Take the 25 Arrow Challenge

W.C. MANN/THE CULLMAN TRIBUNE

Cullman Parks, Recreation & Sports Tourism Archery Director Anthony Parker explains the 25 Arrow Challenge.

W.C. Mann
craig@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN, Ala. – Hey archers, has Robin Hood got nothing on you? Would William Tell's son have been relieved to see you step up to the line? If so, you might want to put your skills to the test and earn some free range time at the Cullman Parks, Recreation & Sports Tourism (CPRST) 25 Arrow Challenge, going on at the agency's indoor range this month.

CPRST Archery Director Anthony Parker explained, "It's a set of four targets, and if it's shot perfectly, it's 25 arrows- takes 25 arrows to shoot it all the way through completely, and shot perfect.

"What we're doing: the first person in that division at that distance that shoots (a perfect score), we're giving them a month of range time for free."

The targets include six 1.5-inch-wide vertical lines, six 1.5-inch horizontal lines, 12 3-inch circles and one final circle target.

Archers must shoot until they hit the first target, then move on to the next.

According to Parker, the best score shot on opening day was a 29. If your score isn't perfect the first time, you can keep trying.

Said Parker, "They can come as much as they want to, and they can try as much as they want to.

"If they come and shoot tomorrow and they don't do it, they can do it again the next day, until they get it in 25 or they give up."

Archers can compete in different divisions, based on shooting style and distance:

- Bows with sights and mechanical releases
- Bows with sights but without mechanical releases
- Bows without sights or mechanical releases

Participants can shoot at various distances in 5-yard increments from 10 to 40 yards in any of the three style divisions.

There is no age limit or gender differentiation; the challenge is open to everyone. Shooters are also welcome to compete in multiple divisions.

Parker said, "It's just a real unique challenge, something that I came up with when I was teaching kids' archery . . . As I was teaching kids, some of the stuff we were dealing with, these targets kind of help with that, so I just came up with it.

"We're going to present it, let the people around here see if they enjoy it, try to give it a whirl, see how good they are."

Shooting on the CPRST indoor archery range costs $5. The target set and score card for the challenge is an extra $5.

The CPRST indoor archery facility is located at 1913 Second Ave. SW (U.S. Highway 31) in southwest Cullman, and is open Tuesdays through Fridays from 3-7 p.m. For more information, visit https://cullmanrecreation.org/cullmanindoorarcheryrange/ or call 256-734-9157.

Eric Phillips announces candidacy for Good Hope City Council, place 2

wendy@cullmantribune.com

GOOD HOPE, Ala. – Eric Phillips on Wednesday night announced his candidacy for Good Hope City Council, place 2. The 2020 Municipal Election will take place Tuesday, Aug. 25.

Below is Phillips' announcement:

After much prayer and deliberation, I am excited to announce that I am running for Good Hope City Council, place 2.

I love this city and I look forward to listening to your concerns and representing you fairly.

I have served on the City's planning commission in a voluntary position for the past five years, and I have been encouraged to take the next step as a city council member.

I have lived in Good Hope for the past 10 years and I am so proud to call it home.

I married my wife, Natacha Calvert Phillips, 10 years ago and am proud to be a part of the Calvert family.

We have a 7-year-old girl named Maggie and soon to be 3-year-old son, Mayer.

I want to do what is in the best interest for my family as well as you and yours. I believe that we live in an amazing city.

Let's work together to make it even better!

UAB Football Positional Preview: The linebackers

Ted Feeley
UAB Athletics

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. – Highlighted by one of the best players in Conference USA, senior linebacker Kristopher Moll leads one of the brightest spots for a defense that has finished top 10 nationally each of the last two years.

A First Team All-Conference USA selection last year, Moll aims for All-America status in his final season and anticipates being a nominee for all of the major preseason national award.

Despite missing this first game of last year, Moll still compiled 104 total tackles and added 16.0 tackles for loss, 9.0 sacks, four forced fumbles, six quarterback hurries and one interception, fumble recovery and pass breakup. He was the only player in C-USA to rank top 10 in tackles, TFL and sacks.

Moll isn't the only productive linebacker as redshirt junior Noah Wilder was the team's second leading tackler a year ago, compiling 85 tackles, 10.5 TFL and 3.0 sacks. Like Moll, Wilder appeared in and started 13 of 14 games last year.

The one game Wilder didn't start, redshirt senior Luke Brasher filled the void vs. Old Dominion and is an experienced veteran who has appeared in over 30 games during his career. Brasher is a two-time CoSIDA Academic First Team selection.

Another pair of veteran players have made the move to inside linebacker in seniors Thomas Johnston and Jarrion Street. Johnston was an outside linebacker last year and has played in all 41 games since UAB returned to action in 2017.

