Hanceville City Council surplus request, gives update on Hanceville Senior Center construction

Christy Perry
christy@cullmantribune.com

HANCEVILLE, Ala. – The Hanceville City Council approved a request Thursday evening by the Hanceville Police Department and Hanceville Fire and Rescue to surplus three vehicles. Currently, demand for vehicles is high and HPD Bob Long explained that right now, by selling his truck, Assistant Chief Adam Hadder's truck and Fire Chief Roger Green's truck, they could sell them for far above the price they initially paid.

Long continued, "We are not going to immediately sell Adam's because a replacement vehicle is not readily available for his, but there is one available for Roger and myself."

The surplus includes a Ford F150 and two Chevy Tahoes.

Canadian geese removed from Sportsman Lake Park

CHRISTY PERRY/THE CULLMAN TRIBUNE

A spot on the shoreline of Sportsman Lake Park was covered in geese last week.

W.C. Mann
craig@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN, Ala. – Locals visiting Sportsman Lake Park Wednesday and Thursday noticed that the large gaggle of Canadian geese that had covered parts of the lakeshore recently had largely vanished, leaving only a few stragglers and the regular ducks. According to Cullman County authorities, the number of geese had become a health hazard and were removed by staff from the Alabama office of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

According to County Commission Chairman Jeff Clemons, the USDA surveyed the park over the last few months and determined that the geese were a hazard. As a result, state authorities removed and euthanized a large number of the birds.

Adult Canadian geese can produce a pound of droppings per day and increasing numbers of them have been causing problems across the state, leading to a series of removals and disposals by the USDA.

In 2019, the most recent year for which records were available, over 1,400 Canadian geese were euthanized in Alabama.

Clemons told the Tribune, "For a while the commission has received complaints about the excessive goose poop, from residents and others visiting the park. We, county commission, had the State of Alabama USDA come in and do a survey a few months ago. It was concluded that there were multiple health violations due to the excessive amount of poop. On their advisement, the county turned over the removal to the state USDA as they are the only ones who can remove Canadian Geese.

"Yesterday (Wednesday) morning they (USDA staff) came in at 5 a.m. to box up and remove the geese. Again, this is something the county is not permitted to do and this was handled at the state level due to threat of disease to our residents and those visiting the park.

"It's a tough decision but we had to take the safe decision given the report by the state USDA."

Christy Perry

Over the past several years, there's been plenty of chatter about generational differences between the boomers, millenials and Generation Z. It's been mostly insults and finger pointing as those involved in the ongoing conversation duke it out over who is to blame for everything that's wrong in this world. It seems as though someone wasn't invited to the debate. We are Generation X and we are pretty cool with that--being ignored is kind of our thing.

Generation X has been referred to as the "slacker generation" on numerous occasions but really, we're just exhausted from being stuck between two of the loudest generations to have ever existed. It has been suggested that Gen X play a more active role in helping solve this ongoing war between the boomers and millennials, but that's a hard no from me.

We spent most of our lives being ignored and we've grown to enjoy it. I'd rather sit back with a bowl of Smurf Berry Crunch Cereal and watch reruns of the Grand Prize Game on the Bozo Show than get involved with the ridiculous nonsense of the "OK, boomer" war. Honestly, I think both sides should go to their room, listen to a Cure album and think about how they are acting.

In my day-to-day interactions, it seems as though both boomers and millennials believe Gen X is on their side. That's hysterical! We are latchkey kids--sent home to eat a box of Fruit Roll-Ups and hope the VCR recorded "All My Children" in its entirety. We don't care about y'alls drama. Besides, I still have unresolved feelings about Jenny dying in the Jet Ski accident (poor Greg). We also thought "Heathers" was fantastically funny and that should tell you a lot about where we stand.

As reluctant as I am as a Gen X-er to get involved, I do have a few small requests from our bookend generations:

Millennials (Gen Z too), please stop saying "OK boomer" to every person older than you with whom you have a difference of opinion. It is crucial to understand the difference between disagreement and indifference. If you sense indifference, you are probably not talking to a boomer. We are the ones still upset that you guys destroyed MTV yet for some reason, kept throwing Rick Astley in our faces.

