CCBOE approves changes to orders, awards bid

Cheyenne Sharp
cheyenne@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN, Ala. — The Cullman County Board of Education (CCBOE) held a special-called meeting on Monday, April 1. The purpose was to address two changes to current work orders for two Cullman County Schools and the approval of a bid for re-roofing projects at Fairview campuses.

Board President Gene Sullins began the meeting with a congratulations to Superintendent Dr. Shane Barnette for his recent election victory.

Barnette opened the business with a request for the board to approve a change to a current order for the new gym project at Cold Springs High School. The change increases the total cost of the project to $224,112.90. The board approved Barnette's request.

New owners, same great recipes: Pasquale's Pizza and Pasta

CHEYENNE SHARP/THE CULLMAN TRIBUNE

Pasquale's Pizza and Pasta has undergone a complete renovation under the new ownership of Mike and Steve Morgan, brothers from Tarrant, Alabama.

Cheyenne Sharp
cheyenne@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN, Ala. — Pasquale's Pizza has been a staple in the Cullman community since the 1960s when local couple Phillip and Donna Nunnelley brought the pizza franchise to Cullman. After many decades and memories, when the couple was looking to retire and sell the longtime eatery, the Morgan brothers stepped in to keep the spirit and nostalgic taste of the place alive.

Growing up in Tarrant, Steve and Mike Morgan were raised on Pasquale's Pizza. By the late 90s many Pasquale's franchises had closed. Hopeful to find a way to revitalize the chain and bring the famous Pasquale's nostalgia back to the masses, Steve Morgan began to

FL man dies following wreck in Cullman Co.; Troopers asking for info about other vehicle and driver

lauren@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN, Ala. — A two-vehicle crash that occurred at approximately 1:57 p.m. Friday, March 29, resulted in one fatality. Cullman County Coroner Jeremy Kilpatrick identified the victim as Brenton J. Weaver, 42, of Naples, Florida.

According to Alabama State Troopers, Weaver was critically injured when the 2014 Lexus CT 200h he was driving struck the rear of a dump truck. Weaver was transported to Cullman Regional for treatment, where he later succumbed to his injuries and was pronounced deceased. Troopers said the dump truck left the scene of the crash, and its make, model and driver are currently unknown.

Anyone with information on the dump truck and/or driver should contact ALEA Troopers at 256-353-0631.

The crash occurred on Alabama Highway 157 near State Crusher Road, approximately 10 miles north of Cullman, in Cullman County.

Nothing further is available as Troopers with the Alabama Law Enforcement Agency's (ALEA) Highway Patrol Division continue to investigate.

CULLMAN, Ala. — Northbrook Baptist Church is hosting an event aimed at married and engaged couples who seek to grow their relationship with each other and experience spiritual oneness with Christ. The "Make Us One" gathering will take place on Wednesday, April 3, at 5:30 p.m. Pastor Keith Warden and his wife, Kristi, will be bringing the message and invite any interested couples to sign up saying, "The cost is $40 and includes dinner for two, a special gift and an evening of worship and encouragement. (The) meal is served at 5:30 and worship begins at 6:30. Don't miss this special opportunity to connect more deeply with the one you love the most!"

To register, visit www.northbrookbc.com/makeusone.

CCBOE (from Front)

"We've been negotiating some of this change order for Cold Springs for a while," he said.

"So, we felt like we needed to have a special-called board meeting to get this paid and get it moved out and move forward."

