Preserving history: Joppa School

MAGGIE DARNELL/THE CULLMAN TRIBUNE

Joppa School (formally known as the Normal and Industrial Collegiate Institute) is located along Alabama Highway 69 in Joppa. If Gov. Kay Ivey signs the bill into law, the property will be handed over to the newly formed Joppa Historical Board once members are appointed.

Maggie Darnell
maggie@cullmantribune.com

JOPPA, Ala. – The Alabama Legislature recently passed bills authorizing the Joppa Historical Board to take ownership of the old Joppa School from the Cullman County Board of Education.

The Tribune spoke with Rep. Randall Shedd, R-Fairview to learn more on House Bill 497, which he sponsored in the Alabama House of Representatives. House Bill 497 amends 2019 Act 435, which originally established the Joppa Historical Board and gave it the authority to receive ownership of the Joppa School property from the Cullman County Board of Education. The amendment makes board members "immune from civil liability for actions taken in the conduct of their duties."

"(Joppa Historical) Board members have not been appointed yet," said Shedd.

"The legislative delegation will appoint the board members after the governor signs the bill.

"The legislature passed more than 50 local bills last week, so it will take a little time for the signing process on that many. The board will then need to accept the property from the school board."

He explained further, "The board will own, operate, manage and preserve the property but cannot sell it without a vote of the people of Joppa. Having the property owned by a legal entity established by the Legislature makes it easier for us to get grants and funding for the property, especially the historic college building there."

Shedd said of the potential funding the board can receive: "Having the property owned by a legal entity established by the Legislature makes it easier for us to get grants and funding for the property, especially the historic college building there."

House Bill 497 states:

In Cullman County, there is established the Joppa Historical Board to own, operate, manage, and the former Joppa School property in the unincorporated community of Joppa, including any ball fields and other historical structures, owned by the Cullman County Board of Education.

The Joppa Historical Board shall be composed of five members appointed by the Cullman County legislative delegation for terms of four years. Members of the board shall continue to serve until a successor is appointed. Members of the board are immune from civil liability for actions taken in the conduct of their duties to the extent allowed under Section 36-1-12.

The Joppa Historical Board may accept title to the former Joppa School property owned by the Cullman County Board of Education and may hold the property for the benefit » PAGE 8

VINEMONT, Ala. – A parade was held at Vinemont Elementary School Friday afternoon, giving students and teachers and opportunity to say farewell. Faculty and staff lined the front drive of the school in a sea of red shirts holding signs as the students made their way through. The students, many with their own signs, were all smiles.

Students were able to pick up their school work and personal belongings left behind when schools closed. Those who have not picked up their things may do so by contacting their teachers or the school.

Cook announces Cullman City Council re-election bid

wendy@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN, Ala. – Cullman City Councilman Johnny Cook on Friday announced he will seek re-election to the Cullman City Council, Place 3, in the Aug. 25, 2020 Municipal Election.

Place 3 has oversite responsibility over the Cullman City Sanitation Department, but all five council members vote and have responsibility over every area of city government.

Cook said council members run citywide, not by district.

Cullman assigns a council member to a specific department to ensure there is one elected alderman who has regular communication with the department's superintendent.

"We believe knowing there is a single point of contact for citizens, employees and department heads to ask questions and/or discuss problems, concerns or issues about specific city services is very beneficial," he said

The sanitation department is responsible for residential and commercial garbage collection, recycling pickup, collection of brush and leaves, pickup of discarded appliances, coordinating the annual free landfill dump day, roll-off containers at construction sites and other services.

"I am proud of the improvements within the sanitation department and the excellent employees," Cook said.

"The City has upgraded a lot of equipment and we continually provide employee training to ensure we offer quality service to the community."

Cook said the council members and mayor have worked "as a team" for the betterment of Cullman, saying, "The positive working relationship between elected officials has played a significant role in the growth Cullman is experiencing.

"We are fortunate that we do not have the strained relationships among our elected officials that exist in a lot of communities."

All areas of the city are growing, said Cook, who mentioned, "Sales tax collections are increasing at 3% a year; new business and new home construction is on the rise; Cullman continues to rank among the best cities in Alabama for new and expanding industry; city schools are nationally ranked; police and fire services are well equipped; park and recreation programs and facilities are nationally ranked; sewer and water services are reliable; and city streets are well maintained.