Boomers, if you could stop complaining about participation trophies, that would be great. I still have a trophy for every year I played organized sports in the 70s and 80s so the concept has been around since you were calling all the shots and coaching all the teams. As Billy Joel would say, "We didn't start the fire."

Millennials, stop demanding apologies for stupid things people said or did decades ago. Everyone has a few dumb words/actions to their name, and that is part of growing up. We make mistakes, we learn from them and we grow as people.

That is part of life's journey. You've been into social activism since you were 12 and that's great. Wanna know what I was into when I was 12? Duran Duran's album "Seven and the Ragged Tiger" and finding the perfect laces for my roller skates. We may not always understand differences, but we learn to accept them and move forward.

Boomers, quit saying any statement that begins with "These kids today." They don't have it easier, they have it different. Every time a young person makes the news for doing something stupid or horrible, the "these kids today" generalizations ramp up.

Kids today have no privacy, graduate high school with associate's degrees and face issues we couldn't have fathomed when we were kids.

To the Gen Z kids, hang in there. You get lumped in as millennials way too often and believe me, Gen X completely understands what that is like. You might be young, but never let anyone tell you that your ideas and opinions are meaningless or stupid. Consider us your crazy aunts and uncles if you need to talk.

The rest of the world may dismiss Gen X, perhaps because of our bold hair and clothing fashion of the 80s and that weird Valley Girl phase. The "I don't care" persona we are known for is not completely accurate. We don't care about things that don't matter!! We are passionate about things that do--empathy, family, acceptance, inclusivity, peace and understanding. Gen X didn't just love John Hughes' "The Breakfast Club," we lived and understood it.

For those who need a refresher: a reminder from Brian Johnson:

"Dear Mr. Vernon,

We accept the fact that we had to sacrifice a whole Saturday in detention for whatever it is we did wrong. But we think you're crazy for making us write an essay telling you who we think we are. You see us as you want to see us: in the simplest terms, in the most convenient definitions. But what we found out is that each one of us is a brain, and an athlete, a basket case, a princess and a criminal. Does that answer your question?

Sincerely Yours,
The Breakfast Club"

Texting and WhatsApp resources for locating COVID-19 vaccine

Finding a COVID-19 vaccination location near you is easy and available on multiple platforms. Text your ZIP code to 438829 or call 1-800-232-0233. Another exciting effort is underway to help connect people with vaccine resources and information: the CDC's new Spanish-language vaccine finder on WhatsApp. You can try it by texting the word "hola" as a WhatsApp message to the CDC at 1-833-636-1122.

COVID-19 vaccine incentives

Companies across the United States are offering rewards to their vaccinated customers and employees. These include free rides to and from your vaccine appointments and free child care for parents and caregivers to get vaccinated and recuperate. Visit the COVID-19 vaccine incentives page at www.vaccines.gov/incentives.html to read about these and other incentives offered by companies across the country. ADPH encourages businesses throughout the state to help improve the vaccination rate by being vaccinated yourself and offering incentives to your employees, customers and others in your area to be vaccinated.

Vaccine scheduling assistance for close contacts of someone positively diagnosed with COVID-19

In collaboration with the Alabama Department of Public Health, the School of Public Health at the University of Alabama at Birmingham is providing assistance to many in our state seeking vaccine appointments or locations. If you are a close contact of someone who was positively diagnosed with COVID-19, you may receive a telephone call from a UAB representative. The caller will be able to provide assistance in finding a vaccination location nearby.

Delta variant B.1.617.2

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention has designated the Delta variant, which is also known as B.1.617.2, as a variant of concern. This means the CDC officially recognizes that the variant may carry a risk of more severe illness and transmissibility. The Delta variant, which first emerged in India, now accounts for about 20% of new U.S. cases. The number of cases of Delta in the U.S are likely to be higher, as not all SARS-CoV-2 specimens are sequenced. The variant is highly contagious and has the potential to infect more persons, resulting in more hospitalizations and deaths. At the moment, data indicates that two doses of Pfizer vaccine are 88% protective against the virus. The two other COVID 19 vaccines, Moderna and Johnson & Johnson, are likely to be effective against this variant as well. The message about this variant, as well as other variants, is that the more persons who are vaccinated, the less likely the opportunity for variants to emerge. Now is a critical time for persons in Alabama to take advantage of the multiple opportunities to be vaccinated.

