CULLMAN, Ala. — St. Bernard Preparatory School President, Fr. Joel Martin, O.S.B., recently announced several key academic appointments and program enhancements as the school prepares for the 2025–2026 academic year.

Fr. Dominic Lee, O.S.B., named assistant headmaster
Fr. Dominic, a monk of St. Bernard Abbey for nearly 12 years, has served the school since his ordination and holds degrees in mathematics and philosophy from Belmont Abbey College, as well as an advanced degree in sacred theology from the Pontifical University of St. Anselm in Rome.

In his new role, he will oversee student discipline, chair the Discipline Committee and continue teaching mathematics.

Kim Whaley appointed dean of the faculty
A veteran educator and a cornerstone of the mathematics department, Whaley will now serve as dean of the faculty.

In this role, she will support the headmaster and faculty in academic standards and curriculum implementation, serve on the Discipline Committee and maintain her teaching responsibilities.

Rt. Rev. Cletus Meagher, O.S.B., to serve as chaplain
Former Abbot of St. Bernard Abbey, Rt. Rev. Cletus Meagher will now serve as chaplain for the school. Abbot Cletus brings decades of spiritual leadership to the role and will provide pastoral care for students, faculty and staff, working closely with Sr. Thérèse and the monks of the Abbey.

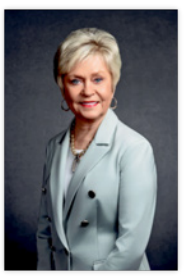

Enhanced ACT preparation program
Recognizing the importance of college readiness, St. Bernard Prep is introducing an intensive ACT workshop to be held during the fall semester.

An experienced outside instructor will conduct sessions integrated into the school day, offering students focused preparation at no additional cost.

"These appointments and initiatives represent our commitment to academic excellence and spiritual growth," Fr. Joel added.

"We invite any families who are interested in learning more to join us for an informational meeting this summer."

For more information or to express interest in attending St. Bernard Prep, contact the school office at 256-739-6682 or visit www.stbernardprep.com.

ALEA warns Alabamians of nationwide phishing scam impersonating 'Alabama DMV'

Staff Reports
Contributor

MONTGOMERY, Ala. — The Alabama Law Enforcement Agency (ALEA) is warning residents about a nationwide phishing scam that has recently targeted Alabamians with fraudulent text messages falsely claiming to be from the "Alabama Department of Vehicles (DMV)" and demanding payment for non-existent traffic tickets. These messages threaten to suspend individuals' driving privileges for 30 days and suspend vehicle registrations unless recipients click a malicious link or provide personal information.

State officials emphasize that there is no such entity as the Alabama Department of Vehicles (DMV). In Alabama, driver licensing services are administered by the Alabama Law Enforcement Agency's (ALEA) Driver License Division, and vehicle registration is handled by the Alabama Department of Revenue (ADOR). Additionally, license plates issuance is handled through local county probate offices.

ALEA and its Driver License Division do not send unsolicited text messages threatening prosecution and requesting personal information or payment. Any such message should be considered suspicious and deleted immediately.

"Scammers are trying to create a false sense of urgency by threatening you and your driving privileges," said ALEA Secretary Hal Taylor. "We urge all Alabamians to be cautious and remember that our Agency will never contact you this way."

What to watch for:

- Text messages claiming to be from the "Alabama DMV"
- Warnings about immediate license suspension or vehicle registration cancellation
- Links prompting users to enter personal or financial information

What to do:

- Do not click on links in suspicious text messages
- Do not provide any personal information
- Report phishing attempts to the Federal Trade Commission at www.reportfraud.ftc.gov and/or the IC3 at www.ic3.gov.

Gentry (from Front)

Lauren Estes
lauren@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN, Ala. — Cullman County Sheriff Matt Gentry on Friday, June 6, announced his candidacy for the Alabama Public Service Commission (APSC). Gentry told The Tribune he is running for Place 1.

The APSC has three members. Place 1 is currently held by Commissioner Jeremy H. Oden. Place 2 is currently held by Commissioner Chris "Chip" Beeker. APSC President Twinkle Andress Cavanaugh resigned last week because she was appointed by President Donald Trump to serve as the U.S. Department of Agriculture state director, Alabama rural development. Gov. Kay Ivey, also on June 6, appointed Rep. Cynthia Lee Almond, R-Alabama, to replace Cavanaugh.