"I am proud of our City services and the employees. Our City employees are well-trained and they work hard to serve our citizens."

CONTRIBUTED

Johnny Cook

Said Cook, "It has been an honor to serve as a city council member and I ask for your vote in August."

Cook is a senior vice president at Premier Bank of the South.

He and his wife Dawn, have three children: Merrill Dotson, Braden Cook and Mary Ellen Kennedy.

Cullman Regional now offering COVID-19 antibody testing

Cullman Regional
Contributor

CULLMAN, Ala. – Cullman Regional announced this week that COVID-19 antibody testing is now available at the Cullman Regional Urgent Care Center, Cullman Regional Family & Internal Medicine and Cullman Regional Family Care.

"With so much unknown about the coronavirus, there is equally as much unknown about the COVID-19 antibody test," Cullman Regional Chief Medical Officer William Smith, MD said. "However, many local community members are simply curious to see if they have the antibodies or not."

"Results should be viewed with caution as it is not known if the presence of antibodies, indicated by a positive test, actually indicates immunity or protection from COVID infection," Smith said. "Patients should consult their healthcare providers with any questions about testing or test results."

What is the COVID-19 antibody test?
It is a blood test that tests for antibodies to the virus that causes COVID-19. The test used by Cullman Regional is the Anti-SARS-COV-2 Total IgG test.

Why should someone be tested?
Testing will help find out if you may have antibodies to the virus that causes COVID-19. Patients must be symptom-free as it takes 2-3 weeks after the virus to develop antibodies.

What are the potential benefits of testing for COVID-19 antibodies?
Antibody tests let you know if you have been exposed to SARS-CoV-2. They do not tell you if you are immune. The results, along with other information, can help your healthcare provider make informed recommendations about your care. This test can be useful in identifying convalescent plasma donors.

What does a positive test result mean?
If you have a positive test result, it is very likely that you have previously been exposed to COVID-19 and have developed an antibody response to the virus. Your healthcare provider will work with you to determine how best to care for you based on the test results along with other factors of your medical history, including your symptoms, possible exposures and geographical location of places you have traveled.

There is also a small chance that this test can give a positive result that is wrong (a false positive result).

What does a negative test result mean?
A negative test result means that the antibodies to the virus that causes COVID-19 were not found in your specimen. However, it is possible for this test to give a negative result that is incorrect (false negative) in some people with COVID-19.

A negative result may occur if you are tested early in your illness and your body hasn't had time to produce antibodies to the infection.

This means that you could possibly still have COVID-19 even though the test is negative. If this is the case, your healthcare provider will consider the test result together with all other aspects of your medical history (such as symptoms, possible exposures and geographical location of places you have traveled) in deciding how to care for you and possibly even recommending a more specific test for COVID-19.

Here's what a positive test DOES NOT mean:
Having a positive antibody test does not necessarily indicate that an individual is protected against re-infection. Positive results do not indicate or rule out active infection or asymptomatic carriage. It can take 2-3 weeks for the antibodies to develop.

"Regardless of test results, patients should always follow current guidelines regarding masks, social distancing and hand washing," Smith said.

FUNNY THINGS FROM YESTERDAY

Sleeping under 6 quilts

Robert N. Tidwell, Sr.
robertntidwellsr@gmail.com

Sometimes an incident will happen that reminds me of the so-called "Good Old Days." Last week, the cold days reminded me of an incident that happened a few years back.

Rudene and I were very good friends with a couple that lived down the street from us for many years. We had a little condo in Gulf Shores and we planned a trip down for Thursday afternoon until Sunday afternoon. We let the management of the condo complex rent our place out, but they were supposed to have this time saved for us. We hit the road, and down below Birmingham I thought it would be a good idea to call the lady in the office at the condo and make sure they had saved these days for us. Bad news. Some people were in our condo and they were good northern customers who come every winter. The lady had tried several places for a room but not a one was available.

After a little discussion, our friend said that he had an aunt who lived about 20 miles from Gulf Shores. Thank goodness, we won't have to sleep in the car. We arrived at the aunt's house about 12 that night. It was cold as a well digger's knee when we arrived and knocked on the front door. No one came. We knocked on the back door. No one came. We drove to town to find a phone and we called but no answer. Driving back to the house we found a light was on, thank goodness.

