CULLMAN, Ala. – On Sunday afternoon, a group of young people who, at times, numbered around 25, came to Depot Park to protest racism and the killing of George Floyd in Minnesota. Through the afternoon, they waved at passers-by and walked around the park carrying signs reading "Black Lives Matter," "I Can't Breathe," "Respect Existence or Expect Resistance," "Be the Change" and other slogans.

As the protesters gathered, rumors circulated on social media that the people behind the demonstration were among instigators of riots that damaged 30 businesses in Nashville Saturday.

In response, a group of counterprotesters, some openly armed, assembled at local businesses near the park, saying they would protect those properties from any effort at violence.

Cullman Police Chief Kenny Culpepper, who was on the scene throughout the afternoon, told The Tribune, "We've got a group of peaceful protesters here at the Depot Park, and I've talked to them; they're very peaceful.

"I've explained the proper procedures, and they said that they will go through that.

"We're trying to make sure that there's no issues with anybody else, though, that might be wanting to counter protest."

W.C. MANN/THE CULLMAN TRIBUNE

The entire event remained peaceful, under the watchful eye of the Cullman Police Department, supported by officers from the Hanceville » PAGE 3

Cullman man killed in I-65 wreck

Wendy Sack
wendy@cullmantribune.com

LIMESTONE COUNTY, Ala. – A Cullman man was killed Friday in a wreck on Interstate 65 in Limestone County.

Alabama State Troopers identified the victim as Joshua Lee Loyd, 23.

He was pronounced dead at the scene.

According to a media release, the crash happened at 1 a.m. May 29 near mile marker 351.

Troopers said Lloyd was in a 2012 Nissan Sentra that collided with a 2014 Kia Sorento traveling north in the southbound lanes of I-65.

Jeffrey Lynn Wilkerson, 58, of Florence, was driving the Kia.

Nothing further is available as Troopers continue to investigate.

Protesters (from Front)

Police Department. The CPD called in its tactical team, but neither the tactical officers nor supporting personnel from Hanceville had to be deployed.

The relative peace and quiet was broken only once, early in the afternoon, when protesters lined up along the edge of Second Avenue Northeast got into a shouting match with a handful of counterprotesters across the street.

When the counterprotesters crossed the street, Cullman Police moved in.

Chief Culpepper personally stood between the two sides in the street, sending the counter protesters back down to the Texaco station where they had assembled before ordering the protesters away from the street.

No violence occurred during the brief incident.

Cullman native Chasady Vandiver, spokesperson for the protesters, told The Tribune, "We were upset about everything that's going on, and we thought we'd bring it to Cullman.

"Change needs to be brought to Cullman.

"I didn't think as many people would come as they did today."

Across the street, Jonathan Bishop told The Tribune that his family owns the Texaco station facing Depot Park on Second Avenue, and said that he supported the protesters' right to demonstrate, but that he and the others gathered there would protect their property from the kind of violence that has been seen in other cities where protests turned into riots.

Gesturing toward the protesters, Bishop said, "All this is doing is bringing trouble to here; that's all it's doing. They said it's peaceful; it was peaceful in Hoover last night, and then it turned into mayhem.

"That's exactly what it's done.

"But what they're doing is, they're doing 'Black Lives Matter.' Where's the sign saying white lives matter? Cops are not targeting black people like they're saying.

"That's their exact words over there a while ago: cops are targeting them.

"That was one cop in a uniform; that is a certain individual.

"It's not the whole force, by no means.

"They want to bring it here because somebody wants to get online and say, 'Whose parents has told them never to stop in Cullman?' because of the past. But that's the past.

"I've got probably 40 or 50 black friends I love to death like a brother.

"But this is becoming stupid. See, them holding signs up like 'Black Lives Matter' is giving the people-the black community, which I don't have a problem with-a chance to say 'It's racism, it's racism.' It's not.

"Me, him, anybody doing anything wrong, when we resist arrest, we're going to be thrown to the ground. I mean, it's just the way it is.

"There's nothing wrong with protesting, but just doing 'Black Lives Matter;' it should be 'All Lives Matter,' is what it should be.

"Like I said, I don't have a problem with the black community, by no means.

"But this is just going to bring something bad here, is what it's going to do."

Vandiver said that the protesters have no specific plans for more demonstrations, but said, "If we're still needing to fight, then we're going to come out here and protest peacefully."