Gentry told The Tribune, "I am looking forward to a position that allows me to protect and serve the needs of all citizens of Alabama. I have been a public servant for the last 26 years and look forward to continuing that service in the future as public service commissioner."

Gentry announced in August 2024 that he will retire at the end of his current term and will not seek re-election as sheriff. His third term will end in January 2027

Alabama Public Service commissioners will be on the ballot in 2026. The Primary will take place May 19, and the General Election will be Nov. 3.

Below is Gentry's June 6 announcement:

Cullman County Sheriff Matt Gentry has announced that he's stepping up to run for the Alabama Public Service Commission, answering what he calls a God-given calling to serve the good people of Alabama in a new way.

Born and raised in Cullman County, Sheriff Gentry has spent his life standing up for his community and doing what's right. From enlisting in the United States Marine Corps out of high school, and soon after, starting his career as a deputy sheriff in Cullman County, public service has been an important part of Matt Gentry's everyday life.

For the past decade, he's led the Cullman County Sheriff's Office with a steady hand, a servant's heart, and a deep love for the people he serves.

"I've prayed on this, talked it over with my family, and I truly believe now's the time," Gentry said. "The Lord put it on my heart to serve Alabama in a new way. This isn't about politics—it's about doing right by the people."

The Alabama Public Service Commission oversees utilities like electricity and gas, making sure families and small businesses aren't taken advantage of and have access to dependable service at fair prices.

Gentry says the Commission needs leaders who understand what everyday Alabamians go through—and who won't back down when it comes to standing up for them.

Gentry also stated that when elected, transparency would be at the forefront, as he has held thousands of community meetings, public events, and citizen classes as Sheriff of Cullman County.

"Access to elected officials shouldn't be hard. I will always have an open-door policy to anyone who wants to meet with me, and I won't disappear if elected. I will continue to travel the state to hear citizens' concerns," said Gentry.

"My whole life has been about protecting and serving the people who have given me the honor to serve them," he said.

"From small farms to front porches, people deserve someone who'll fight for them, and I know what it's like from my 25 years in law enforcement to go to work every day to fight for those individuals who need help. That's what I aim to do when elected to the PSC."