After going inside the house, his aunt showed us where we would sleep. The two bedrooms were on opposite ends of a glassed-in front porch on the north side of the house. Neither bedroom had a heater. Our friends took the bedroom they wanted and Granny and I took the other one. I noticed several quilts on the bed and I knew this would be a cold room. The lady told us there was a heater on our bed. I looked around for a pan of hot coals to warm the sheets but then noticed that she meant an electric blanket. The other couple was really envious of our blanket until the next morning when we told them that it didn't work. Boy, that was a cold bedroom!

People who are as old as I am can probably remember visiting their grandparents and going to bed with six quilts on top of them. It seems like you couldn't turn over with that much cover and you really didn't want to for fear of losing your warm spot. That was the way it was on this particular night.

With my luck, I got a cramp in my leg that night. I wouldn't get out of bed for I was afraid I'd freeze to the floor. So, I just stretched, moaned and suffered through it.

We did have a good stay there, and that cold bedroom brought back some wonderful old memories of winter visits with my grandparents.

BILLY BOB'S STORIES AND STUFF

Idling at home has not all bad

Bill King
Tribune
Contributor

The coronavirus has given us far more time at home than some know how to handle. If you are a homebody, you have been one happy camper lately...but you've camped at home. If you are a social butterfly, you have been forced to land. You may have even felt like you had crawled back into your cocoon. You are delighted that restrictions have eased and you are ready to fly. I have never been much of a homebody and have never idled easily. When I was growing up, Mama used to tell me my middle name was "Go." She often accused me of wearing out the roads.

One of the first of many cars I burned up the roads in was an old beat up, worn out, 1968 Fiat 850 with fried piston rings. I love fried onion rings, but not fried piston rings! That was one ugly mode of transportation. There were several things I didn't like about that old Fiat. It only had two gears...slow and slower! Sometimes it didn't get me home on time, especially if getting home involved driving up Sand Mountain.

Sometimes climbing the mountain took prayer and a good friend with a long log chain and a strong bumper. My Fiat purred like a kitten...a sick kitten, that is. It did not idle well, but then neither do I. During these stay days, we may have all learned to idle a little better.

While that "lovely" little Italian made import didn't get me there as fast as I wished, it beat walking or peddling a bicycle. I parked in spaces those driving Lincolns and Cadillacs didn't even attempt. Since gasoline was under forty-cents per gallon, I could fill up on four dollars.

The engine was a small three-cylinder, so I could drive to London for $25.00. Okay, I got a little carried away there. It was actually a four-cylinder, but one only fired occasionally. Oh, you thought I meant England? No, silly, London, Kentucky. They hadn't finished the bridge to England back then.

This forced isolation has taken many out of our normal routine. I haven't been in the office much, haven't had meetings except virtual ones, and all of my speaking, singing, and Billy Bob events have been cancelled or postponed until 2525 (remember that song?). In spite of all this, I have seen a rainbow shining through the rain. There are things I have certainly enjoyed about being home. First of all, none of my family has come down with the virus. I have missed seeing my daughter and her family as much, but I've had tons of time with my wonderful wife of forty-five years, not to mention two four- legged rotten rascals. I've "gone to church" via Facebook and Youtube. I have been able to catch up on some needed yard work. I've communicated with 43,298 people by phone, email, Facebook, and shouting at some from six-feet away. I've spent much time on my back porch playing my instruments and singing... my poor neighbors...bless their hearts. I've played and sung to some of you through Facebook...bless your hearts. I've read some and written much. I began writing a new book. I've taken Jean to the movies several times...in our family room. I've watched 4,398 reruns of Gunsmoke and Andy Griffith. I actually saw an episode of Gunsmoke I had not seen...I think. Most importantly, I've prayed for the sick, the bereaved, the unemployed, our leaders, medical workers, a cure, churches, pastors, businesses, the economy, for the well to stay well and that we can all make the best of tough situation. As we begin to ease out of our hibernation, please be smart and safe. There is a killer virus still on the loose.

Little Flower

By: Randy C. Hale

Among our Chinese Privet,
a wild rose invades.

Most of the year,
its pesky thorns treacherous and I almost forget how dazzling and dainty
it becomes each spring.

"Rosa Multraflora"

When all will be forgiven,
breathing in royal fragrance,
sighing at its finest hour.