Launch (from Front)

ly-owned vehicle. The agency says of its "commercial crew" program:

"NASA identified a need for a crew transportation system and a broad set of requirements that would be necessary to ensure crew safety. In the case of commercial crew, the need centered around a safe, reliable and cost-effective means of getting humans to low-Earth orbit, including the International Space Station, and return safely to Earth.

"Interested companies are free to design in a way they think is best and are encouraged to apply their most efficient and effective manufacturing and business operating techniques. The companies own and operate their hardware and infrastructure. NASA's engineers and aerospace specialists work closely with the commercial companies, allowing for substantial insight into the development process and offering up expertise and available resources."

The mission, intended to test the capability of SpaceX vehicles to carry a human crew to space, is scheduled to take the crew to the International Space Station, docking Sunday, May 31. The astronauts will remain aboard the station with the current ISS crew for the next 30-90 days, before returning for an Atlantic Ocean splashdown reminiscent of the early Mercury, Gemini and Apollo programs.

The astronauts

The SpaceX vehicle carried two NASA astronauts: spacecraft commander Douglas "Doug" Hurley and joint operations commander Robert "Bob" Behnken.

From NASA:

"Douglas G. Hurley was selected as an astronaut in 2000. A veteran of two spaceflights, he was the pilot on STS-127 and STS-135. Hurley holds a Bachelor of Science in Civil Engineering from Tulane University.

"Before joining NASA, he was a fighter pilot and test pilot in the U.S. Marine Corps. Hurley is currently training for the Demo 2 flight of SpaceX's Crew-Dragon spacecraft, the first crewed flight for that vehicle.

"He and his crewmates are working closely with SpaceX to develop their new spacecraft systems, which will provide roundtrip crew transportation services to the International Space Station and, along with Boeing's Starliner, return the ability to launch humans into space from United States soil.

"Robert L. Behnken was selected as an astronaut by NASA in 2000 and is a veteran of two space shuttle flights. He is currently training for the Demo 2 flight of SpaceX's CrewDragon spacecraft, the first crewed flight for that vehicle. Behnken and his crewmate are working closely with SpaceX to develop their new spacecraft systems, which will provide roundtrip crew transportation services to the International Space Station and, along with Boeing's Starliner, return the ability to launch humans into space from United States soil. A native of Missouri, Behnken flew STS-123 in March 2008 and STS-130 in February 2010, logging more than 708 hours in space, and more than 37 hours during six spacewalks."

AUBURN, Ala. – Legendary Auburn football coach Pat Dye, who returned the program to national prominence in the 1980s, passed away Monday at the age of 80. Dye was Auburn's head coach from 1981-92 and its athletics director from 1981-91.

In his 12 seasons as head coach at Auburn, Dye led the Tigers to a 99-39-4 record and won four Southeastern Conference Championships in 1983, '87, '88 and '89. Auburn won 10 or more games four times, finished in the top 10 nationally five times, and won six bowl games.

Dye was instrumental in bringing the Iron Bowl to Auburn for the first time in 1989, a game which the Tigers won, 30-20, and is considered one of the most important events in the history of the program.

The playing surface at Jordan-Hare Stadium was named Pat Dye Field in his honor on Nov. 19, 2005 and he was inducted into the College Football Hall of Fame in December 2005.

Dye was a three-time SEC coach of the year in 1983, '87, and '89 and was national coach of the year in 1983.

In 19 years as a head coach, Dye posted a record of 153-62-5. He led East Carolina to six consecutive winning seasons from 1974-79, posting a 48-18-1 record and coached one season at Wyoming before being named Auburn's head coach. Dye began his coaching career at the University of Alabama where he was an assistant from 1965-73.

During his coaching tenure, he coached a Heisman Trophy winner in Bo Jackson (1985) and an Outland Trophy and Lombardi Award winner in Tracy Rocker (1988). Dye also coached 21 All-Americans, 71 All-SEC players and 48 academic All-SEC players.

As an athletic director, Dye carried Auburn's success on the football field to the entire athletic program, developing it into one of the nation's most respected.

A native of Blythe, Georgia, Patrick Fain Dye was born on Nov. 6, 1939, in Augusta, Georgia. He played high school football at Richmond Academy in Augusta where he was an all-state and All-American offensive lineman.

