HANCEVILLE, Ala. – The Alabama Community College System Board of Trustees on Wednesday honored the legacy of the late Dr. Garlan Gudger, Sr. by approving the naming of the student center at Wallace State Community College as the Garlan E. Gudger, Sr. Student Center.

Gudger served as the college's first Dean of Students starting in 1976 and was instrumental in the college's growth for two decades.

"He was passionate about student involvement, physical health and well-being, and the benefits of sports to a student body," Wallace State President Dr. Vicki Karolewics read from the official resolution presented to the ACCS Board of Trustees.

Gudger initiated the college's athletic program during his first year on campus and advocated for more teams to be added. He also formed a large intramural sports program with students, involving hundreds of students in basketball, flag football and more.

"He helped students with everything from personal dilemmas to financial problems, including mentoring and modeling kindness and a strong work ethic," Karolewics continued. "In some cases, he generously personally funded the student's college career."

CULLMAN, Ala. - The Cullman City School Board on Thursday afternoon recognized outgoing board member Suzanne Harbin for her 17 years of service on the board. Harbin has served since 2003.

Superintendent Dr. Susan Patterson called Harbin "not only a board member but a friend, a pillar of our community and our schools."

Said Patterson, "She spends many long hours on her own full-time job, but then always has been there when you need her as a board member, and always had the kids and students in her heart and doing what's best for them."

Each of the board members took a turn thanking Harbin for her contributions to the board and system, and for her help to each of them as they came to the board.

Lee Powell is also stepping down from the board, but was not present Thursday evening.

His recognition will take place at a later date.

The new Cullman City School Board will be sworn in Nov. 2, 2020.

Superintendent (from Front)

W.C. Mann
craig@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN, Ala. – The Cullman City School Board on Thursday afternoon approved a plan for the selection of a new superintendent to replace retiring Superintendent Dr. Susan Patterson, who announced last month that she will leave her post next summer. Attorney Taylor Brooks of Lanier Ford Shaver and Payne P.C. laid out the plan for the notice of vacancy, process of selection and timeline, noting that the board will be able to amend the plan in the future.

According to Brooks, the notice of vacancy will be released Nov. 2, 2020 and will be posted at the system's central office, on the system's website and in various professional journals.

The application period will run from that time until Jan. 4, 2021, and candidates will do their initial application through the law firm's website. Brooks said he expects to receive 20-25 applications.

From those applications, each board member will rank his or her top five choices and send those lists to the attorney, who will then determine the top five candidates based on the number of votes from board members.

The board may choose to increase that number if it wishes. The finalists will be announced to the board Jan. 19, 2021.

The board will then interview those candidates while the law firm conducts a detailed background check on each one.

On March 16, 2021, the board will vote on the next superintendent.

Fairview topples Guntersville, West Point to win 5A, Area 14 Tournament

Nick Griffin
nick@cullmantribune.com

WEST POINT, Ala. – Everyone had a feeling this year's 5A, Area 14 Tournament would come down to Fairview and West Point and that turned out to be the case Wednesday night. The Lady Warriors downed Brewer 3-1 and Fairview edged Guntersville in a five-set thriller to set up a rematch of this year's Cullman County Championship showdown. West Point took down the Lady Aggies in that title bout but this time around, it was Fairview that came out on top with a sweep. As a result, the Lady Aggies have earned the chance to host the sub-regional tournament on their home floor this Saturday.

Fairview 3 – West Point 0 (25-21, 25-19, 25-19)

The Lady Aggies held a 16-12 advantage midway through the first set of the area tournament finals, but West Point was able to close the gap and cut the deficit to 19-17 before eventually tying things up at 20. However, Fairview dominated the final moments of the first set and pulled away to win it 25-21, taking a 1-0 lead in the championship match.