Street played safety last year but had a season ending injury in the first game of the season. He had eight tackles and a sack in that contest vs. Alabama State.

Redshirt sophomore Deshaun Oliver Jr. was having a great spring season and will be in contention for playing time, as well as a pair of redshirt freshmen in Will Conner and LJ Smith III. True freshmen Tamarious Brown and Allen Merrick round out the LB unit.

Moll and the linebackers look to lead UAB to its third straight C-USA West Division title.

The Blazers have won the most games (28) in Conference USA since returning to action in 2017, are 20-6 vs. league opponents and 16-2 vs. West division foes during that time frame. UAB returns 18 starters entering 2020.

Season tickets for 2020 are on sale starting as low as $75 with the Family Four Pack. Blazer Boosters members and current season ticket holders will have top priority for Protective Stadium entering 2021.

Rebula returns to Auburn for 5th year

Chris Richards
PGATOUR.com

AUBURN, Ala. – Last June, Jovan Rebula was competing in the U.S. Open at Pebble Beach. He was playing practice rounds with his uncle, who happens to be World Golf Hall of Fame member Ernie Els, and he had a first-round tee time with fellow Auburn Tigers Jason Dufner and Patton Kizzire. Rebula's future as a PGA TOUR player was very clear.

This year, the COVID-19 pandemic shortened his senior season at Auburn. Instead of preparing for the NCAA Championships this spring, he took a month off and suddenly needed to decide whether to turn pro.

And yet his path to the PGA TOUR had become clearer than ever before, and it's all because of PGA TOUR University.

"This has been an incredible breakthrough. Whoever doesn't want to take advantage of this opportunity, I think that's the wrong move," Rebula said of his decision to return to Auburn for a fifth year.

"My plan was to stay just four years, and that was it. But then PGA TOUR University threw another curveball at me, and that made my decision really easy."

The decision came after council with the coaches at Auburn, and also his uncle, who has been a lifelong mentor and encouraged him to move to the United States in the first place.

"He was the one that said you've got to go to college, get your degree and play golf at the same time," said Rebula, who grew up in George, South Africa.

"I think that was the whole idea, to get used to the living environment over here. His main thing for me was to play over here because this is ultimately where I wanted to play."

This logic alone is a strong selling point for international players to play college golf in the States.

With the addition of PGA TOUR University, Rebula thinks the decision is even easier for international players trying to figure out their best path to the PGA TOUR.

"It's almost a no-brainer to come to college right now, with this opportunity that's been created," said Rebula, who is currently No. 29 in the World Amateur Golf Ranking.

"I think it's going to be a massive attraction for a lot of international students to come over to the States and play over here."

AU ATHLETICS
Auburn's Jovan Rebula has opted to return to play for the Tigers for a fifth year.

In his four years at Auburn, Rebula has cemented himself as one of the program's all-time greats.

He won the SEC individual title in 2019 and is a three-time PING All-American, and he set the school's single-season record with a 70.19 scoring average in 2019-2020.

Perhaps his most impressive victory came in the summer of 2018 when he won the British Amateur and became the first South African to win the title since 1966.

As a result of that win, he earned invites to The Open Championship, Masters and U.S. Open, where he played alongside and prepared with his uncle.

"I honestly don't know who's more excited for my pro career, me or my uncle," Rebula said. "He's such a caring and loving guy at the end of the day. He wants the best for the people around him, and I'm fortunate to have someone like that to talk to and call any time."

Rebula has handled the pressure before – he knew three invitations to majors were on the line at the British Am, after all – but he also knows the pressure will be different next spring when Korn Ferry Tour status may come down to a single putt.

"This is probably going to be a small little Q-School, if you want to call it that," he said. It's impossible for a guy to say that that's not going to be on his mind going into this next year, and going into the spring it's definitely going to be on all of our minds.

"It's going to be a matter of who's going to handle the situation the best that's going to get rewarded at the end of the day."

Without a doubt, Rebula could have stuck to his plan and turned pro. But in a time when sponsor's exemptions are limited and Monday Qualifying spots are as competitive as they've ever been, PGA TOUR University couldn't have come at a better time for college seniors like Rebula.

"Having a year now when you can play golf in a college system where you feel comfortable playing, where you're playing against your peers ... I think this is an incredible way to start off a pro career."

Kennedy adds Terry Parker and Wilbur Allen to UAB Men's Basketball staff

Ted Feeley
UAB Athletics

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. – UAB Men's Basketball Head Coach Andy Kennedy has announced the additions of Terry Parker and Wilbur Allen to his staff. Parker will be an Assistant Coach while Allen will serve as Director of Basketball Administration.

Parker, who brings over 10 years of coaching experience, comes to UAB after spending the last six seasons as an Assistant Coach at Indiana State. Additionally, he has had stops at Utah Valley and Nicholls State.