He played collegiately at the University of Georgia from 1957-60 where he was a two-time All-American and All-SEC performer in 1959-60. Dye was a two-way starter as a senior at offensive lineman and linebacker and won SEC Lineman of the Year that season.

Dye is survived by his four children, Pat Jr., Missy, Brett and Wanda, and nine grandchildren and his partner of 18 years, Nancy McDonald.

The Crooked Oaks Legacy Foundation (non-profit 501(3)(c)) has been established to honor Coach Dye, his legacy, and to continue his work and love of people, nature and the gardens he created at Crooked Oaks for everyone to enjoy. The foundation will also support the needs of qualifying students at Auburn University and Auburn University at Montgomery to further their education.

A memorial to honor Coach Dye will be held at a later date. Details will be announced once they have been confirmed.

STATEMENT ON COACH PAT DYE'S PASSING

Pat Dye, Jr.
"On behalf of our family, I want to thank all of the people from around the country who have offered their support and admiration for Dad these past several days. Dad would be honored and humbled to know about this overwhelming outreach. The world has lost a pretty good football coach and a great man. He was beloved, he touched so many lives and he will be missed by many, especially our family."

Allen Greene, Auburn Athletic Director
"For four decades, Coach Dye showed all of us what it looks like to be an Auburn person. His coaching exploits are well known, securing his induction into the College Football Hall of Fame. His skills as an administrator were equally formidable, resulting most notably in bringing the Iron Bowl to Jordan-Hare Stadium.

"Just like his football teams, Pat Dye the athletic director was tenacious, never backing down from a fight when he believed Auburn's good name and best interests demanded it. Thanks to his tenacity, I'll always treasure my first home Iron Bowl, celebrating victory on the field that bears his name.

AU ATHLETICS

Coach Pat Dye 1939-2020

"It's been a blessing to get to know Coach Dye in his retirement years in his role as a passionate supporter of all of Auburn Athletics. Ever the coach, I've witnessed him on countless occasions pouring into our student-athletes. In that sense, he never stopped being Coach Dye. On behalf of the Auburn Family, we extend our deepest condolences to the family of Patrick Fain Dye, whose love and loyalty for Auburn rendered a contribution we can never fully measure or repay."

Gus Malzahn, Auburn Head Football Coach
"Coach Dye was much more than a hall of fame coach and administrator at Auburn. He was an Auburn leader and visionary. He not only returned the football program back to national prominence during his tenure, but was a key figure in bringing the Iron Bowl to Auburn and made an impact on the university and in the community. He embodied what Auburn is about: hard work, toughness and a blue collar mentality.

Coach Dye's impact on Auburn is endless and will stand the test of time. He had a great and deep love for Auburn and he displayed that affinity daily. I'm very appreciative of his support and friendship through the years. It's a sad day. Coach Dye was a treasure and will be missed. My thoughts and prayers are with his family, his former players and coaches and the entire Auburn family."

David Housel, Auburn Athletic Director/Sports Information Director Emeritus
"People will talk about all of the games coach dye won, all of those champions and bowl games, but his greatest contribution, his legacy, is the difference he made in the lives of his players and the people who worked for him. I am one of them. He made a difference in my life.

He came to Auburn at a time when Auburn needed leadership and focus. He provided that leadership and focus and Auburn will be forever better because of him."

Hal Baird, Auburn Baseball Coach, 1985-2000
"Coach Dye was a mentor and a friend for 46 years. I was with him when he coached his first football game at East Carolina and his last game at Auburn. He was a giant of a man and touched hundreds if not thousands of people. Everyone that he touched would say the same thing, that his life was built on a core of values that he taught to his players, coaches and staff. It's a huge loss. He left an indelible impression on college football, on Auburn and really the entire country."

Justus Perry earns SEC Community Service Team honors

AUBURN, Ala. – Auburn senior first baseman Justus Perry has been named to the SEC Community Service Team, the league office announced Wednesday.

Despite balancing a demanding academic schedule as a double major in justice and law and Spanish on top of the demands of being a student-athlete, Perry set aside time once a week to give back to the Auburn community and has become one of the team's and university's standouts in community service.

Perry has had her hand in various projects, including facilitating Bingo at the Morningside Assisted Living Home, organizing and packaging clothing at the Big House Foundation and reading to students at Dean Road Elementary School.