Fairview got off to another fast start in the next set, taking a 3-0 lead and stretching it to 9-3 as the set went on. The Lady Aggies pulled ahead 13-6 midway through the set and the scoring run continued. Fairview eventually moved ahead 18-8 but the Lady Warriors didn't quit, and managed to trim the lead to 24-19 at one point but the Lady Aggies picked up the last point they needed to take the second set 25-19 and a 2-0 lead in the match.

The score was knotted at 3 and then again at 6 early in the third match before Fairview managed to create any separation. The Lady Aggies eventually found themselves in front 10-7 and they added to their lead to make it 15-10 midway through the set. A 4-0 scoring run from Fairview made it 19-10 and began to put things out of reach for West Point. The Lady Warriors once again found a scoring surge late in the set but it wasn't enough to over the Fairview lead and the Lady Aggies held on to win it 25-19 to complete the sweep of West Point and capture this year's 5A, Area 14 Tournament crown.

Micah Means posted 28 assists, six blocks, two digs and a kill and Daisy Manasco added 14 kills, six digs, three aces and a block for Fairview in the win. Kabri Redding tacked on nine kills and a block, Cassidy Hutchison finished with five blocks and a pair of kills, Jacy Gorham recorded nine blocks and four kills and Devan Fulmer added five kills and four blocks. Maddie Yeager, Emma Garcia and Kyleigh Aleman each finished with eight, seven and two digs respectively. Both West Point and Fairview will advance to the sub-regional round and the Lady Aggies will host their sub-regional tournament Saturday.

JASPER, Ala. -- A pair of Cullman County volleyball teams traveled to Curry High School Wednesday afternoon, the Good Hope Raiders and the Hanceville Bulldogs.

The Good Hope Raiders and the Hanceville Bulldogs were the first to play. The Bulldogs were eliminated by the Raiders after they swept the match 25-7, 25-8 and 25-8.

The Raiders took the first two sets against the Hanceville Bulldogs behind the strong play of Ivey Maddox, Morgan Hammock and Abbie Stripling

Going into the third set the score was tight early on as the Bulldogs fought to keep things close, but the lady Raiders were just too much for the Lady Bulldogs and they pulled away to win it 25-8 and sweep the match to advance and play Curry for the area tournament title.

The Yellow Jackets opened up an early lead in the first set and never let up. The Lady Raiders played hard but went down 25-13.

The Lady Raiders took the early lead in the next 3-0. Exciting volleys went back and forth as both teams played hard. Curry fought back to take a 10-6 lead, but Good Hope tied the score at 13 before the Yellow Jackets called timeout. The second set remained tight with the lead changing hands several times. Curry pulled ahead 24-21 before Good Hope fought back to tie things up at 24 but after it a very competitive set, it was Curry that finished on top 26-24.

The third set was dominated by Curry as the Lady Yellow Jackets downed the Lady Raiders 25-12 to complete the sweep and earn the area tournament title.

The Good Hope Lady Raiders finished as the 4A, Area 11 Tournament runners-up and will travel to play in a sub-regional tournament Saturday.

Gunnar Watson named Sun Belt Offensive Player of the Week & Davey O'Brien Great 8

Adam Prendergast
Troy Athletics

TROY, Ala. -- Coming off the best performance in his young career, Troy sophomore quarterback Gunnar Watson has been named the Sun Belt Conference Offensive Player of the Week and to the Davey O'Brien Great 8 List.

Watson completed 33-of-46 passes for 338 yards and four touchdowns in Troy's victory over Texas State in the Trojans' home opener this past Saturday despite battling the remnants of Hurricane Delta.

His completion total ranked as the 11th most in a single game in school history while his four touchdown strikes tied for the ninth most.

In 2020, any player named to a Davey O'Brien Great 8 List during the season who was not previously named to the Preseason Watch List will be added to the Midseason Watch List and will be eligible for the Davey O'Brien National Quarterback Award.

Forty-five players now comprise the list following the additions of Connor Bazelak, Stetson Bennett and Watson.

The native of Butler, Ga., completed passes to 10 different players and led the Trojans on six scoring drives and 10 overall drives that ended with a scoring opportunity.