While at ISU, Parker coached 14 All-Missouri Valley Conference players a total of 17 times including 2015 MVC Freshman of the Year Brenton Scott.

Parker came to Indiana State from Utah Valley State, where he guided the Wolverines to a 20-12 overall record, 13-3 in the Western Athletic Conference in 2013-14.

UVU was the WAC regular season champions in their first year in the league and recorded their first NIT appearance in school history.

Prior to Utah Valley, Parker served as an Assistant Coach at Nicholls State for three seasons (2010-13).

Parker began his Division I playing career at the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay, where he played for two seasons before transferring to Louisiana Tech for his junior and senior seasons.

In 2005-06, Parker was part of a LA Tech squad that went 20-13 overall and 11-5 in the WAC and earned a trip to the NIT his junior year.

After graduation, Parker remained in Ruston, working with the Bulldog coaching staff in a support capacity.

KENNEDY ON PARKER

"We are excited to add TP to our coaching staff. The Atlanta native has worked the last six seasons as an assistant at Indiana State under my good friend Greg Lansing and he has helped ISU compete year in and year out in the always competitive Missouri Valley Conference.

"Terry will add great value to Blazer Basketball and support our players both on and off the court."

Allen, who was on staff with Kennedy at OIe Miss, arrives in the Magic City after spending last season as Director of College Scouting for Babcock Hoops, a sports media company.

Prior to joining Babcock Hoops, Allen was an Assistant Coach at Appalachian State for the 2018-19 season.

The season before, Allen served as Coordinator of Player Development at Ole Miss under Kennedy.

In that role, he was responsible for the scouting of potential prospects, preparing game plans and working with players regarding academic progress and off-court development.

He also served as an assistant coach on an interim basis for 12 games.

Allen was a Graduate Assistant at Ole Miss for the 2016-17 season.

Prior to coaching in the college ranks, Allen served as the head coach at the NBA Yao School in Beijing City, China.

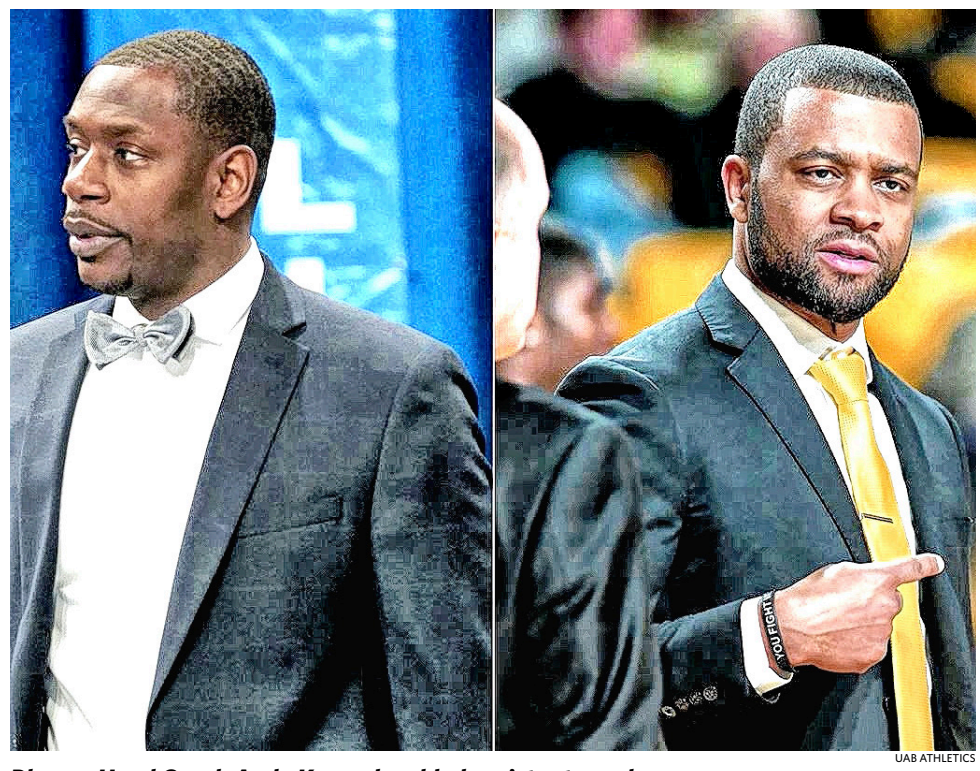

He began his coaching career at the famed Oak Hill Academy in Mouth of Wilson, Virginia. Allen was the Associate Head Coach from 2008 to 2013.

While with the Warriors, he coached four NBA players: Ben McLemore, Sindarius Thornwell, Troy Williams, and Quinn Cook.

In the 2011-12 season, Allen helped guide the Warriors to a perfect 44-0 record, which resulted in the school's eighth national championship.