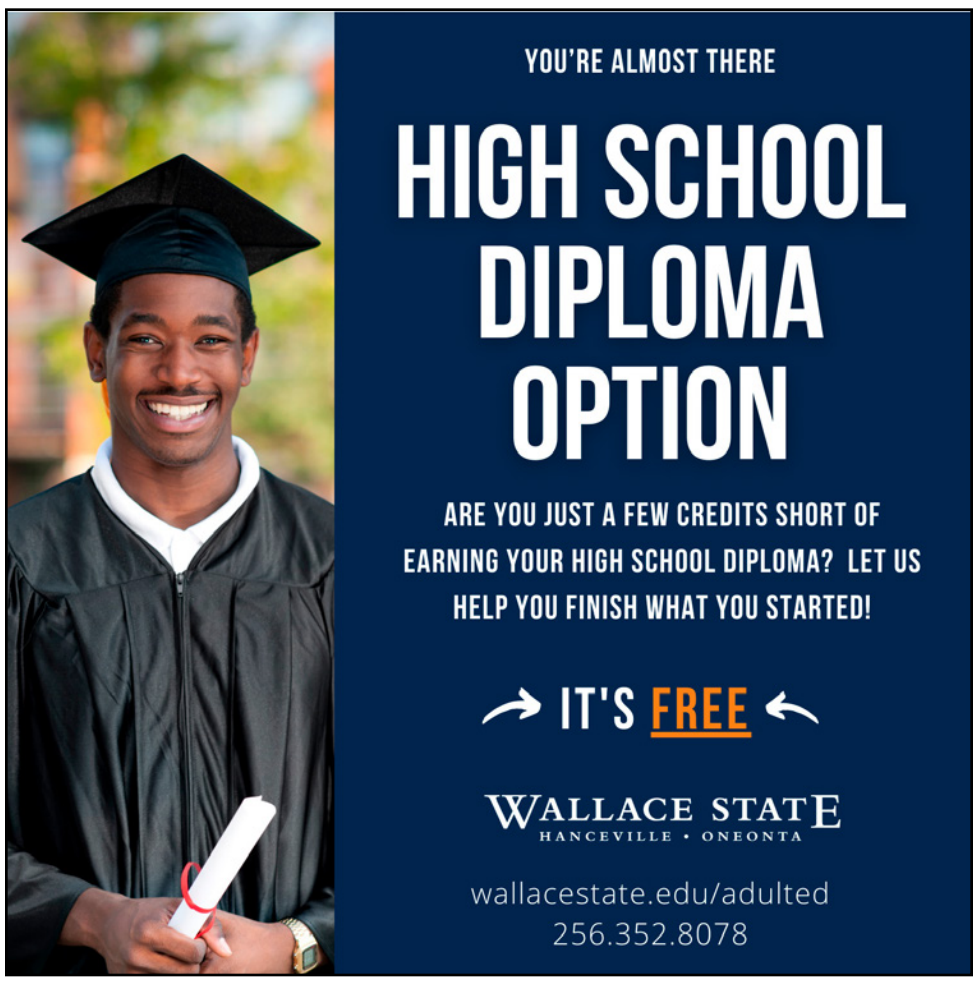

Matt Gentry's campaign is expected to draw strong support from rural communities across the state who want to see more common-sense, conservative leadership in Montgomery. In the first two weeks of fundraising, Matt Gentry raised $97,800 and also loaned the campaign $100,000 for a total of $197,800.

A formal campaign kickoff event will be announced soon.

Matt Gentry is married to Susie, and they have two sons, William and Walker. They also have three dogs and a herd of Longhorns.

For more information or to view his campaign video, visit www.MattGentryForPSC.com or on Facebook @MattGentryForPSC.

‘Playing alongside my best friends is an experience like no other’: Cullman’s Aubrey Hastings reflects on Bearcat career

Sammy Confer
sammy@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN, Ala. — Cullman senior Aubrey Hastings collected her diploma in May, and in this interview, she reflected on some of her favorite soccer memories and what it was like to play alongside great teammates and friends.

"My favorite memories from soccer had to be our beach tournaments down in Gulf Shores. The best part was forming a closer bond with my teammates and coaches," Hastings said. "Playing alongside my best friends is an experience like no other. I absolutely loved the support and encouragement I would receive from each of them. They really helped to push me to be a better player. I learned that no matter what, I needed to keep my head up and keep pushing. At the end of the day, they were always in my corner."

Aubrey played under some great coaches at Cullman and soaked up as much as she could from them.

"My coaches were hard on us. They saw something in us that we couldn't see. They held us to a certain standard, which was high, yet obtainable. Each coach encouraged each of us to unlock and discover our potential. I learned that no matter what, no matter how hard, no matter how draining something is, pushing through and doing your best is the most rewarding part."

Aubrey will deeply miss playing at Cullman this upcoming season, and she was a part of some great games during her career. She shared her favorite high school memory and what made Cullman a special place to go to school.

"I will miss the atmosphere and the buildup to big games. Our area games were a big deal. We took them very seriously and would do our best to keep up team morale," Hastings said.

"My favorite games were our games against Hartselle. They have been our rivals for a long time, so the games against them were competitive and fast paced. My favorite high school memory was my senior spring break trip to Panama Beach with my best friend.

"Cullman High School is special, because it feels like home. The teachers care, the classes push us to be our best, and there's a strong sense of community. Whether it's sports, band, or clubs, there's something for everyone, and people always show up to support. It's a place where we learn, grow, and make memories."

She will miss so much about being a Bearcat, and she gave some advice to the students that will be starting high school in August.

"What I'll remember and miss the most about going to Cullman is the sense of family. The friends, the Friday night lights, the teachers who believed in me, and all the little moments in between. It all made Cullman feel like home. I'll miss the people the most, because they're what made it so special," she said. "Be yourself. Be you. People will judge you, no matter what. Don't listen to them. Don't stress out about what other people think about you."