National Month of Action continues through July 4

The Alabama Department of Public Health joins in encouraging everyone in the state to work toward the goal of having 70% of U.S. adults getting at least one COVID-19 vaccination by July 4. President Biden announced the National Month of Action initiative which encourages national organizations, local government leaders, community-based and faith-based partners, businesses, employers, social media influencers, celebrities, athletes, colleges, young people and thousands of volunteers across the nation to work together to get their communities vaccinated. Decreasing numbers of Alabama residents are being vaccinated even though vaccines are available, so promotions and actions are needed now to defeat COVID-19. Visit www.alcovidvaccine.gov to find a place to get vaccinated nearby.

CULLMAN, Ala. – The Summer Learning Program at Cullman County Public Library has been a hit with kids and adults alike across the county; however, there is still so much fun to be had before summer runs out! In the next week as June comes to a close, The North Alabama Agriplex will host 'Live Tales About Animal Tails" June 29 and Touch-A-Truck June 30.

This coming Saturday, June 26, Sheila Sabotka will resume teaching a Yoga class at the library, which has featured Baby Goat Yoga in the past. With many inquiring about the return of this class, the library anticipates a warm welcome back from the community.

There are also several upcoming events planned for July. On Tuesday, July 13, Josie Harrington will be reading Yarn Tails, as well as teaching Quilling the following Tuesday, July 20. Renee Welsh will be there to teach Cardmaking Tuesday July 27. All of these events will start at 10 a.m. A big focus for the month of July at the library will be Take-and-Make activities. The librarians prepackage these activities so children can enjoy them from the comfort of their own homes. The activities consist of kits that children can assemble themselves, or with the help of a parent or guardian. Some of the Take-and-Make crafts are things like Popsicle stick catapults and blackout poetry, and there will be different activities available based on the child's age range.

Finally, on Friday, July 30, the Cullman County Public Library will be hosting a Harry Potter Birthday Parade. This event has been held twice before in previous years with an incredible turnout of between 50-125 children and parents. All are encouraged to dress up and participate in the march around the library!

"It was truly something to see last year," said librarian Willette Harbison, "The children were so excited to see each other dressed up and talking about the books."

Cha Cha's Shaved Ice will also be on-site, as the children absolutely adore their presence among the library's outreach events. Make sure to stay tuned for more of what is going on at your local libraries, and how you and your family can get involved.

Nick Griffin
nick@cullmantribune.com

GOOD HOPE, Ala. – Both the Good Hope Raiders and West Point Warriors participated in a summer play day at Good Hope High School Thursday and both local squads picked up wins in the early part of the day. The Raiders knocked off Deshler 77-72 in their first game and West Point followed them with a 65-36 win over Hatton. Good Hope fell to Cordova 69-66 in its second matchup of the day before playing Hatton in its final game of the day immediately after.

West Point 65 – Hatton 36 (Varsity boys)

Jayden Laney drilled back to back three-pointer to give the Warriors an early 6-0 lead over Hatton and Kolton Perry added a three of his own to make it a 9-2 game with 15 minutes to play in the first half.

The Hornets were able to cut into the lead but a three from J.D. Cochran put West Point on top 12-7. Ethan Gammon laid one in later in the period to make it 16-7 and another basket from Cochran stretched the lead to 19-9 with around eight minutes remaining.

Another three from Perry made it a 22-9 game and Cade Simmons buried a trey to make it 25-9. Back to back buckets from Kanen Trussell gave the Warriors a 20-point lead late in the opening half and West Point went into the break leading Hatton 29-13.

Baskets by Laney and Simmons put the Warriors in front 33-23 early in the second half but the Hornets continued to put together a run and chip away at the lead.

A three-pointer from Cochran made it a 36-26 game with just over 14 minutes left in the game and he scored inside to keep West Point on top 38-31 with 12 minutes to play.

A Samuel Wheeler layup gave the Warriors a 40-31 lead and Cochran buried another three to make it 43-31. Cochran drilled another three and Trussell scored back to back baskets inside to extend the lead to 50-31 with less than 10 minutes on the clock.

Andrew Lynn knocked down a three to keep the run going for West Point and the Warriors continued to pull away, eventually defeating Hatton 65-36.

Cochran led West Point with 17 points in the win. Trussell finished with 12, Laney and Simmons posted eight and Lynn and Perry each added six.