Allen graduated from Temple in 2006 with a Bachelor of Business Administration in international business and marketing.

He helped lead the Owls to four NIT appearances.

UAB ATHLETICS
Blazers Head Coach Andy Kennedy added assistant coaches Terry Parker and Wilbur Allen to his staff Thursday

KENNEDY ON ALLEN

"We are fortunate to get a guy like Wilbur in the important role as an administrative assistant for our program. 'Bur played for the legendary John Chaney at Temple and has worked for me previously at Ole Miss before being an assistant coach at the Division 1 level. He will be a great asset to UAB Basketball."

2020-21 UAB men's basketball season tickets are on sale now.

Current basketball season ticket holders can click here to renew their seats for the upcoming season.

Fans interested in purchasing new season tickets can do so starting as low as $100 with the Blaze's Corner season ticket.

7 p.m. on WBIQ
Washington Week

The venerable public affairs series opens its 53rd season, now under the capable stewardship of moderator Robert Costa, who welcomes guest panelists each week for a famously civil discussion of current political topics. It seems unlikely Costa and his guests will run out of conversational fodder, as the United States inches closer to what promises to be the most contentious presidential campaign in history even as the country is also dealing with a deadly pandemic, economic collapse and a renewed crusade for racial equality.

7 p.m. on FX
Movie: Deadpool

The highest-grossing "R"-rated film of all time at the worldwide box office, this gleefully raunchy 2016 Marvel Comics adaptation finds Ryan Reynolds fully in his element as former mercenary Wade Wilson, who adopts the alter ego Deadpool and embarks on a quest to hunt down the man (Ed Skrein) who nearly destroyed his life. Morena Baccarin co-stars as Wade's girlfriend, Vanessa, and T.J. Miller plays his best friend, Weasel. Gina Carano also is featured.

8:03 p.m. on DSC
Dino Hunters

In a new episode, Clayton Phipps and his team get ready to flip a 10-ton carnivore fossil out of the ground and onto a flatbed vehicle to transport it to the lab for further analysis. Elsewhere, Mike Harris hunts for the skull of a duckbill, and Jared Hudson uncovers the remains of an ancient reptile.

8:30 p.m. on WBIQ
Great Performances

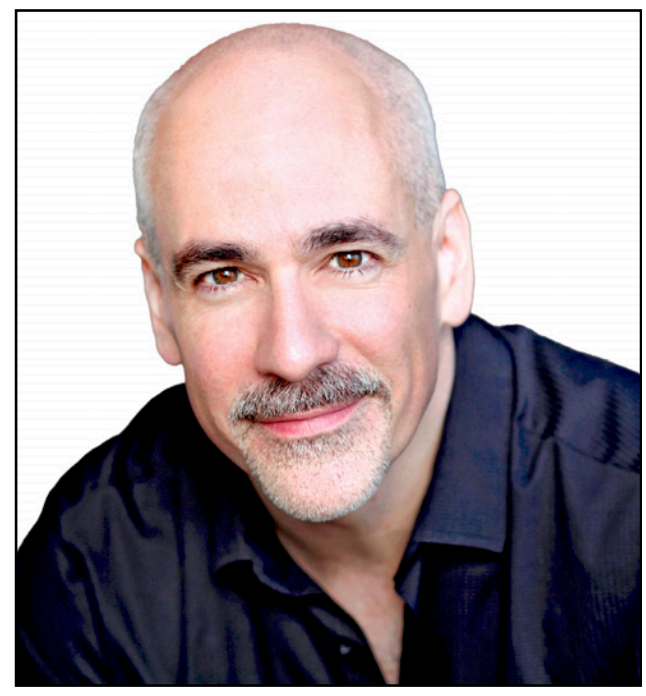

Ushering in Independence Day weekend with an encore from 2018, composer Peter Boyer's "Ellis Island: The Dream of America" merges contemporary classical music — performed by Pacific Symphony — with dramatic readings recalling the experiences of specific newcomers to the United States. Among those delivering those words: Tony Award winner Barry Bostwick (who also has done this piece on other occasions), Emmy honoree Camryn Manheim ("The Practice") and Michael Nouri ("Flashdance"). This production was staged at the Renee and Henry Segerstrom Concert Hall in Costa Mesa, Calif.

9 p.m. on TCM
Movie: The Searchers

Many consider this 1956 offering from veteran Western director John Ford to be the all-time best of the genre. It stars John Wayne as a Civil War soldier whose niece (Natalie Wood) has been kidnapped by the Comanches. Accompanied by her half brother (Jeffrey Hunter), he spends five years searching and eventually finds her. But she has assimilated into the tribe so thoroughly, her Indian-hating uncle now sees her as one of them. Vera Miles and Ward Bond also star.