God has played an enormous role during Aubrey's time at Cullman, and she shared her favorite Bible verse.

"God has played a big role during my time at Cullman. In tough moments, I've leaned on my faith for strength and direction. Whether it was through prayer, friendships, or just feeling His presence, I've been reminded that I'm never alone. My faith has helped shape who I am and kept me grounded through it all," she said. "My favorite Bible verse is Isaiah 41:10: 'Do not fear, for I am with you; do not be dismayed for I am your God. I will strengthen you and help you; I will uphold you with my righteous right hand'. When I go through difficult times, I look back at this verse and realize that no matter what, I have a purpose and am upheld by God."

Aubrey went through a routine before and after games and being a role model and an inspiration to a lot of kids on and off the soccer field were two of her top priorities.

"I have a routine every time I stepped onto the field. I would first fist bump each of my defenders, run to the goal and hit it, and finally make a sign of a cross at the top of the box. After a game, no matter if it was a win or a loss, I would thank God for the opportunity to step onto the field with some amazing people," she said. "Being a role model has meant a lot to me, both on and off the field. I know younger kids are always watching, so I've tried to lead by example: showing good sportsmanship, working hard, and treating others with respect. It's not just about how you play, but how you carry yourself every day. Knowing I might have inspired someone to chase their goals or believe in themselves is one of the best parts of it all."

AUBREY HASTINGS

Cullman's Aubrey Hastings

Aubrey participated in several clubs at Cullman, and she was also a Citizen's Promise Ambassador. She earned a couple of scholarships from the University of South Alabama as well.

"I was a Citizen's Promise Ambassador. Citizen's Promise helps high school students become life, career, and citizen ready. I was in charge of keeping students involved in program activities and serving as liaisons between the school, community, and the program organizers," she said. "I received a Freshman Admission Scholarship for $3,000 and a Jag Dream Scholarship for $1,000. I feel very blessed to have had the opportunity to receive these scholarships."

She took away so much during her time at Cullman, and she wants people to remember her for the kind of person she was, in and outside of school.

"I learned the importance of perseverance and staying true to who I am. Whether it was in class, on the field, or just in everyday life, Cullman taught me how to keep pushing forward, even when things got tough, and to always treat people with kindness and respect," she said. "I hope people remember me as someone who gave it her all, someone who worked hard, encouraged others, and stayed positive, no matter what. Whether it was in sports, school, or just being a friend, I tried to show up and make a difference."

'Trust God through it all': Fairview's Elleigh Henry discusses her faith

Sammy Confer
sammy@cullmantribune.com

FAIRVIEW, Ala. — God has played a major role in Fairview senior Elleigh Henry's life and in this interview, she talked about her journey with her faith, starting with the decision to get baptized on March 16.

"He means everything to me, especially now that I got saved. I truly understand how much He forgives and loves us through it all. It was the best feeling ever. An immediate relief and burden was lifted off my shoulders. He has changed my life so much. He truly has shown me how to be a better person and just reading my Bible or praying throughout the day has made a huge difference. He has given me peace and comfort in Him like I've never experienced before," Elleigh said.

"I got baptized on March 16th, and I was surrounded with the best group of friends who never fail to show up and be there for me. That is so important who you put yourself around. They can make a huge impact on you and your decisions. I want to tell people my age or younger than me: don't make the mistake of surrounding yourself with people that lead you further away from Christ.

"Surround yourself with people that uplift you and have the same image of Christ and goals as you. I have been there where I was living worldly and not putting God first.

"That's why it is so important that the people that you are around play a huge part in your walk with Christ, and they'll help you grow to be the best Christian you can be. God is so good and forgiving, so never think you're straying too far away. You are never too lost for God to save you."

It's really important for Elleigh to help people of all ages find God and be a role model for younger kids. She has helped out with a couple of things in the missionary field and plans to do even more after she graduates. She also talked about a life-changing experience that helped her get even closer to God.

"That is one of the most important things to me. Going to heaven is one of the biggest blessings that we will receive.

"I always want to be someone they look up to and show them how to walk in Christ," she said. "I helped Vacation Bible School and worked at the food drive a couple of years ago.

