CULLMAN, Ala. – A delegation from Selma traveled to Cullman Thursday to talk about how two remarkably different communities with polar opposite historical backgrounds might address differences and discuss future partnerships that allow each community to benefit from the successes of the other.

Sen. Garlan Gudger, R-Cullman and Sen. Malika Sanders-Fortier, D-Selma have developed a friendship as freshmen legislators, and those discussions led to Gudger visiting Selma earlier this year and Sanders-Fortier visiting Cullman Thursday with three fellow community members.

Both senators said it was eye opening to learn about the community the other represents.

Ivey awards $1.7M grant to expand court facility dog program in Alabama

Jim Plott

MONTGOMERY, Ala. – Gov. Kay Ivey has awarded $1.17 million to continue and expand a statewide program that helps children and others who have been victims of crime feel more at ease when testifying in court or undergoing other crime-related interviews.

The grant to the Alabama Office of Prosecution Services will enable that state agency to continue its facility dog program. The program uses specially trained dogs to calm traumatized victims when they are called into the courtroom or interview room to recount details of often horrific crimes committed against them.

"I cannot imagine what victims, especially children, have to go through when they are called before strangers to recall what is often a very personal and sensitive tragedy that they have difficulty even relaying to family members," Ivey said. "This program has proven beyond successful and has been admired and modeled by other states. I am pleased to support its continuation and expansion here in Alabama."

Facility dogs have been used more than 1,000 times including forensic interviews, court hearings medical examinations and other case related matters. The dogs are based in several counties, but according to the Office of Prosecution Services, are available for use throughout the state.

The Alabama Department of Economic and Community Affairs (ADECA) is administering the grant from funds made available to the state from the U.S. Department of Justice.

"The facility dog program has been vastly successful and well received throughout the state," ADECA Director Kenneth Boswell said. "Although we would prefer that there would be no reason for this program to even exist, ADECA joins with Gov. Ivey in assisting with its continued success."

Gov. Ivey notified Barry Matson, executive director of Prosecution Services, that the grant had been approved.

ADECA administers a wide range of programs that support law enforcement, victim programs, economic development, water resource management, energy conservation and recreation.

What's new for the 2020-2021 hunting seasons

David Rainer
Ala. Dept. of Conservation and Natural Resources

MONTGOMERY, Ala. – Deer hunters will find two new zones in the 2020-2021 Alabama Deer Zones map with season dates that better coincide with deer rutting activity in those areas.

Chuck Sykes, Alabama Wildlife and Freshwater Fisheries (WFF) director, said studies have confirmed that deer in Zone D in northwest Alabama and Zone E in southeast Alabama rut significantly earlier than deer in most of the state.

"We have been conducting annual herd health checks for the past 15 years. Part of the data gathered was the reproductive status of the animal. That data is what helped us move the season into February. We also determined we had deer that rutted early," Sykes said. "We already knew this from historical stocking data, but it took us a little more time to determine some clear-cut boundaries that would take in those areas.

"It was pretty easy to set up Zone A and Zone B. We basically just divided the state. But D and E are isolated pockets with early rutting deer, so it took a little more time to get those boundaries defined. Once we got the boundaries defined, it was a logical step to make those new zones."

Sykes said in the majority of the state the deer rut considerably later, and it was reasonable to move the season dates to close on February 10. The seasons in Zone D and Zone E start early and end early.

"Because of the early rut in Zone E, some of those deer were already casting (shedding) their antlers," he said. "So, people who were trying to fill their freezers later in the year ended up shooting 2- and 3-year-old bucks that had cast their antlers, thinking they were just shooting a big, old doe. The season comes in early to cover the rut, but it also goes out early to try to protect those bucks that had already shed."

Newcomers to hunting or those with little experience can take advantage of the WFF's Adult Mentored Hunts (AMH), which Sykes said has been tweaked for the 2020-2021 season. Last year, a requirement to take a one-day workshop to be eligible for an AMH event was implemented. This year, potential participants can take a Hunting 101 or Introduction to Deer or Turkey to meet the requirement.