In the first half, Watson completed 23-of-30 passes for 263 yards and three touchdowns.

Watson enters Troy's game against Eastern Kentucky this weekend with the fifth-longest streak in the country with 105 consecutive pass attempts without an interception.

For the season, he has completed 69 percent of his passes with six touchdowns and just one interception.

CULLMAN, Ala. – Sebastien Duval, a Washington D.C.-based reporter for Agence France Presse (AFP, French Press Agency) and video journalist Bastien Inzaurralde visited Cullman this week on a search for conservative voters, admittedly not a difficult task. Along the way, they visited the Ave Maria Grotto and the Cullman County Fair, and sat in on a meeting of the Cullman County Republican Women where they met Sen. Garlan Gudger, R-Cullman and Secretary of State John Merrill. Visiting with the women's group chair Jacqueline Schendel, they even got to meet Schendel's mother, a French native in Cullman from Louisiana after the recent hurricanes.

After the media was blamed for reporting that did not represent citizens away from major centers like Washington and New York during the 2016 election, Duval set out to find the voice of small town America, especially in "Trump country."

His search for conservative hotspots revealed a bright red glow in Cullman and Winston counties in Alabama.

While the people he found here were worried about possible portrayal in the media as "hillbillies," Duval reported that they were friendly, hospitable and willing to talk.

Overall, he regarded his visit as a "very positive experience," saying, "It was my very first time in Alabama, and the southern hospitality is not a legend!

"People were very welcoming and friendly. We've seen a fair amount of people and many, many positives."

He added, "I've been to the South before, and I know I like the slower pace of life compared to D.C.- a good break away from all the craziness that's happening at the moment in this city."

Duval sought to discover how "a billionaire from New York, very provocative" could appeal to "very conservative, very religious" rural southerners "with moral values; how could they support someone who's very different from them? What I got from the people I talked to was, 'Well, we are not voting for a person; we're voting for what he stands for,' and he happens to defend those values that people cherish in Cullman County or in northern Alabama.

"The people tend to give a priority to a politician who's going to defend their ideals, rather than the person himself."

In terms of issues, Duval found that, for most of the Cullman and Winston County voters he talked to, Trump's support of the pro-life movement is the deciding factor in their support.

He also noted, "Nobody mentioned weapons and the Second Amendment. I expected a bit more.

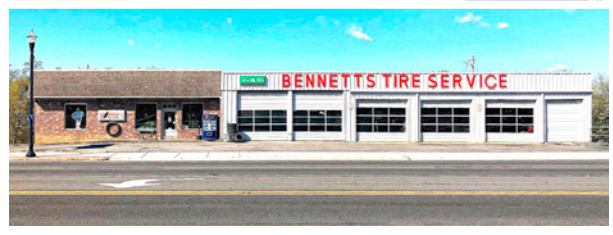

"I haven't seen anyone carrying weapons, so from what I expected, I was a bit surprised. You can see that religious values are very strong."

Duval heard from several voters who appreciated the direction of the U.S. economy under President Trump and who said no politician from the Democratic Party would have done any better responding to the challenging COVID-19 crisis.

"A big thing for a lot of Cullman/Walker voters, according to Duval, is Trump's outspoken personality and willingness to speak his mind without regard for the "establishment."

Duval did not say when his story will be published, but interested readers can keep an eye on www.facebook.com/AFPnewsenglish or www.twitter.com/afpusa.

Wood duck mates determine migration routes

David Rainer
Ala. Dept. of Conservation & Nat. Resources

In the waterfowl world, Alabama's most abundant species, the wood duck, is not known for migrating long distances.

It turns out, the wood duck migration patterns follow a "boy meets girl" scenario. Boy meets girl; girl flies home; boy follows.

When the Minnesota waterfowl season opened, four wood ducks that were banded in Alabama were harvested more than 1,000 miles from home.

Seth Maddox, the Alabama Wildlife and Freshwater Fisheries (WFF) Division's Migratory Bird Coordinator, said one of the birds harvested in Minnesota was 6 years old, banded in 2014 as a hatch-year male. The other three were banded in recent years.

