CCSO deputies train to respond alone to active shooters

W.C. MANN/THE CULLMAN TRIBUNE

Cullman County Sheriff's Office Resource Deputy Chad Whaley (assigned to Hanceville schools) takes aim at a target in the RAIDER live fire course at the CCSO's Dodge City range Thursday, June 18, 2020.

CULLMAN, Ala. – In 1999, two young men walked into Columbine High School in Colorado and began shooting students and teachers. The first officers to respond followed traditional training and waited outside for 30 minutes for SWAT teams to arrive, while the shooters had the building and student body to themselves.

In the last 21 years, that procedure has changed drastically. Law enforcement officers are now told to get into the fight as rapidly as possible, even if it means running into an active shooter situation alone. In a 2014 study of changing approaches, the Police Executive Research Forum stated the obvious: "A faster response is more dangerous to responding officers. Patrol officers who quickly move to confront an active shooter face a high likelihood of being shot themselves."

This week, school resource deputies and Special Response Team (SRT) members from the Cullman County Sheriff's Office (CCSO) are undergoing training in RAIDER response:

- Rapid deployment
- Awareness
- Intervention
- Decisiveness
- EMS
- Recovery

Chris and Julie Pattie operate the RAIDER Solo Engagement Training program.

On Thursday, Chris Pattie told The Tribune, "We've come to realize that not one (active shooter) incident has been solved by a multi-unit response, and we know that the first officer on the scene has to go in. We give this training to teach the officer how to use the infrastructure of the building, the way the mind and the body works and the movement to become their second person or, as we say, 'protect your six.'

"If you're going in by yourself, and you enter a room and turn left, and the bad guy's to the right, you get shot in the back, is the fallacy that people have. But when you look at the science behind it, you realize that the time it takes to see something, process it, rise up and take a shot actually gives you time to make that turn and then turn around and take a shot before he can shoot you in the back.

"What we do is we start from the basics and we teach movements, and we teach them the proper movements to set them up in a way that they can enter a room without showing any part of their body. Once they make the entry into the room, the only thing a bad guy sees is their head and their gun. So, while they're trying to process the officer coming in, it allows our officer the time to process the information and decide whether or not he needs to take a shot or keep moving, and then » PAGE 3

This Saturday: Back the Blue rally in Good Hope, Juneteenth Community Cookout in Hanceville

CULLMAN, Ala. – Two much talked about events will take place in Cullman County Saturday, June 20. The Back the Blue Rally will be held in Good Hope and the Juneteenth Community Cookout will be happening at Veterans Park in Hanceville.

The newly-formed group Committee for a Better Cullman is hosting the Hanceville event. Juneteenth is a holiday that marks the day the last slaves in Texas were freed, June 19, 1865, more than two years after the Emancipation Proclamation was issued. The cookout will be held at Veterans Park from 3-6 p.m.

The group said in a statement, "This event will be a traditional celebratory cookout, comparable to celebrations of other American holidays like Labor Day and 4th of July. We will be grilling food, eating fruit and playing music. We will have popsicles and water guns for the many children who will be in attendance. We will be honoring historical black leaders Fred Hampton, Alabama native Angela Davis, and Martin Luther King, Jr. by listening to some of their more notable and relevant speeches. We will be offering community members a chance to voice their insights and concerns of the community, as well as ideas they have for improvements. This will be a fun, productive, family friendly event and we welcome all those from the community who honor black lives and critical thinking."

Free food (including some vegan-friendly options) will be available. The event was originally scheduled to be at C.W. Day Park, but was moved to Veterans Park because of previously planned youth sports activities and the opening of the Hanceville pool at C.W. Day. The larger venue at Veterans Park will allow for better social distancing practices. Masks are encouraged.

Bob's Fireworks Super Store will be holding the Back the Blue Rally to show support for law enforcement officers and their families. This will take place from 2-6 p.m. in front of the store (located at 1670 County Road 437).

Hoglam said this was something he has been planning for a while.

"I called in some favors to get the food, and I waited to make the announcement until I got the artwork done," he stated. "Our police officers have been treated as villains for so long all over the country. I know that there's some bad officers out there, but right now the police need our support more than ever."

Officers and their families will be provided with free meals of barbecue, baked beans, chips and drinks. Attendees who act fast enough can receive a thin blue line flag (Hoglam said he only has a limited supply to give out), and there may be a few inflatables for the kids to enjoy.