"What we found was we had too many people backing out at the last minute," he said. "Now, with the introductory courses or Hunting 101, people have to have a little skin in the game. Once you complete the one-day workshop, you will be eligible for one of the three-day, full-blown Adult Mentored Hunts. Last year, our participation rates went through the roof on our three-day hunts. The people who were eligible had already been to the one-day workshop, and they had figured out if they wanted to participate.

"Our staff puts in a lot of work and effort to make these hunts happen, and to have somebody cancel at the last minute was taxing on us. Plus, I'm sure there would have been a lot of people willing to take that slot on one of the best hunting areas in the state."

WFF's Justin Grider, who has been in charge of the AMH events since their inception four years ago, said the new format has achieved positive results in terms of hunter recruitment.

"We're finding that people who are self-motivated are signing up for the Hunting 101 workshop," Grider said. "If they are willing to give up a Saturday and learn about hunting and firearms safety at one of our public shooting ranges, we're finding they are more likely to continue hunting as a result. Whereas, our previous format was come one, come all. Whoever wanted to apply could, and the participants were randomly selected from that pool. But we ended up with attrition rates above 50 percent. We had people who accepted a spot and then backed out. That was very frustrating and a waste of state resources."

Grider said the new workshops not only confirmed participants' commitments, they also reached a broader audience.

"With the AMH events, we could only accommodate a few people at a time," he said. "With the one-day workshops, we can accommodate as many people as want to come. Last year, we had about 40 people at the workshop outside of Birmingham."

Grider said new this year is an option to attend a species-specific workshop that focuses on deer or turkey.

"When we polled our participants in hunter education, 90 percent said they wanted to hunt either deer or turkey," he said.

"We created those Learn-to-Hunt workshops to satisfy that demand. With that, we cast a really big net to reach a lot of folks."

The Hunting 101 workshop covers the basics on hunting safety and is geared to small game, like rabbit hunting, squirrel hunting and dove hunting.

"If you come to one of these Learn-to-Hunt workshops, we will obviously focus on the safety components of firearms and treestand safety, and then we will really drill down on the hunting of a specific species. If it's turkey, we will go into the different turkey calls, the gear we use, patterning shotguns, how to find birds, setting up for a hunt, everything you need to know to hunt turkeys.

"With Hunting 101, you'll have a chance to shoot a .22 and a shotgun. You'll learn about what is good squirrel habitat or where you can find some rabbits. Then later in the day, you will have the opportunity to do a little small-game hunting or become familiar with the habitat."

Either workshop meets the requirement to apply for the three-day AMH events. Grider also said people can come to as many of the workshops as they want.

"These are great opportunities to meet additional staff members, additional mentors and new hunters," Grider said.

"That's the other component of the one-day workshops – it's a great opportunity to socialize with other hunters, mentors and staff. And it's not based on previous hunting experience.

"If you've been an avid deer hunter for 20 years and are interested in turkey hunting, come to that turkey workshop. It's a great networking tool."

Anyone interested in one of the workshops or an AMH event can visit www.outdooralabama.com/hunting/adult-mentored-hunting-program and use the interactive map to find a Hunting 101 or Learn-to-Hunt event.

Although there has been little mention of chronic wasting disease (CWD) during the COVID-19 outbreak, Sykes said WFF still needs the assistance of hunters to properly monitor the state's deer herd.

"We still need people to help us collect samples," he said. "Just because COVID hit, CWD didn't miraculously go away. We're still collecting samples. We're still doing all of our surveillance. And we need people to participate. We installed those self-check freezers around the state for people to drop off samples. The response from the public was less than desirable.

"Just because we're not talking about it every day like we have been for the past couple of years, CWD didn't go anywhere. There's still the threat. The numbers in Mississippi and Tennessee are still growing. We have to be diligent in doing our part so if it does hit, we can react swiftly."

Locations of the self-service freezers are available at https://www.outdooralabama.com/cwd-sampling.

Sykes also wants to remind deer and turkey hunters about the changes to the possession regulation for the upcoming seasons.