The little flower
stamens bursting forth
as sun rays
from a center
white petticoat
of petals, tinged
in pastel pink,
reaching for her pistils,
anthers plump
with pollen unto a snowy laced blue sky.

COLD SPRINGS HIGH SCHOOL
CLASS OF 2020

Graduation is Saturday, May 23, at 6:00 at Cold Springs football stadium

Not pictured is Dalton Nabor

"As a school, we want to congratulate our seniors on reaching the milestone of graduating high school and seeing all of their hard work pay off. This group of students has been an absolute pleasure to have in our school, and our school has benefited by the contributions they have made. We want our students to know how proud we are of them and the resilience they have shown during this unprecedented time. Oftentimes when faced with adversity, it is human nature to question "why?" and to allow things beyond our control to affect us in a negative manner. However, this group has responded as they always have, making the best of every situation and always seeking a positive resolution. Class of 2020, we will greatly miss you, and we wish you nothing but the best in your future endeavors."

Movie: Mean Girls

A naive teen (Lindsay Lohan) starts public school and is befriended by the elite girls clique and two outsiders — gay Damian (Daniel Franzese) and nonconformist Janis (Lizzy Caplan). The latter two suggest she take advantage of the former's interest to get the dirt on the clique. All goes well until she falls for the queen bee's ex (Jonathan Bennett). Tina Fey ("30 Rock") wrote this 2004 comedy, in which she plays a teacher.

This new one-hour special, which is being simulcast across ABC, CBS, NBC and Fox, as well as several social media platforms, is intended to honor the graduating high school Class of 2020, nearly all of whom will be unable to have a traditional ceremony due to health constraints of the coronavirus pandemic. Former President Barack Obama will deliver a commencement message. Celebrities scheduled to appear include LeBron James, Pakistani activist Malala Yousafzai, the Jonas Brothers, Pharrell Williams, Ben Platt and Olympic gold medalist Megan Rapinoe, among others.

Movie: Joker

The first R-rated film to earn more than $1 billion at the box office, Todd Phillips' deeply unsettling 2019 psychological thriller polarized critics over its depiction of violence and mental illness. That didn't keep the film from winning multiple global accolades, however, including a best actor Academy Award for Joaquin Phoenix, starring as failed stand-up comic Arthur Fleck, who gradually sinks into madness. His Oscar was one of the 11 Academy nominations the film earned, more than any other 2019 film. Robert De Niro, Zazie Beetz and Frances Conroy co-star.

The Zoo

Margueretta the sea lion pays a price for a zoo visitor's careless act in the new episode "New Chick on the Block." Keeper Sue calls in some help when the zoo's Cock-of-the-Rock may have a new chick. Elsewhere, the reptile department hopes that two critically endangered snakes will breed in captivity for the first time, and two Andean bear cubs prepare to make their Queens Zoo exhibit debut.

Movie: How to Train Your Husband

Marriage therapist and author Jillian James (Julie Gonzalo, "Dallas") has a thriving career, but she lets her work blind her to the reality that her marriage to hubby Justin (Jonathan Chase) is in peril, especially after she declines his surprise anniversary trip to Paris for professional concerns. At the urging of a friend (Karla Mosley) a dog trainer, Jillian gets a puppy who turns out to be a real handful, but her training sessions with the pooch make her less self-absorbed. Peri Gilpin ("Frasier") also stars in this 2020 romantic comedy.

Movie: Paradise Hills

In her directorial debut, Alice Waddington earned respectful reviews when her 2019 Spanish "sci-fi fantasy thriller" made its bow at the Sundance Film Festival. Emma Roberts ("American Horror Story") leads the cast as Uma, a young woman who is sent to the spectacularly misnamed Paradise, a mysterious behavior modification center for women who have done something to displease their families. Danielle Macdonald, Awkwafina, Jeremy Irvine, Arnaud Valois, Eiza González and Milla Jovovich also star.

Saved By The Barn

Barn Sanctuary rolls out the welcome mat for a blind goat named Charlie and two endearing ducklings who are in need of a swim coach in the new episode "We've Got Pig Problems." Ginger the lamb quickly takes to her new prosthetics, but June and Jasper the pigs get into a real tussle during what starts out as a routine tusk and nail trimming.

Joaquin Phoenix stars in "Joker" on HBO.