2-part CCSO Firearms Safety Class July 7, 11

wendy@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN, Ala. – The Cullman County Sheriff's Office (CCSO) will host a two-part Citizens' Firearms Safety Class in July. The classroom portion of the event will take place Tuesday, July 7 at 6 p.m. at Temple Baptist Church, with the live-fire portion the following Saturday, July 11 at 8 a.m. at the CCSO range.

The class will focus on safe weapon handling, proper shooting technique, cleaning a weapon and getting familiar with a weapon. A PowerPoint presentation will be shown as well. Citizens who attend the classroom portion of the event will be given the opportunity that night to sign up for the live-fire portion.

"We have had many people call and come by the office the last couple weeks and ask about having a class. We at the Cullman County Sheriff's Office are advocates of our citizens having the knowledge and training they need to protect themselves," said Sheriff Matt Gentry. " I would add that we want them to also know how to handle the weapon safely, and with this free training they are able to gain valuable knowledge in both these areas."

To register, email Deputy Bradley Williams at bwilliams@cullmansheriff.org or call 256-734-0342.

Registration is not required, but it is encouraged so the CCSO has an idea how big the classes will be.

Note: Do NOT bring a gun or ammo Tuesday, July 7. This is a classroom portion-only class.

Wendy Sack

CULLMAN, Ala. – Gwen Parker on Thursday announced her candidacy for Cullman City Council, place 3. Parker will face incumbent Johnny Cook in the Aug. 25, 2020 Municipal Election.

Below is Parker's announcement:
Gwen Parker, the senior vice president at People's Bank of Alabama, has announced her candidacy for Cullman City Council Place 3.

Currently, Gwen oversees operations at 27 branches and is over Branch Administration as well as Bank Security & Facilities Management. She has been involved in several remodels and building projects in her time at Peoples Bank of Alabama.

Gwen is a graduate of Alabama Banking School and attended the School of Marketing at LSU. Her pride and joy is her involvement and development of her family—both her immediate and banking family.

She considers those she works with to be family and is invested in their growth and success.

Parker was the first female state president of the Alabama Elks Association as well as the first female state president in the United States. One of her achievements includes the 2009 honor by President George W. Bush for the President's Call to Service Award for Service and Civic Participation.

Big challenges (lie) ahead when it comes to promoting honesty and integrity within our city government and Gwen Parker has the experience, strength, and energy to keep her commitment to honesty and integrity while serving Cullman.

She would like to see changes to city hiring practices as well as board transparency.

Other issues she would like to be involved in include improvements in infrastructure including schools, roads, utilities ((e.g.) Duck River Project) as well as the support of our small businesses.

Her deep concern for her community has won her a long list of civic engagements, and her knack for developing strong professional and civic relationships cannot be overlooked.

CONTRIBUTED

Gwen knows that fundamental organizational change is a team effort. Gwen can clearly communicate with a team who wants changes in our local government and work in a group as a leader to form lasting relationships. She is proud to bring her many decades of experience and concern for her community to the Cullman City Council.

Deputies (from Front)

carry on with what he's doing in clearing the room.

After class instruction, deputies faced off against each other in simulated active shooter scenarios at Good Hope Middle School with Airsoft guns, giving them the opportunity to put their newly-learned tactics into practice in situations as close to real world as possible while remaining safe. Wednesday and Thursday, deputies ran courses at the CCSO's Dodge City firing range using live weapons, moving down hallways and into rooms, distinguishing between bad guys and bystanders and engaging their targets amid all the noise, smoke and smell of a real-world armed encounter.

Pattie noted, "We tell you how it works, we show you how it works, and then, through force-on-force training, we prove it to you that it works. Then you end up leaving with the mindset, the training and the ability to go into a structure when something happens and start dealing with the threat, and hopefully end the situation."

The program has received positive feedback from the law enforcement community across the country, including multiple graduates who credit RAIDER with saving their lives in shootings.

While no graduate has yet had to respond to a school shooting, Pattie reported, "It was the mindset that the officer got after going through the program, the training they got, driving into a gunfight and being successful, it was that training- week-long tactics training- that set up the mindset that gave the ability that they felt that the armed encounter that they went into, this training's what saved their life."

According to Cullman County Sheriff Matt Gentry, the resource deputies who are taking the course this week are also being trained for certification as RAIDER instructors, so they will be able to equip the CCSO's other deputies to respond to shooting emergencies in the same way.

