Cullman GOP chair/candidate embarrassed over accidental publication of 'very private photo'

W.C. Mann
craig@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN, Ala. – Cullman County Republican Party Chairman and city council hopeful Steve Cummings had to take to social media this week after an embarrassing photo of him appeared on his Facebook page over the weekend. The photo, a selfie taken by Cummings, who currently spends much of his time away from home caring for a family member, was reportedly going to be sent to his wife to show off a little weight loss, but ended up in his public feed instead. The photo was deleted as soon as the mistake was discovered, but not before a few people saved screenshots and started some rumors.

Cummings said he initially thought he had been hacked, but he discovered the photo had been uploaded from his phone.

He told The Tribune, "My phone, I don't have a lock screen on it and so, if you throw it back in your pocket, the first thing that's up there is 'add a story.' And if you bump that, it goes to your pictures, and that's what happened."

Cummings added with a little laugh, "Why would I post it intentionally? And then, I'm fairly good at Photoshop, so if I was going to post it, I would've Photoshopped the heck out of it!"

Cummings took to social media much more intentionally and carefully Wednesday morning, saying, in part, "I get it, here's a

Hanceville's Mayor Nail visits Colony Town Council; council notes June 23, 2020

W.C. Mann
craig@cullmantribune.com

COLONY, Ala. – As the Colony Town council gathered for its pre-meeting work session Tuesday afternoon, Mayor Donnis Leeth welcomed Hanceville Mayor Kenneth Nail and Councilman/Mayor Pro Tem Jim Sawyer. Invited by Leeth, Nail took a few minutes to talk about the relationship between the two municipalities and recent statements he made.

Nail told the council, "I appreciate the relationship that Hanceville and the Colony has. The mayor knows I love him; we're friends, and I got no doubt that if somebody was about to woop me, they'd have to woop him, too. (Leeth chimed in, "You know that's right!")

"But I understand it's- we all know and we understand right now we're in some troubled times in our world, and I don't have the answers to all of it. I know our Lord does; no doubt about it. I have to search my heart."

Nail shared that he had made certain unspecified remarks recently that could offend some, and that Sawyer had asked him to reconsider what he had said.

Nail admitted that his councilman was right, and that he himself "might get a little too passionate about things."

Nail continued, "I basically just wanted to tell you guys that we love you, we appreciate you, and, you know, if there's ever an issue or if there's ever a problem-regardless of what it is- if there's something we can do to help y'all, we don't have a whole bunch of resources, but me and the mayor's talked a few times.

"We've been able to help with a couple of little things here and there.

"But I just want y'all to know we appreciate y'all, appreciate y'all trading in Hanceville, appreciate y'all buying your groceries there and coming up there. You're always welcome at events that we have.

"I'll tell you: we were talking just a few days ago, and, you know, there is no doubt Hanceville is the most diverse city in Cullman County. Now, back in the day, have we had some hiccups? Yes. Have we had some few issues here? You know we have."

Nail recounted the days in the 1960s when Colony's school was closed and the students were integrated into the Hanceville schools, noting that neither community was very happy with the situation at the time.

"But I'm going to tell you something, and I honestly believe this," added Nail, "Hanceville is a better place today because of what happened. Now back in the 60s, everybody become mad at everybody and blah, blah, blah. But Hanceville, because we all, we all got to figure out how to get along, and I think we get along great. You know, I'm very proud of the relationship that we have."

Colony candidates share platforms

Leeth asked each of the council members present to talk about their platforms for the upcoming Municipal Election, happening Tuesday, Aug. 25.

Samuel Ashford was absent.

Ethel Alexander noted that this will be her first election, since she was appointed to the council to fill a mid-term vacancy. She said that she hoped to build on the progress of her first term, to continue developing Colony's historical landmarks and to "make Colony a place to visit."

Melvin Hammond recounted numerous council accomplishments he has seen during his term. As the finance committee chairman, he especially pointed to the substantial reduction in the Town's loan debt through his and Town Clerk Patricia Ponder's efforts. He said he is happy with the progress he has seen on road repairs, and hopes to see more roads fixed in his next term.