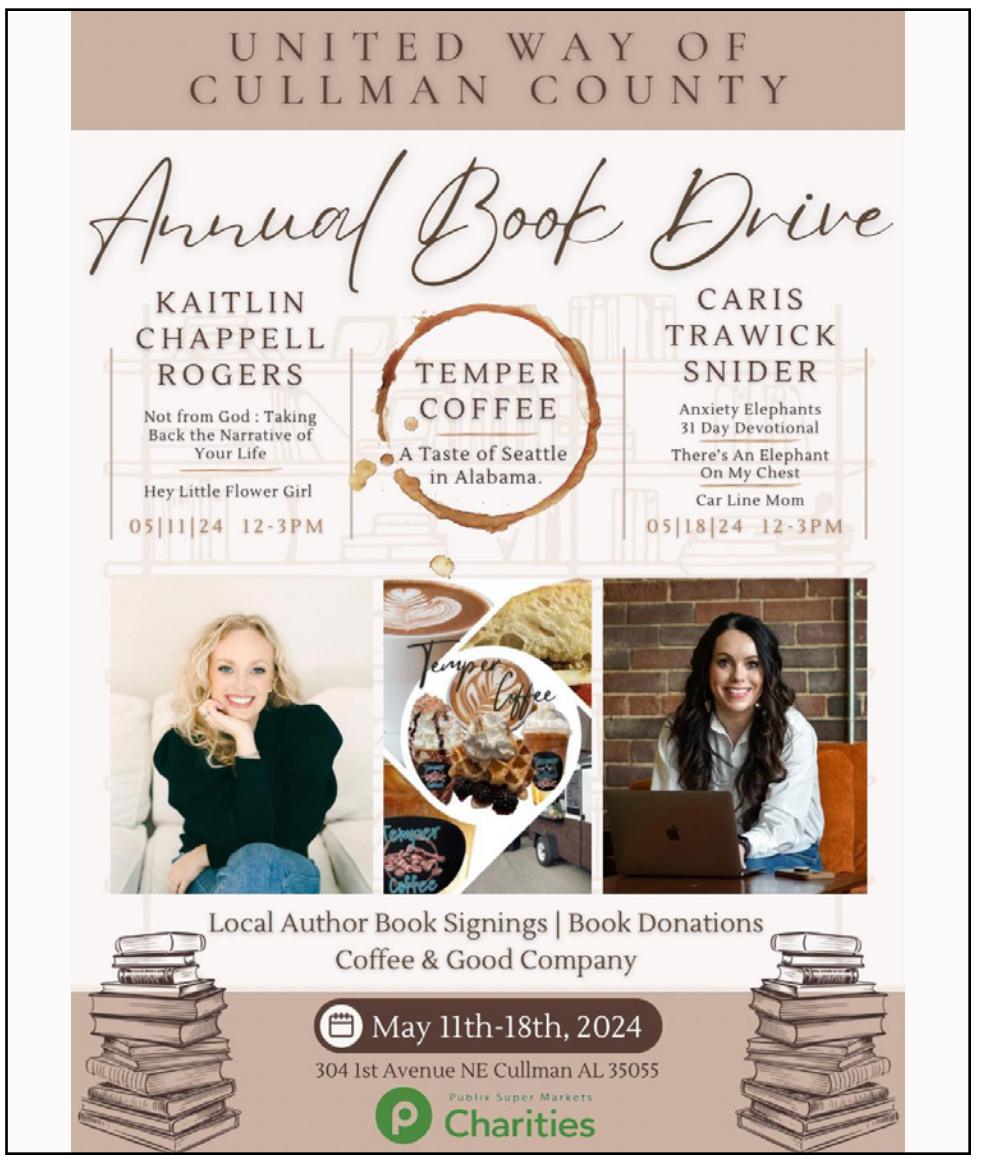

The second approved order change on the agenda was a reduction of the cost for the Holly Pond welding shop. The change deducts $4,894.20 from the project's total cost.

The final item was approval of a bid received by the Cullman County Schools Maintenance Department for various roofing projects across campuses at Fairview Middle and Elementary Schools, as well as projects at Hanceville Elementary School.

The bid was approved to be awarded to Excel General Contractors for $496,000.

The next CCBOE meeting will be held on Thursday, April 11.

The work session will begin at 3:30 p.m. with the meeting immediately following.

FINAL FOUR BOUND! Alabama reaches first-ever Final 4 with 89-82 victory over Clemson

Steven Gonzalez
UA Athletics

LOS ANGELES — The Alabama men's basketball team made history Saturday night in Crypto.com Arena, as the No. 4 seed Crimson Tide reached the program's first-ever Final Four, defeating No. 6 seed Clemson, 89-82, in the NCAA Men's Basketball Tournament Elite Eight.

Mark Sears, who was named the West Region Most Valuable Player, led five UA players in double figures, finishing with a game high 23 points on 7-14 shooting from beyond the arc.

Nick Pringle collected a double-double with 16 points and 11 boards while Jarin Stevenson added a career-best 19 points on five made threes.

Rylan Griffen (13) and Aaron Estrada (10) also scored in double digits to lead the Tide (25-11).

In addition to Sears, Alabama's Grant Nelson was named to the West Region All-Tournament Team.

Clemson (24-12) was led by Joseph Girard III who scored 19 points on 5-10 shooting from deep, while Ian Schieffelin added 18 points and 11 rebounds in the loss.