Gentry told The Tribune, "The RAIDER course, for us, holds great value because, as deputy sheriffs, we're spread out by ourselves throughout Cullman County. The course is designed to teach law enforcement how to handle situations by themselves tactically. This comes into great play for us at the sheriff's office because of the distance between each other the deputies have to work. Our school resource deputies, since we have 11 in the schools, a lot of times they will be by themselves in a situation, if you have to deal with an active shooter and be the primary aggressor- as far as law enforcement go(es)- there, dealing with an active shooter at a school.

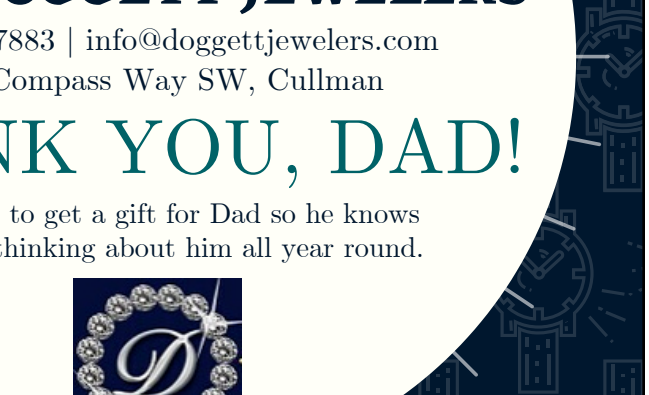

"The protection of our children is our most valuable resource that we have in the community, and we want to ensure that they have all the training necessary to be able to protect that valuable resource."

Pattie said of the CCSO resource deputies, "These guys are hard chargers. They have worked extremely hard, especially with the heat. There was very little time that I turned around and saw them sitting around; they were constantly using the stuff that we set up back here to get better, and it shows. When they go through the 'house,' it shows.

"I'm dealing with guys that have a lot of experience and a lot of training, and some of these guys have a lot of tactical training. Usually that fights us, because this is a solo officer entry thing; it's not a team tactic, and team tactics versus solo are completely different. When you get a tactical guy who's been on a SWAT team for as long as he has, it's hard for him to set aside his tactical training to learn the solo stuff, because some of the stuff we do in solo is completely against what you do in team. But the reason you do it is because you don't have somebody- a number two- that's going to watch your back, so now you have to utilize the infrastructure of the building, the movement and the normal reaction time of a human being to now be your number two person.

"These guys- I mean I've got some highly tactical trained guys that have set that stuff aside to really learn this program. They've taken off; they've excelled. It's been a blast to teach these guys... the facility, the schools available to us to use. Quite honestly, I hope I come back."

Auburn's Greg Carr listed on 2021 CFB Hall of Fame ballot

Greg Ostendorf
AU Athletics

AUBURN, Ala. – Former Auburn linebacker Greg Carr is one of 78 players from the FBS to make the 2021 ballot for induction into the College Football Hall of Fame, which was released Tuesday by the National Football Foundation (NFF) and College Hall of Fame.

Carr, who played for Auburn from 1981 to 1984, twice led the team in tackles and ranks second in program history with 453 career tackles. A three-time First Team All-SEC selection, he helped the Tigers capture the 1983 SEC championship and won all three bowl games he played in under head coach Pat Dye.

"When I think back about any success I have, I think back to Coach Dye, who instilled in us a confidence and a recipe for success," Carr said.

"He basically gave us a blueprint - for those guys who were willing to listen - a blueprint for being able to be successful. And, it wasn't complicated. It was hard work, setting goals and working hard to achieve those goals."

In 1984, his final season on the Plains, Carr was the SEC's most decorated athlete.

He was a consensus First Team All-American, the SEC's Lineman of the Year, a National Football Foundation Scholar-Athlete and a Lombardi Award nominee. Following that season, he was drafted in the sixth round, pick No. 160, by the Pittsburgh Steelers in the 1985 NFL draft. He played four seasons with the Steelers (1985-88).

Carr was later inducted into the Alabama Sports Hall of Fame in 2008 and represented Auburn on the 2010 SEC Legends class. This is his third appearance on the College Football Hall of Fame ballot (2018, 2020).

