CULLMAN, Ala. — Friends and families packed nearly a mile stretch of First Avenue on Friday night for 2nd Fridays which spanned from Depot Park to several blocks north of U.S. Highway 278.

The event, hosted by The City of Cullman Parks, Recreation and Sports Tourism, Cullman Downtown Merchants and Cullman Area Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Center, returned from its winter slumber for its first celebration of 2022.

“It’s so big and there’s so much to do. My kids have been running around having the time of their life. I just saw the mechanical bull. I’m not too sure but I might try it after a little while if I get brave enough.

“We listened to the band down by the park and they were so good,” shared Alyssa Campbell who came from Morgan County with her family. » PAGE 5

HANCEVILLE, Ala. — The 24th Annual Hanceville Antique Tractor and Engine Show was held on Saturday under the bright sun at Wallace State Community College.

The event kicked off with a prayer, the Pledge of Allegiance and the National Anthem. Following the show of patriotism, the fun began with the farm harvesters.

Organizer Charles Allen shared, “We’ve got a big crowd. We’ve got people from as far away as Lawrenceburg, Tennessee, and the good Harley Marsh homemade ice cream. We’ve got a crowd of good people. We just want to thank the good Lord for the weather after we had so much rain this past week. Everything is going great today.”

It was truly a day of family fun for the Allen family. Joining Mr. Allen were some of his children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren, several of whom reside in Hanceville.

Farmers and equipment aficionados examined dozens of John Deere, Farmall and other tractors learning about the specific farm equipment and their history. Many fathers and grandfathers took the opportunity to teach their little ones about the history of agriculture and the tractors and engines.

Pedal races were held with fierce young competitors wheeling their miniature tractors to the finish line. For the grown competitors, tractors were manned for the slow races, with the winners going to the adults were made it to the wire in the longest time without killing the engine, a difficult feat for many. The skillet tossing contest tested the flingers’ biceps and showed who was top dog in the cast iron » PAGE 6

Nick Griffin

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — The ASWA released its 2022 baseball All-State team on Sunday morning and there was plenty of local flavor on this year's teams. West Point's Eli Folds, Hanceville's Adam Cooper and Addison's Brody Dollar each earned Second Team All-State honors in their respective classifications after outstanding seasons and Addison's Jed Wilkins and Cullman's Easton Peed each earned an honorable mention as well.

The organization selects a pitcher, hitter, coach and player of the year in each of the seven AHSAA classifications and in the AISA. The All-State team is compiled through submissions from coaches to sports writers in their area and voted on by the ASWA prep committee.

'Live in the moment': Zeke White remembers his Cold Springs career

Sammy Confer
sammy@cullmantribune.com

BREMEN, Ala. — In this interview, I talked to Cold Springs guard/defensive end Zeke White, who will continue his academic and athletic career at Millsaps College.

Zeke talked about some of his favorite football and high school memories.

"My best sports memories was getting to play the sport I love under the Friday night lights and getting the chance to show out in front of my amazing community and getting to do that with a great group of guys," White said.

"Some of my best high school memories will always be homecoming week and getting to play in the game that week.

"That game just had a special atmosphere like none other and it was always special to take the field that night."

White continued, "Two more of my favorite memories will always be Friday night lights and getting to compete in front of the whole school and community and the student sections at basketball games.

"It was a great time being with some of my very best friends and rooting on our other best friends and bringing an amazing atmosphere for those guys to play in."

Zeke feels fortunate to have work with some great coaches during his time at Cold Springs and learned a lot from them.

"All throughout my career, every coach that I had was always great people to spend time with every day," White said.

"They always had my back on and off the field and believed in my dreams to play college football. They gave me the tools and knowledge to be able to achieve that.

"The coaches at Cold Springs High will always have a special place in my heart because because they are some of the biggest reasons that I have been able to achieve what I have done so far and I will always be thankful for the long hours on the field, in the weight room, and the dedication that they have put into throughout my career."

White talked about what all he'll miss the most about Cold Springs and offered some advice to those students that are fixing to start high school.

"The thing I will miss most is just being able to get up every day and go to a place with such great people and make lifelong memories," White said.

"Some advice would be live in the moment, slow down every once in a while, and look around because it doesn't last long."