Head Coach Nate Oats Postgame Comments

"I couldn't be more proud of a group of guys. We challenged them at the beginning of this tournament that we're going to have to pick up our defense, and our defense got significantly better. And they've just been all about winning.

"I mean, nobody really cares who's scoring the points, and get a little frustrated and they just keep playing together.

"I mean, I've got multiple guys telling me to keep other guys in the game.

"And there's been no selfishness in this four-game run.

"Clemson got up 13 on us. And after that we went on a big run to close the half to have a three-point lead.

"And they made some runs on us in the second half. And it seemed like we just hit timely three after timely three, whether it was Jarin or Rylan or Mark.

"Mark hit one, felt like it was from half court. And it was big three after big three.

"I am truly proud of these guys. We're going to enjoy it for a night, go enjoy Easter Sunday back in Tuscaloosa. And then figure out the plans when we're going to Phoenix."

Team stats

• With the Elite Eight victory, Alabama advances to the program's first-ever Final Four

• The win was Alabama's eighth NCAA Tournament victory in the last four seasons, with head coach Nate Oats improving to 8-3 (.727) over the stretch

• Jarin Stevenson came off the bench to score 19 points on 7-11 shooting and 5-8 from beyond the arc

• Alabama connected on 70 percent (16-23) from the floor in the second half including knocking down 10-15 (67 percent) from beyond the arc

• The Tide opened the contest hitting just one three-pointer over the first 13 three-point attempts, but connected on 15-23 (.652) for the remainder of the game

• UA outrebounded Clemson 44-33 on the night and owned a 15-6 edge in second chance points

• Clemson went 8-16 (50 percent) from the charity stripe while Alabama went 15-22 (68 percent)

• The Tide ended up with 20 assists on 29 made baskets, as Rylan Griffen finished with a career-best eight assists

• Alabama finished with six swats in the game and now has accumulated 22 blocks over the last three contests, its best stretch of the season

First half

• After a slow start from both teams, Clemson used a 14-2 run to take its largest lead of the half at 26-13 with 7:54 left

• The Crimson Tide responded with a 20-2 run over the next 6:04 to regain the lead at 33-28 with just over a minute remaining

• In all, Alabama would go on to outscore Clemson 22-6 over the final 7:54 to take a 35-32 lead at intermission

Second half

• Clemson scored the first four points of the half to take a 36-35 lead, the last lead it would hold the rest of the contest

• Alabama responded with five straight points to regain the lead, 40-36

• Leading 62-59, Mark Sears and Jarin Stevenson hit back-to-back treys to stretch the lead to nine

• The Tide never led by less

• Jarin Stevenson led the Tide with 10 points while Rylan Griffen added eight points and four rebounds

• Sears finished the half with 18 points on 6-7 shooting from deep, while Nick Pringle added 13 points and seven boards

Up next

• The Crimson Tide will take on the tournament's No. 1 overall seed and East Region champion UConn in the 2024 NCAA Men's Basketball Final Four on Saturday, April 6

• The tip time and television information for the national semifinal will be announced at a later date

UA ATHLETICS

Alabama defeated Clemson 89-82 Saturday night to advance to its first final four in program history.

PREP BASEBALL

Cullman collects wins over Palatine, Enterprise

Sammy Confer
sammy@cullmantribune.com

HOOVER, Ala. – The Cullman Bearcats traveled to Hoover Saturday morning for a pair of varsity games, and they returned home with a pair of wins. Cullman got the day started with a 10-0 win over Palatine and wrapped things up with a 5-3 win over Enterprise.

Cullman 10 - Palatine 0 (Baseball)

Cullman got on the scoreboard in its opening at-bats. Tanner Gaines drew a one-out walk, and Carson Stancil's RBI triple brought home Gaines to give the Bearcats the early lead. One out later, Brooks Heatherly hit an RBI single to center field to make it 2-0.

Cullman quickly broke the game wide open in the top of the second. Jonah Inman drew a two-out walk, and stole second, then moved to third on a wild pitch. Two more walks loaded up the bases for Bennett Johnson, who drew one of his own to make it 3-0.

Heatherly hit a two-run double to right field to give them a 5-0 lead.

A walk loaded up the bases again, then Colter Bowen hit a two-run single to left field to stretch their lead to 7-0. Tyler Brock and Bowen both scored on an error to make it 9-0.