One of her favorite projects has been assisting riders and working the stables at Storybook Farms.

A three-time SEC Honor Roll selection, Perry was the recipient of the 2020 Virgil Starks III Passion Award for her outstanding work in academics, community service, teamwork and personal growth.

She represented Auburn at the 2019 SEC Career Tour in Atlanta, and she was also selected to the CoSIDA Academic All-District Team earlier this month.

On the field, Perry is third in program history with 32 hit-by-pitches, and is one of the top defensive first basemen in the country with a career .989 fielding percentage.

She is a career .257 hitter with 11 home runs and 77 RBI.

Earlier this month, Perry and four other Auburn seniors announced that they would be returning for a fifth season of eligibility as granted by the NCAA due to the COVID-19 shortened season.

The SEC sponsors Community Service Teams for all 21 league-sponsored sports. The Community Service Team looks to highlight an athlete from each school who gives back to their community in superior service efforts.

Ivey authorizes activation of Alabama National Guard in response to violent protesters

MONTGOMERY, Ala. – Gov. Kay Ivey announced Monday she has given authorization to Adjutant General Sheryl Gordon with the Alabama National Guard to activate up to 1,000 guardsmen, should the need arise in response to violent protesters.

This action strictly serves as a preparedness measure, should local and state law enforcement need additional support.

Governor Ivey released the following statement:
"While there is no immediate need for us to deploy our Guard, I have given authorization to Adjutant General Sheryl Gordon to be on standby, should our local and state law enforcement need additional support.

"The Alabama National Guard stands ready to assist when peaceful protests become violent and dangerous to our public safety.

"I will always support the right of the people of Alabama to peacefully lift your voices in anger and frustration. However, we will not allow our cities to become a target for those, especially from other states, who choose to use violence and destruction to make their point.

Ivey issues statement in response to Sunday night Birmingham protests

MONTGOMERY, Ala. – Gov. Kay Ivey on Monday issued the following statement in response to the Birmingham protests:

"Like so many others throughout the country and around the world, I, too, was shocked and angered by the tragic actions that led to the senseless death of George Floyd last week in Minneapolis. It is a death that should have never happened, and it is a tragedy for which that too many people, especially African Americans, are all too familiar.

"Regretfully, the natural anger and frustration of Mr. Floyd's death has now spread to our state and what started out as peaceful protests in some of our cities yesterday afternoon turned ugly last night.

"While no state has a richer history than Alabama in terms of using peaceful protests to lead the country – and the world – to positive change, I agree with Alabama native, Congressman John Lewis, who this weekend said 'rioting, looting and burning is not the way.'

"Congressman Lewis marched alongside other Alabamians who would go on to become heroes of the movement. They were young, brave and determined. Many were beaten, arrested and jailed. But they all -- Rosa Parks, Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., Dr. Ralph David Abernathy, Rev. Fred Shuttlesworth, attorney and civil rights activist Fred Gray and others – led the fight for change in a peaceful way.

"I will always support the right of the people of Alabama to peacefully lift your voices in anger and frustration. After all, our great country was born out of the desire to be free and the desire for freedom has repeatedly led to making positive change for the betterment of society.

"However, we will not allow our cities to become a target for those, especially from other states, who choose to use violence and destruction to make their point. What I saw happen last night in Birmingham was unbecoming of all those who have worked to make Birmingham the great city it is. Going forward, this cannot be tolerated. State assets are available to any local government that makes the request. We will show respect to ourselves and to each other through this process."

OPINION

Evangelism, part 5

Tom Fillinger
Tribune Columnist

Today we continue our focus on reformation and renewal. Our focus is evangelism; what does and what does not meet the NT criteria for effective evangelism.

There are numerous causal factors in the precipitous decline of the church. Our focus has been on one of the primary causes – the unrelenting infatuation with numbers as the primary metric for success.

This has been exacerbated by the application of a flawed theology of the Doctrine of Anthropology, the Doctrine of Man. When there is error in the foundational principles in a theological construct all subsequent principles shaping ministry will be in error because of that flaw. The corruption multiplies. Churches are populated by people who are members, but they are unregenerate. They are yet in their sin.