10:15 p.m. on HBO
Movie: The Talented Mr. Ripley

The talented Messrs. Damon and Law — Matt and Jude, that is — earned critical bouquets for their work in director Anthony Minghella's Hitchcockian 1999 drama. Damon plays the title character, a poor boy mistaken by a tycoon (James Rebhorn) for a college friend of his playboy son, Dickie (Law). Dad offers Ripley $1,000 to bring the young wastrel home from Europe. Instead, he disposes of Dickie and assumes his identity. Gwyneth Paltrow and Cate Blanchett also star.

Composer Peter Boyer's "Ellis Island: The Dream of America" airs on "Great Performances" on PBS.

OPINION

On this Independence Day, recalling the Founders' views of a free press

Dean Ridings
CEO, America's Newspapers

America's Founders regarded a free press as so vital to the new nation that they took care to include that right in the First Amendment to the Constitution.

Founders spoke glowingly about the press as a pillar of democracy and guarantor of liberty. Thomas Jefferson, for instance, famously wrote in 1787 that "were it left to me to decide whether we should have a government without newspapers or newspapers without a government, I should not hesitate a moment to prefer the latter."

George Washington framed the issue of free expression in almost apocalyptic terms: "If freedom of speech is taken away, then dumb and silent we may be led, like sheep to the slaughter."

Yet discussing the free press of their day, the Founders also could often sound like those who are decrying "fake news" in 2020. Under a barrage of criticism from newspapers published by his political opponents, Washington painted journalists as "infamous scribblers." Benjamin Franklin, himself a very successful newspaper publisher, described the press of his time as a resentful, vicious institution comparable to the Spanish Inquisition.

Jefferson frequently condemned the press as passionately as he had advanced their right to publish freely. "I deplore ... the putrid state into which our newspapers have passed and the malignity, the vulgarity, and mendacious spirit of those who write for them," he wrote in 1814. "Nothing can now be believed which is seen in a newspaper," he complained in a letter to another friend.

For good measure he wrote to his ally in Congress, the Massachusetts politician Barnabas Bidwell: "As for what is not true, you will always find abundance in the newspapers."

On this Independence Day 244 years later, it's worth reflecting on the lessons the Founders have for us as we assess the role and the practices of the news media today.

The first lesson is that while the nation's leaders and institutions may chafe under the public criticism that accompanies reporting of their shortcomings, the role of the press in holding those leaders and institutions accountable is indispensable to the workings of a democratic society.

Most importantly, the press' proper role must be recognized by the leaders and institutions being held accountable.

As abused as he was by the partisan press, Jefferson nevertheless declared, "I am ... for freedom of the press, and against all violations of the Constitution to silence by force and not by reason the complaints or criticisms, just or unjust, of our citizens against the conduct of their agents."

Among those slinging partisan unjust criticisms was the newspaper co-founded by James Madison, who reasoned that "some degree of abuse is inseparable from the proper use of everything, and in no instance is this more true than in that of the press."

Yet, he went on to argue that trying to regulate the "abuse" of the press threatens to strangle its vitality and utility to a free people: "To the press alone, checkered as it is with abuses, the world is indebted for all the triumphs which have been gained by reason and humanity over error and oppression."

And therein lies the most fundamental lesson the Founders have for us in 2020: The press and the government may often have an adversarial relationship — but the government must not attempt to delegitimize the press and its work because they are essential to a free society.