Bowen added an RBI single in the top of the sixth to increase the Bearcat lead to 10-0 and Cullman would go on to shut out Palatine 10-0.

Heatherly led the way for Cullman with two hits and three RBIs. Bowen added a pair of hits and two RBIs, while Stancil (two hits) and Johnson (one hit) each collected an RBI of their own in the win.

Case Edwards pitched a complete game three-hit shutout for the Bearcats.

Cullman 5 - Enterprise 3 (Game Two)

After a scoreless first inning, Enterprise struck first in the top of the second as a two-out error gave them a 1-0 lead. Cullman took the lead in the bottom of the third. Cooper Loftin and Inman both reached on an error to lead off the inning, then on just the second pitch of the at-bat, Gaines hit a two-out single to right field to give the Bearcats a 2-1 lead. The Wildcats hit an RBI single and an RBI triple to take a 3-2 lead in the top of the fifth. Cullman, though, answered right back in the bottom of the sixth.

Johnson reached on a bunt single to lead off the inning. After a sacrifice bunt by Heatherly, Brock hit an RBI double to left field to tie the game up at three. A single put runners on the corners, then a sacrifice bunt by Caleb Heis gave them a 4-3 lead.

Andrew Au followed that up with an RBI single to make it a 5-3 game. Enterprise loaded the bases with two outs in the top of the seventh, but Kase Nixon forced the next batter to fly out to left field to end the game, and the Bearcats hung on to knock off the Wildcats 5-3.

Gaines finished with a hit and two RBIs for Cullman (9-17). Brock (two hits), Au (one hit), and Heis each added an RBI in the win. Nixon went the distance for the Bearcats as he allowed seven hits and two earned runs, walked two and struck out two.

CULLMAN, Ala. — Locally owned Dixie Duds and Decor celebrated a grand re-opening with a ribbon cutting Friday morning, March 29, with the Cullman Area Chamber of Commerce.

Owner Melia Martinez Mead shared a heartfelt thank you with the community for supporting her store over the last seven years.

"We didn't initially have a grand opening, but I am so thankful to be doing it now with my two daughters by my side," Mead said. "I am so grateful to the community for the support, my amazing staff and family and everyone who has poured into this journey."

Following the ribbon cutting, the store was open to the public for its grand re-opening.

"A 'style for every story' is our store's slogan," Mead said. "It is aimed to demonstrate that our boutique is where affordability meets style, welcoming customers from all walks of life to indulge in a taste of luxury without compromise."

Dixie Duds and Decor is located at 300 Second St. SE in Cullman.

Wallace State 1st in state selected to participate in SME Workforce Pipeline Challenge

Special to The Cullman Tribune

HANCEVILLE, Ala. — Faculty and staff of Wallace State Community College recently met with industry partners and Society for Manufacturing Engineers (SME) staff to start a three-year project aimed at increasing the manufacturing workforce in the United States.

SME is a national nonprofit committed to accelerating new manufacturing technology adoption and building North America's manufacturing talent and capabilities. The meeting was a kick-off to SME's Manufacturing Imperative Workforce Pipeline Challenge (MI-WPC) to discuss strengths and challenges in addressing the industry's workforce shortage and skills gap crisis.

"We are excited to lead Alabama in this nationwide effort to provide the manufacturing workforce with qualified and well-trained employees," said Dr. Vicki Karolewics, president of Wallace State Community College. "Community Colleges have always been and continue to be a proven source for employees for business and industry, and we are honored to be part of this project."

"Wallace State is committed to creating relationships with local industries that offer our students a pathway to jobs in those fields," said Jerry Murks, dean of Applied Technologies at Wallace State. "We hope through participating in this project that we can share our best practices and make improvements using proven methods from other institutions and industries across the U.S."

Wallace State is one of only 25 community colleges across the United States chosen to participate in the challenge.

"Wallace State was the first college in the state to be chosen by SME to participate in the challenge," said Dr. Deb Volzer, government and workforce partnerships director for SME, who is leading the MI-WPC initiative. "There is innovation and excellence across the board, and the fact that you were on our short list and one of our first schools is cause for congratulations."

The goal of the challenge is to attract 1,000 individuals at each of the initial participating community and technical colleges annually, resulting in 75,000 or more qualified workers in pursuit of manufacturing careers. The estimated economic impact of growing the industry's workforce is an estimated $6 billion.

The challenge has garnered the interest of the White House, Volzer said.