"What is interesting in our data is that our males, especially juvenile males, will pair up with migrant females and follow them back to their natal nesting ground," Maddox said. "Our females tend to hang around where they were hatched. Whatever female a male pairs up with, he follows her."

Alabama has been banding wood ducks since 1956. During that time, WFF has banded about 28,000 wood ducks. The band recovery rate is about 7.7 percent, which may seem low, but Maddox said that is about the national average for all banded waterfowl.

"We have recovered a little more than 2,100 bands," Maddox said. "If you look at waterfowl overall, the band recovery is between four and five percent.

"Some birds are smarter than others, and others die before they are harvested. Recovery rate is pretty low for most species.

"About 50 percent of the wood duck bands are recovered in Alabama."

Although the aforementioned birds traveled as far as Minnesota, Maddox said most wood ducks don't make such a long journey.

"The states next to or near us harvest more than any other states," he said. "We do get a good bit of band recovery in Georgia, South Carolina, Tennessee, Louisiana and Mississippi."

While it's fairly rare to have bands recovered as far away as Minnesota, Maddox said bands have been recovered in 30 different states since the program's inception.

"We've had bands recovered from Maine to Florida, in Texas, North Dakota and three Canadian provinces – Manitoba, Ontario and Quebec," he said. "More males are harvested out of state, which goes back to our males pairing up with migrant females. The males likely get killed near where the female is from or on the way back south during the next winter."

Getting a firm count on the wood duck population is difficult for waterfowl managers because of the bird's habitat preferences.

"We can't count wood ducks from a plane like we do with other species," Maddox said.

"Wood ducks live in beaver swamps and wetlands. That's why we have a banding program, so we can track harvest rates and survival and look at age ratios.

"With this data, we can assess what the population is doing so we can set seasons and bag limits because we can't count them from the air."

WFF's banding work is conducted during the heat of the summer. Maddox said biologists look for a suitable clear spot on the edge of a pond or river.

The ducks are baited with grain, and game cameras are erected to monitor the activity at the bait site over a two-week period.

A 30-foot by 60-foot rocket net is then set up and fired when the ducks congregate at the bait site. WFF officials remove the ducks as quickly as possible from the net and put them in crates before they start banding the birds.

"Our banding runs from July until the end of September each year," Maddox said.

"It's a hot job, but it provides significant data. We age and sex the birds before we band them.

"We're getting different ages because wood ducks in Alabama will nest up to three times a year. We're getting adult males, adult females and three different ages of hatch-year birds."

Maddox said mature wood duck hens will nest in February or March. The clutch of eggs will hatch in about 30 days.

"It takes about 45 days for those juveniles to fledge out and reach flight stage," he said. "Then the hen will let that first clutch go, and she's back on the nest."

After WFF is finished with the banding efforts each September, the data is sent to the U.S. Geological Survey's (USGS) Bird Banding Laboratory.

When hunters harvest a banded bird, the information should be reported to www.reportband.gov and it will enter the USGS's band repository. The hunter will then receive a certificate of appreciation and information on where the bird was banded. WFF will receive a report from the USGS about where the bird was harvested.

"Overall, mallards are the most banded waterfowl species," Maddox said. "You're most likely to kill a banded mallard. Second most likely would be a banded wood duck."

Alabama hunters will again have a daily bag limit of 6 ducks for the 2020-2021 season. That daily bag limit may include no more than 3 wood ducks, 4 mallards (no more than 2 of which may be females), 1 mottled duck, 2 black ducks, 1 pintail, 2 canvasbacks, 1 scaup, and 2 redheads.

The daily bag limit for coots is 15 per day. The daily bag limit for mergansers is 5, only 2 of which can be hooded mergansers.

The aggregate bag limit of 5 dark geese (Canada, White-Fronted and Brant) shall not include more than 3 Canada geese or 1 Brant. For light geese (Snow, Blue, Ross's) the aggregate bag limit is 5. Possession limit is three times the daily bag limit.