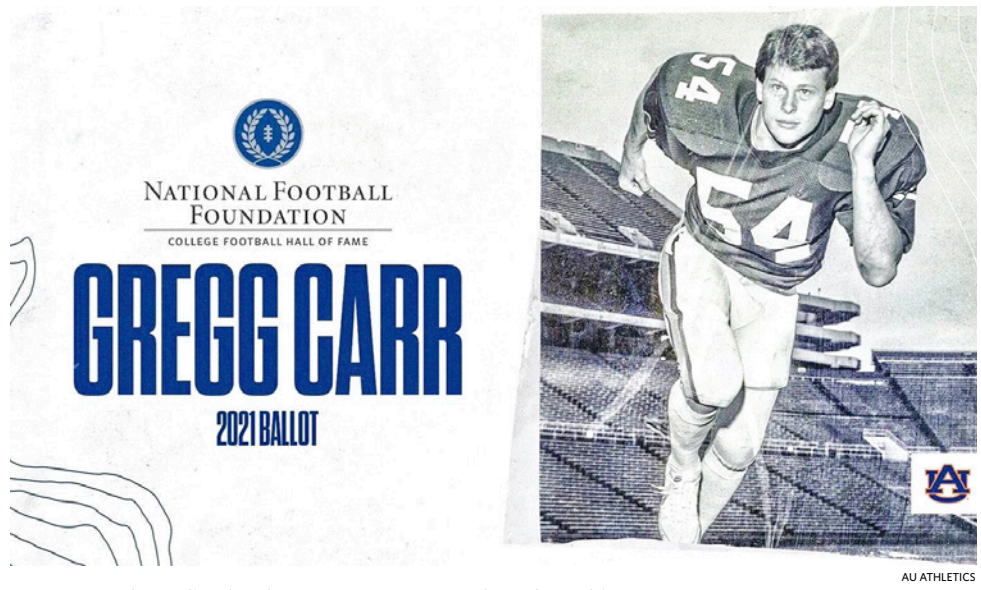

"It's an enormous honor to just be on the College Football Hall of Fame ballot considering more than 5.4 million people have played college football and only 1,027 players have been inducted," said NFF President & CEO Steve Hatchell.

"The Hall's requirement of being a First-Team All-American creates a much smaller pool of about 1,500 individuals who are even eligible. Being in today's elite group means an individual is truly among the greatest to have ever played the game, and we look forward to announcing the 2021 College Football Hall of Fame Class Presented by ETT early next year."

The 2021 ballot also includes former Auburn quarterback and assistant coach Larry Blakeney, who is nominated as the head coach at Troy where he remains the all-time winningest coach in Sun Belt history.

The ballot was emailed Tuesday to the more than 12,000 NFF members and current Hall of Famers whose votes will be tabulated and submitted to the NFF's Honors Courts, which will deliberate and select the class. The FBS Honors Court, chaired by NFF Board Member and College Football Hall of Famer Archie Griffin from Ohio State, and the Division-al Honors Court, chaired by former Marshall head coach, longtime athletics director and NFF Board Member Jack Lengyel, include an elite and geographically diverse pool of athletic administrators, Hall of Famers and members of the media.

The announcement of the 2021 College Football Hall of Fame Class Presented by ETT will be made in early 2021, with specific details to be announced in the future.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. – Alabama and Ohio State announced a home-and-home football series between the two programs for the 2027 and 2028 seasons on Thursday.

"This series with Ohio State adds another outstanding non-conference opponent to our future football schedules," said Alabama Director of Athletics Greg Byrne. "We are thrilled at the progress we've made in securing such quality home-and-homes that will provide tremendous opportunities for our team and an exciting game day atmosphere for our fans in the coming years."

The first game will take place in Columbus on Sept. 18, 2027, with the Buckeyes coming to Tuscaloosa on Sept. 9, 2028. It is the first home-and-home meeting between OSU and Alabama.

"The addition of Ohio State to our future non-conference schedule shows the commitment our program and administration has to creating the best possible games for our players and fans," Alabama head football coach Nick Saban said. "I have coached a lot of years in the SEC and Big 10 and Bryant-Denny Stadium and Ohio Stadium are two of the very best environments in college football. Non-conference series like Alabama-Ohio State are so important to the health of college football, and we are very pleased that we could get this series completed."

Alabama and Ohio State have met on four previous occasions, all in neutral sites games. The first meeting came in the 1978 Sugar Bowl, which the Tide won 35-6. The two teams then opened the 1986 season at the Kickoff Classic at Giants Stadium in East Rutherford, N.J., with a 16-10 Alabama win. The Crimson Tide won the 1995 Citrus Bowl (24-17), while OSU was victorious in the 2015 Sugar Bowl (42-35).