"We are tapped as innovators and really aligned to their manufacturing Sprint Initiative," she said. "So not only are you being highlighted in SME's work, but you're being highlighted at the highest level of the nation."

SME started out 90 years ago with the goal of advancing technology and resources that bring profitability, innovation and new technologies into manufacturing and provide trained workforce.

Volzer said they chose to work with community colleges like Wallace State in this challenge because they are the "workforce engines of our country."

She added that the manufacturing industry is facing some incredible headwinds, that were only exacerbated with COVID.

"We have about 8 million individuals aged 18-24 who have no plans for postsecondary after graduation from high school, if they graduate from high school," Volzer said.

"That's a huge population that is sitting on the sideline not having a clear path of what they want to do. That is the workforce of the future, and we're leaving them behind."

Couple that with reports indicating there are 2.7 million jobs anticipated to go unfilled in manufacturing alone and the problem gets bigger, she said.

If nothing is done, there could be a $4 trillion impact on the economy, Volzer added.

"Think about manufacturing," Volzer said. "It is absolutely the engine, at least a significant engine of our country. It's our global competitiveness. It's our economic resiliency and it is our national security."

Additionally, Volzer said there are 35 million people who are interested in additional education and training.

"This whole experiment over the next three years is how do we amplify, accelerate and scale what you guys are doing well and how do we reach those 35 million people," Volzer said.

Innovative solutions for attracting students in STEM related programs, developing and deploying curriculum aligned to the needs of local industry, changing the narrative around manufacturing, and deploying strategies to build stronger relationships with school districts will be shared nationally to grow local economies, reduce barriers to employment, and fill vacant manufacturing jobs.

Vance (from Front)

sammy@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN, Ala. — After a great season bowling with the Warriors this winter, West Point senior bowler Kevin Vance put together another stellar performance Saturday, bowling his first-ever 300 game in a youth league match. He's the youngest bowler to ever bowl a perfect game at the Cullman Bowling Center. It was a moment of relief and excitement for him and the rest of his family. He talked about that amazing accomplishment and being the youngest bowler to ever bowl a 300, plus his and his parents' reaction on his perfect game.

"It was a feeling of relief more than anything. To be the youngest now, only a week after Jake Wray shot his first 300 too, was a really good feeling," Vance said. "There was around 30 people there that consisted of parents and youth bowlers. It's hard to recall everyone's reaction, because it was such a in the moment experience. I was just feeling excited that it finally happened. My parents were excited and proud."

Kevin talked about if he had any nerves during the game, and the feeling that he had when he got the final strike to finish off his 300 game. His dad, Brian Vance, has been with him every step of the way and has helped him become the great bowler that he is right now. "I was able to handle the nerves pretty well. I just kept my pre-shot routine going, because I was really focused," Vance said. "I mainly felt excited and relieved, because I've been close a lot. My physical game has been good for the past couple of months since last summer. He's always been there for me. Whether it's been just practicing, tournaments, or high school matches, he has always helped me as much as he could."

Kevin has quickly become an inspiration to a lot of younger bowlers and gave them some advice that will help them get to where he's at right now. He has learned a couple of important things during his time on the high school bowling team, plus he talked about what he wants people to remember about him when his high school bowling career comes to an end.

"I hope I can be an inspiration to some of them, whether it's how I act on the lanes or just little advice I give to them here and there," he said. "Practice with a purpose. The mental game is just as important, if not more, than your physical game. I've learned communication and strategizing during my time on the high school team. I worked hard and I showed what's possible if you set your goals high, and you strive to achieve them day-by-day."

ACES: Can you name these 4 Alabama animals?

Justin Miller
Alabama Cooperative Extension System

AUBURN UNIVERSITY, Ala. — Imagine seeing a lizard with no legs or a giant salamander that can go years without eating. No, this isn't an April Fool's Day joke. These creatures are real. While they can't confirm sightings of Bigfoot or the Loch Ness Monster, wildlife professionals with the Alabama Cooperative Extension System can attest to the existence of these and some other downright strange creatures.

Wesley Anderson, an Alabama Extension wildlife specialist, said Alabama is home to more species than anywhere else east of the Mississippi River.

"With Alabama's varied landscapes and abundant waterways, there's a lot to take in," Anderson said. "Considering the state's biodiversity, it shouldn't come as a surprise that some pretty cool, and sometimes strange, creatures abound. Some might jar you awake in the middle of the night with their piercing wails. Others, you might never know existed unless you went searching for them in the swamp."