Second Annual Cullman Area Association of Realtors Golf Tournament set for July 17

Sara Gladney
sara@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN, Ala. — The Cullman Association of Realtors Golf Tournament will be held at Cross Creek Golf Course with early bird registration beginning at 10:30 a.m. Participants are welcome to attend lunch at the course which will be served at 11 a.m., with a shotgun start at noon. The Cullman Association of Realtors works to add value to the community by providing community services and promoting quality of life. They have partnered with several sponsors including Bill Smith, Lewis Roofing and Kimbrough Land Surveying to bring the golf tournament back for another year to benefit the area charities that aid many living in Cullman. A portion of the proceeds from the tournament will be distributed evenly amongst local charities including Hope Horses which is the only therapeutic riding center in North Alabama, bringing riding lessons to children and adults with physical, cognitive, social and emotional needs; Curt's Closet, Cullman's boutique for donated clothing given free to children in need; Cullman County Imagination Library, providing free monthly books to kids up to 5 years old and Cullman County Child Development Center, a school for students with intellectual or physical disabilities from pre-K to 21 years old.

Monica Williams, member of CAOR explained, "The original idea was from Kelly Keel and Debra Scott last year while revamping the PR side for the Association and to have a fun event. The new committee built on it and decided to turn it into a fundraiser for charities because we had so many charities come to us this year about needing help."

Members from the charities will be participating in the tournament and will be able to talk to attendees about the services their organizations provide. Participants will receive door prizes provided by Lewis Roofing, a chance to win a Hole-in-One Car from Bill Smith, as well as additional prizes. The cost to play is $500 per team for a four-man scramble. For more information or to register, email cullmanprcommittee@gmail.com.

Her daughter, 6-year-old Trinity, had her voice heard stating enthusiastically, "Mama! Mama, my best thing was the big slide. It was so much fun. I want to go back!"

In addition to the large inflatable slide, bounce houses and loads of activities were made available for the younger attendees.

For adults, live music, fresh produce from local farmers, a cruise-in car show, in memory of Harold Huffstutler and vendors of all nature were available. Dalton "Doolittle" Chambers came to see the cars. While looking inside an antique Chevy Nova, he remarked, "My granddaddy had one of them. That's the prettiest car ever made. I wish I had it now."

Winston Ramble performed on the Shirley Quattlebaum State Farm stage set up by the Festhalle while Doolin Daltons played blocks away up the street on the Eva Bank stage. Sacred Heart of Jesus Church held Bingo and Bunco games across the street at their Family Life Center and had many prizes up for grabs.

Many of the Warehouse District merchants extended their hours for event participants, showing off their goods and catching up with old friends. Riderz, Cullman's only skateboard shop, Leldon's and Karma's Coffee House all greeted their customers, providing them with a warm welcome. Sips 'n Strokes of Cullman offered face painting to little ones and little big kids."I got a rainbow from the pretty lady," one tyke said showing off her rosy cheek. With the weather cooperating and only a drop of two of rain coming down, Friday's festivities were celebrated by thousands from Cullman and surrounding communities. The City of Cullman's desire and hard work to provide family fun for all was apparent and successful during the event.

The next 2nd Fridays celebration will be held on July 8 and the following, on Aug.12.

Cullman City Schools

CULLMAN, Ala. — Cullman City Schools has been named one of only two Science of Reading spotlight districts by the Alabama State Department of Education, in honor of the system's progressive and creative approach to literacy and reading education in primary and elementary grade levels.

Cullman City Schools was one of two school systems, along with 12 individual schools across the state, recognized for demonstrating a strong commitment to foundational literacy for Alabama's K-3 learners.

"This is a great honor for our teachers who work so hard teaching reading, disaggregating data and delivering tiered instruction," Superintendent Kyle Kallhoff said.

"Our teachers do a wonderful job using tools to determine the strengths and opportunities for improvement of our students and delivering instruction based on that data.

"To be recognized as one of two systems to receive this honor aligns with our mission to be one of the top five school systems in Alabama."

The spotlight commendation aims to honor schools and systems that implement steps to improve the reading proficiency for kindergartners through third grade students, and take steps to ensure that students read at or above grade level by the end of third grade, as part of a strong commitment to foundational literacy.

The Alabama State Department of Education noted these systems and schools made a demonstrated commitment to the components aligned with the Science of Reading as outlined in the Alabama Literacy Act; and utilized explicit, systematic and differentiated reading instruction and interventions with extensive opportunities for practice, based on student need, for all students including those exhibiting characteristics of dyslexia.

The state added the leadership in these schools worked alongside the school's local reading specialists and teachers to deepen their understanding of the science of reading by fully participating in professional learning such as Language Essentials for Teachers of Reading and Spelling.

The systems and schools recognized also utilized data to monitor individual student reading progress, make necessary instructional adjustments and provide additional instructional opportunities such as Tier III reading intervention, summer reading camp and before/after school tutoring.

Cullman City Schools and Shelby County Schools were the two districts recognized. The individual schools included Russellville Elementary (Russellville City), Hackleburg Elementary (Marion County), Fyffe High School (Dekalb County), Central Elementary School (Tuscaloosa City), University Charter (University Charter), Center Point Elementary School (Jefferson County), Glencoe Elementary School (Etowah County), Sophia P. Kingston (Selma City), Dadeville Elementary (Tallapoosa County), Wetumpka Elementary (Elmore County), Elsanor Elementary (Baldwin County) and Ariton School (Dale County).