In this series we provided evidence of the decline of the American church. We provided evidence of the glaring discrepancies between church membership and the number of active participants. We provided evidence of the initiation of the altar car in the revivalist activity of Finney. Prior to 1900, that practice was seldom employed. Driven by the frenzy of the focus on numbers Finney's practice grew rapidly and is now embraced by many churches. Yet, there is little if any willingness to modify this failed practice.

Making disciples must be a central initiative in the ministry of the local church and of each individual believer. That is the fundamental issue in the Great Commission. What we must do is God's work in harmony with the special revelation he has graciously given us in his word. Here are several passages of scripture that define the true condition of natural man.

John 6:44 "No one can come to me unless the Father who sent me draws him."

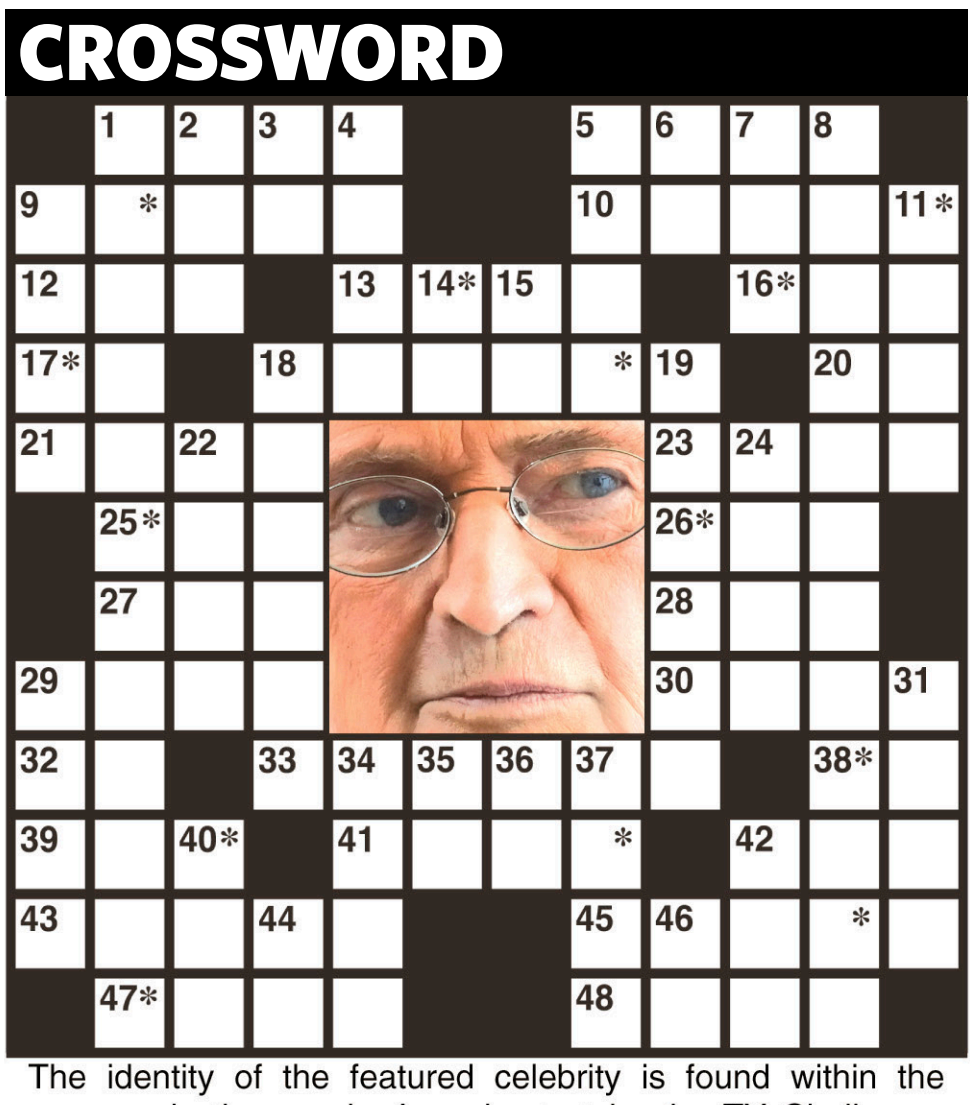

Romans 3:10-11 "As it is written: 'None is righteous, no, not one; no one understands; no one seeks for God.'"