Cordova 69 – Good Hope 66 (Varsity boys)

A three-pointer by Charlie O'Neil and a basket from Noah Barnette gave the Raiders an early 5-0 start over Cordova but the Blue Devils were able to respond and tie the game. A basket from K'mal Bell tied the game at 7 and five straight points from Tanner Malin gave Good Hope a 12-11 lead with 12 minutes to play in the first half. Tyler Cone laid one in to make it a 14-11 game and K'mal Bell drilled a three to keep the Raiders in front 17-15 with eight minutes remaining in the opening half.

Five straight points from Cone kept Good Hope on top 25-17 with six minutes on the clock and Bell knocked down another three to make it 28-23. Back to back scores from Barnette gave the Raiders a 32-25 lead late in the half and Malin and Barnette each drilled three-pointers to give Good Hope a 38-33 advantage at the break.

O'Neil and Malin each scored early in the second half to keep the Raiders in front, but Cordova continued to cut into the lead. Baskets by Barnette and Cone made it 49-48 with 12 minutes left to play but Bell scored to make it 51-48.

Barnette and Hancock buckets maintained a 55-48 lead for Good Hope but a big run from the Blue Devils trimmed the lead to 60-58 with just under seven minutes remaining. Malin scored the next two buckets for Good Hope and tied the game at 64 with less than a minute to play but Cordova answered with a big three-pointer to take a 67-66 lead with just a few seconds left to play and went on to defeat the Raiders 69-66.

Tanner Malin led Good Hope with 19 points in the loss.

Meet the Coaches: Auburn offensive coordinator Mike Bobo

Jeff Shearer
AU Athletics

AUBURN, Ala. – Everywhere he looked growing up, Auburn offensive coordinator Mike Bobo saw coaches and teachers, with one exception.

"My grandfather was a preacher," Bobo said. "I kind of consider a coach a teacher, a little bit of a preacher at times."

Growing up in Georgia, Bobo aspired to become a high school football coach like his dad, Drew.

"My dad was a coach. My uncle was a coach," he said. "My aunts, my uncles, my grandmothers, they were all teachers. Having a way to have an impact on young people's lives."

After playing quarterback at the University of Georgia from 1994-97, Bobo began his coaching career at the college level.

"That was never my dream," he said. "Fortunate to get my foot in the door in college, and it took off from there."

After graduating from Georgia, Bobo remained at his alma mater for all but one of the next 16 years, ascending from GA to quarterbacks coach to offensive coordinator,

"It's a different part of their journey," he said. "There's still a growth process, on and off the field, a maturity process, and you get to help them go through that. I've been through it all.

"I try to always treat them like I treat my own children. I want my children to be successful and know what it means to work hard and have to earn things, and be accountable to people, and it's not just about you.

"There's also a piece called discipline. We're going to be disciplined in everything we do.

"That doesn't mean that I don't like you. To me that's love, holding people accountable, and making them do the right thing."

The progression – from walk-on to scholarship recipient, from backup to starter, from starter to standout, energizes Bobo.

"It's a lot of pressure on these young men, playing football in the best conference in the country," he said. "To help them navigate through that and have success gives me the biggest joy."

Bobo earned his reputation for quarterback development at Georgia, where he mentored David Greene, Matthew Stafford and Aaron Murray.

When he recruits QBs, Bobo looks for talent, toughness, preparation, decision-making, accuracy and leadership.

"You've got to be a talented guy to be able to play in this conference against the best players in the country, week in and week out, and you practice against them every day.

"I look for a guy who's tough, physically and mentally. He's got to be able to stand in the pocket and throw strikes with the best D-linemen in the country coming after you.

"He's got to be mentally tough, probably more than physically, because of the pressure of playing quarterback, to be able to focus every day and ignore the noise.

"They've got to be able to prepare at a high level. It's not just the scheduled meetings, it's the preparation you have to do leading up to the meetings.

"You've got to be able to protect the football, and that's decision-making in everything they do.

"You've got to be accurate. If you're going to throw the ball, a guy's got to be able to hit his target.

"If you do those things, that leads to the leadership piece. By the nature of the position, you've got to be able to lead.

"That comes through what you do on a daily basis, how you treat people and what kind of influence you are. Doing all the right things daily helps you lead."