Hunters who harvest deer and turkeys must maintain proper paperwork when transferring possession of that animal to a processor, taxidermist or any other individual.

According to WFF's Law Enforcement Section, the recording and reporting requirements remain the same in Game Check. The update concerns possession of the game by someone other than the hunter.

Whoever is in possession of all or part of a deer or turkey that is not their own must retain written documentation with the name of the hunter, the hunter's Conservation ID number, the date of the harvest and Game Check confirmation number.

The information can be documented on a piece of paper, or a transfer of possession certificate is available in the Alabama Hunting & Fishing Digest or online at www.outdooralabama.com.

The documentation must be kept as long as that person is in possession of that deer or turkey.

The hunter who harvests the deer or turkey is required to enter that animal into the Game Check system and maintain in his or her possession a valid confirmation number for that animal.

Hunters still have 48 hours to report the harvest through Game Check to attain a confirmation number. However, the game cannot be transferred to another individual until a valid Game Check confirmation number has been acquired.

The easiest way to comply with the requirements is to download the Outdoor AL smartphone app. The other is to go to outdooralabama.com and click on "Game Check." For those who don't have internet access, WFF has self-service kiosks at all district offices. The 1-800 number is no longer in effect. Visit www.outdooralabama.com/transfer-possession for more information.

CULLMAN, Ala. – In response to a mutual aid request to Division F of the Alabama Mutual Aid System (AMAS), the Cullman Police Department and Hanceville Police Department sent officers to Foley, Alabama in the aftermath of Hurricane Sally, which made landfall Wednesday, Sept. 16, 2020. The officers pulled out from Hanceville City Hall on a mission of mercy to the storm-ravaged region of south Alabama. They will be providing security at a feeding location and equipment staging point in Foley for contractors working on cleanup and recovery operations.

Hanceville Mayor Kenneth Nail and Public Works Director Rusty Fields accompanied the group to deliver a pull-behind camper to be used as a mobile command center. The officials will return Friday, but the police officers will work on the coast for up to seven days. According to Nail, another team of officers could be sent after that.

AMAS is a program administered by the Alabama Emergency Management Agency to ensure that trained first responders can be placed throughout the state as needed in response to a major disaster. The Cullman County Sheriff's Office is on standby to send follow-up assistance when needed.

The four officers from the Cullman Police Department who have been deployed are Lt. Scott Sanford, Officer Jake Lambert, Officer Tyler Jackson and Officer Jeff Mize. The two officers from Hanceville are Lt. Brannon Hammick and Sgt. Josh Howell.

"We've been on deployments with the sheriff's department and Hanceville and Division F officers, so we're familiar with it," said Cullman Police Chief Kenny Culpepper. "We're glad to participate because at some point we may need it. Also, for example, when the tornadoes came through in 2011, 70% of our officers had been on deployments like this on previous hurricanes or tornadoes, so they were used to, and had experience working with, the National Guard, FEMA, state EMA, and various agencies, State Troopers in a disaster. That experience is invaluable, the real-world experience you get from something like this that you can use if you ever have a similar situation."

Cullman Fire Chief Brian Bradberry said Cullman Fire Rescue is also part of AMAS Division F. The department has not yet been called upon to assist but stands ready to assist if needed.

Lt. Scott Sanford told The Tribune, "We've been associated with Region F for many years, which is one of seven regions in the state of Alabama that respond to emergency situations through EMA, typically. Usually, it's disaster relief, whether it be hurricanes, tornadoes, anything of that nature, if another agency needs help. Apparently, the folks down south have reached out to us and requested some help, and we're going to send six officers from Cullman County, total- four from Cullman city and two from the city of Hanceville- down to assist, to help the folks out down there."

On Wednesday, the Cullman Power Board sent a crew to Fairhope to assist with power restoration for customers served by Fairhope Public Utilities under a statewide mutual aid agreement administered by the Electric Cities of Alabama.

"Our thoughts and prayers are with the people affected by the hurricane and with our local law enforcement officers, first responders, utility workers and other personnel who are answering the call for assistance," said Cullman Mayor Woody Jacobs.