With the addition of Ohio State, Alabama has added 10 home-and-home series to future schedules recently, including: Texas (2022 & 2023), Wisconsin (2024 & 2025), Florida State (2025 & 2026), West Virginia (2026 & 2027), Notre Dame (2028 & 2029), Georgia Tech (2030 & 2031), Oklahoma (2032 & 2033), Arizona (2032 & 2033) and Virginia Tech (2034 & 2035). The Crimson Tide also has a 2-for-1 home-and-home series with South Florida (2023, 2024 & 2026). Along with playing Ohio State in 2027 and 2028, Alabama will also host West Virginia during the 2027 season and travel to South Bend, Ind., to play Notre Dame in 2028. Alabama opens the 2020 season with a neutral site game against Southern California on Sept. 5 and then travels to Atlanta in 2021 to face Miami (Fla.).

CHRISTY PERRY/THE CULLMAN TRIBUNE

Mr. Thurman Ryan, or "Old Man" Ryan as he prefers, celebrated his 94th birthday Thursday afternoon with a large group of friends gathered at the Cullman Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 2214. He was joined by members of the VFW post, friends and Cullman Mayor Woody Jacobs.

Ryan served in the Navy during World War II on board the USS Wisconsin, which earned five battle stars.

Ryan enlisted in the Navy in June 1944, when he was just 18 years old, and boarded the USS Wisconsin in November 1944 at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii. The ship joined the 3rd Fleet in the Philippines in December 1944 and take part in the last five Pacific campaigns.

Movie: Bully. Coward. Victim. The Story of Roy Cohn

Ivy Meeropol's unflinching documentary looks back at the infamous attorney who prosecuted the filmmaker's grandparents, Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, and later argued successfully for their execution, events that playwright Tony Kushner incorporated into his epic drama "Angels in America." The film chronicles the life of Cohn from his work as chief counsel to Sen. Joseph McCarthy in the late 1950s through the 1980s, when he became a darling of the Reagan White House, eventually becoming a political mentor to future President Donald J. Trump.

Great Performances

Emmy-winning actress Holland Taylor both wrote and stars in "Ann," a funny, insightful and ultimately poignant stage portrait of Ann Richards, the feisty governor of Texas from 1991-95. Noted for her merciless wit — she once cracked that political rival George W. Bush "was born with a silver foot in his mouth" — Richards also was a formidable firebrand among power players in the Democratic Party. The play also candidly addresses Richards' battle with alcoholism as she rose to power.

Sprout (from Front)

CULLMAN, Ala. – The Cullman Electric Cooperative on Thursday announced big news for its customers: the launch of Sprout Fiber Internet. The need for internet access in rural areas of Cullman County has been a pressing issue, one that has been championed by Rep. Randall Shedd, R-Fairview and other members of Cullman County's legislative delegation, all of whom were on-hand to celebrate the news Thursday morning.

Last year, Shedd sponsored House Bill 400, which, according to him, "authorizes electricity providers to use their existing and future power lines, rights-of-way and infrastructure to partner with companies to provide or expand broadband/telecommunications services or actually be in the business themselves." The Broadband Using Electric Easements Accessibility Act was signed into law by Gov. Kay Ivey in 2019.

Shedd is excited about Thursday morning's announcement.

"It's a game changer for our area! Today's announcement is the beginning of eventually everyone having access to high speed internet. It won't happen overnight, but this the quickest way to get it to everyone, and in fact the only way a lot of people in rural areas can get high speed internet," he said. "I appreciate Tim Culpepper and his team and Cullman Electric's board having the vision and courage to invest in our area's future. When rural Alabama has high-speed internet, rural Alabama can have business and commerce!"

Senator Garlan Gudger, R-Cullman took a few moments to speak at Thursday's presentation, crediting the people within the co-op for helping to make this happen.

"People always ask me what makes the north-central region of Alabama special and there's a lot of answers there, but when it really filters through the fire and comes out the other side the answer is the people. This project is a perfect example of that," Gudger said. "The people just like Tim Culpepper, the board of directors, the administration staff and everyone that works here at the co-op have been able to have a vision of what they wanted and how they could help people throughout this region. By doing that, they're making a difference and making it better for everyone that lives in this community."