Bobo and Auburn head coach Bryan Harsin go back a decade, when Harsin was the offensive coordinator at Texas and Bobo was Georgia's offensive coordinator.

"We got to sit in each other's quarterback rooms and talk a little bit of ball," said Bobo, who later as Colorado State's head coach competed against Harsin's Boise State teams for five seasons.

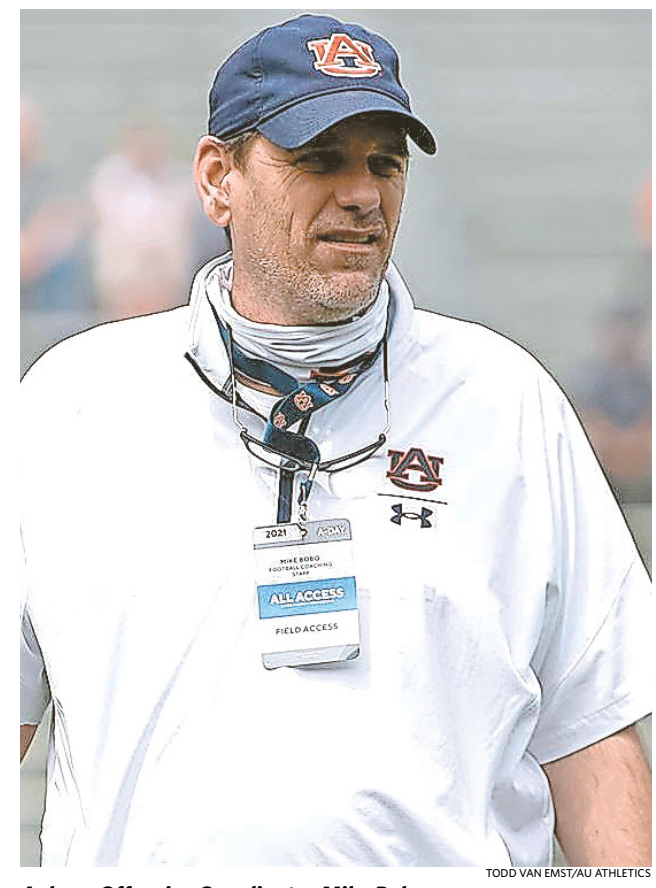

"They were tough. They expected to win every time they stepped on the field. You could feel that from them when they came on the field.

"I have a great amount of respect for Coach Harsin, both as a coach and as a person. I know what he's about and his commitment to excellence."

Mike Bobo became a coach to impact young people. When the Tigers welcome Georgia to Jordan-Hare Stadium on Oct. 9, he will have seen the Deep South's Oldest Rivalry from both sides, joining a fraternity that includes hall of fame coaches Shug Jordan, Vince Dooley and Pat Dye.

"There's a servant feeling here," Bobo said.

"People are here to serve others and help Auburn be special. I'm here to work my tail off and help Auburn be the best we can be."

Alabama-based teachers participate in annual Environmental Conservation Education Teacher Workshop at Camp Meadowbrook

ASHLYN GREY/THE CULLMAN TRIBUNE

CULLMAN, Ala. – The Cullman County Conservation District held the annual Environmental Conservation Education Teacher Workshop June 22, 23, and 24 for teachers across Alabama. With teachers coming from all different areas of the state, District Administrative Coordinator Kathy Holmes has been dedicated to making this experience wonderful for everyone in attendance.

Holmes shared, "It is a way for teachers to get conservation education back in the classroom so that the students know that Cullman is No. 1 in agriculture. We grow tons of food. I believe we are No. 2 in beef production.

"We want our students to know at a young age that food does not just happen.

"We have to appreciate that farmer, we have to protect his/her soil and water, and we are all about the conservation of our natural resources."

Each year, the National Conservation District distributes a theme for the Conservation Education Workshop and this year, the theme was deemed "Healthy Forests."

The theme is carried through the presenters that are organized as speakers. This year, the workshop was hosted at Camp Meadowbrook, which was a treasured forest before the April 27, 2011, tornadoes, and allowed discussions of how forests can reemerge as nature heals itself over time.

The events for the teachers were laid out in a neat Cullman County Conservation District pamphlet with activities planned each day from 8 a.m. – 4 p.m.