OPINION

Guest Column: COVID-19 will be part of our lives for some time to come

Dr. Tom Oliver
Contributor

I have been practicing medicine 28 years, and coronavirus is an altogether new experience for me. The biggest surprise for me is how rapidly my own opinions have changed. I have gone from, "COVID-19 won't be that big of a deal here" to, "This is a VERY big deal" to, "This is a big deal (as are all infectious diseases that have the potential to kill), but apparently with a mortality rate somewhere around a bad flu season."

As alarming reports continued to come in from places like Washington, San Francisco and New York, I was also in full agreement with stay-at-home orders and, in some cases, full lockdown. Data was sorely lacking here in the United States, and data from China appears to have been untrustworthy. Motives of these recommendations and orders have been questioned and politicized by many.

I will say that the state health officer leading the way for Alabama, Dr. Scott Harris, whom I know personally, is a man of integrity and has made recommendations solely with the best interests of Alabamians in mind. However, as data continues to grow, the many negative impacts of stay-at home orders, including those on small businesses as well as individual's mental health, are being seen. I am grateful to see these orders being lifted and currently would not agree with them being put in place again.

I hope we have all learned a lot about some basic things we can do to protect ourselves from respiratory illnesses like COVID-19 and the flu and will continue to practice those going forward. I also trust that the citizens of Alabama can make informed, individual choices on whether or not to self-isolate at times based on their own individual risk factors. My heart goes out to those who have lost jobs, businesses that are struggling or gone under, and certainly those who have lost their lives because of this disease. I love this state, our country and the freedoms we are all afforded. I'm a big believer in individual responsibility.

More data will continue to accumulate. Some of it will be scary. I pray to see us move forward and make decisions that are not based in fear. I also pray to see us treat each other with respect and kindness, mask wearers and non-mask wearers, isolators and non-isolators alike. It has been enlightening to me the patience I have needed for myself as my own opinions change or evolve, as well as for those with opinions different from mine. I know I need more of that and I hope we will practice that with each other.

It appears COVID-19 will be part of our lives for some time to come. Going forward, I think our approach on how best to deal with it will need to be largely individual. Over the years, I have spent a large portion of my time trying to get patients to be more proactive in taking responsibility for their own health. The COVID-19 pandemic is a stark example of an illness that requires all of us to do just that.

HANCEVILLE, Ala. – Wallace State's Small Farmer Training program is hosting a pair of Young Farmer Entrepreneur Camps in June.

The first session is scheduled for the main Hanceville site on June 1-3, and at the Oneonta campus on June 15-17. Sessions are open to individuals ages 16 and up and registration cost is $100.

The three-day camp will cover the follow topics: soil science, fertilization, agriculture equipment usage and safety, marketing, business planning, agriculture assistance for young farmers and vegetable and fruit production basics.

"We're reaching out to individuals as young as 16 because we want them to see how farming is a viable and rewarding career. It's a great feeling to produce commodities that are in demand on an annual basis. Farming never goes out of style," said Travis Kress, Wallace State's Small Farmer Training instructor. "I encourage teenagers at career fairs to find a good summer job at a farmer's market and begin making good contacts at a young age."

Register for the camps at both sites by contacting Amanda Aris at 256-352-8386 or at amanda.aris@wallacestate.edu

All COVID-19 social distancing guidelines will be exercised at the camps with a max number of eight individual at each. Participants are required to bring their own masks.

SportsFit (from Front)

CULLMAN, Ala. – Cullman SportsFit & Wellness Center is closing after more than 30 years in business. The decision to put the building and 17 acres of property along U.S. Highway 31 North up for sale was made prior to the center closing March 19 for the COVID-19 pandemic, but last week the tough choice to close permanently was made.

Becky Pollard, manager of SportsFit, has been with the gym since 1988 and is saddened by the closing. She was actually there one year prior to SportsFit's opening in 1988. The building was previously home to the Cullman Athletic Club.

"I've been here a long time," she said. "I teach aerobics, I manage, I personal train. Yeah, it's kept me busy."

SportsFit had been hurt financially over the last several years, with the opening of news facilities in Cullman. The locally-owned gym found it difficult to compete with the City of Cullman and corporate chains.

"When the (Cullman Wellness &) Aquatic Center opened up, that hurt us," said Pollard. "(The City of Cullman, they have free stuff for the senior citizens, which is great, but that really hurt us. Of course, Planet Fitness really hurt us. It's hard to compete with $10 a month," Pollard said.