Said Nail, "We're always real ready and able to assist our neighbors in need. Folks came and helped us in 2011, and we just think it's our responsibility to do that."

The Cullman Electric Cooperative also sent crews to assist. The Co-op said on Facebook: "Early this morning, Cullman Electric Cooperative sent nine men to help Covington Electric Cooperative and Baldwin EMC. They will work to restore power in the aftermath of Hurricane Sally. We are thankful for their willingness to serve, and our thoughts and prayers are with all those affected by Hurricane Sally." RUSTON, La. – In its first tournament of the 2020-21 season, the UAB men's golf team won the Jim Rivers Intercollegiate in dominant fashion by 14 strokes at Squire Creek Club hosted by Louisiana Tech.

Along with winning the overall team title, junior Nick Robillard (67-68-72 = 207) led the field wire-to-wire en route to winning his first individual collegiate tournament. Robillard finished the three-day event at -9 and won by four strokes.

"What an emotional victory!" said head coach Mike Wilson.

"This was our first tournament back after getting shut down in March and I am so happy for all the guys on the team – it was truly a team effort.

"I am also thrilled for Nick. He's worked really hard the last couple of months and it is starting to pay off for him."

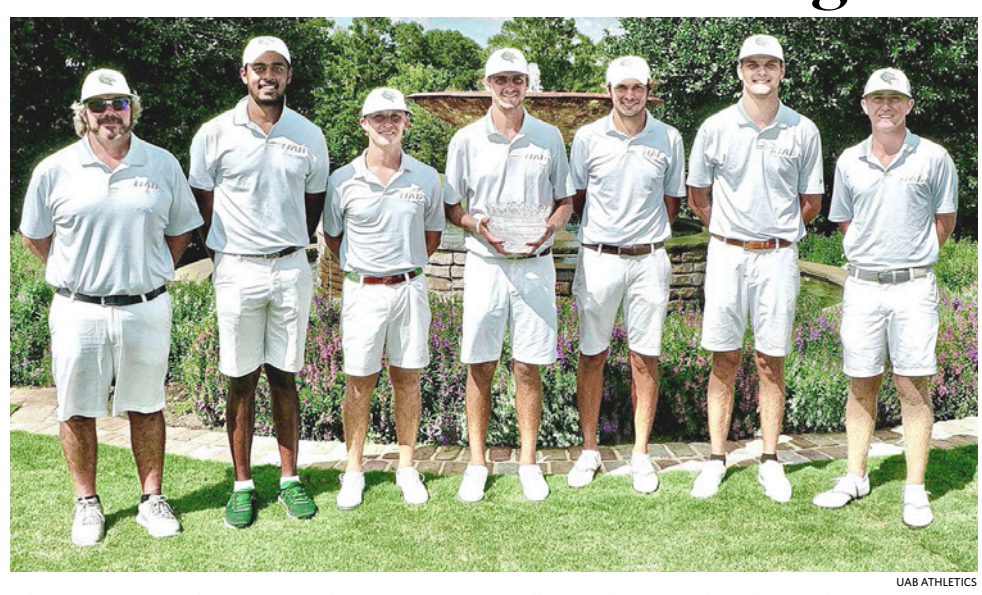

UAB finished at -21 overall, which was 14 strokes clear of South Alabama (-7). The Blazers had three of the top four finishers in the field as seniors Drew Mathers and William Walker III each tied for third place overall at four-under.

Reigning C-USA Freshman of the Year Khavish Varadan carded a three-under 69 in Tuesday's final round to move up 13 spots and finish 17th overall at +1.

Ethan Hagood (+6, T30) and Ben Reichert (+9, T45) rounded out UAB's championship efforts.

The Blazers have won the Jim Rivers Intercollegiate in two of the past three years after also taking the team title in 2018.

UAB now turns its attention to the Scenic City Classic hosted by Chattanooga next Monday and Tuesday, Sept. 21-22, at The Honors Course.

