce named ITA NJCAA 1st-team All-American

Russell Moore

HANCEVILLE, Ala. – Wallace State tennis sophomore Sebastian Arce has been named an Intercollegiate Tennis Association (ITA) NJCAA 1st-team All-American for men's singles.

Arce, a native of Columbia, was Wallace State's No. 1 singles' player during his freshman and sophomore seasons. He was off to a blistering start in 2020, being named the ITA JUCO Player of the Week on March 16, before the season was shortened because of the COVID-19 pandemic.

"Sebastian is a champion and among the best players I've coached. He has a willingness to work harder than everybody else, and he has more heart than most players," said Wallace State tennis coach Tim Garner.

"As a coach, you ask your players to put forth the effort to improve.

"Sebastian's desire to improve and be the best is what puts him head and shoulders above many of his counterparts. He's a pleasure to coach."

As a freshman, Arce was the 2019 Alabama Community College Conference Men's Tennis Player of the Year, helping Wallace State win its second league title in three seasons and finishing 10th at nationals.

Arce is the third Wallace State athlete to earn All-American recognition in the past month.

In addition to Arce, women's basketball's Imari Martin was named a NJCAA 1st-team All-American and men's golf's Carter Goodwin was a selected as a NJCAA Honorable Mention All-American.

Wallace State men's tennis is a two-time NJCAA national champion.

Alabama Athletics announces Crimson Choice Awards via social media

Roots Woodruff

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. – The Alabama Athletics Department's annual Crimson Choice Awards, presented by the Student-Athlete Advisory Committee (SAAC), had a different look and feel than it normally does Monday night, taking place on social media instead of the Bama Theatre in downtown Tuscaloosa as it did last year.

But the honors and celebratory vibe remained the same, with SAAC president Alize Ford (track and field) and Director of Athletics Greg Byrne pairing coat and tie with shorts to open the celebration of Crimson Tide excellence via a pre-recorded video message.

The awards were announced on SAAC's Twitter and Instagram accounts (@UA_SAAC) with a video message from CCA co-chairs Sarah Giuliani (rowing) and Lexi Souther (swimming and diving) closing the proceedings.

The CCAs are based on the calendar year with Monday's awards honoring the Crimson Tide's accomplishments from January to December of 2019.

The awards culminated with the announcement of the Paul W. Bryant Award winners - World, NCAA and SEC champion, All-American and SEC Swimming and Diving Scholar-Athlete of the Year Zane Waddell and All-American and Softball Academic All-American of the Year Bailey Hemphill were named.

The Paul W. Bryant Student-Athlete Award, created by the Tuscaloosa County Chapter of the University of Alabama Alumni Association in 1985, is presented annually to UA's top male and female student-athlete.

The finalists for this year's Bryant Award were: Alba Cortina Pou (women's tennis), Tyler Gentry (baseball), Herbert Jones (men's basketball), Vincent Kiprop (men's track and field/cross country), Daija Lampkin (women's track and field), Jordan Lewis (women's basketball), Shea Mahoney (gymnastics), Nealy Martin (soccer), Kensey McMahon (women's swimming and diving), Angelica Moresco (women's golf), Edson Ortiz (men's tennis), Ginger Perinar (volleyball), Davis Shore (men's golf), Rebekah Stewart (rowing) and Jedrick Wills (football).

Women's tennis and men's swimming and diving were honored as the teams with the highest grade point averages. Women's tennis earned the honor with a 3.81 team GPA while men's swimming and diving earned the distinction with a 3.58.

The Athletics Department's outreach efforts were also recognized during the event. Crimson Tide student-athletes gave more than 1,750 hours toward community service this year. Baseball was the men's squad with the most community outreach hours while gymnastics earned the honor for the women. The Heart of Service Award, which honors individual efforts in the community, went to Kyle Maas (men's swimming and diving) and Abigail Zembas (rowing).

In its second year, the Unsung Hero Award lauded Alabama student-athletes for making a substantive yet often under-recognized contribution to their team's success in ways that can be difficult to measure.