A vital principle in orthodox ministry is that of regenerate church membership. The Doctrine of Man, Anthropology, must be correct in applying our disciple making initiatives. Telling a dead man he can believe based solely upon his "free will" results in sweeping unredeemed people into church membership. These folks are not enabled by the Holy Spirit. They bring corruption and conflict into ministry. This practice must be corrected if we expect to see the church function as God designed it to do.

Next, we will examine 14 consequences of the noetic effects of sin. This reveals how sin has corrupted the mind.

Alabama Lineman Appreciation Day: What to know about the job and the people who do it

Heather Mann

CULLMAN, Ala. – When the weather is hot and humid, we here in Alabama appreciate having a home or workplace full of cool dry air to escape the heat. When the frost covers the ground, we appreciate having working heaters and stoves to make a warm meal. On nice days we can watch TV and grab a cold beverage from the fridge, and during harsh weather we eagerly anticipate the moment when the lights come back on. For all of these situations, we owe our thanks to the electrical power-line workers who put their lives and comfort on the line so that we can live comfortably. Monday, June 1 was Alabama Lineman Appreciation Day.

Cullman Electric Cooperative Manager of Communications & External Affairs Brian Lacy said the holiday honors all the hard work and sacrifice made by the workers, saying, "Every day, they're working with something that could severely injure or kill them.

"It takes a lot of skill and training to do what they do, even on the nice days when it's sunny and there's not much wind."

He went on to say, "When the weather's at its worst and nobody wants to be outside, if the power goes out, then our linemen are the ones who answer the call.

"When all of us, the community, are in situations where we want to stay home with our families, our linemen are making the choice to leave their families in order to serve us."

In terms of celebrations, Lacy said the Co-op usually hangs a banner at the office for the community to come by and sign; however, due to all the restrictions that have been in place recently due to COVID-19, there were no public celebrations this year. Despite this, he said the Co-op treated its linemen to an ice cream surprise when they arrived back at the office.

A WBRC FOX 6 article recognizing National Lineman Appreciation Day (April 18) announced that Alabama power-line workers restored power to approximately 312,000 people after the Easter Sunday storms.

A review of the Bureau of Labor Statistics Census for Fatal Occupational Injuries (data as recent as 2018) showed that, based on the number of fatal injuries per 100,000 workers, power-line installation and repair was the no. 11 most dangerous job in America.

The detailed list and methodology behind the rankings can be found at https://247wallst.com/special-report/2020/01/21/25-most-dangerous-jobs-in-america-3/.

BLOUNTSVILLE, Ala. – Area summer favorite Spring Valley Beach Water Park opened for the season Saturday, with new rules in place due to COVID-19.

"Operational wise, it was great," said co-owner Travis Gilliland of opening weekend. "It went really smooth. People were respectful of everybody's personal space, as far as space goes out here. The park itself is really big: we have picnic tables scattered out from one end to the other, our pools are huge; there wasn't any issue with the pool."

Gilliland said the park was concerned about people lining up for the water slides, but said it went well.

"What we thought, going in, our only area of concern, really, were the lines for the slides," he said. "For the most part, people did well with that. We have little blue dots out that dictate where they should be waiting next, and as the day went on, people kind of reverted back to, I guess normalcy, and so we just had to gently remind some. We weren't over-crowded; I didn't think we would be, just because of everything that's going on. Opening weekend went about as we expected, but just to be honest, we were happy people came out to enjoy the day, because we had no idea what to expect."

Gilliland outlined some of the ways Spring Valley is looking out for its patrons.

"Everything is the same with our pools," he said. "We have hand sanitizer everywhere. We're checking our employees' temperatures every day- that's new. The social distancing dots and stickers we have out, that's new for us. We also have people out to remind people when they get bunched, you know, 'Watch your distance,' but like I said, people have been great with it. For our pools, all of our water is heavily chlorinated anyways; a normal pool operation, chlorination-wise, will take care of the situation. We didn't have to do anything special there, but we are paying attention and wiping down door knobs and hand rails, that type stuff. As far as some additional cleaning and social distancing stickers, everything else in operation is just about the same."

One big change is that the park is operating at half-capacity.