CONTRIBUTED

Dean Ridings

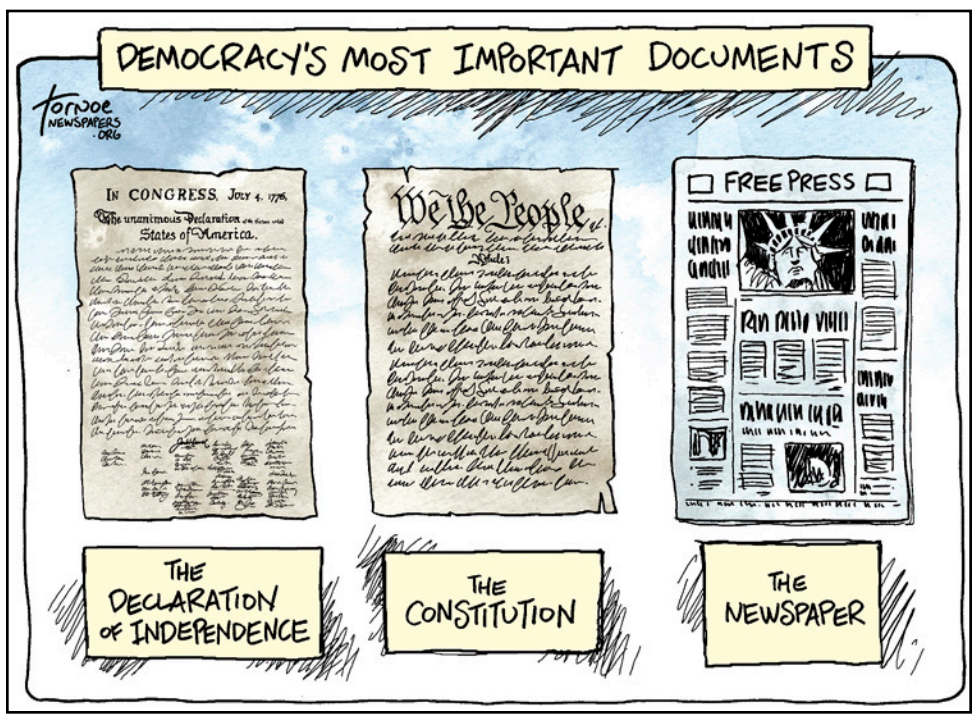

Would any of us want to live in a country where the news media isn't freely allowed to report on the actions of its government? Any harm done by an overreaching press would be nothing compared to a government left unchecked. As much as the news media may rub some the wrong way, it is frightening to think of a society with no free press.

Tarred and slandered by the press of his time — often by newspapers owned or financed by fellow Founders — Thomas Jefferson stayed true to that principle to the day he died on the Fourth of July, 1826.

On this Independence Day, all Americans should renew our commitment to Jefferson's description of the United States as "a country which is afraid to read nothing, and which may be trusted with anything, so long as its reason remains unfettered by law."

On behalf of its approximately 1,500 newspaper and associate member companies, America's Newspapers is committed to explaining, defending and advancing the vital role of newspapers in democracy and civil life. We put an emphasis on educating the public on all the ways newspapers contribute to building a community identity and the success of local businesses. Learn more: www.newspapers.org

Op-Ed: This is our time, Alabama

Alabama Gov. Kay Ivey
Contributor

My fellow Alabamians:

In a few days, America will celebrate her 244th birthday.

Traditionally, many towns and cities around the country light up the night with fireworks and music festivals. In 1776, John Adams predicted that Independence Day would be "celebrated by succeeding generations" with "pomp and circumstance... bonfires and illuminations."

However, largely because of COVID-19, this year's observance of our country's birth will likely be a bit more subdued than previous years. While unfortunate, this is certainly understandable.

Today – and very likely in the days that will follow – instead of talking about what unites us as one nation – other conversations will occur that are, quite frankly, a bit more difficult and challenging.

My personal hope – and prayer – for this year's 4th of July is that the marvel of our great country – how we started, what we've had to overcome, what we've accomplished and where we are going – isn't lost on any of us.

We are all searching for "a more perfect union" during these trying and demanding days.

Over the past several weeks, our nation has been having one of those painful, yet overdue, discussions about the subject of race.

The mere mention of race often makes some people uncomfortable, even though it is a topic that has been around since the beginning of time.

Nationally, a conversation about race brings with it the opportunity where even friends can disagree on solutions; it also can be a catalyst to help total strangers find common ground and see things eye-to-eye with someone they previously did not even know.

Here in Alabama, conversations about race are often set against a backdrop of our state's long – and at times – ugly history on the subject.

No one can say that America's history hasn't had its own share of darkness, pain and suffering.

But with challenge always comes opportunity.

For instance, Montgomery is both the birthplace of the Civil Rights Movement, as well as the cradle of the Confederacy. What a contrast for our Capital City.

The fact is our entire state has, in many ways, played a central role in the ever-evolving story of America and how our wonderful country has, itself, changed and progressed through the years.

Ever since the senseless death of George Floyd in Minneapolis, thousands of Alabamians – of all races, young and old – have taken to the streets of our largest cities and smallest towns in protest to demand change and to seek justice.

These frustrations are understandable.

Change often comes too slowly for some and too quickly for others. As only the second female to be elected governor of our state in more than 200 years, I can attest to this.

Most of us recognize that our views on issues such as race relations tend to grow out of our own background and experiences. But, fortunately, our views can change and broaden as we talk and learn from each other.

As a nation, we believe that all people are created equal in their own rights as citizens, but we also know that making this ideal a reality is still a challenge for us.

Even with the election of America's first African American president 12 years ago, racial, economic and social barriers continue to exist throughout our country.

This just happens to be our time in history to ensure we are building on the progress of the past, as we take steps forward on what has proven to be a long, difficult journey.

Folks, the fact is we need to have real discussions – as an Alabama family. No one should be under the false illusion that simply renaming a building or pulling a monument down, in and of itself, will completely fix systemic discrimination.

Back in January, I invited a group of 65 prominent African American leaders – from all throughout Alabama – to meet with me in Montgomery to begin having a dialogue on issues that truly matter to our African American community in this state.

This dedicated group – known as Alabama United – is helping to bring some very legitimate concerns and issues to the table for both conversation and action.