This year's class was comprised of Cade Auerbach (men's swimming), Halia Bower (women's diving), Kyle Cameron (baseball), Shyheim Carter (football), Adam Cottrell (men's basketball), Taylor Drapp (volleyball), Katie Funcheon (women's track), Hunter Jaynes (men's diving), Claire Jenkins (softball), Alonza Klopfer (gymnastics), Angelica Moresco (women's golf), Jacqueline Pelletier (women's tennis), Taylor Pickett (women's field), Thomas Ponder (men's golf), Alex Ramoska (rowing), Destiny Rice (women's basketball), Kat Rogers (soccer), Noel Rotich (men's cross country), Grant Stuckey (men's tennis), Matthew Weaver (men's track), Michael Wiggins (men's field), Eliza Witherspoon (women's cross country) and Cat Wright (women's swimming).

'A better man and a better person': Chuma Okeke Q&A

Greg Ostendorf
AU Athletics

AUBURN, Ala. – Last June, three months after Auburn basketball made its run to the Final Four, the program made history once again when sophomore Chuma Okeke was drafted in the first round, 16th overall, by the Orlando Magic. He was the first Auburn player chosen in the NBA Draft since 2001.

Because of the injury he suffered in the Sweet 16 win over North Carolina last year, Okeke has yet to make his NBA debut, and with the season on hold because of COVID-19, it's unlikely to happen this year.

He continues the rehab process in Orlando aiming to be back better than he was before by the start of the next NBA season.

We caught up with the former Auburn star to see how his recovery was going.

Q: What have you been doing to keep busy the last month or two?

Okeke: Before everybody went on lockdown, I moved to Orlando from Lakeland. The Orlando staff bought me weights, they bought me a bike, and sent it to my house. They gave me workouts to do every day, both upper body and lower body. There's no gym I go to. I just use the garage as a gym with the stuff that they provided.

Q: Where are you at with the rehab process?

Okeke: Before the lockdown, I was shooting in the gym and I felt pretty good shooting, getting off the floor. I was going through drills somewhat full speed. It felt good. I don't know what percent I'm at right now because it's been awhile since I've even shot a ball. I've just been working out and conditioning.

Q: What has the last year been like for you coming back from injury?

Okeke: The last year has basically been working out and making sure my knee gets better, trying to get back healthier. There have been some hard parts, but I'd say what's really been keeping my mind occupied is that I took the time off to really get closer to God. I've just been reading the Bible and trying to get closer to God. So I've been rehabbing, trying to get my leg back stronger and just getting closer to God. That's all it's been.

Q: What did you think when @AuburnMBB recalled last year's Final Four run?

Okeke: It felt good. It felt like I was watching a 30 for 30 on Auburn basketball. It just felt good reliving those moments, making history with the team. During a dark time like this, it was cool for them to put that on the page to make everybody smile again and see what Auburn did.

Q: What's the future entail for Chuma Okeke?

Okeke: The plan is to be better than I was before. I feel much stronger than before. I'm just going to go out there like I never got hurt. That's the way I have to attack it.

Q: You were a first-round pick last year. Now there's talk that Isaac Okoro could be a top-10 pick. What's that say about Auburn and the direction the program is headed?

Okeke: Isaac is a real good player, a real humble player. He's Nigerian, too. His parents are Nigerian. They're real cool. Everybody in his family is real humble. He's real humble person off the court, but you wouldn't be able to tell that on the court by the way he plays.

Before I even went to Auburn, there were people saying, 'Auburn hasn't had a draft pick since this amount of years.' I'm like, 'Why can't I come in and change that?' I came in and changed that. Now Isaac is coming in and changing that.

Then whoever is next is going to come in and change that. Now it's going be like, 'Auburn has had this amount of picks for this many years straight' when it used to be 'Auburn has never had a pick for this amount of years.' We really came in and changed the program for the better. I'm really thankful for that.

AU ATHLETICS

Former Auburn player Chuma Okeke signs with the Orlando Magic.

The same with Jared and Bryce, that's why they committed there. To change the program. And also because they were overlooked.

They didn't really have that many offers, but they showed everybody why they should've had all these offers. As the underdog, you're proving everybody wrong every chance you get, and that's what they did. They said Jared was too small, and he played in an NBA game this year and scored. Proving everybody wrong again.

Q: What would your message be to the Auburn fans?

Okeke: First, I would like to tell them thank you for your support. For those two years and even going on with my injury – thank you for all the prayers. I haven't really been on social media, so they haven't had a chance to interact with me like they did, but that's just part of me focusing on God and focusing on this rehab and trying to get back 100 percent healthy. But I just want to thank them for everything. Auburn really has made me a better man and a better person. I didn't even think that could happen, but it did.