"We are operating at a 50% capacity," said Gilliland. "For us, we've had upwards 3,500 on a crazy busy day, so we're expecting 1,500 to 1,700 to be our half capacity, which would still be a lot of people. Everything we're doing is subject to how summer plays out. Aside from taking employees' temperatures, we're asking the general questions, like, 'Have you been in contact?' or, 'Are you exhibiting symptoms?' We do allow picnic lunches at the park; people can bring their own and not have to go through the concessions necessarily. There's plenty of space for them to spread out."

He continued, "We're thankful to be open. The way it's going, we didn't know just two weeks before opening day if we were going to be open or not. We had certainly hoped we would and prepared like we would be. We're just thankful for the summer and that we're open. We encourage that if you have crowd issues, come during the week, as far as not being crowded. Our busiest days are Friday, Saturday and Sunday."

Spring Valley Beach is located at 2340 County Highway 55, Blountsville, Alabama 35031. It is open seven days a week from 10 a.m.-6 p.m. Find out more at www.facebook.com/springvalleybeach or www.springvalleybeach.com.

CULLMAN, Ala. – In addition to community theater and a community band, Cullman is now home to its own ballet company. Cullman Civic Ballet, a joint venture between ballet instructor Brooke Desnoes and Cullman Parks, Recreation & Sports Tourism (CPRST) will premier this Saturday evening with a free performance of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" in Recognition Garden at Heritage Park.

Desnoes told The Tribune, "I had this idea that I would like to just maybe do something that would bring the community together for the spring, so I had the idea of doing 'A Midsummer Night's Dream,' just because it's such a fun, relaxed ballet- story, but we're doing the ballet version.

"We advertised that with Parks and Rec and we had a really big turnout for the first time.

"We originally were about 20 dancers, but after COVID, we're down to about 16. They came from not only Cullman County, but Morgan County, Jefferson County, Blount County.

"On Saturdays, we had dancers coming in from many different schools, and so I said to the Parks and Rec, 'You know, this is really a civic commitment. It's not just a school ballet; it's many schools coming together to work together towards something.

"We had the idea of calling it Cullman Civic Ballet. It seems to be something that we can pursue in the future."

Cullman Civic Ballet was not an intentionally created program for Desnoes or CPRST. According to Desnoes, "It just kind of happened; it wasn't really planned. It just kind of seemed to be filling a need for a lot of people, so it just kind of developed."

"A Midsummer Night's Dream" was originally scheduled as a spring show, but, as with many things, circumstances forced both a delay and a new approach.

Said Desnoes, "We were supposed to be doing it in Grace Community Church and the performance was originally for April, so that was right in the middle of the shutdown.

"I had the idea of taking it to the park, so we could all social distance: the audience can social distance, we can social distance.

"I kind of loved that idea, so I hope that we're able to do ballet in the park every year, maybe. Maybe we can even go to other parks!"

The troupe had been rehearsing for six weeks and was about two weeks from performance readiness when the COVID-19 shutdown began. Knowing that things were being put on hold, Desnoes had the troupe's last spring rehearsal video recorded, so her students could watch and continue to practice at home.

Desnoes said, "We've only been back together for two weeks, and I must say, at the end of the first week, they did an amazing job.

"Everything's learned, everything's set. We'll have a dress rehearsal, we'll have a stage rehearsal, and then I guess the audience will tell us what they think.

"But I'm feeling confident and really proud of all the dancers."

Ballerina Morgan Lane, who travels in from Falkville to rehearse, was happy to see the show back on, telling the Tribune, "I am excited about 'Midsummer Night's Dream' because we actually get to perform a performance, even during all of this craziness happening, and it's outdoors and it's midsummer. I'm very excited and proud of Ms. Brooke for putting it together. She's awesome!"

Lily Howze was especially taken with the costuming for the show at a recent fitting, saying, "I haven't been to a dress rehearsal, but finding all the costumes was really fun."

Howze said that she was challenged by "Trying to keep up with all of the variations during the quarantine, trying to remember your part."

Even though the last rehearsal was recorded, the dancers faced the task of reorganizing their presentation for an outside stage, and for social distancing among themselves on that stage.

Some things actually got easier, though. Howze's sister Annabelle Howze, the show's technical director, found her assignment list pared down substantially.

She noted, "There's no lighting, there's no microphones, so all we're going to have to do is play some music. All I should have to do is hit a button!"

Check back with The Tribune for pictures from the troupe's first dress rehearsal Tuesday, June 2.