Crimson Tide Football continues practice Wednesday afternoon

UA Athletics

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. – The Alabama football team put in two hours of work Wednesday afternoon at the Thomas-Drew Practice Field. Head coach Nick Saban spoke to the media after practice and began by touching on some of the things he and his staff have focused on after Saturday's scrimmage.

"I think the big focus for us this week was to improve. We obviously had a lot of things coming out of the second scrimmage that we had penciled in where we need to do better and still have some situations that we need to cover. This is kind of a hump week for the players in a lot of ways, but I think we need to do everything better. I think we've got to have a little better focus and intensity in practice and I think we need to not get sloppy in terms of the fundamentals and techniques that we've been working on for a long time.

"So, I think everything needs to improve. We need to improve the technique; we need to improve the look we get from the other team and we need to improve how we practice and how we finish plays."

The Crimson Tide began preparing for their season opener during Wednesday's practice and Saban wants to see his team's focus begin to shift more to the upcoming season.

"We did start a little bit today on getting ready for the first game. We'll continue to do that tomorrow so in think that something the players have to get in their sights. We have a game coming up, we're not just practicing to practice and they've got to change their mindset.

"With that comes a change in you sense of urgency, immediacy, playing smart, getting things in meetings and being able to take them to the field and getting your mind right so that you're ready to compete and play in a game."

Saban also announced that Alabama has begun testing players daily for COVID-19 in an effort to mitigate the spread of the virus and keeps as many players available for game days as possible.

"One of the things we've done here internally is that we are doing daily testing with our players. We just thought it gives the players peace of mind, it's the best thing for the players, it's the best thing for the program and we have the capabilities and resources to do it so we're happy to do it. We've been testing three but we just decided that this week we would go test our guys every day and with that, hopefully everybody feels safe and it will help the fact that we may not have to quarantine some of these guys and minimize exposures. Everybody has to sort of manage their person space as best as possible so we can have the most players available for every game but especially this first game."

Nick Griffin

FAIRVIEW, Ala. – Brewer traveled to Fairview for an area match with the Lady Aggies Thursday night and the Lady Patriots were sent home with a 3-1 area loss. Fairview got off to a fast start, taking the first two sets over Brewer to take a 2-0 lead in the match. After dropping a tight third set, the Lady Aggies bounced back and won the fourth set to finish off the Lady Patriots and collect an area win.

Fairview 25 – Brewer 18
The Lady Aggies jumped out to an early 15-7 lead in the first set and continued to stretch their lead out to 21-9. Brewer put together a big scoring run to cut into the lead, but it wasn't enough, and Fairview held on to take the opening set 25-18.

Fairview 25 – Brewer 17
It was more of the same in the next set. The Lady Aggies took an early 4-2 lead that they eventually grew to 7-3. The Lady Patriots fought back to tie the set at 8 before taking a 12-10 lead. Fairview was then able to tie things back up at 14 and then pulled ahead to a 17-14 advantage. The run continued for the Lady Aggies as they moved ahead 21-15 and pulled away to take the second set 25-18 and go up 2-0 in the match.

Brewer 25 – Fairview 23
Brewer was able to avoid the sweep in the third set. The Lady Patriots led the way 9-4 early and eventually built up a 18-8 lead midway through the set. Fairview was able to trim the lead down to 18-16 and 21-20 at one point but Brewer was able to pull away and take the third set 25-23 to extend the match to a fourth set.

Fairview 25 – Brewer 21
Things didn't look great for the Lady Aggies early in the fourth set. The Lady Patriots quickly jumped out to a 4-0 lead that grew to 9-3 as the set progressed. Brewer held a 14-8 advantage at one point, but Fairview took over from that point.

The Lady Aggies cut the lead down to 16-12, went on to tie the set at 16 and eventually pulled ahead to take a 19-17 lead. The Lady Patriots stayed within a couple points of Fairview the rest of the way, but the Lady Aggies were still able to win the set 25-21 and take the area match 3-1.