THE CULLMAN TRIBUNE

Cullman Planning Commission recommends controversial rezoning of Old Hanceville Hwy. property

W.C. Mann
craig@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN, Ala. – The City of Cullman Planning Commission on Monday evening voted to recommend that the Cullman City Council rezone 40 acres east of Third Avenue Southeast/ Old Hanceville Highway and fronting on that road at its intersection with King Edward Street from R-1 (low-density housing) to R-4 (high-density/apartments). The site was previously proposed as the new location for Desperation Church.

Todd Adkison, representing Brett Barker, Brady Barker, Wiles Griffith, Donovan Lovell, Michael Livengood, Kiah Brown and Cliff Harris, told the commission during the public hearing, "We're trying to develop a large-scale, highly amenitized rental development with two components . . . three story walkups- high-quality apartments, two pools, two clubhouses, dog parks, walking trails- and another component that consists of craftsman-style bungalows. We purposefully arranged the development where the bungalows meet the adjoining neighborhood and the three-story walkups stand alone and not back door to the other neighborhoods.

"We're trying to meet the needs of Cullman. Cullman's demographics and Cullman's needs mimic those of the South and the country at large.

"We have young families that need to transition into long-term housing, that want a place for a year or two till they move, and they want high-quality and good amenities. We have young people, roommates, college kids that need housing. And these, again, these are the highest quality apartments, the highest quality bungalows.

"We have the transitional families: the single mother, single father with children; we can provide a high-quality, safe environment where they have playgrounds and the dog parks and things the children want... and then retired couples who want to downsize and want a nice quality apartment to live in, where they can feel safe, where they can enjoy the environment."

When Adkison was done, commission president Mike Voss opened the floor to anyone who opposed the plan, and local residents from homes around the proposed development lined up to speak, including those from the Carroll Acres subdivision. Mark Whitley expressed concern about lowered property values in the area. Joy Shelton asked where children from the complex would go to school and echoed Whitley's complaint about property values.

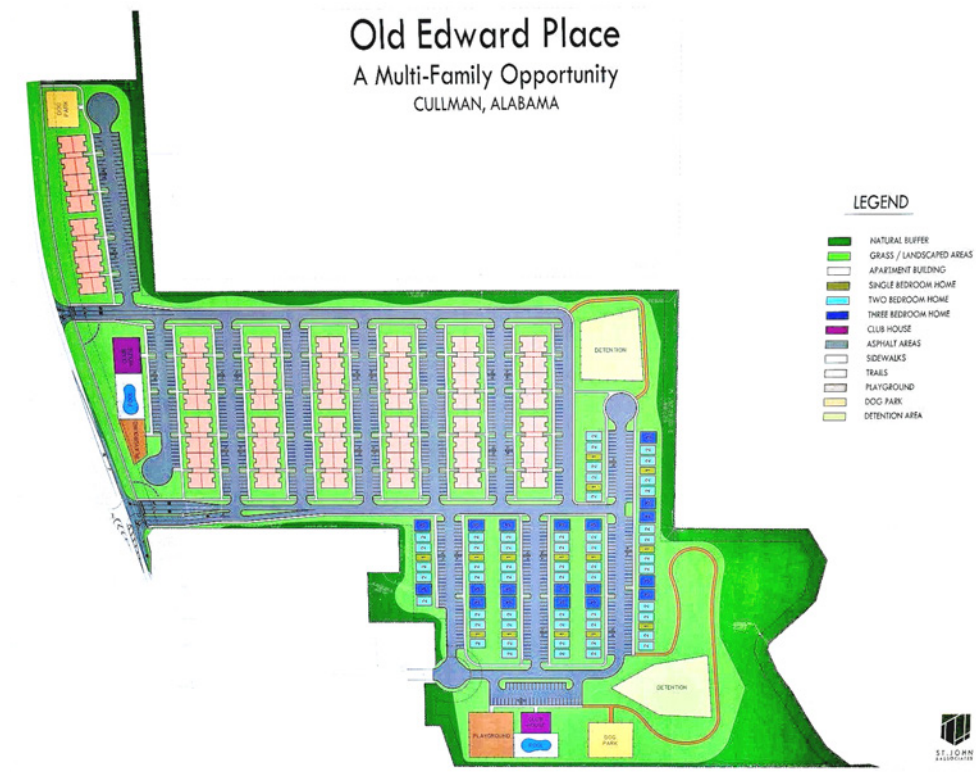

Sabrina Hale claimed that crime will go up in the area as the complex ages. Harry Carden asked who will run the complex after the developers are gone. City Clerk Wes Moore presented letters from nine other Carroll Acres residents who oppose the plan, pointing to shared concerns about a high-density zone being surrounded by low-density zones, property values, crime and increased traffic on Old Hanceville Highway.