Curtis Johnson announced that he intends to run against Leeth for the mayor's seat, saying that he would not have anything further to say until after candidate qualification in July.

Leeth, who sat next to Johnson as me made his announcement, showed no visible surprise or anger at the announcement, but portions of his platform statement were clearly directed at his new opponent.

Leeth told the council that when he came back to Colony from 21 years of Army service in 2002, he found the town the same as he left it until something told him, "If you want a change, step up." He recounted the work he had done for the town before holding elected office, even after losing a previous election, saying that he had learned how to get things done by learning how to talk to people and by building relationships with a wide variety of people.

Said Leeth, "I'm just a peon in politics, but I know a lot of big boys."

Leeth pointed to the town's Morehouse College-supported community garden, storm shelter and nearby Dollar General as his most visible accomplishments, along with other things like the community food pantry and food distributions.

While he never looked at Johnson, he did say, "If you can beat me, you can have it," adding that he would continue to offer assistance to council members but would not assist Johnson as mayor.

To Johnson he also remarked, "You want to be the big boy, you got to fill the shoe."

Desperation Church to hold work day at gym

Leeth reported that Desperation Church's Pastor (Andy Heis, not named during the meeting) recently visited Colony's gym, and plans to return with a work team July 11 for a community service day to do painting, tile work, light repairs, cleaning, lawn mowing and work on the baseball field. Alexander called on kids from the community who will use the gym to come out and help with the work day, and to be responsible for taking care of the facility once it is ready.

Council business

Hammond reported that someone is coming to look at the HVAC unit at the Educational Complex, and that the kitchen will need to be re-certified since it did not have running water at its last inspection. He also said that he is working on getting the gym open, but cannot commit enough time to operating the facility, saying that Kim Carwell has offered to help out and recommending that she be given a key to the building. Hammond also said that road repairs on the paved portion of Ward Hill Road will begin later this week.

Johnson reported that the library at the Educational Complex re-opened Tuesday, and that AT&T will be at the library later this week, with plans to install internet later this year.

Alexander reported that Colony made it into phase I of the upcoming Sprout/Cullman Electric Cooperative fiber internet project. The company's service should reach Colony in January 2021 at a cost of around $60 per month.

The Colony Town Council meets for work sessions at 5 p.m. the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month in Colony Town Hall, with regular meetings following. The public is invited to attend.

Baseball is back: MLB gearing up for July restart

Nick Griffin
nick@cullmantribune.com

NEW YORK, NY. - Major League Baseball and its owners have been butting heads with the Major League Baseball Players Association for months amid the coronavirus pandemic, but the two sides were finally able to reach an agreement Tuesday night. The two sides are set to get the season underway after a deal was reached for a shortened, 60-game regular season beginning July 23 or 24.

MLB commissioner Rob Manfred said in a statement Tuesday,

"Major League Baseball is thrilled to announce that the 2020 season is on the horizon. We have provided the Players Association with a schedule to play 60 games and are excited to provide our great fans with baseball again soon."

The MLBPA shared a short statement on Twitter as well, saying that all issues with the League have been resolved.

"All remaining issues have been resolved and Players are reporting to training camps."

Players will report to training camp July 1 in preparation for the season set to begin near the end of July. The 60-game regular season would be the shortest professional season since 1878. No agreements were reached on any new playoff features so this postseason will proceed normally with five teams from each league. On Monday, the League announced that clubs had unanimously voted to proceed with the 2020 season under the terms of a March agreement, which gave MLB commissioner Rob Manfred the power to unilaterally impose a schedule if the two sides were unable to come to an agreement.

The Major League Baseball season was set to begin on March 26 before the spread of the coronavirus forced the League to put the season on hold.