LIFESTYLE

Surviving the high cost of living

Dorothy Brandon
Alabama Cooperative Extension

AUBURN UNIVERSITY, Ala. — According to the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics (2022), food prices, on average, increased by 10.8% from April 2021 to April 2022. This spike marked the largest one-year percentage increase in more than 40 years. Likewise, the price of food, such as eggs, meat, poultry and fish, has increased by 14.3% within the same period. Not only have food prices steadily risen, but the price of gas, housing, transportation and health care have risen as well. People are looking for ways to survive the high cost of living.

Impact of inflation

Overall, daily living costs rose 8.5% in the past year. Due to inflation, households now spend an additional $341 to purchase the same goods and services they did one year ago. This means that families have less disposable income (available money after tax deductions). Unlike high-income families, low-income families are more likely to use their income for necessities like food, gas and housing. So, the slightest change in disposable income for these families makes it extremely difficult to manage household expenses.

The wages of average workers are not keeping pace with the steady rise in prices. The result is inflation, causing a decrease in buying power. For example, meat that cost $50 a year ago, now costs $57.15 or more. Inflation not only impacts buying power, but it affects budgets as well.

Cost-saving tips

While soaring inflation is causing many people to rethink their spending decisions, an important decision you can make is to create and use a spending plan. A spending plan is simply a budget outlining how you will spend your money. A spending plan also helps to control spending. Other cost-cutting tips to control spending on food, gas and housing are listed below.

Food

- Use coupons and coupon apps.
- Take advantage of special offers (e.g., two items for the price of one).
- Buy generic or store brand.
- Plan menus ahead of time.
- Buy cheaper cuts of meat.
- Buy in bulk but make sure the unit price is lower than when sold individually.
- Avoid buying food items that require less labor (e.g., chopped onions, bagged salad, cubed fruit or shredded cheese) because they cost more money.
- Limit eating out.
- Establish container gardens to grow fresh produce and reduce food costs.

Gas

- Use public transportation where available.
- Carpool
- Use apps to avoid traffic jams or rush hour traffic.
- Use gas apps to locate the least expensive gas in your local area.
- Keep your vehicle well maintained (tires properly inflated, regular oil change, etc.)

Housing

- Move in with parents or friends or get a housemate.
- Learn to do your own home repairs if a licensed person is not required.
- Identify ways to save energy and cut water usage to save on utility bills.

More information

In closing, some individuals whose wages increase with inflation can possibly absorb the rising cost of necessities more easily.

Unfortunately, many individuals and families (e.g., older adults and those living paycheck to paycheck) feel the pinch of increasing prices as inflation outpaces their paychecks.

Nonetheless, use these money-saving tips to survive the high cost of living.

Visit https://www.aces.edu/ for more cost-saving tips to reduce monthly household expenses.

CULLMAN, Ala. — Retired Cullman High School teacher and now, bestselling author, Dorenda Doyle, will present a reading and signing of her newly published memoir "How I Learned to Like My Mom: Forgive Those You Love Before It's too Late" on Friday, June 17 at Karma's Coffee House in Cullman.

"My book is a 'Tears to Cheers' memoir about my mother, a midwestern honky-tonk gal who wrote country songs and married seven times! My primary message is to find ways to forgive those you love.

The title, 'How I Learned to Like My Mom,' says it all, and came about after I found myself saddled with the responsibility of writing my mother's eulogy," she explained.

Doyle has been a resident of Cullman since 1988, raising a family and teaching at Cullman High School, Wallace State and Saint Bernard Preparatory School. She found herself interweaving her own life experiences with that of her mother's.

She said, "I couldn't help but relate what I experienced as a child and teen to who and what I am today. My own family relationships and work life were definitely affected by my upbringing."

As a result, Doyle has a message of not only forgiveness, but also, what she describes as a "bootstraps" attitude. "I'm sure my former students, as well as my own son, would all say this was my motto: pull yourself up by your bootstraps!

"I never wanted my past to define me, and I always wanted my students to aim for success no matter what life threw at them."

Doyle's book is available on Amazon in paperback, e-book and hardcover formats.

You can connect with Dorenda Doyle at https://www.pullupyourbootstraps.org/, on Facebook at BooksbyDorenda and by email at dorenda@PullUpYourBootstraps.org.

Stop by Karma's Coffee House on Friday, June 17 between 2 p.m. and 4 p.m. to hear a reading, purchase your copy and have it personalized and signed by the author.

"I surely hope to see some of my former students and co-workers at the event!" Doyle shared.

