Commission on Aging eager to welcome back seniors

CHRISTY PERRY/THE CULLMAN TRIBUNE

The Cullman County Commission on Aging hopes to re-open July 6.

CULLMAN, Ala. – As many restrictions due to COVID-19 are being lifted in Alabama, none have yet been lifted for senior centers, which will remain closed at least through the month of June.

Cullman County Commission on Aging Director Dusty Baker said he hopes centers in Cullman County can re-open July 6.

"It all depends on what Governor (Kay) Ivey says," he said.

Cullman County's seven full-time senior centers continue to serve hot meals via drive-thru service, and delivery continues for homebound seniors.

"The only thing we aren't doing is the gathering part," said Baker. "They are anxious to get back and I am ready for them to get back, too. I miss them. We all miss them, and we are all ready for them to come back and things get back to normal. We are ready to see them and hug their necks."

Many of the yearly senior events have also been canceled this year, including the Ms. Senior Cullman County Pageant, senior fishing day and Strawberry Festival- Senior Shindig. Baker said he is hopeful that restrictions will be lifted in time for thee fall health fair and Senior Day at the Cullman County Fair.

"I think we will learn a lot in the next couple of weeks about what the plans might be for July," he said, "depending on what the numbers do."

Even if senior centers are allowed to re-open, there will likely be guidelines to follow that will be challenging to the staff.

"Trying to be social distancing and possibly limit the capacity, it's going to be hard," said Baker. "I feel like I have been busier during this time than regular because we are constantly trying to coordinate things. We are used to our standard operating procedures on how we do things. Now, it's new to everybody and we are trying to coordinate and make sure we take care of everybody at the same time, so there's a lot more thought going into things."

Baker and the staff at Commission on Aging have not been completely idle during this time. Besides serving and delivering meals to seniors, they are using the down- » PAGE 8

Commission: Smith Lake Park 4th of July Fireworks & Music Festival canceled

christy@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN, Ala. – The annual Smith Lake Park 4th of July Fireworks & Music Festival has been canceled due to COVID-19. Cullman County Parks and Recreation Director Doug Davenport at Tuesday morning's meeting of the Cullman County Commission said the event will not take place because of restrictions still in place to protect the community from the spread of the coronavirus.

"We've gotta have a plan of action from the State for this COVID-19 for keeping different families 6 feet apart," he said. "I don't know how to do that unless we say you have to stay in your vehicle."

Davenport also said there is no guarantee that the fireworks company, Pyro Shows, would be able to obtain a permit from the State after review of a plan.

Fireworks at Smith Lake Park

"Like everything else, it's new water," he said.

The issue of the deposit already paid to Pyro Shows was also considered in the decision. The County was able to negotiate with Pyro Shows to allow this year's deposit to be transferred to the 2021 fireworks show.

Some good news from the parks and rec department is the reopening of cabins and pavilions. The train at Sportsman Lake Park will also begin running again and the monthly night rides at Stony Lonesome OHV Park will resume.

Troy's Thomas, Bartolero tabbed Collegiate Baseball All-Americans

Andy Stubblefield
Troy Athletics

TROY, Ala. – Troy junior pitcher Levi Thomas and sophomore catcher Caleb Bartolero were tabbed Collegiate Baseball All-Americans, the publication announced Tuesday. Thomas, a second-team member, and Bartolero, a third-team selection, became the 57th and 58th All-Americans in program history.

The pair were the only players from the Sun Belt Conference named All-Americans by Collegiate Baseball.

Thomas impressed on a national level in 2020 with a miniscule ERA of 0.39, a top-15 mark in the country. The junior amassed 42 strikeouts in 23.0 innings which rank 10th nationally and his WHIP of 0.65 was the 17th-best in the nation this season.

The Cullman, Ala., native earned back-to-back Sun Belt Pitcher of the week honors to open up the season and was also named a Collegiate Baseball National Player of the Week after beginning the year with seven consecutive strikeouts en route to fanning a career-high 14 batters on Opening Night.

Thomas turned more heads on the national stage when he allowed no runs in 6.0 innings at No. 1 Florida. Thomas didn't give up a run until his fourth start of the year against Michigan State at the Cox Diamond Invitational, an outing where he still struck out 11 batters.