Daisy Manasco posted 25 kills, seven digs, two aces and a block in the win and Micah Means added 38 assists, five blocks, four digs, three kills and an ace.

HOLLY POND, Ala. – The east side of Cullman County now has the convenience of a Cullman County Probate satellite office. Located inside Holly Pond Town Hall, the office is open one day a week, for now, but Probate Judge Tammy Brown said she is hoping to expand service hours there in the future. Brown, along with members of the Probate Office staff, joined Holly Pond Mayor Bill Oliver Thursday afternoon to celebrate.

The new satellite office was established with the aim of making Probate Office services more convenient for residents on the eastern side of the county.

Another satellite office is in Dodge City. The satellite offices can assist citizens with business, boat, hunting, fishing and marriage licenses. Deeds and mortgages can also be recorded.

Said Brown, "Basically everything except driver's licenses can be done here. All this is with the State. We just have an employee who can do that, so we are just taking the State-provided services to the people."

Brown said she is working on adding a computer station, which will allow people to renew their driver's licenses online. "That will be an added benefit," she said.

Voter registration cards and sample ballots are also available at the Holly Pond satellite office. Court, anything to do with elections, driver's license road tests and photos will still need to be done at the Cullman County Courthouse.

The Cullman County Revenue Office handles car tags and property taxes at the courthouse and its Baileyton satellite office.

The Holly Pond satellite office is open Tuesdays from 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m. Kristi Nielsen, who works at the Dodge City office, will be working at the Holly Pond location as well. Brown said she has a couple of employees out on leave and others busy preparing for the November election, but she hopes to expand the Holly Pond office's days of services after November.

"I'd like to see two or three days, or whatever we need down here," said Oliver.

The inside of Holly Pond Town Hall has been renovated in the past several months, making the space inviting and allowing plenty of room for the Probate Office to conduct business.

"This is the perfect location for this side of the county," Brown said. "We are excited. It's been a great experience. It's taken a little bit longer. We've had some obstacles, but we overcame them and we are so excited to be out here. As an elected official, serving the people of the county and making things more convenient for them is what it's all about."

CULLMAN, Ala. – Cullman Electric Cooperative (CEC) has dispatched multiple crews south to help in the aftermath of Hurricane Sally.

"We have eight linemen working today at Pioneer Electric Cooperative in Greenville, and one of our warehouse workers has gone to assist Baldwin EMC down on the coast," CEC Manager of Communications & External Affairs Brian Lacy said Wednesday afternoon. "Once our linemen are finished with repairs at Pioneer, they will head south and join the rest in the recovery efforts down in Baldwin County."

Lacy said the crews will be working with others to clear debris to hasten repairs, then replacing broken poles and downed power lines.

"Linemen will work to get power lines back up and energized," he said. "In some cases that might only require replacing broken wire, but often it's like rebuilding the electrical grid from the ground up. If power poles are broken or damaged, they'll start by setting a new pole and hanging new wire, new transformers and all of the other equipment that is required. Typically, right-of-way crews handle debris clean-up and removal, but sometimes in a storm situation, linemen will have to clear fallen trees or broken limbs out of the road or off the power lines in order to get their work done."

Important to any power company's or cooperative's success are the relationships they have with others. Lacy said it is not uncommon for the CEC to send crews further than just Mississippi, Alabama and Florida.

"Our linemen know there will come a day when Cullman Electric Cooperative — their home, and family and friends — will need help. Our guys have traveled to Louisiana, North Carolina, Florida, Kentucky and every other state in the Southeast in recent years after hurricanes, tornadoes, blizzards and ice storms. The last time we had a major disaster back in 2011, more than 300 linemen from all over the country came here to help us," Lacy said.

"Linemen take great pride in helping others. They know that getting power restored is one of the most important steps in helping a community start the recovery and rebuilding process," he continued. "They also have a sense of duty to help out their fellow linemen. It's definitely a brotherhood where even though they might not know each other, they know how hard and dangerous the job can be, especially after a natural disaster, so they are quick to answer the call for help when they know people are in a bad situation."