Regular season dates for ducks, coots, mergansers and geese are November 27-28, 2020, and December 5-January 31, 2021.

The Youth, Veterans and Active Duty Military Special Waterfowl Days are set for November 21, 2020, and February 6, 2021.

"Habitat conditions are looking good," Maddox said. "It's been a fairly wet spring and summer for us. There should be lots of water on the landscape and lots of food available.

"The hatch should have been good this year, so I think we'll see plenty of wood ducks on Black Friday when the season opens this year."

With the help of Ducks Unlimited (DU), Maddox said WFF is in the middle of a huge waterfowl habitat enhancement effort.

"This is the biggest undertaking of waterfowl projects the state's ever done," he said. "We started in 2019 and put together a list of 15 projects across the state. We're going to put a little more than $1 million into habitat and restoration work on the wetland landscape in Alabama, from the Tennessee Valley all the way to the Mobile-Tensaw Delta.

"A lot of the projects involve replacing or restoring the water control infrastructure on some of our WMAs (wildlife management areas). We will restore some habitats that have been degraded over the years and putting that back in higher productivity for waterfowl.

"We will create a couple of new SOAs (Special Opportunity Areas) that will be available for limited-quota hunts for waterfowl in the future in Jackson County and Dallas County."

Maddox said new pumps and water control gates are being installed at the Jackson County waterfowl area.

New water control structures and levees are also under construction at the David K. Nelson WMA near Demopolis.

Survey work will be conducted for the projects that will begin next year at Swan Creek, Swan Creek Greentree Reservoir and in the Mobile-Tensaw Delta.