Bartolero showed remarkable consistency at the plate in 2020 after hitting safely in all 17 games of the season, a career-long hitting streak for the sophomore. A .394 hitter on the year, Bartolero recorded 28 hits and nine doubles which rank 12th and sixth in the nation, respectively.

The Woodstock, Ga. native also hit a triple and two home runs, including a grand slam against Northern Kentucky on Opening Weekend.

He drove in 18 runs and registered 45 total bases on the season, the 23rd-most in the country.

The publication will announce Freshman All-American selections next week. Troy has had a Freshman All-American named in four of the last six seasons.

TROY ATHLETICS

Troy standouts Levi Thomas and Caleb Bartolero earned Collegiate Baseball All-American honors this week.

QUOTABLE – HEAD COACH MARK SMARTT

On Levi Thomas

"Levi established himself as one of the best pitchers in the country during the season. He dominated hitters in each outing with great stuff and command. His poise and confidence were impressive, and he certainly deserves this special recognition."

On Caleb Bartolero

"Caleb made an immediate impact on the field in his first year as a starter. He was our most consistent run producer while catching at a high level. He has a great future and is very deserving of the All-American recognition."

Where are they now: attorney Wes Byrum, national champion kicker

Jeff Shearer
AU Athletics

AUBURN, Ala. – Moments after his 19-yard field goal secured Auburn's national championship, Wes Byrum leapt in celebration.

"Mayhem," he said, looking back nearly a decade later on a magical night in Glendale, Arizona.

"So much adrenaline. I think my body went into a full body cramp. There's a picture they have somewhere of me where I'm completely outstretched with my arms down and I'm yelling. It's funny because the picture just shows excitement – not that I wasn't excited – but in actuality my entire body had cramped from the adrenaline and just how tight and tense I got. It went away almost immediately, but it was just funny because everything felt like it just locked."

With the scored tied 19-19 in the fourth quarter with 2 minutes, 27 seconds remaining in the 2011 BCS National Championship Game, Auburn began a drive on its 25-yard-line.

On the Tigers' sideline, Byrum prepared for a potential game-winning kick, something he'd done five times previously in his four seasons at Auburn.

"I was definitely expecting a longer field goal," he said.

Cam Newton connected with Emory Blake for 15 yards to open the drive, then Michael Dyer raced 6 yards before the Ducks thought they had him down, then 31 more after, to Oregon's 23, the game's pivotal play.

"I thought we were at least going to have to attempt something in the mid-30s to 40s range, and then Dyer had that run that completely changed it," Byrum said.

"Up until that point, we definitely thought we were going to have a longer kick. Just getting prepared and planning on going out there and finishing it."

Another 16-yard Dyer dash set up Byrum for a field goal that was 1 yard shorter than an extra point. Thoughts of what could go wrong never entered his mind.

"I've never really been one, personally, to ever really think like that, which is probably why I was able to do well at that position," he said. "It just wasn't something I really was worried about."

Josh Harris snapped to holder Neil Caudle. As time expired, Byrum did the rest, a storybook ending to his Auburn career.

"Everything was great," he said. "The snap, blocking, the hold, everything was exactly the way it should be, exactly the way it's practiced. It was very, very routine.

"It was an amazing opportunity to be able to go out there and finish the game for the team.

"After four years of playing with these guys, a lot of the guys I came in with, thinking about all of the hard work we put in through all the seasons, even the ups and downs, to see everybody work hard to come back and this goal that we've had for years now to finally come to fruition, it was nice to be fortunate enough to get out there and finish it for everybody.

"Definitely could not have left my college career any better. That last season, to go out 14-0, and then have the opportunities that I had throughout the season, as well as in the national championship game, you can't ask or write it out better than that."

As they had already done eight times in the 2010 season, Auburn came from behind against Oregon to earn victory, none more dramatic than the 24-point deficit the Tigers overcame to win the Iron Bowl 28-27 in Tuscaloosa.