Basketball and 'The Bachelor': Father's Day with the Prew Crew

Jeff Shearer
AU Athletics

AUBURN, Ala. – Like a basketball player looking to the bench for final instructions before tipoff, Madison Prewett turned to her father for guidance before boarding a plane to Los Angeles.

"I remember just grabbing her and kissing the top of her head," said Chad Prewett, Madison's dad. "I said, 'Just be true to yourself. That's all I want you to do.'"

On her way to becoming a contestant on "The Bachelor" and amassing 1.8 million Instagram followers, Madison received her father's affirmation.

"It was really cool to see that even something like a dating show that might not have been super exciting for him at first, he was able to trust me with it and say, 'I know you have everything in you that you need to be successful and to do great things. I trust you, I love you, I believe in you,'" Madison said, recalling her dad's pep talk.

"One of the things that stuck with me throughout the show is he continued to tell me, 'Be true to yourself, be yourself, and trust that God's got it,' and so I clung to those words throughout that entire experience. Those words of affirmation and support really helped a lot."

Weeks later, Madison returned from California, an ABC camera crew in tow, to introduce the show's lead, a 28-year-old pilot, to her family.

"A really big deal," said Madison, studying her father's reaction to her suitor. "Everything was hanging on that. I was so eager to see him and hear what he thought and what he had to say. I knew that the trajectory of how the rest of the show was going to go was going to be dependent upon how he felt and the words that he spoke to me, what he was feeling, the peace that he had, and the conviction that he had."

Chad stayed true to the message he'd spent a lifetime instilling.

"I even told the young man that was on the show, 'I trust Madi,'" Chad said.

"I trust her heart and I trust what's in there. At the end of the day, I just knew that she would do what she was supposed to do.

"Doesn't mean we don't make mistakes along the way, as we all do. I just had complete and total trust in her and her decision making."

HOOP DREAMS

The scene repeated nearly every February. A father coaching his daughter, the point guard on their basketball team. A state championship trophy. A celebratory rendition of "We Are The Champions" in the car on the way to a victory dinner at Red Robin, followed by a sleepover and a late-night hair dyeing: red or blue streaks, the team colors of Lee-Scott Academy.

"We were, year after year, pretty familiar with winning," Madison said. "We had our championship traditions for sure."

Like many coaches' kids, Madison spent much of her formative years in gyms, accompanying her dad to practices, games and camps as Chad built winning programs at Escambia Academy in Atmore, Alabama, Faith Academy in Mobile, and Lee-Scott in Auburn before joining Bruce Pearl's staff at Auburn University, where Prewett serves as director of operations.

"I grew up around it, loved the sport, loved the game, I'm extremely competitive," Madison said.

"He's someone that I've obviously always looked up to and always wanted to impress and be a part of everything he's doing.

"I would have played the sport no matter what, but I think being able to play it for him just made it 10 times better."

To avoid any appearance of favoritism, Chad says he was more demanding of his daughter than he was of her teammates.

"I really did it for two reasons," he said. "The main reason is, she was a point guard. She was our leader. I always try to coach those players who have leadership roles harder.

"Secondly, I really did it to protect her. I didn't want anybody to ever say your dad gave you anything, so because of that, there were times I went overboard."

"If anyone ever messed up, it was always my fault, even if it wasn't," said Madison. "He was a lot harder on me. It was challenging, but it really taught me to step up, to set the tone, to take ownership, to be a leader and to strive for excellence."

"I wouldn't trade those years I was able to coach her," Chad said. "The hard-fought wins we had and even the losses over the years brought us so much closer together. We learned a lot about each other in the middle of some crazy times."

One thing Madison and her younger sisters Mallory and Mary Mykal learned early on was how to dribble. Dad made sure of it.

"At 8 years old, we could do all the drills that some of the varsity players could do," Madison said.

"As a coach, I never knew where we'd end up," said Chad. "I didn't know what school I'd be at, but I knew if you can dribble, you can play anywhere. So that's something I taught all of them from a young age."