Glass lizards: When a "snake" is not a snake

Back to this lizard with no legs. That is exactly what the glass lizard is. There are three species of this reptile found in Alabama: the eastern, mimic and slender. The mimic and slender glass lizards are of high conservation concerns and protected by the State.

If glass lizards do not have legs, wouldn't that make them a snake? While they may look like snakes, Anderson said there are some big differences between the two.

"The glass lizard is Alabama's only legless lizard," Anderson said. "Unlike snakes, they have eyelids and external ear openings. Also, unlike snakes — where most of their length is their body — most of the length of glass lizards is, in fact, their tail. So, they aren't snakes, and as lizards go, they aren't closely related to snakes."

As if the whole no-leg thing wasn't odd enough, glass lizards' tails can fall off. While many lizards can do this, Anderson said glass lizards take it to the extreme.

"Their tail will often break into multiple pieces, hence the name glass lizard, and they do it very readily," Anderson said. "Some folks think that they can put themselves back together, which isn't true, but they can regrow their tails."

Woodrats: The original pack rat

Woodrats are mostly herbivorous rodents, but they aren't your average rat. Two species live in the state: the Allegheny and eastern. Allegheny woodrats can grow to about the size of the eastern gray squirrel.

You can consider woodrats to be somewhat of citizen scientists. The nests they build — known as middens — are mainly made up of vegetative-like twigs and sticks. However, they will also collect anything that catches their interest, particularly shiny objects. This is where the term "pack rat" comes from. Because of this, these middens can contain elements that help scientists better understand how vegetation and the environment changes over time.

ALABAMA COOPERATIVE EXTENSION SYSTEM

Eastern Glass Lizard

Sirens: When two legs aren't normal

Greek mythology is filled with stories of sirens, which were creatures that lured sailors to their deaths with their melodious voices. While they may not be luring sailors in anytime soon, the sirens that live in Alabama do have melodious voices all their own.

Sirens are large aquatic salamanders that resemble eels. According to Anderson, sirens are one of the few salamanders that can vocalize. Until 2018, there were only three species of sirens described by scientists. Now, there are five species, and Alabama is the only place in the world where people can find all five. Some species can grow to more than 3 feet in length. The greater siren species can make a yelping sound, and the lesser siren species can make a clicking sound.

"Sirens are paedomorphic, which means they retain larval characteristics through adulthood," Anderson said. "In this case, they have large, bushy external gills that they keep their entire lives."

Sirens are not closely related to any other salamanders. For starters, they only have forelimbs. They also are the only salamander that eats plants. All other salamanders are strict carnivores.

"They can live an incredibly long time without food," Anderson said. "One siren was recorded going over five years without any food."

Limpkins: A new wail in Alabama

One of the state's noisiest neighbors, the limpkin is an awkward, gangly bird that is generally found throughout the tropics. In recent years, they have slowly made their way up the Florida peninsula. However, according to Anderson, there was a historic number of limpkins in Alabama in 2023.

"Limpkins are mollusk specialists, particularly of apple snails," Anderson said. "We do have a native apple snail in south Alabama as well as an invasive species that has established in the Mobile–Tensaw River Delta. If that invasive species becomes further established, it will undoubtedly increase limpkin numbers in the state."

If you are trying to enjoy a quite time at home, a male limpkin is not the best bird to have around. The males make loud, piercing screeches and wails. They also make a rattling call when disturbed or courting a female.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Change our laws in Alabama so people with mental illness can get adequate mental health care

Edward L. Potter, Ph.D.
Contributor

We must change our laws in Alabama so that people with mental illness can get adequate mental health (care). Today, what we have in place is not working for the people who need it the most.

These issues need immediate attention:

1. The lack of beds in the state of Alabama for mentally ill patients.

2. The second issue is that if the individual tests positive for drugs, they are released from the hospital with no help. Almost everyone in our society knows that people with mental illness self-medicate due to the lack of their ability to pay for the medication that they cannot afford, and they self-medicate with illegal drugs.

3. The third issue is that many people who have mental illness help cannot be probated by family or friends due to having an active felony case in the court system. Many of these individuals have felony charges due to their mental illness.

4. The fourth issue is that the people who oversee the probate commitments have more training in the law on this topic and in mental health in general.