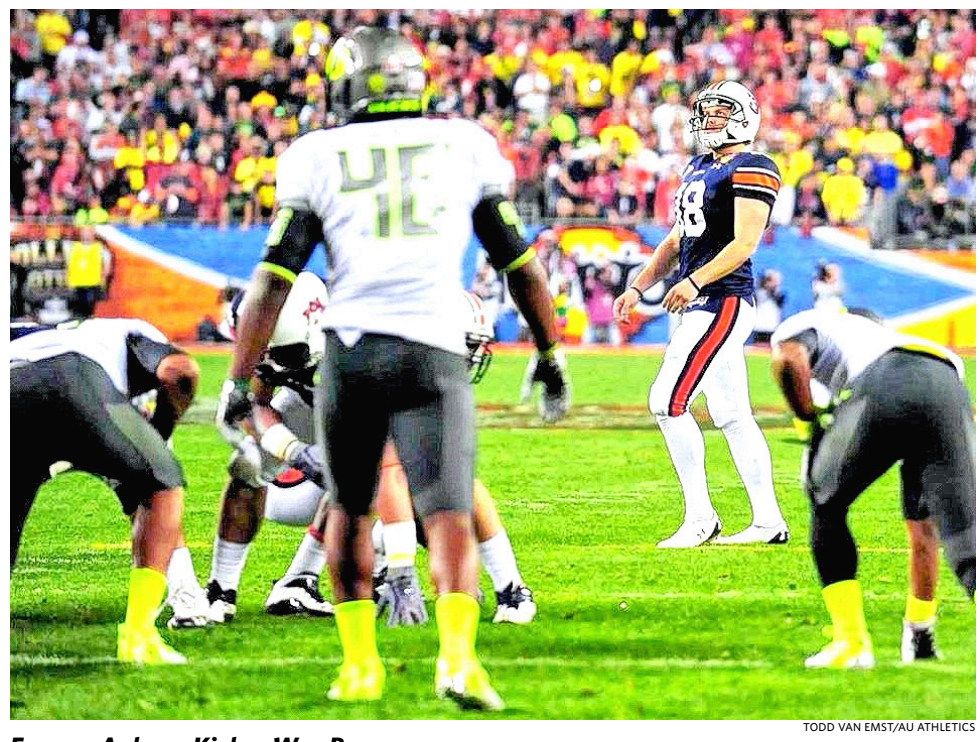

"There are just so many moments in a season like that," Byrum said.

"Even being down three touchdowns, nobody was panicking. There was no negative attitude on the sideline. There was no blaming people for anything.

"You weren't seeing people throwing a helmet, cursing or yelling about anything, things you would expect when you're having a season that we were having and then to come in and be down that many points. Everybody's attitude was just, let's get to work.

"I'm a firm believer that any team that gets to the national championship, regardless of how good or who the players are, there are certain things that have to happen. There is an aspect of things going your way, too.

"It's just amazing to look back at a season like that and see that we were able to come out of every game and find a way to win each time."

TODD VAN EMST/AU ATHLETICS

Former Auburn Kicker Wes Byrum

After The Kick, Byrum worked in pharmaceutical sales for two years, then graduated with honors from law school at Nova Southeastern University in Fort Lauderdale, Florida, in 2017, never intending to practice criminal law. Participating in mock trials against students from other law schools brought back Byrum's competitive streak. "I absolutely loved it," he said.

An assistant prosecutor for the Office of the State Attorney in South Florida's Broward County, Byrum still competes, albeit in a different arena.

"You're dealing with peoples' lives, there are constitutional issues, it's a much more serious form of competitiveness in a sense," he said.

"You're dealing with somebody possibly going to jail or not, so that part is definitely different, but I do absolutely love being in the courtroom in trial and doing that whole aspect."

In the second year of a three-year commitment, Byrum is uncertain of his next career move.

"I'm learning a lot," he said. "Getting a lot of experience."

Before his senior season of high school, Byrum made another commitment while he and his parents spent the summer visiting colleges. "When I went on my visit to Auburn, it just clicked" he said. "There's something about the town, there's something about the people, just the whole atmosphere.

"After the second day I was there, I looked over at my parents and said, 'I'm ready to make my decision. I really can't see myself going anywhere else.'"