When the time came for the commission to consider and vote on the matter, Voss pointed out existing City concerns including:

- the lack of existing R-4 zoning adjoining the site
- the lack of an existing development plan from the developers
- the environmental impact of a high-density development at that location: Voss quoted an engineering report saying, "The Ryan Creek drainage basin is already inundated with downstream developments."

Based on his reading of the new city zoning ordinance, Voss pointed out the historical limitation of R-4 zones to areas near business zones, while this development would be surrounded by residential zones. When a question of whether the site's zoning could be differentiated between the apartments and bungalows, City Attorney Roy Williams noted that the commission could only consider the request presented by the developers, and could not consider its own modified versions of the plan.

Voss emphasized that the commission could only make a recommendation, and that the final decision on zoning would have to be made by the Cullman City Council, saying, "Our job is not to make the decision of whether it's rezoned, but to tell them whether it's consistent with the Master Plan. And, as I pointed out, I think it's a kind of a stretch to say that it is, given what we've done in the past and the most recent rewrite (of the zoning ordinance) which shows a certain intent of using the special districts and so forth."

W.C. MANN/THE CULLMAN TRIBUNE

Proposed plan for new multiple-unit apartment complex and bungalows on 40 acres east of Third Avenue Southeast/Old Hanceville Highway and fronting on that road at its intersection with King Edward Street

In the end, despite Voss' cautions, the commission voted to recommend that the city council rezone the site to R-4. The recommendation will be sent to the council for consideration at its upcoming meeting Monday, May 11.

OTHER COMMISSION BUSINESS

The commission approved short form subdivisions:

- to create a public right of way in the Ellsworth Subdivision
- to divide one lot into two lots at 1809 3rd St. NW
- to create two lots on Alabama Highway 157 Northwest
- to create three lots at Welti Road Southeast and 14th Street Southeast

The commission denied a request to divide one lot into two in the Wynn Haven Subdivision, with Voss pointing out that the request appeared to be an effort to circumvent the requirements of a major subdivision by requesting a series of short form subdivisions. The body also approved a preliminary subdivision request for the Highpoint Subdivision on County Road 490.

The commission voted to recommend rezoning of Shadowbrook Subdivision on East Hanceville Road Southeast from AG-1 (agricultural) to R-2 (medium-density residential), while recommending the denial of a request to rezone property in Wynn Haven Subdivision from R-1 to R-3.

Flyover (from Front)

CULLMAN, Ala. – A KC-135R Stratotanker aircraft from the Alabama Air National Guard's 117th Air Refueling Wing flew over Cullman Regional Tuesday, May 5, 2020.

According to the 117th Air Refueling Wing, the mission was a part of the nationwide Air Force Salutes Flyover under Operation American Resolve.

"The purpose of this flyover is to show appreciation to the thousands of American heroes who are at the front line battling COVID-19 and providing the support that America needs. It is part of a normal training mission and will demonstrate the continued readiness of the 117 ARW during this pandemic," said a statement from the 117th.

Competition (from Front)

Christy Perry

CULLMAN, Ala. – Cullman High School senior Ayuka Shichinohe recently won second place in the painting category in the 2020 4th Congressional District Art Competition.

"I am pleased once again to be a sponsor of the United States Congressional Art Competition for high school students within the 4th District. This is an annual nationwide event that recognizes and encourages the artistic talent we have in our district. Students in grades 9-12 are encouraged to compete," U.S. Rep. Robert Aderholt, R-Alabama said when announcing the call for entries back in early February.

The awards ceremony was held Friday, May 1 with a few changes due to COVID-19 restrictions. The winners were announced virtually on Aderholt's Facebook page.

"Normally, they have a program they can go to and they name the winners and hand out the awards there," said Cullman High School art teacher Elizabeth Miller. "This year they just had us do it that way, which I'm glad so the students could still do the project itself."

The submission process was also hindered by the current shutdown. Miller said that normally the students would turn their artwork in to her and she would take the pieces to the congressman's office.

"This year, the students had to submit them themselves by sending in a good quality picture," she said. "It also affected how many people wanted to do it as well."