THE HOME TEAM

The Prew Crew, Chad's nickname for the Prewett family, benefits from the balance his wife, Tonya, provides. In December, Chad and Tonya will celebrate their 30th anniversary.

"She's really been a rock," Chad said. "She makes us better. I grew up with boys, my brothers, so I didn't really know how to love. Tonya taught me how to love."

"My mom is so good at extending grace and compassion and she's extremely empathetic and just a great listener," Madison said. "She feels what you feel, she walks with you through it. Everything you're going through, she feels it times 10. So loyal and so compassionate."

Chad's motivation to be a hands-on dad stemmed from his upbringing.

"I actually grew up without a dad that was present," he said. "I just remember thinking, when I have mine, I'm going to go over the top. I think modeling is obviously better, but in my situation, I actually saw what I wanted in other people.

"I just knew that there had to be more. I wanted to be everything that really I didn't have maybe growing up. I knew that the words of a father had so much impact. And if you didn't get those words, I knew that had impact. I wanted us to have the best family we possibly could."

Determined to be present for his children, Chad studied his daughters like he studied his teams' opponents.

"I'm a big believer that we all have gifts and talents," he said. "And we all have strengths and weaknesses, we all have things that we add to the family. Madison is a leader and has always been a leader, but that doesn't mean that her role in this family is any more important than Mallory who's loyal, or Mary Mykal who's a peacemaker. It's about finding your role in the family and doing what God's called you to do."

Having raised three daughters, Chad offers a coaching tip for new dads.

"Find out about your child," he said. "I did a lot of research, from love languages to birth order to enneagrams. Just like I would do on the court where I study to see your strengths and weaknesses.

SHANNA LOCKWOOD/AU ATHLETICS

Chad and Madison Prewett

"Anytime we can operate in our strength, we're much happier. We're able to achieve so much more. What happens when we don't do that?

"I remember times where people on my team tried to do things that they weren't supposed to do; people that didn't need to dribble were dribbling. I remember the frustration that that gave me and also the teammates.

"When you operate outside of your gifting a lot of times we get frustrated. Find a way to see the gift in your child and see the potential in your child and try to bring out those things."

'THERE'S NOT ANYTHING YOU CAN'T BE'

Raising and coaching Madison was not all layups and trophy presentations, Chad says.

"Madison was a very strong-willed young lady," he said. "I'll be dead honest, and she can tell you, I was not one to lose battles. If I was going to fight a battle, I was going to win the battle, but I didn't choose a battle every day.

"Most of the world's greatest leaders are strong-willed. I wanted to make sure I could get that put in the right lane, and I remember seeing that process take place. I remember speaking to her as a leader before she really was a leader, I was calling her a leader, because I saw those qualities in her.

When Madison Prewett looks at her dad, she sees an example of faithfulness and perseverance.

"I know my sisters and I look up his willingness to be faithful with where he is," she said. "I've seen him in so many seasons of life, everywhere he went, he was successful because he was so faithful with it, and in what God's given him. That's something I admire.

"I love his passion for whatever's in front of him. He always strives for excellence, he demands excellence. He doesn't settle for anything less. In a world where it is very easy to want to fit in and settle for mediocrity, he's always called me to go the extra mile and give my best."

When Chad Prewett looks at his oldest daughter, he doesn't see a TV star with millions of social media followers or a point guard with four state championships.

He sees the woman he once called his "little dreamer" who grew up to become a leader.

"The biggest thing I told Madi growing up and all of our girls is, there's not anything you can't do. There's not anything you can't be," Chad said. "I wanted her to dream big, I want her to think about changing the world and really making a difference."

Troy Baseball lands RHP transfer Mason Kenney from Furman

Adam Prendergast
Troy Athletics

TROY, Ala. – Troy baseball head coach Mark Smartt continued to add elite talent to the Trojans' roster with the addition of right-handed pitcher Mason Kenney on Thursday. Kenney will have three years of eligibility remaining after transferring to Troy from Furman.