Byrum committed to the Tigers on the spot, not knowing that decision would lead him five years later to a treasured place in Auburn history with one kick.

"Auburn is unlike any other place," he said. "If I had the opportunity to go through the process again, it would be Auburn hand over fist.

"I absolutely love the school, the community and the place as a whole. Even though I'm not there, I still rep and show Auburn love."

Tiger trio tabbed All-America by Collegiate Baseball

auburntigers.com

AUBURN, Ala. – Auburn baseball standouts Tanner Burns, Ryan Bliss and Rankin Woley have been tabbed Collegiate Baseball All-Americans following the shortened 2020 season, the publication announced Tuesday.

Burns earned second-team honors while Bliss and Woley were named to the third team. Burns was also tabbed a Third Team All-American by Perfect Game/Rawlings a season ago and becomes the third Auburn player to be named a two-time All-American, joining Gregg Olson (1987-88) and Casey Mize (2017-18).

A native of Decatur, Alabama, Burns posted a 3-1 record with a 2.42 ERA and led the Tigers while ranking tied for eighth in the Southeastern Conference with 32 strikeouts in 22.1 innings pitched. In what will likely be his final start in an Auburn uniform, the junior right-hander pitched 7.0 scoreless innings and allowed one hit with a season-high 10 strikeouts vs. Chicago State on Mar. 6.

Bliss ranked second in the SEC and sixth in the country in hits (29) while also appearing in the top 10 in the league in runs (21), doubles (seven), triples (two) and total bases (46). Making the move from second base to shortstop prior to the season, the LaGrange, Georgia, native started in all 18 games at the position and didn't commit an error in 58 chances. He was also a threat on the base paths as he tied for the team lead with five stolen bases.

Woley, who has also been named CoSIDA Academic All-District and both the Auburn and SEC Scholar-Athlete of the Year, tied for the team lead and ranked tied for eighth in the SEC with a .412 average. He also ranked in the top 10 in the league in hits (28), doubles (eight), RBI (22) and total bases (42) and was the lone player in the NCAA to rank in the top 20 in hits, doubles and RBI. Like Bliss, he made the move across the diamond from first to third and started in all 18 games.

All hats in the ring: Colony mayor, council members announce re-election bids

craig@cullmantribune.com

COLONY, Ala. – During their regular meeting Tuesday evening, Colony Mayor Donnis Leeth and all four members of the Colony Town Council declared their intentions to run for re-election in the Aug. 25, 2020 Municipal Election. Town Clerk Patricia Ponder made sure that each official had the necessary candidate registration packet, and the group discussed the schedule and deadline for qualification.

Leeth has taken pride in bringing a Dollar General to the community, a major piece of his first administration's platform, and he stated that his second term will see a Jack's restaurant come to the area. He expressed confidence that he will get the chance.

After the meeting, Leeth told The Tribune, "I'm running again for the mayor of the Town of Colony.

"I don't know if there's opposition or not, but whoever it is, I'm mighty satisfied that I'm going to beat them, bad! Wasting your time running against me down in the Colony, because I love them, they love me, and I'm doing everything for them I can, and still going to do something for them."

Council business

During the council's work session, Councilman Melvin Hammond said water system repairs in the gym have been completed except for one fixture. Once that is done, the building will need to be cleaned, and Hammond reported that some local residents have volunteered to help with the cleanup in order to get the gym open as soon as possible.

Leeth and Hammond discussed the need for kids to behave themselves at the gym. Hammond said he would draw up rules, and stated he would close the gym again if rules were not followed.

Bathroom repairs have been made at the library, but a leak remains.

Hammond contacted a company to come and locate the leak so the last needed repairs at the library can be completed and the facility reopened.

Councilwoman Ethel Alexander told the council she was pleased with census efforts during door-to-door visits last week that resulted in around 25 households being added to the town's list of completed census reports. She is continuing to work on the census.

Leeth shared that the Town has received a 50-inch television it will give away in a drawing from names of Colony residents who have completed their census forms. He hopes the raffle will encourage even more participation.

Colony's census response rate is currently 57.4%, within 1% of the state rate.