Her classes with senior citizens are something Pollard is concerned about.

"We had Silver Sneakers, and that's really what's killing me," she said. "It took me forever to get Silver Sneakers and I've had it for a little over four years. They are all asking, 'Where we are going to go?' but I don't know."

Pollard said she hopes to continue the Silver Sneakers program and is looking for a location to do so.

She added, "I was having 20-30 people every day for Silver Sneakers. It was a good class for them. We did some dance, some choreography to 50s and 60s music; we did biceps, triceps, sits, squats, walking, balancing and stabilization."

The SportsFit building is for sale, but for now, Pollard asks people to wait regarding inquiries about purchasing the exercise equipment. The building has four recently renovated racquetball courts, a swimming pool, tanning beds, saunas, whirlpools and more.

Pollard doesn't know exactly what her future holds, but said she does know that she will not quit exercising.

"I might do personal training on my own," she smiled. "I just don't know, but I will never quit exercising."

CULLMAN, Ala. – Alabama Gov. Kay Ivey last Friday announced the rollout of the next phase of her Safer at Home Order, "Proceeding with Caution," effective Monday, May 11, 2020. These changes are in effect until May 22, 2020 at 5 p.m. As part of the loosening of restrictions, close-contact service providers, such as barber shops, hair salons, waxing salons, threading salons, nail salons and spas, body art facilities, tattoo services, and massage therapy establishments and services were allowed to reopen, following the following precautions:

- Social distancing. Employees shall not knowingly allow clients or persons accompanying a client to congregate within 6 feet of a person from another household.
- Facial coverings. Each employee shall wear a mask, or other facial covering that covers his or her nostrils and mouth, at all times while providing services within 6 feet of a client.
- Hand sanitation.
- Employees shall wash their hands thoroughly with soap and water immediately before providing services within 6 feet of a client.
- Employees of all close-contact service providers are encouraged—and employees providing nail services or facial services are required—to wear gloves when providing services within 6 feet of a client. To the extent employees wear gloves when providing services, they should use a new pair of gloves for each client and should put them on immediately after washing their hands.

Following its earlier reports of local salons and barber shops, The Tribune reached out to a couple of tattoo parlors Friday to see how they're handling business during the time of COVID-19.

X-ternal X-pressions Owner Jon Hamlett shared, "We require anyone entering and all artists to wear a face mask the entire time. We do not provide clients with face masks; they are not allowed in if they do not have one."

Hamlett does suggest an age limit for his clients.

"I suggest to those 60 and older to consider waiting until the state health board or CDC deems it OK for them at a low risk," he said. "It's just a suggestion, but people will do whatever they choose. No one under 18 is allowed on property due to a Vinemont (town) ordinance, so that's always in order."

For customers craving some ink, Hamlett said, "Appointments only, and only the client with an appointment is allowed in the building. They must wash their hands immediately and use hands sanitizer when necessary. All clients are urged to use a cashless pay system, i.e. PayPal, Cash App, Venmo, but we still do take cash and credit/debit card if needed."

He continued, "We follow all cleaning and glove wearing procedures suggested by the state board of health on this as well. If we touch cash or debit cards with gloves, after the transaction we discard those gloves immediately and wash our hands."

He added, "We were technically doing all of this and then some weeks prior to the shutdown."

Dodge City Tattoo Company Artist Rene Pretorius echoed Hamlett in terms of what the business is doing, sharing, "We can't tattoo people that have been sick or are sick are have been around someone that has been sick. That's something the health department put into place. Stuff that we're not putting into place is we're not opening up our lobby. We haven't been told that we can't, but we're trying to keep it down to the minimum of the amount of people that are in the shop at one time, so we're only allowing appointments in here. We're taking temperatures before they come in. If they have a higher temperature, we reschedule their appointment completely; we won't even have them walk into the door. As far as consultations and stuff like that, we're also meeting those people outside. We're trying to only keep appointments and our artists in here."

Pretorius shared what clients need to do when coming in for appointments: "You must come in wearing a mask; wash your hands as soon as you come in. The only place they're allowed to hang out once they've come in if we're changing or tweaking designs is in the station, once it is set up. They'll come in, they'll do their paperwork, we'll have whoever is at the front wipe it down. If they go back to the bathroom, whoever is up at the front has to run back and wipe down the whole bathroom and disinfect everything, after every single person that's been here. Whoever they had their appointment with has to walk behind them and clean up everything after they've left."