"Recently, I was in a wreck, and although it wasn't very bad, it could have been. This made me realize how quickly life can change. I am very thankful for God's hand covering me that day. It was probably one of the scariest things I have ever experienced."

Elleigh gave some advice to those people who might be either struggling or are new when it comes to having a relationship with God.

"Pray and pray some more. Read your Bible and really get into God's word. He always has an answer, and don't be afraid to ask questions," she said. "What I've learned the most during my journey so far is to trust God through it all."

Agriplex event highlights Red Hill School House, history of Cullman County education

camille@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN, Ala. — As part of its monthly Heritage Skills series, the North Alabama Agriplex on Thursday, June 5, hosted an exhibit and presentation on the history of education in Cullman County at the historic Red Hill School House.

During the presentation, which covered the school house's history, its journey to its current home at Peinhardt Living History Farm, a typical school day in the early 1900s and the history of each school in Cullman County, retired Cullman County teachers shared stories of classrooms and educators spanning decades.

They explained past rituals and invited attendees to participate in traditional activities such as ringing the school bell and singing "My Country, 'Tis of Thee."

The Red Hill School House serves as a museum, showcasing an exhibit with historical desks, chairs and textbooks, as well as a map marking the locations of 103 former schools across Cullman County.

The Red Hill School House, which dates back to the late 1800s, was moved from Marshall County to its current location in Cullman County, where it was restored, in 2007.

"It's important for us to know our local history and to know how we've gotten to where we are today," said Kathy Lee, coordinator of the Heritage Skills program.

Cullman County EMA's Brent McDonald talks tornado safety

Anabelle Howze
anabelle@cullmantribune.com

CULLMAN, Ala. — With the ever-changing Alabama weather, residents must always be prepared for any eventuality. Cullman County Emergency Management Agency (EMA) EMA Specialist Brent McDonald is providing tips on proactive steps to ensure safety before, during and after severe weather.

From assembling emergency kits to choosing safe rooms within one's house, McDonald emphasized that preparation is the key to safety and survival.

"One of the smartest things families can do before a storm hits is have a solid safety plan ready, which means knowing exactly where to go for shelter and making sure your emergency kit is stocked with all the essentials. When severe weather is in the forecast, stay alert and be ready to act before the danger is right on top of you. Don't wait until it's too late," he said.

A well-stocked emergency kit should cover at least three days' worth of necessities, including water, non-perishable food, a weather radio, flashlights, extra batteries, a power bank, a first aid kit and prescription medications. Hygiene items, warm clothing, sturdy shoes, blankets and essential tools like a whistle, alarm or multitool are also necessary. Comfort items, such as toys and books, are also encouraged for families with children.

"Every family's needs are different. Consider what you'd need if you couldn't return home for at least three days," McDonald advised.

Inside the home, the safest shelter during a tornado is a small, windowless room on the lowest floor, such as a bathroom, closet or interior hallway.

"Stay away from windows and avoid large open areas like living rooms or garages. Practice getting to your safe spot quickly with your family. Have that plan in place and know what to do before it's over you," he said.

It is recommended that families update and rehearse their emergency plans at least twice a year.

It is also vital to recognize when you need to go to a public shelter and the importance of arriving earlier rather than waiting for the storm to begin. Cullman County has multiple public storm shelters located across the county, which typically open when a tornado watch is issued. Locations and updates can be found on the Cullman County EMA app, website and social media pages. Individuals seeking shelter should come prepared with the recommended essentials, as listed above. Most shelters do not accept pets, so McDonald advised owners to make arrangements in advance. If you can't find a place for your pets, keep them in the lowest room of your home and prepare a pet emergency kit with food, water, medications and comfort items.

Wearing the correct clothing and protective gear can be lifesaving.

"A sturdy helmet — such as a bike, sports or construction helmet — can reduce the risk of serious head injuries from flying debris," McDonald said. In addition to helmets, McDonald recommended wearing durable, full-coverage clothing, such as denim or canvas, along with closed-toe shoes or boots. "Avoid sandals or flip-flops. You need something sturdy like hiking boots or work shoes to protect your feet from glass, nails and debris."