I ask our Cullman County state delegation, Senator Garlan Gudger, and Representatives Corey Harbison, Randall Shedd, Scott Stadthagen and Tim Wadsworth, to address this issue in the State of Alabama (Legislature). U.S. Senators Tommy Tuberville and Katie Britt, along with U.S. Representative (Robert Aderholt), take these issues up in Congress for support of the mentally ill and give the people who have no voice in our society (the message) that we care about them.

The promise was that when all the mental hospitals were closed, the community would take care of the mentally ill.

We in the community care (but) cannot help these individuals without funding. Others in our community care, and I need help for these individuals we love to live the best life possible.

I care,

brainstorm how to make it happen.

"In the 80s, as kids, we grew up on Pasquale's Pizza right outside of Birmingham, so we knew that food and loved it," he said. "As we grew up and moved away, Pasquale's became somewhat of a thing of the past."

One location near Birmingham did stay open. Pasquale's Pizza in Gardendale still stood and Steve Morgan visited frequently. At one of these stops, he learned about the possibility of an original Pasquale's Pizza that could be for sale due to the owners' retirement.

Morgan shared, "I used to always go in and joke with the owner about selling, and about two years ago after asking once again about the potential of selling, they told me about the Cullman location, and that they may be willing to sell and retire."

Making the trek to Cullman from Gardendale, Morgan called his brother and said, "Gardendale isn't going to happen, but I'm headed to Cullman now to meet with the owners there." He met with Donna Nunnelley to discuss the restaurant's future in Cullman and to hopefully strike a deal. It wasn't long after, Steve and Mike Morgan began their plans for the new Pasquale's, complete with a full bar, new bathrooms, a complete interior and exterior facelift and an outdoor seating area that has the ability to seat an additional 48 guests.

Despite the changes and cosmetic additions, there was one thing the brothers were adamant about staying the same.

"I met with Donna and I told her, 'We want to buy this place from you and keep all the same recipes. We want to redo the inside and make it more of a modern sports bar-type feel. We want to add outdoor seating, possibly live music; we want to add a bar, but we want to keep the exact same recipes that everybody grew up on and everybody knows,'" Morgan recounted.

Purchasing the property was the easy portion of the new venture. After the deal was struck and the dotted lines were signed, the Morgan brothers got to work on the renovations to the restaurant. The only problem with the new plans was that City ordinances required a larger parking area for the expanded occupancy of the building. The pair got to work clearing the wooded area behind the pizza location, digging out trees, connecting utilities and pouring concrete for the additional parking spots; the unexpected addition held up the restaurant's opening plans by around four and a half months.

The day has finally come to unveil the new Pasquale's Pizza and Pasta to local residents who, like the Morgans, grew up with the Italian cuisine staple. Keeping the tradition and life of the original Pasquale's Pizza in mind, most of the operations in the revamped location will largely stay the same.

"The main dining area is the same, she (Donna Nunnelley) had some games for kids, so we kept room for games. She had the buffet; we will still have the buffet. She had the buffet open on Thursday nights; we will have the buffet open on Thursday nights. We are closed on Monday, but every day Tuesday through Sunday, we will open the buffet from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., and on Thursday evenings, we will open the buffet from 5-8 p.m. The format is the same as how she had it," Morgan said. "We added an outdoor seating area that added 48 seats. We added a bar with 14 barstools as well as two additional ADA bathrooms on the bar side. With construction complete, we are excited about continuing the great tradition that Phillip and Donna started.

Pasquale's Pizza and Pasta is located at 915 Second Ave. NW. The grand opening will take place Tuesday, April 2, at 11 a.m.

Hunt (from Front)

CULLMAN, Ala. — Sportsman Lake Park held its annual Easter egg hunt on Saturday, March 30. It was a beautiful morning at the park with lots of activities for the whole family to enjoy.

Tracy's Balloon's had a booth set up for families to purchase balloon animals while they waited for the hunt to commence. Following the hunt, families could purchase tickets for a train ride, a game of putt-putt golf or food to feed the ducks.

Children lined the fences of the park waiting for the countdown to start the hunt. The park was divided into two separate hunting areas, ensuring a fair chance for hunters of all ages. The playground side of the park was designated for children ages 7-12, while the splash pad area was designated for children ages 0-6.

Sarah Morgan, who oversees marketing for Cullman County Parks and Recreation, shared that the hunt has happened for over 20 years at the park. This year the park hid over 10,000 eggs.

Said Morgan, "We appreciate everyone coming out and we hope to see them again next year!"