Kenney split his time between the mound and shortstop at Furman with 21 career appearances as a position player and 12 appearances on the mound. A change of scenery to Troy will allow Kenney to dedicate all his attention to the mound where he ranked among the top right-handed pitchers in the state of Georgia by Perfect Game coming out of Milton High School.

He posted a 4.11 ERA with 22 strikeouts and just eight walks over 35 career innings of work at Furman while holding opponents to just a .258 batting. Kenney peppers the strike zone with an 89 to 91 mile-per-hour fastball and his pitch arsenal features an above average slider.

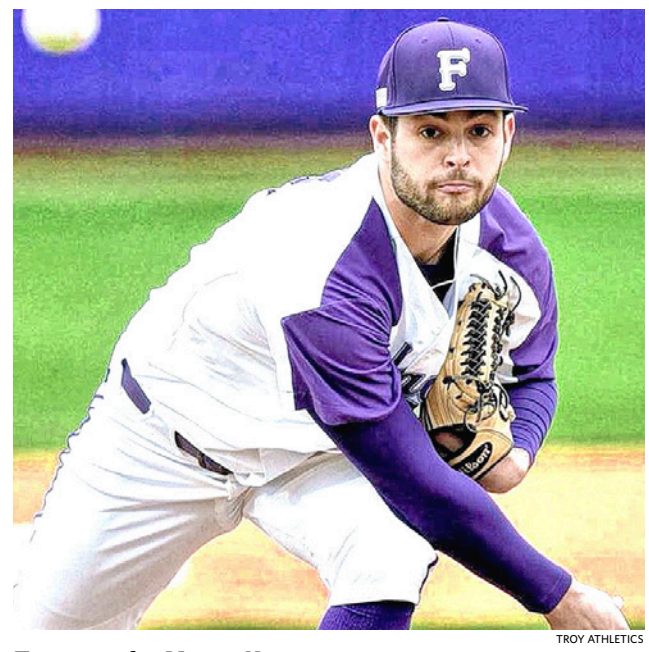

A two-time all-conference selection for Milton HS, Kenney played in the 2018 17U Perfect Game-East Cobb Invitational, 2018 WWBA 2019 Grads or 17U National Championship Qualifier, 2018 WWBA 2019 Grads or 17U National Championship and 2018 17U PG World Series.

Quotable – Head Coach Mark Smartt

"We are excited to add Mason to the Troy baseball family. Mason brings DI experience to our pitching staff, which is always a positive. His strike throwing ability and arm strength is something that attracted us right away. We look forward to seeing him in a Troy uniform for years to come."

straight-laced, Republican, Christian guy that is running for office and he does something like this? There's blood in the water.

"Never mind, that I've spent a lifetime doing the right thing, I've never been unfaithful to my wife Debby in ANY way in our 32-year marriage.

"I don't drink, I don't smoke, I don't even use the occasional cuss word. That doesn't make me any better than anybody else - it's just the standards I set for myself 43 years ago and they just stuck."

He continued, "I was crushed that this happened - but not so much for me - I can take the heat for it, but for my wife and my family and my family name. Proverbs 22:1 – 'A good name is to be chosen rather than great riches.' So how devastating would it be to lose my good name over a simple glitch in technology?

"I could see it if I had a Lack of Judgement and did that on purpose - or if I even posted it as a Mistake - then I'd gladly take the blame. But to lose 55 years of a good reputation that I've worked hard for due to an action, that I did not take, would be soul-crushing.

"And if it weren't for my faith, I would have crawled in a hole already. I don't believe in running away from difficulty - I'm just not wired that way, you stand up like a man and tell the truth and face things straight on. And I know it would have been easier to just say 'I must have been hacked' or just say nothing at all, and just hope it all went away. Things just don't go away. I just don't go away. I'm not leaving town - Cullman is my home - and I am still running for the city council because I believe I could contribute to the community I love. Whether anybody votes for me after this, we'll have to see Aug. 25th."