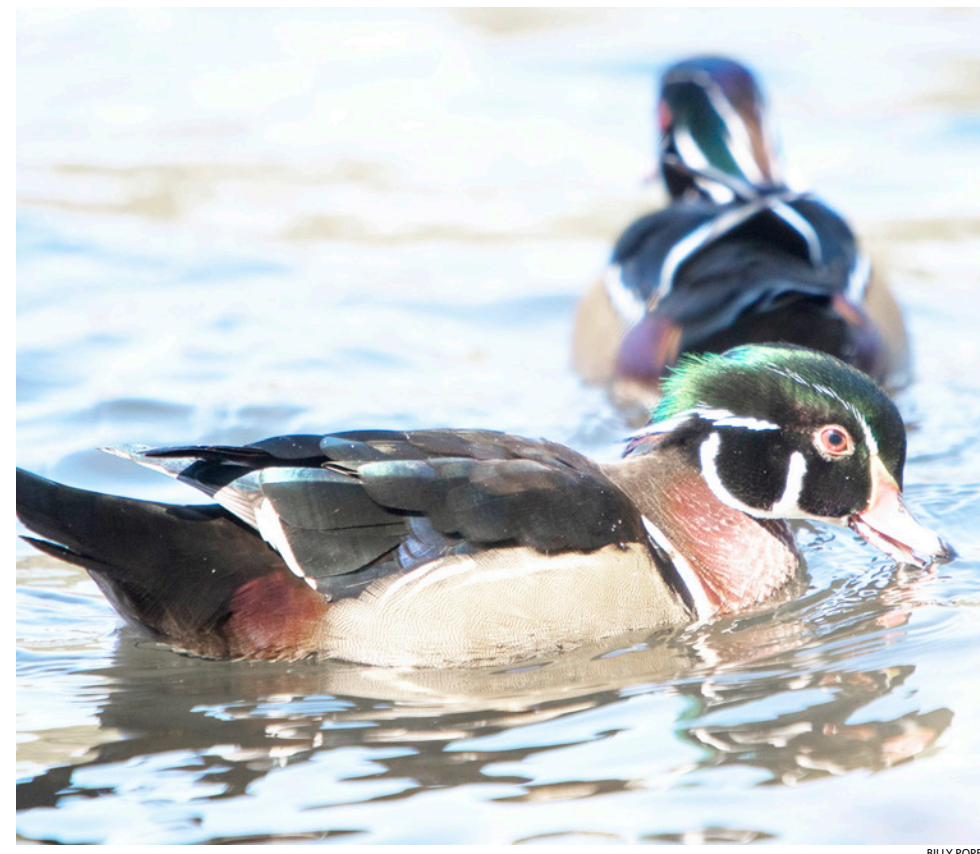

The work includes replacing dilapidated water control structures as well as aerial spraying of herbicides in the Delta to control non-native invasive species like Chinese tallow (popcorn) trees and giant cut grass to restore historical open wetlands.

"DU has assisted us with previous projects and is a long-term cooperative partner in conservation," Maddox said.

"In addition, a lot of this would not be possible if hunters weren't purchasing state duck stamps over the years.

"We don't get any General Fund tax dollars, so all of this work is paid for through license sales, duck stamps, Pittman-Robertson Wildlife Restoration funds and partners like DU."

"It's good to see work being put on the ground through the use of these funds for the future of waterfowl in Alabama and waterfowl hunters across the state."

BILLY POPE

Alabama's most abundant duck, the wood duck, is not known for migrating long distances. Other than those wood ducks harvested in Alabama, most wood ducks banded in Alabama are taken in nearby states. However, exceptions to the rule exist, which include four woodies banded in Alabama that were harvested in Minnesota.

Harvesting and storing pecans this fall

Victoria Dee
Contributor

AUBURN UNIVERSITY, Ala. – As leaves begin to darken and pumpkins decorate every doorstep, pecans are ripe and ready for harvest as fall settles in in the Southeast. These nutritious nuts are members of the hickory family and grow on towering shade trees commonly found in yards, orchards and pastures throughout Alabama. Though pecan harvest typically occurs from October to December, enjoying the bounty year-round is possible with proper harvesting and storing methods.

Harvesting pecans

"Pecans are mature and ready to harvest any time after the shuck begins to open," said Angela Treadaway, an Alabama Extension regional food safety and quality agent.

When these shucks are open, shaking or thrashing branches becomes an easy way to harvest nuts directly from the tree.

Doug Chapman, an Alabama Extension regional commercial horticulture agent, offers another option for removal of pecans from tree limbs.

"While commercial growers use tree shakers, homeowners mostly can and do rely on natural drop from the tree," Chapman said.

Beware of leaving nuts on the tree too long, however, as predators often want to harvest them for themselves.

If harvesting occurs early in the season, nuts will have a high moisture content, which would require drying before storage.

"Dry them in the shell in thin layers on elevated screens or hang them in small mesh bags in a well-ventilated area at room temperature out of direct sunlight," Treadaway said.

After approximately two weeks of drying, shell one or two and if the nuts are dry enough, they should snap when bent. This indicates that they are ready for immediate use or for storage.

Storage

Because of their high oil content, pecans are perishable nuts. Proper storage is the best way to ensure good quality year-round.

"At home, unshelled pecans can be stored in a cool, dry place," Treadaway said. "Shelled pecans should either be refrigerated or frozen."

Storing pecans away from air and light is crucial. Vacuum sealed bags or jars allow for the best storage. After properly storing nuts frozen, thawing and refreezing can occur repeatedly for a period of two years without loss of texture or flavor.

Test stored nuts before using them in recipes. Rancid pecans have a bitter and oily taste. A dark color may also be a characterizing factor of rancid pecans. Make sure to discard any rancid nuts, as rancidity is not reversible.

More information

For more information on harvesting and storing pecans, visit www.aces.edu or contact your local Extension Agent.

Assistance from the Joy to Life Foundation allows ADPH to provide free cancer screenings for underserved women

Alabama Department of Public Health

MONTGOMERY, Ala. – In response to a need for increased funding in North Alabama, the Joy to Life Foundation has offered to expand its efforts and provide funds statewide for breast cancer screenings for women through the Alabama Department of Public Health's Alabama Breast and Cervical Cancer Early Detection Program (ABCCEDP). Previously, the foundation's funding to ABCCEDP was limited to South Alabama.