Rep. Scott Stadthagen, R-Hartselle was in attendance as well and used most of his time at the podium to recognize Shedd for the time and effort he has put into championing rural broadband access.

"I don't know Rep. Shedd's exact age," Stadthagen joked, "but I will tell you this, he fought for rural Alabama for 3.5 hours in a row (on the House floor), and I'm not saying just standing there, people were coming after him hard. So, I learned when you believe in something, you go after it and stand firm for as long as it takes. So, thank you Rep. Shedd for what you've done and thank you to Cullman County. I'm just glad to be a part of it."

Cullman Electric Cooperative CEO Tim Culpepper said as Sprout Fiber Internet grows, it will help close the digital divide that prevents rural communities from reaching their full potential.

"Cullman Electric Cooperative has always been focused on serving our members, and Sprout Fiber Internet will be a key factor in helping the people, the businesses and the communities we serve grow now and into the future," Culpepper said.

The co-op has started building a fiber network that will connect all of its substations and offices to further enhance the quality of its electrical service. In the process, Sprout Fiber Internet will make gigabit speed internet access available to more than 12,000 co-op members.

Construction on phase 1 started this month and should be complete in 12 to 18 months. If the first phase is successful, future phases will be designed and built with the ultimate goal of making Sprout Fiber Internet available to every co-op member.

"This is an incredible opportunity for Cullman Electric and our members," Culpepper said. "With a fiber connection in place, we will improve even further on the quality electric service our members have already come to expect. It will cut down outage response times significantly and lay the foundation for us to take advantage of cutting-edge technology in the future."

Sprout Fiber Internet will offer Cullman Electric members upload and download speed starting at 300 Mbps and going as high as a gigabit per second. Cooperative members are encouraged to take an online speed test at www.speedtest.net to check their current internet speed and learn how much of a difference Sprout Fiber Internet can make for their home or business.

"Sprout Fiber is an important project, and all of us on the board are very excited to see it come to fruition," said Robert Tidwell, chairperson of the co-op's board of trustees.

U.S. Rep. Robert Aderholt, R-Alabama could not be at Thursday's presentation in person, but did send a video message: "Good morning everybody. To all the folks at Cullman Electric Co-op I just want to say congratulations on a great accomplishment in implementing Phase 1 of your fiber project.

"This is a great step forward for rural broadband in Alabama and in our area. I'm so glad we have local organizations working to make broadband a reality, not only for our area but for the state.

"As we all know we've really come to know two different Americas. There is the America that has broadband access, and those that do not, and really this is unacceptable.

"Just because you live in a rural area doesn't mean that you shouldn't have access to broadband. So we want to make sure we have access to high quality, high speed broadband all across America in big cities and large.

"This has been one of my top priorities that I've worked on in the last few years in Congress, and it's encouraging to know that people are working on this at the local level, the state level and certainly at the federal level. And that is why this Phase 1 project is so important to moving rural Alabama forward. So again, thanks for all that you do, keep up the good work, and I look forward to working with you to make broadband available throughout the state."

Listed below are some frequently asked questions that can also be found at www.cullmanec.com/sprout.

What is Sprout?
Sprout Fiber Internet is the name of Cullman Electric Cooperative's high-speed fiber internet service.

Why are we doing this?
By connecting our substations and office with fiber optic cable, we will create a smarter grid that will provide us with more automation capabilities, ultimately increasing the reliability of our electric service to members. This endeavor also falls in line with our mission to power communities and empower members. High-speed internet today is the electricity of the 1930s and 1940s. In 1930, fewer than 10% of farms had access to electricity. Much like our cooperative did with electricity more than 80 years ago, we're going to provide reliable, affordable broadband to our members.

What is the project?
The project is an effort to improve the co-op's electric system, and at the same time provide residents and businesses in Cullman Electric's service territory with lightning-fast fiber optic internet service.

Why do I want fiber?
Fiber is the fastest and most reliable internet connection available. Speeds of up to 1 gig are possible (that's 1,000 Mbps, or megabits per second), with enough bandwidth to power your whole business or household. Internet over fiber helps businesses operate efficiently and competitively. It powers advances in health care and education. It even enhances entertainment, with ultrafast video streaming (no buffering) and gaming (no lag).

How do I find out if fiber is coming to my area?
Members will be able to go online at www.cullmanec.com/sprout and type in your service address to see if your location is included in the first phase.

