CULLMAN, Ala. – The Cullman City School Board met Tuesday afternoon, recognizing a high performing school administrator and passing a list of routine measures.

Tricia Culpepper in running for national award

Superintendent Dr. Susan Patterson opened the meeting by recognizing Cullman City Primary School Principal Tricia Culpepper who was selected as a top three finalist for Alabama's National Distinguished Principal (Elementary Division).

The award, given by the National Association of Elementary School Principals, honors "elementary and middle level principals who set high standards for instruction, student achievement, character, and climate for the students, families, and staffs in their learning communities.

The program was based on three fundamental ideas:

1. Children's attitudes towards learning and their perceptions of themselves as lifelong learners are established in the beginning school years.

2. The scope and quality of children's educational experiences are determined primarily by the school principal, who establishes, through the important work of teachers and the support of caring parents, the character of a particular school's program.

3. The dedication and enthusiasm of the outstanding principals who guide children's early education experiences should be acknowledged to both show appreciation for their work as well as to allow them to serve as models for others in the field."

The award is not new to the Cullman area. East Elementary Principal David Wiggins was the 2019 Division 1 Alabama National Distinguished Principal.

Wendy Sack
wendy@cullmantribune.com

WASHINGTON, D.C. – Joe Biden was sworn in as the 46th president of the United States Wednesday, inheriting what the Associated Press referred to as "a confluence of crises arguably greater than any faced by his predecessors."

"Amid a devastating pandemic and the threat of domestic terrorism, Joe Biden was sworn in as the 46th president of the United States shortly before noon on Wednesday, pledging to unite the country and calling on Americans to end the 'uncivil war' that has fractured the nation," reported NBC News.

In a ceremony at the U.S. Capitol that kept with tradition while being unlike any other inauguration in U.S. history, Biden took his oath of office before a small, socially distanced audience in a city that has been locked down because of the dual threats of Covid-19, which has killed over 400,000 people in the U.S., and worries over another attack just two weeks after the deadly riot at the Capitol."

Also sworn in was Vice President Kamala Harris. According to NBC News, Harris, "the daughter of an Indian mother and a Jamaican father — both immigrants — broke a nearly two-century barrier in American politics long dominated by white men on Wednesday when she was inaugurated as the nation's first female vice president, as well as the first Black American and first person of South Asian descent."

Beginning his inaugural address, Biden, a Democrat, said, "This is democracy's day. A day of history and hope, of renewal and resolve. Through a Crucible for the ages, America has been tested anew and America has risen to the challenge.

"Today, we celebrate the triumph not of a candidate, but of a cause. The cause of democracy. The people, the will of the people has been heard and the will of the people has been heeded. We've learned again that democracy is precious. Democracy is fragile. And at this hour, my friends, democracy has prevailed.

"So now, on this hallowed ground, where just a few days ago violence sought to shake the Capitol's very foundation, we come together as one nation under God, indivisible, to carry out the peaceful transfer of power as we have for more than two centuries."

Biden succeeds Republican President Donald Trump, who left office Wednesday morning after one term.

WASHINGTON, D.C. – Outgoing President Donald J. Trump granted pardons to 73 people and commuted the sentences of another 70 before leaving office Jan. 20, 2021. Among those pardoned are former Republican Alabama Rep. William "Ed" Henry, who pleaded guilty to one count of theft of government property Jan. 16, 2019.

According to The White House, "President Trump granted a full pardon to William 'Ed' Henry of Alabama. This pardon is supported by Senator Tommy Tuberville.

"Mr. Henry was sentenced to 2 years' probation for aiding and abetting the theft of government property and paid a $4,000 fine."

U.S. Attorney Louis V. Franklin, Sr. said at the time of Henry's plea, that the conviction arose out of Henry's involvement in a scheme to defraud Medicare.

According to court documents, when he committed his offense, Henry was the chief executive officer of an Alabama-based company, MyPractice24.

MyPractice24 provided chronic care management services to Medicare Part B beneficiaries, specifically patients with two or more chronic conditions.

Physicians could hire MyPractice24 to perform chronic care management for their patients, and the physicians were required to collect co-pays from such patients of approximately $8 per month.

Medicare would then reimburse the physicians at approximately $32 per patient per month.

On behalf of MyPractice24, Henry entered into contracts with the practices of various doctors around the southeast, including Alabama physicians Gilberto Sanchez, Punuru J. Reddy, and Nicole Scruggs, to provide chronic care management services for those doctors' patients.

Each doctor agreed with Henry that his or her practice would waive co-pay requirements for patients participating in MyPractice24's chronic care management program.