In her own post, Cummings' wife Deborah Cummings wrote, "My husband, Steve, is a Godly man who has always set high morals for our children. He has been an outstanding citizen of his community . . . Technology is a blessing and a curse. He is very upset over this mishap, especially about what his friends and family will think. I love this man very much! I hope that we never judge one another by our text or social media posts."

In his post, Cummings said he learned that "In the very middle of this ABSOLUTE FIRESTORM of circumstances - my heart was fixed and I felt an inner strength that was not my own.

"The other things I learned are: I need to get a better phone, always use a screen lock and no more selfies."

Cummings is challenging incumbent Clint Hollingsworth for his seat on the Cullman City Council in the Aug. 25, 2020 Municipal Election. Hollingsworth told The Tribune that he considers Cummings to be a friend and the incident to be an unfortunate accident, and that it will not be an issue in the campaign.

Cummings invited his friends to talk to him about the incident, adding, "I've got nothing to hide (not now anyway)."

Gen Flynn's adoption fee is $100 which includes: DHLPP vaccine, Bordetella vaccines, rabies vaccine, wormer, general exam at the vet, neutering, microchip, free 30-day health insurance policy issued by 24PetWatch (with valid email only) and a free bag of food from Cullman Pet Depot (you must pay sales tax).

Animal shelter staff and volunteers work with their dogs to make sure they are accustomed to being around people, walking on a leash and practicing good behavior. Several of the shelter's canine friends have even been "hired" to work as therapy and special needs service dogs.

Please consider adopting, to give a rescued pet a chance at a happy and healthy life.

Contact the Cullman County Animal Shelter at 256-734-5448 or cullmancountyanimalshelter@gmail.com. Visit the shelter at 935 Convent Road NE.

Burden of Truth

Joanna (Kristin Kreuk) weighs the risks and potential benefits of filing a class action lawsuit as she looks for a way to strengthen Kodie's (guest star Sera-Lys McArthur) case in the new episode "It Takes a Village." Elsewhere, Billy (Peter Mooney) may have a break in the case thanks to a tip from his father, while Owen (Meegwun Fairbrother) makes an unfortunate decision as his frustration with Sam Mercer (guest star Paul Braunstein) pushes him to the edge.

8 p.m. on WBRC
Labor of Love

Kristy and her five remaining would-be fathers-to-be face an ultimate parenting test when they are given baby simulators programmed to test their responsiveness to an infant's needs in the new episode "You've Got Babies." Kristy also gets an opportunity to spend more alone time with each potential dad before deciding which of their hometowns she'll be visiting. Kristin Davis is the host.

8 p.m. on MTV
Revenge Prank

Payback is the name of the game in this new reality series, which reteams old friends and colleagues Paul "DJ Pauly D" Delvecchio and Vinny Guadagnino for more mutual mischief. Each episode introduces the pair to someone who has been the victim of an embarrassing online prank that has gone viral. Now that person wants revenge on the friend, relative or other "loved one" who mortified him or her in front of a vast audience. Together, they plot a truly over-the-top prank on the original prankster. Another episode follows.

8:30 p.m. on WIAT
Broke

A canceled birthday bash isn't the only melancholy note in the episode "Sammy's Party," which also serves as the series finale for this freshman sitcom. When the original plans to celebrate young Sammy's (Antonio Corbo) big day fall through, his relatives rush to set up an impromptu backyard party, where an unexpected guest catches everyone off guard. Meanwhile, Javier and Elizabeth (Jaime Camil, Natasha Leggero) decide to look for their own place. Kyle Bornheimer reprises his recurring guest role; Pauley Perrette also stars.

8:45 p.m. on TCM
Movie: Lady Sings the Blues

This 1972 portrait of legendary singer Billie Holiday traces how the vocalist's rise to fame was accompanied by an escalating addiction to drugs. In her acting debut, Diana Ross received an Oscar nomination as best actress for her charismatic turn as Holiday. Billy Dee Williams and Richard Pryor offer strong support.