Sara Gladney

CULLMAN, Ala. — Seven Brides for Seven Brother's is a musical by a book by Lawrence Kasha and David Landay. Set in the late 19th century in Oregon, the musical is a western/romantic comedy about a man named Adam who goes in search of a wife in town, finds a potential bride working at a local bar and then convinces her to marry him the same day. Only after returning to his far away cabin in the woods does she discover that he lives with his six unsophisticated and rude brothers. She tries to teach the brothers proper behavior and how to court a woman. Adam also tries to help his brothers by suggesting they kidnap wives of their own.

Cindy Pass of Cullman Community Theatre says that the musical was selected because of the lively choreography, beautiful music and its appeal to audiences of all ages. The cast began rehearsals in early May. Pass said, "The cast of Seven Brides for Seven Brothers includes many CCT members who have been in several previous shows, but this year, we are thrilled to have a large group of new folks including some of our lead characters. The great thing about community theater is the opportunity for adults of all ages, teens and children to come together and create a beautiful event under the leadership of our own local directors."

The production team includes Director Wayne Cook, Choreographer and co-Music Director Sarah Jane Skinner, co-Music Director Tyler Skinner, Assistant Director Melva Jackson, Stage Manager Rodney Basenburg, Assistant Stage Manager Linda Foley, Production Operations Manager Noah Carpenter and House Manager Casey Sandlin.

CCT does not yet have a permanent place to rehearse and often, the cast members have the added challenge of changing rehearsal spaces around and adjusting to new places while trying to learn their parts. Pass said, "This summer, we are blessed to be able to use the gymnasium at East Elementary. Our summer musical is always a big production. We perform it at Cullman High School, but we can only rehearse there one or two weeks before the performances. That has been quite a challenge for set building and blocking and for the use of props and set pieces. Our casts are very understanding of our constraints, and they always come through and give a great show. We hope to one day have a dedicated performing arts center to house a theater with 300-500 seats where we can rehearse, build sets, perform and store used set pieces and equipment.

"There is currently a group of citizens in our community who have conceptualized a building that would house a theater, art gallery, studios and a new library for the Cullman community. We could expand the availability of art appreciation and instruction as well as increase the number of theater performances and concerts in our area. We are hopeful that can happen here. There is a similar effort in Jefferson County and other communities that see the need for the literacy arts."

Seven Brides for Seven Brothers with be performed at the Cullman High School auditorium Friday, July 8, at 7 p.m., Saturday, July 9, at 7 p.m. and Sunday, July 10 at 2 p.m. Tickets will go on sale online and at the door. See Cullman Community Theatre's Facebook page for more information.

HEALTH

Recognition and extra precautions are needed to prevent heat illnesses

ADPH

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — With heat indices rising into triple digits, the Alabama Department of Public Health advises the public to be alert to the warning signs of heat illnesses. Heat-related illnesses occur when the body is exposed to high temperatures. The incidence of these illnesses rises expectedly during warm weather periods, and anyone exposed to high temperatures or extreme heat can experience symptoms when the body's temperature control system is overloaded.

The most common heat-related illnesses are as follows:

- Heat cramps
- Heat exhaustion
- Heat stroke

Heat cramps– include muscle pains or spasms (abdomen, arms or legs), profuse sweat and high salt concentration in the sweat.

Heat exhaustion– is associated with heavy sweating, paleness, muscle cramps, tiredness, weakness, dizziness, headache, nausea or vomiting and fainting. Other possible symptoms may include cool and moist skin, fast and weak pulse rate, fast and shallow breathing or irritability. Older adults, those with high blood pressure, and those working or exercising in a hot environment are prone to heat exhaustion. If heat exhaustion is not treated, it may progress to heatstroke.

Heat stroke or sun stroke – the most serious heat-related illness, a life-threatening problem, may occur when the body is unable to control its temperature. Body temperature may rise to 106 degrees F or higher within 10 -15 minutes. Signs include an extremely high body temperature, red, hot and dry or moist skin, rapid, strong pulse, throbbing headache, dizziness, nausea, dehydration, combativeness or confusion and unconsciousness. Heat stroke is a medical emergency and even with immediate treatment, it can be life-threatening or cause serious long-term problems.

Recommendations are that people drink plenty of fluids (other than alcohol or caffeinated beverages) to prevent dehydration, stay in an air-conditioned room, keep out of the sun by seeking shelter, wear a wide-brimmed hat, light-colored and loose-fitting clothing, use sunscreen of SPF 15 or higher, take cool showers or baths and reduce or eliminate strenuous activities during the hottest times of the day.

Individuals with heart disease, diabetes, obesity, poor circulation or previous stroke problems, people of older and younger ages and those taking certain medications are at greater risk of becoming ill in hot weather.