Pretorius said Dodge City Tattoo Company does have some surgical masks on hand, but she urged customers to show up wearing a mask.

She also stressed Dodge City Tattoo Company is only taking appointments at this time; no walk-ins are welcome right now.

"We're not doing walk-ins at all," she said. "We're just doing appointments."

MLB approves plan to restart 2020 season

Sammy Confer
sammy@cullmantribune.com

With COVID-19 shutting down sports and many other events around the world, everyone's been waiting patiently for sports to get back underway. Some good news came from the MLB this week when the owners approved a plan to begin an 82-game season, starting potentially as early as July, without any fans in the ballparks.

Talks about when to start the season were ongoing for a while due to the coronavirus and on Monday, the MLB owners approved the plan to get the season started around Fourth of July weekend without any fans. Spring training would start in early to mid-June. Each team will play 82 games, instead of the 162 that they always play, against opponents in its own division, plus interleague matchups limited to AL East vs NL East, AL Central vs NL Central and AL East vs NL West. The designated hitter could be used between National League teams for the first time.

The playoff format has changed as well. Postseason play will be expanded from 10 teams to 14 by doubling wild cards in each league to four. The teams would prefer to play at their regular-season ballparks but would switch to spring training ballparks or neutral sites if medical and government approvals can't be obtained for home games. The All-Star game, which is scheduled to be in Los Angeles at Dodger Park on July 14th, will most likely be called off.

Teams will propose that players receive the percentage of their 2020 salaries based on a 50-50 split of revenues MLB receives during the regular season and postseason. That proposal would take into account fans being able to return to ballparks at some points, perhaps with a small percentage of seats sold at first and then gradually increasing. Teams would have the option of holding the resumption of spring training at home or at their facilities in Florida and Arizona.

Players are more interested in medical protocols and testing designed to protect them from and detect the new coronavirus. Arizona Governor Doug Ducey announced on Tuesday that all professional sports are able to participate and play in the state of Arizona after May 15th. Under some of baseball's possible plans, a portion of teams and possibly all would be based in the Phoenix area, but the first choice is to play in empty regular-season ballparks.

Alabama's Kolby Robinson selected to the CoSIDA Academic All-District IV Baseball Team

Alex Thompson
UA Athletics

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. – Alabama senior infielder Kolby Robinson was selected to the CoSIDA Academic All-District IV Baseball Team, the organization announced Thursday.

The CoSIDA Academic All-America program recognizes the nation's top student-athletes for their combined academic and athletic performances. Robinson now advances to the CoSIDA Academic All-America ballot. Academic All-America honorees will be announced from June 8-11.

A human performance exercise science major, Robinson graduated from the University in May with a 3.968 cumulative grade-point average. In two years at the Capstone, he was named to both the President's and Dean's List.

Robinson's first season with the Crimson Tide in 2019 saw the Cullman, Ala., native earn a spot on the SEC Spring Academic Honor Roll, an accomplishment which he is also on-pace to achieve in the spring of 2020. A standout in both the classroom and on the diamond, Robinson spent the last two seasons as Alabama's everyday starter at shortstop, starting 69 games while playing in 71 contests.

He batted .284 with eight doubles and a triple for his career while adding 29 RBI, 34 runs, 28 walks and eight stolen bases. Defensively, the shortstop helped the Crimson Tide set the program's all-time mark for fielding percentage in 2019 and had not committed an error through his 16 games of action in 2020.

Robinson is one of 14 Crimson Tide baseball players to earn all-district recognition and the first since Brett Whitaker in 2011. In all, Alabama has had nine players earn Academic All-America honors since 1972, including first-team honorees Dr. Jeff Laubenthal (1993), Lance Cormier (2002) and Emeel Salem (2006, 2007).

The senior shortstop is one of nine Alabama student-athletes to earn a place on CoSIDA Academic All-District IV squads so far this year, joining Landon Dickerson (football), Krystal Goodman (softball), Bailey Hemphill (softball), Jordan Lewis (women's basketball), Nealy Martin (soccer), Alex Plavin (soccer), Kaylee Tow (softball) and Jedrick Wills Jr. (football). Martin and Plavin went on to earn Academic All-America honors this fall, while Hemphill and Tow earned the honor last season.