As an example, Alabama will continue to support law enforcement that is sensitive to the communities in which they serve.

We have thousands of dedicated men and women who put their lives on the line to protect our state every single day.

But we can – and must – make certain that our state's policies and procedures reflect the legitimate concerns that many citizens have about these important issues.

I am confident all these conversations – and hopefully many more – will lead to a host of inspirational ideas that will lead to a more informed debate and enactment of sound public policy.

We must develop ways to advance all communities that lack access to good schools, jobs, and other opportunities.

As governor, I will continue to make education and achieving a good job a priority – it distresses me that some of our rural areas and inner cities face some of the greatest challenges in education.

VIDEO CAPTURE

Alabama Gov. Kay Ivey

There are other critical issues that must be addressed, and I will continue to look for solutions along with you.

Everyone knows government cannot solve these problems alone.

Some of the greatest solutions will come from private citizens as well as businesses, higher education, churches and foundations.

Together, we can all be a part of supporting and building more inclusive communities.

In other words, solving these problems comes from leaning on the principles that make us who we are – our faith – which is embodied in the Golden Rule: "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you."

My beliefs on how to treat people were shaped in Wilcox County and my faith was developed at the Camden Baptist Church.

The bible tells us over and over that our number one goal is to love God with all of one's heart and then to love our neighbor as we love our self. That is what I strive to do every day.

When anyone feels forgotten and marginalized, compassion compels us to embrace, assist and share in their suffering. We must not let race divide us. We must grow and advance together.

Being informed by our past, let us now carefully examine our future and work towards positive change. Together, we can envision an Alabama where all her people truly live up to the greatness within our grasp. We cannot change the past or erase our history... But we can build a future that values the worth of each and every citizen.

So, in closing, my hope and prayer for our country as we pause to celebrate America's 244th birthday, is that we make the most of this moment. As for our state, let's make this a time to heal, to commit ourselves to finding consensus, not conflict, and to show the rest of the nation how far we have come, even as we have further to go.

These first steps – just as we are beginning our third century as a state – may be our most important steps yet.

This is our time, Alabama. May God continue to bless each of you and the great state of Alabama.

Gov. Kay Ivey

Shack (from Front)

The Tribune is highlighting small businesses around Cullman County during the COVID-19 pandemic. Know of one we should feature? Email maggie@cullmantribune.com.

GARDEN CITY, Ala. – Garden City Shiner Shack, known locally as "Shiner Shack," has been in business since 1990. It is family-owned and operated by Ronnie and Patricia Roberts, along with their grandson, Manager Kyle Chandler.

"My parents bought the store in 1990," said Lisa Belcher, Chandler's mom.

"It was a small convenience store that sold very little snacks, drinks and gas.

"Later on, we started carrying minnows and some light tackle, and from that it has (grown) to be a great business over the years.

"His dad and I are avid fishers; we love to fish as much as we can, so we help him out in the Shiner Shack as much as possible, especially with the stock.

"We try and do all his advertising and so forth. But he has brought the business a long way since he has been in the business since the age of 13."

Chandler said the Shack has a wide selection of live bait.

"We do live bait and tackle," he said.

"We have a large variety of live bait. We carry different kinds of minnows, tuffies, medium shiners, large shiners, small goldfish, large goldfish, worms, crickets; about anything you want to go fishing with, we have."

A day of fishing can also work up an appetite. Chandler said his store has you covered in that department as well.

"We also offer Hunt Brothers Pizza, so if you decide to go fishing, stuff like that, call ahead and order pizza, we'll do that for you," he said.

"We do burgers, sandwiches, all kinds of stuff like that. We're like a one-stop shop; that's what we went for."

When asked if the COVID-19 pandemic has affected his business, Chandler said, "We actually have done better during it. We were one of the businesses that didn't have to close; we were able to stay open. It actually benefited us."

The Shiner Shack is located at 313 First Ave. S, Garden City, AL 35070 and is open Monday through Saturday from 4 a.m.-9 p.m. and Sunday from 8 a.m.-9 p.m.

Park (from Front)

We'll visit one each week.

Culpepper Park is a quiet park located in northwest Cullman on 2 acres at the corner of Primrose Drive and Tanner Drive.

It's one of several neighborhood parks located throughout the city.

It may not have the huge attractions of some of the larger parks, but sometimes, a nice quiet stroll or a place to sit and listen to the birds is what a person is looking for.

The park is open from sunrise to sundown and features a large slide, swings, see-saw, a large new rope playground and a baseball field.

The playground is adjacent to a subdivision, so this is not a playground for a large rowdy crowd.

It's perfect for the neighborhood kids and visitors looking for a quiet place to enjoy.

The playground is nestled in a wooded area that provides much needed shade on hot summer days.

The woods also invite songbirds who provide lovely background music for a day of relaxation.