There were a variety of events such as an Alabama Commodities demonstration by Kathy DeFoor, a walking historic tour throughout Cullman from The Cullman County Museum and a local wildlife demonstration by Jay Eubanks.

"The teachers are having a ball. We give tons of activities, programs and visuals that they can take to the classroom that are all conservation education-based, along with free supplies for them to present these programs," said Holmes.

The group T-shirts distributed to the attending teachers were created at CR Signs in Hanceville, and were designed from the "Healthy Forests, Healthy Communities" logo.

The workshop is sponsored by the Cullman County Commission, local merchants and banks across town.

With the assistance of programs such as the Alabama Cooperative Extension from Auburn, the Forestry Association and the local farmers market, the Cullman County Conservation District has been able to provide a wonderful experience for all teachers involved. Even legislators such as State Senator Garlan Gudger, Representative Randall Shedd, Congressman Robert Aderholt and Representative Corey Harbison support the missions of the Cullman County Conservation District.

The Conservation District plans several events for students throughout the year including Land Judging and Forestry Judging for older FFA students, the Water Festival for all fourth graders, Forestry Awareness Week Now for all sixth graders and many more.

With teachers taking the lessons they have learned about conservation education and implementing them within their classrooms, students throughout Alabama will have ample opportunity to learn more about the value of nature, their environment and everything there is to be gained.

Let's erase e-waste

Mary Dixon, Allyson Shabel, Tyler Mason and Karnita Garner

AUBURN UNIVERSITY, Ala. – Broken or discarded household and industry electronics used for telecommunications, data processing or entertainment are known as electronic waste (e-waste). Chemicals found in e-waste are toxic and can seep into the soil at public landfills. Recycling, however, reduces e-waste contamination. Today, e-waste recycling protects natural resources and is easy and widely available.

Why recycle e-waste?

Recycling e-waste helps to reduce pollution and to repurpose electronic materials for future use. With increasing reliance on digital media, there is a concurrent increase in e-waste. In 2019, the United States generated approximately 7.6 million tons of e-waste according to The Global E-Waste Statistics Partnership. Since only 15 percent of e-waste is collected, there is a need to increase the frequency and intensity of e-waste recycling events. When the public chooses to recycle, these products are collected, processed and prepped to sell to various markets. Therefore, recycling electronics not only prevents environmental degradation and reduces waste, it helps to create local job opportunities.

2021 recycling drives

Alabama Extension at Alabama A&M University has a long history of hosting e-waste recycling events. The urban forestry, wildlife and natural resources management team partnered with local organizations to hold several recycling drives across the state from March through May 2021.

March

In early March, Tyler Mason, an urban regional Extension agent, co-hosted a recycling event at the Birmingham Zoo in partnership with the Jefferson County Commission. This event included both e-waste and paper shredding components for residents in Jefferson and surrounding counties.

Also in March, Urban Regional Extension Agent Mary Dixon facilitated an e-waste recycling event in Mobile. This activity was held in partnership with Keep Mobile Beautiful, Ransom Recycling and the Mobile Area Water and Sewage System. Residents from Mobile and Baldwin counties dropped off recyclables at the Mobile County Extension Office. In return, they received a goody bag with a grease recycling container, a litter bag, informational flyers and several other giveaways.

April

In mid-April, Allyson Shabel, an urban regional Extension agent, and Karnita Garner, an Extension environmental specialist, partnered with the City of Huntsville's Operation Green Team to host an e-waste drive and a hazardous waste collection day. This event was held at Hays Nature Preserve in Huntsville. As an Earth Day activity, visitors collected "go green" bags with wildflower seeds, herb seeds and other information. Participants also took home a Deterra drug disposal pouch to safely dispose of unused and unwanted medication.