Alexander also said she is trying to come up with a plan for engaging children in educational activities through the summer break.

The council heard from a local resident who hopes to purchase a parcel of Town land adjoining his own property. The council took no action and will look into the matter further at a future meeting.

The Colony Town Council meets for a work session at 5 p.m. the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month at Colony Town Hall, with the council meeting following. The public is invited to attend.

FAIRVIEW, Ala. – The COVID-19 pandemic has affected many businesses, big and small. Many big box "essential" stores have relied on delivery and curbside pick-up options, along with continued in-store service, for customers, but how have the local small grocers fared?

In Fairview, Hopper's Family Market and Pharmacy Co-Owner Jimmie Hopper said it's been rough, but good.

"It's been rough, my husband (Mike Hopper) has had to go to different vendors to try and get supplies and things we need to keep the meat going and keep it where we need it to be," she said.

"We've really had to call our grocer company and we're struggling to get things back on the shelf. We've been pretty well and kept it going except for two days, and that's when the governor made her announcement and we were wiped out. Other than that, we've been, I think our coworkers have really pulled together, worked hard, and you know, we've tried."

She continued, "It's been a big increase (in business) to the point where, my husband and I come in every morning at 6:30 a.m. We didn't leave until 8 because I would not leave the rest of our coworkers here. I ran register, trying to keep up.

"Every time I looked up, the line seemed like it got longer and longer. We're just trying to all pull together and work really hard and do what we need to do."

Hopper said the store is following the new health guidelines.

"We try to do our best," she said. "We have signage up telling customers to stay 6 feet apart; we clean and wipe everything down continuously. Our employees wear gloves. That's a requirement on our employees up front. Now, some of them choose not to. They have the choice to wear a mask and a face shield; that's up to them. I have some that do and some that go, 'No, I'm not wearing them.' We just try to distance ourselves from customers. We've had a lot of customers phoning in and we take (their groceries) to their vehicle for them. We're just trying to do everything we need to do to protect them."

Hopper praised her staff.

"I personally appreciate everybody that works here like I said they've all pulled together, worked hard, and I feel like we've gained some customers through this who were not aware of us as much until now," she smiled. "We've kept our shelves stocked pretty well. Thankfully, we were able to stay open."

Hopper's is located at 7467 Alabama Highway 69 N, Cullman, Alabama 35058.

Seniors (from Front)

time to "spruce things up a bit," according to Baker.

"We've totally painted some centers and new countertops. Just trying to make things better than it was before. We are being productive with our time, too.

"This is an opportunity to get a lot of things done," he said. "When we are able to open back up, Crane Hill's new center, we are going straight into that. It's ready to go."

Groundbreaking for the new Hanceville senior center will take place Friday morning.

Baker worries about the seniors the Commission on Aging serves and how being isolated at home is affecting them.

He said, "Anything we can do to promote being active, that's what we want to do. We are working with Wallace (State Community College) where we are trying to- they are struggling for clinical hours right now because all the nursing homes are closed- we are hoping that once we are able to open back up, we can get someone up here to do an exercise program with them. They can rotate and still get their clinical hours. We could be a clinical site for Wallace, and that's something we are working on that will help all of us- them and Wallace."

Baker also reflected on seniors who have passed away since the centers have been closed.

"It's just heartbreaking," he said. "One that stands out in my mind is Ms. Mildred from Fairview. She was a pistol, too. Unfortunately, over the past five years that I've been here, that's one of the heartbreaking things. You become such good friends with these seniors and then they pass on. It kind of gives us the motivation we need to keep on celebrating each other, especially our seniors, and promoting them the best we can."

He continued, "I could listen to them all day long. I love to come in, and they'll tell me, 'Back when I was your age I was doing this and this.' Especially the old war stories and stuff like that because of me serving in the military and them; it's a common bond we have. We are in the same brotherhood even though we are generations apart."

Baker said he would like to see the centers open back up and the seniors being able to decide for themselves.

"Getting out and being with their friends, fellowshipping over a meal or whatever, that keeps them young and keeps them going. I wish there was more that we could do to address that and make it happen as soon as we can," he said.