Ultimately, Sanchez obtained approximately $119,349.11 from the United States government; Reddy obtained approximately $77,705.26; and Scruggs obtained approximately $7,060.87.

Because the physicians systematically waived patient co-pays for chronic care management services, the physicians were not entitled to be reimbursed for those services.

Henry had faced up to 10 years in prison, a fine of not more than $250,000 and up to three years of supervised release.

"Henry and his co-defendants treated seriously ill patients as vehicles for getting money from the government," commented Franklin at the time.

"In doing so, they diverted precious health care resources from paying for health care services that were truly necessary to services that Henry could make a profit from providing. I am proud of the investigative agencies' efforts to expose this fraud."

ADPH gives COVID-19 vaccine update

Karen Landers, M.D.
Contributor

MONTGOMERY, Ala. – For the past four weeks, the Alabama Department of Public Health (ADPH) has been distributing its full federal allotment of 50,000 to 60,000 COVID-19 vaccine doses to providers in Alabama. Vaccine allocations are based on state population per capita and not on the amount of vaccine on hand.

State Health Officer Dr. Scott Harris commented about misunderstandings concerning the speed vaccines have been given in the state, saying, "Every person who receives a COVID-19 shot is deserving of one and will receive it, as we are determined to make sure that no vaccine is sitting unused on the shelf. We are making every effort to get shots into arms as quickly as possible. The biggest obstacle to vaccination is still the limited vaccine supply. We are attempting to manage expectations, because the timeline for receipt of vaccine has not changed and we cannot give people a resource we don't have yet."

To assist county health departments with vaccine clinics, ADPH employees have been redirected from their existing duties. For example, on Jan. 18 local health departments conducted 62 immunization clinics and a total of 14,312 vaccinations were administered. County health departments are required to administer all inventory of vaccine each week until no vaccine remains. With an understanding that some smaller rural counties may not be able to give vaccine at that volume, ADPH is partnering with community providers to rapidly get vaccine out to the public.

In response to concerns that some providers are failing to administer their allotments of vaccine on a timely basis, ADPH will begin removing vaccine supplies from providers who are not administering vaccine in a timely way. Unused vaccine will be redirected to other providers who will administer vaccine faster. ADPH is surveying all providers in the state to ensure that all administered doses have been properly reported to ADPH, and to determine whether there is any available vaccine that needs to be redistributed elsewhere.

Contrary to some reports, the number of unused doses from previous allocations does not affect the quantity of doses that the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) authorizes for Alabama. ADPH is working with CDC to resolve data issues to ensure that Alabama receives credit for every dose administered in the state. The total number of vaccines administered is updated daily at alabamapublichealth.gov. ADPH reports there have been 429,655 cases and 6,283 deaths due to COVID-19 in Alabama as of Jan. 20. To date, 184,618 doses of COVID-19 vaccine have been administered in Alabama. The federal government has not delivered all of its allocated doses to Alabama

A total of 446,150 doses of the 640,150 doses allocated to Alabama have been delivered. No vaccine doses in Alabama have been discarded, and allocations are population based so there is no advantage for residents of larger counties over smaller ones. Pfizer and Moderna vaccines have been administered in nearly equal proportions in the state. In addition to providing vaccine numbers, the ADPH dashboard at alabamapublichealth.gov features a new vaccine provider locator map which lists addresses for COVID-19 providers. This map can be found at arcg.is/OrCey on the tab at the bottom of the page.

Providers are federally required to report vaccinations given within 24 hours. ADPH uses the Immunization Patient Registry with Integrated Technology (ImmPRINT) system to collect this information. ADPH is reaching out to provide assistance to providers in entering this information and will continue to add more providers. ADPH is working with some large companies to provide vaccinations as more vaccine becomes available.

The demand for COVID-19 vaccine still exceeds supply as there are more than 326,000 health care workers, law enforcement officers and firefighters and nearly 350,000 people in Alabama who qualify for a vaccine because they are 75 years old and older.

ADPH has also been actively recruiting and welcoming volunteers to assist with COVID-19 vaccination clinics throughout the state. Persons who wish to volunteer are asked to email thresa.dix@adph.state.al.us with their contact information.

While appointments are limited, the COVID-19 Vaccine Scheduling Hotline number at 1-855-566-5333 remains available. ADPH requests that the public not call this line to schedule a vaccine UNLESS they currently are in an eligible group – health care workers, people age 75 and older, law enforcement officers or firefighters.

For general information about COVID-19, including locations where testing is available, call the COVID-19 Information Hotline number at 1-800-270-7268.

It is the second consecutive 30-point win for Crimson Tide, who defeated Arkansas 90-59 last Saturday, as UA secured its grip on first place in the SEC standings by improving to 7-0 in league play and 12-3 overall.