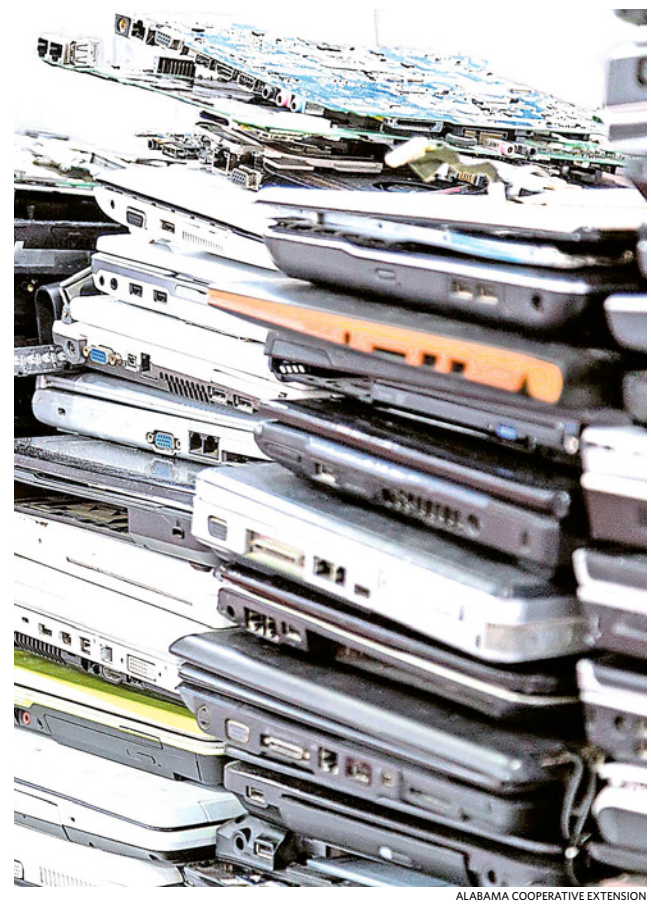

May

In May, Shabel co-hosted a recycling event in Decatur in partnership with the Better Business Bureau of North Alabama. Participants from across Morgan County were able to recycle e-waste and safely dispose of unused medication. This event also offered paper shredding as a means to securely dispose of important documents. Garner, AAMU Agribition Center Manager Robert Spencer, and Urban Regional Extension Agent Marcus Garner assisted with the event.

By following the CDC's COVID-19 guidelines, participants avoided public contact. They did not have to leave the comfort of their vehicles to properly discard materials and produce significant impacts.

Recycling impacts

Recycling events yield significant social, environmental and economic impacts. For example, chemicals found in electronics, such as mercury, lead, cadmium, bromine and chromium, are toxic and harmful to animals, plants and humans. Alabama Extension at AAMU and local partners host recycling events throughout the year. By working with recyclers, materials such as gold and copper, as well as old equipment, are reclaimed and repurposed.

ALABAMA COOPERATIVE EXTENSION

Recycling events held during the first quarter of 2021 provided the following impacts:

- 1,293 participants
- 28,197 pounds of electronics
- 9,522 pounds of metals
- 1,250 pounds of pesticides and fertilizers
- 3,235 pounds of other chemicals
- 5 pounds of pharmaceuticals and personal care products

By recycling the metal and electronics alone from these activities, 362 gallons of oil and 1,179,289 hours of electricity were saved according to the Montgomery County Department of Environmental Protection. Additionally, more than 39,303 pounds of carbon emissions were reduced, and 810 pounds of toxic metals were diverted away from the environment based on the e-Stewards Global Impact Calculator.

E-waste and other environmental drives are a great way to properly dispose of materials that are harmful to the environment. It also makes recycling easier for people who desire to protect the environment.

Learn more

Through the International Cooperation Program, the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) works to reduce the negative impact of e-waste in the United States and developing nations.

In Alabama, residents are encouraged to contact the Alabama Extension urban forestry, wildlife, and natural resources professional serving their county to learn about e-waste best management practices. These professionals will be able to help locate an e-waste recycler and find upcoming e-waste drives. Also, Alabama Extension's EMEP: E-waste Management Education Program offers educational information on recycling e-waste safely and improving environmental stability.

Hanceville (from Front)

The Kingsmen and Gold City will perform a concert at the Hanceville Civic Center July 31 at 5 p.m.

The Hanceville Music Fest with Confederate Railroad is scheduled for Sept. 18 at 5 p.m. at Hanceville's Veterans Memorial Park.

Spotlighting Allie Heaton, a military-bound student from Cullman High School

Christy Perry
christy@cullmantribune.com

ALLIE HEATON

2021 Cullman High School graduate Allie Heaton has pondered joining the military since she was a small child. She explained, "I started really having an interest in the military around 3 years old. I know the typical response when asked why you are joining the military is because of a family background and that does play a big part of my interest."