Once the storm has passed, residents must remain alert. Gas leaks should be taken seriously. If you hear a hissing sound or smell gas, evacuate immediately and avoid using electronics or open flames.

"Check yourself and those around you for injuries and get medical help if needed," he said. "Avoid entering damaged structures until they're declared safe. Watch out for downed power lines, gas leaks and sharp debris."

Residents should report any storm damage as soon as it is safe to do so. This helps the EMA coordinate response efforts and submit data to the State. Reporting forms can be accessed on the Cullman County EMA website or through the EMA app.

McDonald emphasized avoiding common post-storm mistakes, such as entering unsafe buildings, using generators indoors or driving through floodwaters. Residents are encouraged to stay informed by using tools such as NOAA radios, emergency alerts, the EMA app and social media. Community support is also vital; check on neighbors, especially those who are vulnerable.

BILLY BOB'S STORIES AND STUFF

Making memories for a lifetime

Bill King
Tribune
Contributor

I have heard it said that real painters don't need a drop cloth. One person who had told me that, later that same day knocked a gallon of paint off his ladder. He descended to the floor almost as quickly as the paint can had, while the spilled paint raced him across the church's unprotected carpet!

Evidently, I am not a real painter, because I definitely need a drop cloth. Recently, I had finished painting and was preparing to fold up my large plastic drop cloth. Folding such a huge piece of material by yourself is not an easy task. I stretched my blue plastic covering across the ground, looked at the multitude of white paint droplets that dotted it and contemplated how to best fold it up. There was no one out there other than me, but unexpectantly, I heard a voice giving me folding directions. No, it was not the voice of God. It was not an audible voice that I heard with my ears but the memory of an actual voice that I have not heard for almost 55 years now. It was the voice of my father. He died suddenly when I was a young teenaged boy. Since then, occasionally, I can still recall his voice giving me words of wisdom and instruction. My memory took me back to a time when he taught me how to fold a large canvas tarpaulin by myself. It was almost like he was there coaching me as I lifted one corner and walked it to the other corner on one side and then on the other. I repeated that process until I finally had a neatly folded square, ready to be put up. My father said, "Good job, son!"

All those many years ago, when my father taught me that trick, I never imagined how special that simple memory would be to me all these years later. Since I was still young when he died, I don't have many memories of my father, but I am so thankful for the ones I do have. There have been numerous times when I've wished I could ask him something, but he wasn't there to ask. The awesome thing is that there have also been quite a few times, like the tarp folding, when he told me what I needed (at least in my memory) without even being there. I'm thankful we made some memories.

I am indeed blessed to have now lived long enough to see my own child grow to adulthood. Through her childhood and adolescence, I tried to make as many memories with her as possible. I vowed to spend even more time with her than my dad had with me. She and I played, worked, fished, rode bikes, wrestled dogs, built things, and who knows what else we did together. It really didn't matter what we did; I wouldn't take a million dollars for the times we have shared. I prayed that I would live long enough to see her reach adulthood, and God granted that. Now, I am making memories with my grandson and praying the same prayer for him. My close encounter with clogged heart arteries a year ago caused me to realize even more just how precious this life with the ones we love is. Just this week, as Drew and I played pickleball together and then worked on a project in the woodshop, I gave thanks to God for such simple opportunities.

Dads and moms, please take the time to make some memories that will last a lifetime. Our children will cherish them...especially after we are gone.

POET'S CORNER

Just Outside of Eden | By: Randy C. Hale

She's about five and not long before our swim, we saw an opossum playing dead
in our yard.

Mouth open, tongue out,
real until later when Lazarus rises from the ground and ambles away.

It sets her thinking,
to other indications in life.
Amidst the kicking, splashing and laughing, she looks at me with those sea blue eyes and asked.

"Daddy, will you be like that opossum some day?" Then tilts her head, sticks her tongue out to the side and crosses her eyes.

I can't help but laugh at her antics before I reply. "Yes, but not for long,
just like that old opossum,
I'll rise again someday."

For now, that suffices as she goes back to swimming and carefree time. I realize it's her first few steps outside of Eden, never to quite to find her way back again.