9 p.m. on FREE
The Bold Type

Sutton (Meghann Fahy) struggles painfully with her complicated reactions to all the huge changes in her life in a new episode called, appropriately, "Lost." Urged on by Kat (Aisha Dee), a reluctant Jane (Katie Stevens) dips a toe back into the dating pool. Meanwhile, Kat is forced to turn to Alex (Matt Ward) for help as she tries to decide on her next move in the face of mounting financial insecurity.

9:03 p.m. on HIST
Alone

The top priority for the survivalists as they enter week two of the competition is to find a food source that could last them 100 days in the new episode "That Was No Bunny." One participant's fishing efforts attract the attention of a relentless predator. Another must deal with disastrous consequences after putting himself in harm's way to keep his food safe. One contender comes across a game-changing opportunity after signs pointing to nearby big game catch nearly everyone's attention.

Antonio Corbo stars in "Broke" on CBS.

Autwell (from Front)

W.C. Mann

CULLMAN, Ala. – Terry Autwell, 28, of Hanceville, pleaded guilty earlier this month to a charge of criminally negligent homicide in the Dec. 10, 2018 vehicle crash at the intersection of Cherokee Avenue and 24th Street Southwest that claimed the life of April Dawn Landinger. Landinger, 30, also of Hanceville, was a passenger in Autwell's car when, while turning from Cherokee Avenue onto 24th Street, Autwell crossed in front of an oncoming vehicle driven by Skylar Higgins of Hayden. Autwell was additionally charged with failure to yield right of way.

Autwell entered the plea as part of a deal in which he pleaded guilty to three active charges in separate cases which also included:

- Unauthorized termination of residence: Autwell is a registered sex offender and failed to notify authorities of a change of residence.
- First-degree theft of property: Autwell was charged with stealing a large amount of cash from a Pizza Hut.

Autwell was sentenced to 12 months in the Cullman County Detention Center on the homicide charge and five years in state prison on each of the other charges. Under the plea deal, he will serve all three sentences concurrently.

Higgins was also charged with criminally negligent homicide and exceeding reasonable and prudent speed. Court records in the homicide case are not publicly accessible; according to the victim's family, Higgins was granted youthful offender status.

The family also said that the homicide case was dropped as the State pursued its case against Autwell. Available court records show that the traffic charge was dismissed at the request of the Cullman County District Attorney's Office.

Show (from Front)

Heather Mann

CULLMAN, Ala. – After the success of this year's Mopars by the Lake car show, the Pentastar South Car Club tallied up the proceeds and donated $4,000 to Secret Meals for Hungry Children, an all-time high. This charity, sponsored by the Alabama Credit Union (ACU), lets teachers and school counselors discreetly provide weekend meals for students who may go hungry during the days without school lunches. With $150 able to provide for one student for an entire year, the $4,000 donation will be able to feed 26 Cullman County students for a year.

The check was presented to Laurie Legg of the ACU at Cullman Chrysler Dodge Jeep Ram by Scott Spitzer from the dealership and Brenda Allison from Pentastar South.

Legg offered a few comments after the presentation, saying, "Brenda is phenomenal. She gets out and does this every year, and she worked so hard this year even with everything she's going through with her cancer. She was out at the lake from 6 in the morning to 3 or 4 in the afternoon, all to make sure these kids can eat."

Allison herself commented, "I'm so touched by the response I received from everyone that came out to help. This cause is so dear to my heart. Being a teacher, this is something I see every day, and it breaks my heart to know that there are children out there who don't have enough to eat."

Allison said she expects next year to be even bigger and better, and that she has already gotten calls from people asking about next year's show.

She thanked the show's sponsors, saying, "Without people like Scott, Laurie, Terry Shabel and the sponsors they represent - the Chrysler dealership, the ACU, and Pepsi, respectively - the show could not go on.

"They have always stepped up and helped us with things that we have needed to make the show a success. I also want to thank our friends from New Orleans that always come up and cook for us each year, and all the others who contributed their talents to help out during the show."