The Tide's last three wins have been by a combined 82 points, winning by 20 at Kentucky (85-65), 31 vs. Arkansas (90-59) and Tuesday night's result. Three Alabama played accounted for 22 or more points as John Petty Jr. (24), Jahvon Quinerly (22) and Joshua Primo (22) combined to score 68 of the Tide's 105-points on the night.

Petty set the tone by hitting his first six three-pointers and finished 8-of-10 from beyond the arc. Primo finished 6-of-8 from deep while Quinerly went 6-of-7.

Auburn beats Kentucky 66-59, earns back-to-back SEC wins

Jeff Shearer
AU Athletics

AUBURN, Ala. – Auburn men's basketball victories vs. Kentucky used to be a once-in-a-blue moon event. Under Bruce Pearl, they've become an annual occurrence.

For the fourth consecutive season, the Tigers took down the Wildcats, beating Kentucky 66-59 Saturday at Auburn Arena to give Auburn a 5-4 series lead in the past nine meetings.

"To beat Kentucky is historic," said Pearl, who is 4-1 vs. Kentucky at Auburn Arena.

"You're judged by how you do against the best teams on your schedule and certainly Kentucky's going to always be as good as anybody on our schedule.

"It matters, and we want to make history.

"Our program has been one of the top five programs in the SEC over the last four years."

Allen Flanigan led Auburn with a career-high 21 points and nine rebounds. Devan Cambridge scored 13 points and Sharife Cooper added 11 points and a game-high eight assists to give the Tigers back-to-back SEC wins.

"I'm really confident in my game knowing that I've put in the work this summer," said Flanigan, who was 8-for-8 from the free-throw line.

"Being active on defense, being the leader on the defensive end and letting the offense flow and come to me."

JT Thor's steal and Euro-step layup capped a 6-0 run, giving Auburn its biggest lead, 56-46 with 5:36 to play.

"He's not afraid to make plays," Pearl said of Thor, who scored six points, grabbed six rebounds and made a pair of crunch time steals.

"He stepped up and made two big free throws late. Very proud of him."

Kentucky (4-8, 3-2) twice pulled within two points down the stretch, but Cooper hit Jaylin Williams for a layup, then the freshman point guard drove for bucket that put Auburn ahead 62-58 with 39 seconds to play.

Thor and Flanigan each made a pair of free throws to secure the victory.

"Allen Flanigan was a man out there in every which way, rebounding, defensively, attacking the rim, using his physicality, willingness to take big shots," Pearl said.

Auburn used a 7-0 run to take a 48-43 lead in the middle of the second half.

After Flanigan's tough shot in the paint tied the score at 43-43, Flanigan found Cambridge for a 3-pointer that put up the Tigers ahead 46-43.

"Everybody has the green light," said Cambridge, who made 3 of 5 3-point attempts to lead the Tigers.

"I'm going to take those shots if they're open."

It took Auburn fewer than 10 minutes in the second half to exceed its first-half output of 21 points.

Cooper's fifth assist, to Cambridge in transition, put Auburn on top 48-43.

"I trust Sharife at the point," Cambridge said. "He's always going to find me."

Despite shooting only 24 percent in the first half, including 2-for-17 on 3-point attempts, Auburn trailed by only four points at intermission.

Cooper made a pair of free throws with two-tenths of a second left to trim Kentucky's halftime lead to 25-21.

Auburn outrebounded Kentucky 26-19 in the half, collecting many long caroms of missed 3s to take a 12-5 edge in offensive boards. For the game, the Tigers enjoyed a 41-38 rebounding advantage.

Auburn (8-6, 2-4) hits the road next week for an 8 p.m. CT Wednesday tip at Arkansas on SEC Network and an 11 a.m. CT Saturday game at South Carolina.

'An exciting ride': Bryan Harsin's blueprint for Auburn football

Jeff Shearer
AU Athletics

AUBURN, Ala. – For drag racers, there is no fork in the road, only a quarter-mile strip.

For new Auburn head football coach and former drag racer Bryan Harsin, a promotion 15 years ago from coaching tight ends to being the offensive coordinator at Boise State coincided with the birth of his son, prompting the Harsins to idle their need for speed.

"My wife and I decided that this is what we need to do, football is the focus," Harsin told Andy Burcham, the voice of Auburn Tigers. "I really love football. This has been an exciting ride and we're looking forward to what the future looks like at Auburn."

Harsin once reached 230 miles per hour, the equivalent of going from goalpost to goalpost in two seconds.

"I always told the players I am the fastest person on the field here," Harsin said. "They never believed that, but they didn't know I was talking about the race car.