Funding is needed for services in North Alabama as the Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Research Foundation, Inc., North Central Alabama Affiliate, ceased operations as an independent affiliate on April 24, 2020. Before its relocation, it served Alabama's northern counties.

The ABCCEDP provides free mammograms, Pap/HPV testing, and if needed, diagnostic testing to women who have no insurance, have an income at or below 250 percent of the poverty level and are age 40-64.

If there is a diagnosis of cancer, most women are eligible to receive treatment through the Alabama Medicaid Agency.

Each year hundreds of medically underserved women are diagnosed with breast and cervical cancer through the Alabama Breast and Cervical Cancer Early Detection Program (ABCCEDP), and nearly 3,000 women have been diagnosed since this program began in 1996.

According to the Blondheims, the Joy to Life Foundation feels the need and responsibility to support ABCCEDP in filling this financial gap, so that mammograms and other breast screenings can continue to be provided without interruption in the northern counties for the medically underserved.

"As the Joy to Life Foundation has done for 20 years, we will continue to work tirelessly every single day to provide the lifesaving screenings that every woman in Alabama needs and deserves," stated Joy Blondheim.

In addition to providing funds to ABCCEDP, the foundation also assists women under age 40 years of age who are at high risk or have symptoms of breast cancer.

Women are urged to get cancer screenings in order to find cancer in its earliest stages, when it is easier to treat and leads to better outcomes.

During the COVID pandemic, cancer screening continues to be essential.

If you are having any breast or cervical problems, it is very important that you do not delay seeking care.

Call your local county health department or the ABCCEDP hotline at 1-877-252-3324 to schedule an appointment.

COVID-19 should not prevent you from getting the medical care you need.

To find out whether you, a family member or friend qualify for ABCCEDP, call 1-877-252-3324 toll free.

a wonderful day in the life of my father and the legacy of my father," said Sen. Garlan Gudger, Jr., R-Cullman.

"He loved the junior college system and especially Wallace State Hanceville."

Dr. Gudger, also known for having founded Southern Accents and Architectural Antiques in Cullman, passed away in 2018.

His wife, Dot Gudger, was Wallace State's first business education instructor.

"Our family is incredibly honored and humbled and very thankful that the building was named for Garlan," she said.

"His passion was the students of Wallace State. I know he's smiling down on us and is really happy."

Their children practically grew up at Wallace State.

Sen. Gudger and his sisters Joy Barker and Jill Howell all have happy memories of their time on the Wallace State campus, from eating at Woody's Grill to "helping" chaperone student dances with their father.

"There's nothing that could have thrilled him more than to have the student center named after him," Barker said.

"His heart was definitely here. He loved the kids."

"I'm thankful on behalf of my family that we're here today, because what you're adopting today gives all of us a visual reminder to continue to be at the level of service and leadership that my father, their grandfather, wanted us to be," Sen. Gudger said.

Al Thompson, chairman of the ACCS Board of Trustees acknowledged the appropriateness of naming the student center for Dr. Gudger, whose career he described as a "labor of love and a lifetime of service" to the college.

"This is a wonderful tribute to an outstanding gentleman and beloved member of the Wallace State family," said District 4 Chair Matt Woods.

"The world needs, and certainly our community college system needs, more people like Garlan Gudger, Sr."

The Dr. Garlan Gudger, Sr. Endowed Scholarship has also been established through the Wallace State Future Foundation.

The Dr. Garlan E. Gudger, Sr. Student Center houses the 950-seat Betty Leeth Haynes Theatre, the offices of Student Engagement, the E-Sports Lab and Lions' Kitchen Food Bank.

Renovations are currently underway on a new Wally's Grill and student activity area.

Registration for spring 2021 will begin next month, with classes starting in January 2021. For more information, visit ww.wallacestate.edu or call 256-352-8000.