"I just hate that we are having to sit here and wait. I understand the precautions we need to take, and they are necessary, absolutely. At the same time, it goes back to freedom of choice for me. Let them do what they want to do. We are at where we are today because of what they have done. Let them make their own decision."

As the restrictions continue, the Commission on Aging is grateful to the businesses and individuals who have donated time, money and materials. It has been been able to make many improvements to each center because of this generosity.

The Commission does need help with delivering meals to the homebound. It is looking for volunteers who can help one to two hours a day delivering meals around Cullman County. Those interested in volunteering can call 256-734-1241 and speak to Kristy McCarn.

Jeffries (from Front)

craig@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN, Ala. – Justin Anthony Jeffries, 26, of Arab, who fled from Alabama to Oregon in April, was back in Cullman this week after being charged with two counts of sexual abuse of a child less than 12 years old, among other charges. This adds to an already-existing list of pending charges of sexual crimes against children. In the hearing this week, Jeffries' bond was revoked in earlier cases. Jeffries, looking much different this week than in his previous booking photos, has not been convicted of any crime against children.

Jeffries was arrested in November 2018 (Cullman District Court case 2018-180202) for sexual abuse of a child less than 12 years old: specifically, for subjecting a 6-year-old child to sexual contact in 2017. On Nov. 26, 2018 he was assigned a $15,000 unsecured bond, meaning he did not have to pay anything to be released, two months after Federal Judge Madeline Hughes Haikala issued an injunction against Cullman County Sheriff Matt Gentry, requiring the sheriff and local courts to issue unsecured bonds in all but a few cases.

Jeffries was formally indicted on Feb. 14, 2019, and the $15,000 unsecured bond was renewed.

Jeffries was arrested a second time a month later, in December 2018 (District Court case 2018-180283), for the sexual abuse of another child, this one age 5, between March and September 2018. He was again assigned a $15,000 unsecured bond which was renewed after his indictment in 2019.

One condition of Jeffries' bond was that he remain in Cullman County, but on April 20, 2020, authorities discovered he had moved to Oregon.

The following day, Cullman County Circuit Judge Martha Williams issued a warrant for his arrest.

Law enforcement agencies in Oregon located Jeffries and took him into custody, returning him to Cullman.

Jeffries' May 26 hearing added two more child sex abuse charges, plus others, involving two additional victims.

The arrest warrant issued May 13, 2020 by the District Court Magistrate set the bond for the new charges at $60,000, again unsecured, but documents filed after the hearing indicate that Jeffries was assigned a secured (requiring actual payment or surety) bond of $80,000 on each charge.

In all, Jeffries faces:

• Four counts of sexual abuse of a child less than 12 years old, alleging assaults against children ages 5, 6, 6 and 7. The crime is a Class B felony, and carries a sentence of up to 20 years per charge.

• One charge of sexual torture, the definition of which includes "burning, crushing, wounding, mutilating, or assaulting the sex organs or intimate parts of another person, with the intent to sexually torture, sexually abuse, or to gratify the sexual desire of either party." The crime is a Class A felony and carries a mandatory 10-year sentence and a maximum of up to 99 years.

• One charge of aggravated child abuse - The charge alleges repeated abuse, abuse in violation of a court order or abuse leading to serious injury. The crime is also a Class B felony.

• One charge of second-degree assault, a Class C felony with a sentence of up to 10 years.

Jeffries' co-defendant in the 2020 case, Amy Nicole Lovell, 29, of Remlap was arrested in Walker County in 2009 and charged with unlawful manufacture of a controlled substance and unlawful possession of drug paraphernalia.

She was also charged with endangering the welfare of a child in that case.

Lovell was released on a $10,000 surety (bail bondsman) bond. According to court records, the 2009 case is still open. The Tribune could not reach the Walker County Circuit Clerk's office for more information.

Lovell was charged with one count each of:

• Sexual abuse of a child less than 12 years old
• Sexual torture
• Aggravated child abuse
• Second-degree assault

Lovell has no previous history of violent or sexual crimes against children. She was released on an unsecured bond of $60,000 issued by the District Court Magistrate.