Pets are also welcome at Culpepper Park, and with a mix of open sunny areas and shaded ones, it is a nice place to bring your dog for some exercise. Complimentary doggy poop bags are provided.

The ballfield is well maintained but appeared a bit lonely Thursday due to COVID-19 restrictions. During a normal spring and summer, the field is a perfect little place for the neighborhood kids to practice hitting and fielding or get together for a fun game.

Behind the ballfield is a large grassy area that is a nice spot to sit in the sun or throw around a frisbee.

The main attraction at Culpepper Park is the new jungle explorer dome. This large climbing apparatus offers many levels of climbing and different types of rope features for a unique play experience for all ages.

Whether you want to keep it low to the ground or want to feel like the king of the mountain, the playground is a great departure from the norm.

If old-school is your preference, Culpepper Park still has a tall metal slide for folks to enjoy.

Don't worry, though, it's in the shade, so burning your backside is not an issue. There are also fun swings including a swing for those with special needs. The playground also has wheelchair accessible ramps.

There is a picnic table for a nice quiet picnic, but keep in mind, there are no restrooms at Culpepper Park.

The park is maintained by Cullman Parks, Recreation & Sports Tourism.

Campaign (from Front)

Wendy Sack
wendy@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN, Ala. – Cullman Regional and the City of Cullman have joined with U.S. Rep. Robert Aderholt, R-Alabama; Cullman County Commission Chairman Kenneth Walker; Sen. Garlan Gudger, R-Cullman; Rep. Randall Shedd, R-Fairview; Rep. Scott Stadthagen, R-Hartselle; and Rep. Corey Harbison, R-Good Hope to launch a campaign to help slow the spread of COVID-19 in the community.

The campaign, dubbed "It's Not About You," encourages community members to practice the following:

1. Wash your hands frequently.
2. Maintain a 6-foot distance when out.
3. Wear a mask when you can't maintain a 6-foot distance from others.

"Cullman Regional continues to see an increase not only in the number of community members that need to be tested, but also in the number of community members hospitalized due to COVID-19," Cullman Regional CEO James Clements said. "No one wants to shut down again, but we need the community's help to help stop the spread."

According to the hospital, as of Thursday, July 2, there are nine COVID-19 patients hospitalized. "These patients range from age 41 to over 85. The majority of patients has underlying health issues including but not limited to: pneumonia, COPD, emphysema, heart failure (CHF), diabetes, lung cancer. Some of the patients are aware of their underlying health issues and others are finding out after admission."

"We're not asking our community to not live, but we're asking them to live differently," Clements said. "We understand and agree that people need community interaction with friends and loved ones and businesses need to continue operating. However, you can interact 6 feet apart or with a mask on. And if you're sick or have come into contact with anyone with a known positive COVID-19 test, stay home."

State Health Officer Dr. Scott Harris said the increase in cases in Alabama is not due to increased testing.

"Dr. Scott Harris, Alabama Department of Public Health emphasized during a discussion with hospitals across the state of Alabama that the state increase is not due to increased testing," Cullman Regional Chief Medical Officer William Smith, MD said. "According to Dr. Harris, COVID-19 positive cases (have) increased by 30% in the state of Alabama; however, the state has only seen an 8% increase in testing during this same period."

"We have learned a lot since the start of this pandemic," said Aderholt. "One of the biggest lessons we learned is that shutting down the economy is not the answer.

"A vaccine will come later this year, and I don't know about you, but I don't want to sit in the house waiting until then. So, it's going to take each of use practicing social distancing, washing our hands and wearing a mask when we go to crowded areas to get things back to normal sooner rather than later."

Commented Gudger, "The Cullman community has to work together to stop the spread of this virus.

"The changes within our society, specifically how we interact socially with one another are very different for all of us. But if we work as a team and everyone plays their role in achieving a higher standard, together we can beat this virus and keep all of us safe.

"I urge everyone, please do your part by washing or sanitizing your hands, wearing masks in public and greeting one another with fist bumps instead of shaking hands in order to stop the spread and keep Cullman safe."

"I'm doing everything I can think of to prevent spreading COVID-19 to my family, friends and people I come in contact with," stated Shedd. "Let's all take it seriously and help each other."

Added Stadthagen, "As our community COVID-19 case numbers rise, I would like to encourage everyone to take the proper precautionary measures to stop the spread.

"Protect your neighbors, friends and coworkers as you would your family, because that is exactly what we are in this community, a family."

"Today, (St. Bernard) Abbot (Marcus) Voss, Coach Mike Dean and myself are strongly urging you to wear a face covering for the next 29 days when in public places," Cullman Mayor Woody Jacobs said.

"We cannot make this political or about ourselves. We believe that each person has it in him and her to place others' needs in front of their own for the next 29 days."