Submissions were down this year with students being out of school; Miller said she encouraged all her students to enter the competition but noted, "Some students having to do jobs and work, stress of other classes and didn't have the time and some didn't have the resources at home to do a project that they felt would be good enough to turn in for the congressional district competition."

Shichinohe submitted an oil painting of an octopus tentacle titled "Fear."

She explained, "I chose to paint the octopus because I was terrified of tentacles. I wanted to get over my fear by painting them. Also, I wanted to portray the mysterious, unique creatures in the sea."

Shichinohe said she had the painting finished and knew she would be turning it in for the competition.

Said Miller, "Ayuka was one of my students in my Art Studio class. For that class, it's more hands-off and it's more like they have their own studio and they can create any project they want to.

"They have to create a portfolio and have a central theme to it. Hers was how she sees the world and different things like that. She wanted to do an octopus because she actually doesn't like octopus. She thinks the tentacles kind of gross her out. She wanted to tackle something that she didn't normally paint because she doesn't like it. She was coming from that aspect of trying to overcome a challenge."

In 2019, Shichinohe won first place in painting category of the competition.

Miller said of her student, "She is fantastic as an artist. She has the talent chops to be able to animate something and make it look realistic. She is looking in that direction."

Shichinohe hopes to continue her artwork after graduation from Cullman High School.

She said, "My future plan is to attend UAH to pursue a degree in computer animation, I am planning on transferring out of state to an art school after two years at UAH to immerse myself deeper and explore more aspects of the art world. I am very excited to improve my skills and gain more knowledge."

The 4th Congressional District Art Competition features artwork in the categories of printing, photographs, painting, mixed media, collage, drawing and computer generated. The top three are chosen from each category, and the first-place winner from each category then competes for Best in Show.

Best in Show artwork will be displayed in Washington, D.C. at the US Capitol Complex for a year. This year's Best in Show winner is Courtney Lupton from Guntersville High School. The People's Choice Award winner is Joe Patton, also from Guntersville High School.

CRT deputies allegedly recovered marijuana, drug paraphernalia and approximately 7 ounces of methamphetamine.

"Even during these uncertain times we are going through, criminals are still going to commit crimes.

"I am glad the CRT deputies were able to arrest these suspects and seize this meth before it was distributed into our community," said Sheriff Matt Gentry.

"I would also like to point out, as I have before, these arrests were made during the early morning hours, which shows that criminals don't care what time it is, they will still sell drugs, commit thefts and commit other crimes at any time, and I am thankful for our deputies who are out on patrol for being vigilant, night or day."

McDonald is charged with trafficking in methamphetamine, unlawful possession of a controlled substance, second-degree unlawful possession of marijuana and possession of drug paraphernalia. She is being held in the Cullman County Detention Center on a $100,000 property bond.

Karaoke (from Front)

that depressed feeling. I am a musician, so I wanted to go down to the basement to kind of flip my mood. I went down and recorded a song of me singing into a mic with a backing track and took a video of it. I posted it on Facebook with the caption 'quarantine karaoke' on a whim. It's not uncommon for me to go just play music. It's very soothing and I usually come back up feeling better. The following day, it just sort of hit me that it was very therapeutic and what if I could just encourage other people to do the same thing and they could kind of life their moods, too?"

Meyers created the group and invited all his personal Facebook friends to join him in sharing videos and volunteered to go first. He posted "Blinding Lights" by The Weeknd. That's when things went a bit crazy.

He said, "It was insane how rapidly everybody started accepting the invite, joining and sharing it."

Within the first 24 hours, Meyers said that around 10,000 people had joined the group and it continued to grow.

"The main goal was to, I created a set of rules, and it's really just about being kind to others. Do not put anybody down.

"There is a zero tolerance one strike policy for bullying. If you say anything about someone else's singing and you are being a jerk, you're immediately kicked out of the group and blocked so that you cannot come back or find it," he said. "Everyone is already feeling very lonely and secluded and they don't need to feel bullied on top of that.

"I've really been focused on trying to build a kind spirited community where everybody is in here just supporting each other and encouraging them to be vulnerable and it's OK. It's a safe place and yeah, it's really flourished."

Meyers stressed that the group is not a competition and is for everybody to come together and share. He admitted that as the group has evolved that some favorites and stars have emerged.

As for his favorite, he laughed, "This whole thing is like my baby so that's like I am being asked to pick my favorite kid. Do I have a number one favorite? I have tons of favorites. I have all kinds of favorites because there are all kinds of personalities."