While many see the linemen working to reconnect lines and secure new power poles, fewer see those working behind the scenes to keep workers fed and well taken care of.

"In addition to linemen, we regularly send members of our warehouse crew to help neighboring co-ops after major storms. There is a huge amount of material like poles, wires, transformers and other supplies needed to make repairs, as well as other logistics issues such as fuel, housing, food and laundry," Lacy said. "Coordinating the delivery, storage and distribution of those supplies and meals among co-op employees and all of the outside linemen who have come to help is a massive undertaking. It can really slow down the recovery process if you can't get the linemen the supplies they need as well as a good meal and some rest after a long day's work."

Lacy said while electric companies have enough staff on hand for a normal emergency, they quickly become overwhelmed and understaffed in the event of a natural disaster. He said this is another reason why it is vital to have good relationships with other electric companies.

"Electric companies typically have enough linemen on staff to handle the everyday construction and maintenance work, along with ordinary power outages. When a natural disaster like a hurricane, tornado or ice storm causes extensive damage, it could take those linemen weeks or months to make all of the repairs," he said. "By sending linemen from across the state or region to an area that has been impacted, the repair work can get done much faster. Power lines are built and designed based on national standards that all linemen are trained on, so a visiting crew of linemen with the right equipment and supplies can make a huge impact in reducing the time it takes to get power restored."

According to the CEC, as of Thursday morning, Pioneer EC had approximately 2,000 without power. Baldwin EMC still had approximately 78,000 people without power. Find updates on Baldwin County EMC at www.baldwinemc.com/hurricane/.

with a white, male, Republican senator from a predominately white community in north Alabama," said Sanders-Fortier. She said it is refreshing to see two groups from such diverse backgrounds working together and looking for ways to further the success of their individual communities.

Gudger acknowledged their friendship raised eyebrows in Montgomery, but said he feels he and his colleague have grown as a result of their conversations. He said that led to the visit by the Selma group.

"I met several community leaders in Selma on my visit there and invited them to come to Cullman."

Selma's delegation wanted to tour Cullman's park and recreation program and facilities, the downtown area and hear about the community's reputation of working together on industrial, tourism and community projects.

A windshield tour of the community , followed by a luncheon meeting at the Cullman Area Chamber of Commerce with Cullman Mayor Woody Jacobs, Chamber staff, Wallace State Community College and the Cullman Economic Development Agency allowed the visitors to see and then hear about how various Cullman achievements occurred.

Information the visitors from Selma sought included the history on the formation of Heritage Park, Field of Miracles, Wellness & Aquatic Center and other facilities; how Cullman attacked tourism attraction; how Wallace State Hanceville differs from Wallace State Selma in partnerships with secondary education and workforce training; and if Cullman's reputation for developing effective public-private partnerships was accurate and how that was accomplished.

HomTex owners Jerry and Jeremy Wootten discussed the City of Cullman and Cullman County industrial board down payment loans to the company that allowed it to secure the disposable facemask production equipment that has already created 130 new jobs at the Cullman facility.

Sanders-Fortier said Selma had a significant role in the Civil Rights movement with the march to Montgomery and the Edmund Pettus Bridge that annually attracts thousands of tourists. She said she is looking for suggestions on how Selma can expand tourism. "I want to return with some of our key leaders in several different areas for a visit."

Cullman Chamber of Commerce Interim President & CEO Peggy Smith said the visit provided "a wonderful opportunity for an exchange of ideas."

Jacobs commended the delegation on its "vision and commitment to community partnerships" that continue to move Selma forward. He said tourism and economic development are key components, but "working together as community leaders is critical."

Wallace State Community College (Hanceville) Assistant to the President for Advancement Suzanne Harbin said the Hanceville-Selma colleges have successfully partnered on grants for 10 years or more.

"It was a pleasure to host the delegation from Selma today," Gudger said. "We are all aware of the division we are witnessing in our country. As community leaders we are uniquely positioned to bring our communities together to learn from each other."

Sanders-Fortier agreed the day was "enlightening and informative," saying "I look forward to continued sharing."