Heaton has many family members before her who have served in the United States Armed Forces including; her uncle Terry Heaton, a Master Sergeant in the Vietnam War and now a member of the Cullman Police Department, her Uncle Bobby who served in Germany during the Vietnam War, her "Pawpaw" Reverend Floyd Bradford who enlisted right after World War II, her great-grandpa Reverend Ervin Williams (many may know as "Marble Man") who served in World War II, her great-grandfather Reverend Frank Butts who served in the Korean War, her great-great uncle Robert Drummond who was a prisoner of war during the Korean War and earned the Silver Star, and her great-great uncle James Hughes who served during World War II.

Heaton said, "They have been my biggest inspiration for wanting to join the Army, alongside my faith. "

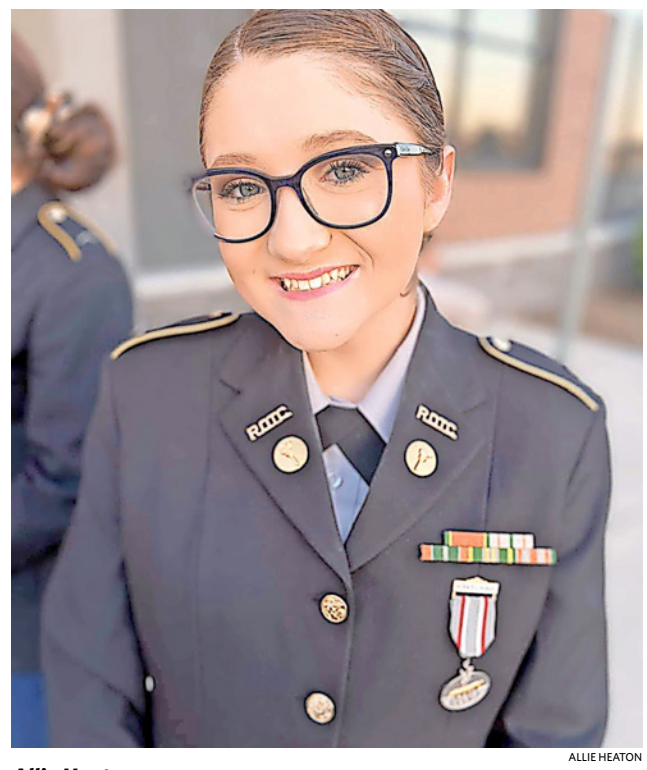

She continued, "I've really trusted God to help me make this decision. At first, there was a lot of praying and doubting because this is a huge commitment, but I knew I was ready to make it. Now, I can't imagine doing anything else."

Heaton has served as a Company Commander in the Junior Reserve Officer Training Corps program this past year. This helped her make a decision on which branch was the best fit for her.

She said, "I kept going back and forth with the different branches until I sat down with SFC Matt Clayton and he started talking to me about what the Army could offer me and what it could do for my future. It just kind of clicked that the Army was the branch I wanted to be a part of."

Heaton doesn't have a set date for basic training as of right now. She hopes to be a combat medic or an animal care specialist.

She has many people that she thanks for helping her get this far and for guiding her in this important decision. "First, I'd like to thank my mom. She's been my biggest supporter from day one. My family has never doubted me. Next, I want to thank Desperation Church and Pastor Andy Heis. I honestly don't know what I would do without them." Heaton added, "I would also like to thank SFC Matt Clayton and SFC Andrew Spratlin. They have really helped me to get out of my comfort zone and shown me what the Army's really like. Also, Sergeant Chad Ullery and Colonel Bud Jones. They have helped me to learn so many different things I can use during my career with the Army."

ALLIE HEATON

Allie Heaton

Heaton considers herself "blessed" to have received the Hunley Award. This award, given by the Sons of the Confederacy, is "awarded to cadets of the United States Junior Reserve Officer Training Corps who have demonstrated strong corps values, honor, courage and commitment to their unit during the school year."

Heaton concluded, "This is a commitment and for all my friends and anyone who is joining, always remember, Jeremiah 29:11, 'For I know the plans I have for you, declares the Lord. Plans to prosper you and not to harm you, plans to give you hope and a future.'"