The group has quickly become a life changer for musicians everywhere.

Meyers said, "They found this group and they get 200-300 new fans every day because they are going live every day.

"The amount of support and things have been so uplifting to them."

To help him make sure that the rules are being adhered to, Meyers had to quickly find moderators to help monitor the page.

"The team is up to 50 moderators right now and they are from all over the world," he said. "I have people in France, Germany and Japan so they are from all over because it was important to have people in different time zones. So, when I go to sleep, things don't go off the rails."

He continued, "None of this was planned. It's not like a business where you can kind of be operating in the dark and then for six months, get a plan in place and then launch and go live.

"This was all kind of thrust at me and everything has been coming 100 mph at me, so early on I just had like four of five people that I knew in Maine, like me, that were moderating. We'd all go to bed and things would get crazy at night and no one was watching and that had to quickly be rectified."

Meyers has a running list of more than 75 people who are willing to help the team if need be. He intends to keep the page going after the restrictions are lifted and the threat of the coronavirus is over.

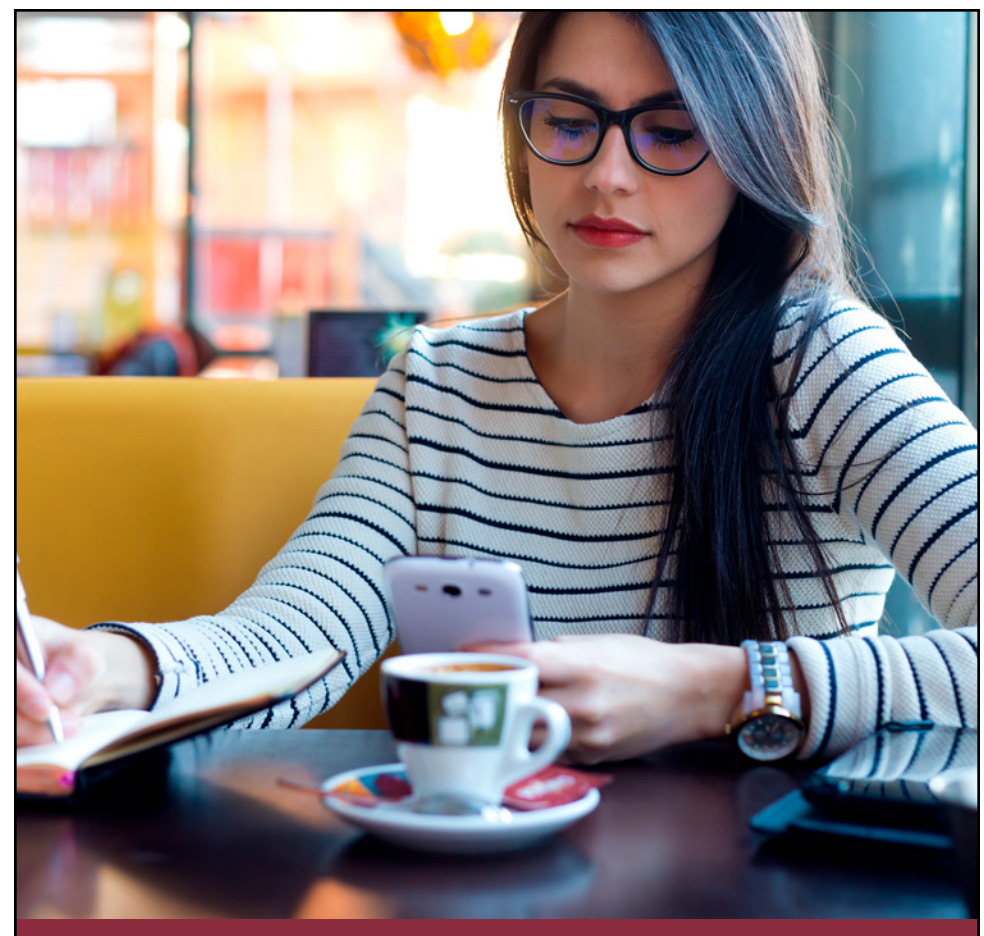

He said, "The end goal is not crystalized yet, but the journey has been amazing so far. I have no plans to shut it down. Music is the universal language and they don't have to understand the words necessarily. They can still be touched by the soothing sound of music and however it is being portrayed."