What internet speeds will be offered?
We will offer two basic Wi-Fi packages with upload and download speeds of 300 Mbps for $59.99 and upload and download speeds of 1 Gbps for $79.99. For an additional $10 per month we will offer a Whole Home Wi-Fi feature that will ensure your entire home is covered.

From whom will I actually be buying internet service?
Sprout Fiber Internet is a service provided by Cooperative Connections, a subsidiary company which is owned by your trusted power provider, Cullman Electric Cooperative.

How soon will this happen?
Our plan is to do the project in phases. Construction on Phase 1 started June 1, 2020 and is scheduled to take 12 to 18 months to complete. The first service areas are scheduled for connection in October 2020, with additional areas coming online as Phase 1 progresses. If the first phase is successful, we will proceed with additional phases with the ultimate goal of making Sprout Fiber Internet available to every Cullman Electric member.

I can't wait! What do I do?
Visit www.cullmanec.com/sprout to register so we can keep you informed about the project's progress and know that you want blazing-fast internet from Sprout. Be sure to tell your friends! Help us help others! Together we can grow this into something special.

‘Imagine Your Story’ at the Cullman library

maggie@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN, Ala. – To make summer a little more interesting, the Cullman County Public Library’s main branch is offering a summer learning program for children dubbed “Imagine Your Story.”

The Tribune spoke with CCPLS Assistant Director Josie Harrington to learn more.

“This year our summer learning program’s theme is ‘Imagine Your Story,’ so it’s really themed around creativity, like creating your own things, which is partially why we’ve done make-and-take crafts, which are basically these little craft pieces that kids and take home and make,” said Harrington.

“For example, this week was ‘moon sand,’ which was corn starch, colored sand and water. Another craft was paperback book hedgehogs which is kind of like origami- you just fold it and eventually it looks very hedgehog-like- that was this week’s craft. Kids have made binary bracelets, which teaches a little about binary code while they make bracelets.

“The instructions showed how to write the word ‘read’ in binary, but there are enough beads to write a number of different things. We’ve also had the option of kids (or adults who want to participate) of writing stories, doing art and turning that in and we’ve had a couple of stories turned in. We’re excited about those!”

She continued, “Earlier this week we had an event at the Festhalle where children colored in chalk drawings. We had a pretty good turnout for that event!”

Activities vary per group, which are younger child, older child and adult.

When activities are completed and turned in, participants can pick up “brag tags.”

Harrington explained, “Those are like our rewards or prizes, our incentives for the summer learning program. Since there’s so many of them, you can get them for doing just about anything. All sorts of activities can get you brag tags. They’re sort of like keychains, but you can also put them on maybe a necklace chain. They’ve been really popular; a lot of kids like them. There’s lots of themes, so we’re hoping we’ll have some brag tag that will cater to anyone.”

MAGGIE DARNELL/THE CULLMAN TRIBUNE

A table is set up at the Cullman County Public Library for families to pick up activities for their kids - adults can participate, too!

How do you earn brag tags?

- Read five chapters in a book, or five books.
- Complete make-and-take activities.
- Complete bingo activity (found in activities folder given to participants).
- Complete “Build your Quest” activity (found in activities folder given to participants).
- Write a story.
- Create art.

What are the story writing guidelines?

- Turn in a story written on 8x11 paper any time during the month. The library will display it the following month. The library will keep it displayed until the first week of August, when you can pick it up.

What are the art guidelines?

- Create art of any kind! Make a picture, build something!
- Turn in a picture of your art. The library will display it the following month. The library will keep it displayed until the first week of August, when you can pick it up.

How to get started

“It’s really as simple as coming and taking the folders or activities when they’re out on the table, which is most of the week,” said Harrington. “Starting next week, we’ll be putting out more activities for the ending week of June.

“There’s really no registration or sign-up, it’s more of a come in and get it and complete it at home, return it later, and that’s how you get your brag tags or participation awards.”

Submissions don’t have to be made in-person.

“You can either send it to our email, which is on some of the activities in the folders, or you can show it to us on Facebook, or come to the library and show it to us on your phone, or just bring it in person if you’d like!” she said. “It’s pretty much any way you want to show us. Anyway, we’ll eager to see it!”

The library is located at 200 Clark St. NE, Cullman, AL 35055. Learn more at www.Facebook.com/cullmancountypubliclibrarysystem.