"It's exhilarating to be in that by yourself and try to control something that's uncontrollable. It still excites me today. That's something that's in my blood. I don't think I'm completely out of it yet."

The son of prominent Idaho drag racer Dale Harsin, Bryan learned much from watching his father at the track.

"He was a big influence with me, how he carried himself," Harsin said. "I got to see first-class, I got to see details, I got to see the way you do things, and the process, because if you don't do it right, that's a bad thing for you."

Lessons learned in his dad's garage still influence Harsin, especially the importance of being meticulous when building.

"It's no different than putting together a staff, no different than putting together a plan," he said. "It just takes time, focus and the energy to do the little things to make it successful."

While assembling his coaching staff, Harsin has prioritized quality over quickness.

"The most important thing is finding the right fit," he said.

"The coaches who are going to be a part of this program, one, I want them excited about Auburn football, but most importantly the type of men who are going to come in here and believe in the culture, believe in the recruiting to bring the best people in to be a part of our program, and then to win.

"They've got to be a part of that. They've got to want to do that, they've got to know how to do that."

While observing Auburn's Citrus Bowl preparation, Harsin got his first look at many of the players he'll coach in his first season.

"Getting a chance to watch them practice has been refreshing and builds more excitement for what we have in store," he said.

Accepting the Auburn head coaching job, Harsin said, was "not a one-person decision." Bryan's wife, Kes, and their three children supported the cross-country move.

"They were all in," he said. "This is a chance for us to go be a part of something special. They were already yelling 'War Eagle' in the house."

Auburn football in the Harsin Era will be physical, disciplined and fun.

"That takes tremendous work to do that," he said. "It takes an elite mindset to do that daily, and create that in the weight room, and in how you practice.

"It's important that you know your assignment and do it consistently. That takes tremendous discipline.

"It's hard to play Division I football, it's hard to play at a championship level, but that's the fun part. Those who want to compete at a high level, they learn to enjoy that. That's part of the journey.

"Everybody wants to get better and develop. For us this goes back to the 1-0 mindset of approaching each day with a sense of purpose and looking to win each day.

"When you're doing that, it creates that urgency and enjoyment we all want to have when we're doing something we're passionate about."

In his own words:
Coach Bryan Harsin on recruiting...

"You can attract anyone in the country to want to be a part of our program. We start right here in our backyard. I know how important that is. As we're able to set that vision for prospective student-athletes and get them on campus and let them see it for themselves, that's going to be a big part of how we have success in recruiting.

"It comes down to guys who love playing the game and want to be a part of Auburn University and are going to love their experience here because this is where they want to be.

"When they leave as an Auburn man and go on to do whatever is next, they're going to be proud of where they are, and are going to feel like that was a big reason why they're having success now in that next stage of their lives.

"The most important thing, they all want to come back and be a part of it. If we can create that, then we've done things right for this program."

His message to the Auburn family...

"I'm excited to be here and I'm certainly looking forward to learning more about Auburn University.

"We're looking forward to putting that team on the field that the Auburn family is proud of. I want to make sure we're competitive, and we see guys who enjoy playing for each other and enjoy playing for Auburn and are going to give it everything they've got every time we're on the field, and will compete at a high level, and we've got people in this program who are excited to be here."

The theme for this year's national event is "Sent to Serve." Throughout National Lutheran Schools Week, St. Paul's Lutheran School will participate in various activities along that theme.

"I enjoy doing this proclamation each year," said Jacobs. "My son, Tyler, went to St. Paul's and I love the school."

Jacobs read aloud from the proclamation:

Whereas, St. Paul's Lutheran School has operated continuously at 510 Third Avenue Southeast in Cullman since 1954; and,

Whereas, it is the intent of St. Paul's Lutheran School to offer a personalized educational experience that is academically excellent and theologically sound, guiding each child to a closer relationship with Christ while providing the best educational preparation possible; and,

Whereas, St. Paul's Lutheran School extends the ministry of St. Paul's Lutheran Church by proclaiming the Gospel of Jesus Christ in all they say and do while providing an academically excellent education; and,

Whereas, St. Paul's Lutheran School provides a Christ-centered, scripture-based education to equip students with the tools they need for academic, personal, and social achievement; and,

Whereas, Lutheran schools prepare children for their individual callings to serve God and their neighbor; and,

Whereas, in their 66th year of education, St. Paul's Lutheran School has no doubt provided the foundation for countless leaders in our community and beyond.

Now, therefore, I, Woody Jacobs, as Mayor of the City of Cullman and on behalf of the City Council and our citizens, do hereby proclaim the week of January 24-31, 2021, as St. Paul's Lutheran School Appreciation Week in the City of Cullman and urge all of our citizens to recognize and celebrate St. Paul's Lutheran School's history, success, and continuing impact on the lives of so many in our community.

UAB: Metformin use reduces risk of death for patients with COVID-19 and diabetes

Jeff Hansen and Savannah Koplon

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. – Use of the diabetes drug metformin — before a diagnosis of COVID-19 — is associated with a threefold decrease in mortality in COVID-19 patients with Type 2 diabetes, according to a racially diverse study at the University of Alabama at Birmingham. Diabetes is a significant comorbidity for COVID-19.

"This beneficial effect remained, even after correcting for age, sex, race, obesity, and hypertension or chronic kidney disease and heart failure," said Anath Shalev, M.D., director of UAB's Comprehensive Diabetes Center and leader of the study.

"Since similar results have now been obtained in different populations from around the world — including China, France and a United-Healthcare analysis — this suggests that the observed reduction in mortality risk associated with metformin use in subjects with Type 2 diabetes and COVID-19 might be generalizable," Shalev said.

How metformin improves prognosis in the context of COVID-19 is not known, Shalev says. The UAB findings suggest that the mechanisms may go beyond any expected improvement in glycemic control or obesity, since neither body mass index, blood glucose nor hemoglobin A1C were lower in the metformin users who survived as compared to those who died.

"The mechanisms may involve metformin's previously described anti-inflammatory and anti-thrombotic effects," Shalev said.

The study — first made available in MedRxiv and now published in the peer-reviewed journal Frontiers in Endocrinology — included 25,326 patients tested for COVID-19 at the tertiary care UAB Hospital between Feb. 25 and June 22 of last year. Of the 604 patients found to be COVID-19-positive, 311 were African Americans.

The primary outcome in the study was mortality in COVID-19-positive subjects, and the potential association with subject characteristics or comorbidities was analyzed.

Researchers found that Blacks, who are only 26% of Alabama's population, were 52% of those who tested positive for COVID-19, and only 30% of those who tested negative. In contrast, only 36% of the COVID-19-positive subjects were white, while whites made up 56% of those who tested negative, further underlining the racial disparity. Once COVID-19-positive though, no significant racial difference in mortality was observed.

"In our cohort," Shalev said, "being African American appeared to be primarily a risk factor for contracting COVID-19, rather than for mortality. This suggests that any racial disparity observed is likely due to exposure risk and external socioeconomic factors, including access to proper health care."

Overall mortality for COVID-19-positive patients was 11%. The study found that 93% of deaths occurred in subjects over the age of 50, and being male or having high blood pressure was associated with a significantly elevated risk of death. Diabetes was associated with a dramatic increase in mortality, with an odds ratio of 3.62. Overall, 67% of deaths in the study occurred in subjects with diabetes.

The researchers looked at the effects of diabetes treatment on adverse COVID-19 outcomes, focusing on insulin and metformin as the two most common medications for Type 2 diabetes. They found that prior insulin use did not affect mortality risk.

However, prior metformin use was a different matter. Metformin use significantly reduced the odds of dying, and the 11% mortality for metformin users was not only comparable to that of the general COVID-19-positive population, it was dramatically lower than the 23% mortality for diabetes patients not on metformin.

After controlling for other covariates, age, sex and metformin use emerged as independent factors affecting COVID-19-related mortality. Interestingly, even after controlling for all these other covariates, death was significantly less likely — with an odds ratio of 0.33 — for Type 2 diabetes subjects taking metformin, compared with those who did not take metformin.

"These results suggest that, while diabetes is an independent risk factor for COVID-19-related mortality," Shalev said, "this risk is dramatically reduced in subjects taking metformin — raising the possibility that metformin may provide a protective approach in this high-risk population."

The researchers say future studies will need to explore how metformin is protective, as well as assess the risks and benefits of metformin treatment and the indications for its use in the face of the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic.

This study is part of a new Precision Diabetes Program, a collaboration between the UAB Comprehensive Diabetes Center and the Hugh Kaul Precision Medicine Institute at UAB.

Co-authors with Shalev for the paper, "Metformin use is associated with reduced mortality in a diverse population with COVID-19 and diabetes," are Andrew B. Crouse and Matthew Might, the Hugh Kaul Precision Medicine Institute at UAB; Tiffany Grimes and Fernando Ovalle, the Comprehensive Diabetes Center and the Department of Medicine Division of Endocrinology, Diabetes and Metabolism at UAB; and Peng Li, UAB School of Nursing.

Support came from National Institutes of Health grants DK078752, DK120379 and TR001417.
